CHICAGO DEALERS SATISFIED.

Best Xmas Trade in Years and New Year Opening Up Well.

Chicago, Dec. 30.

The very good Christmas trade this year came of its own accord, and, unlike some seasons, did not have to be coaxed much. Nearly all the down-town dealers made some attempt at special window displays, but none of them were very elaborate. More stress has been put on the brands themselves than on fancy trimmings and special holiday features. While Chicago will in all probability take second place in this regard to no other city, at the same time it must impress one that more time could be spent on the windows, not only for special occasions, but through the year, and that it would be time profitably spent.

The year opens up with no special changes in the trade. Not an important change in buyers of the wholesale houses is heard of, and the retail field is curiously devoid of news. Two small jobbing concerns not yet up to, or rather down to the ground floor degree have started, and of course they may grow to imposing proportions in time.

Brummell & Buddinger is the name of a new firm that has started at 35-37 Randolph street. They will handle the La Turina of the American West Indies Trading Company and other well known brands.

The Great Western Trading Company has been formed, with temporary quarters in the building at the southeast corner of Randolph and Dearborn streets. They will do a jobbing business, and the manager is Tom Farmer, formerly manager of the cigar department of White, Minor & Co.

J. & B. Moos have recovered entirely from the effects of the recent fire. They had a new stock on the way a day or two after the fire, and are now back in their old location at Randolph street and Michigan avenue.

There is little that is new in association circles. The executive committee of the national is looking forward with a good deal of confidence to the annual convention which takes place at the Sherman House on January 10. It will be a two-days' session. Good responses have been received from the active locals, and an attendance sufficient to make the convention rich in accomplishment is assured.

I. Latzar, chairman of the advisory board of the Chicago branch C. D. A. of A., has established headquarters in the rooms of the National Association in the Atwood building, and is doing some aggressive work.

The board of directors of the local will soon take action to make its wants known to the committee having charge of the new city charter. They think that by having all lines of merchandise put on the same plane as near as possible, so far as the imposition of special licenses is concerned, they can do away with the present oppressive tax on the sale of cigarettes. As a matter of fact, it is common knowledge that there are hundreds of saloons, fruit stores, etc., who manage to sell cigarettes without paying the tax. Of course this works an immense injustice to those legitimate and honest dealers who always make it a point to comply with the law, and who are the ones who are always held strictly accountable by the city authorities.

Speaking of cigarettes, Miss Lucy Page Gaston seems to have relieved the city dealers from her vigorous attentions of late and to have transferred her activities to the country. It is quite possible that we may again hear of her in a very forcible way in the city in the not far distant future.

CLERGYMEN HELP INDEPENDENTS.

Won't Buy at United Cigar Co.'s Stores in Chicago.

Chicago, Dec. 29.

Some of the clergymen of this city seem to be finding new duties which belong to their jobs. According to one of the local daily papers, which has been plugging hard for the independents in their fight against the encroachments of the United Cigar Stores Co., many communications pledging support have been received by the former from "bankers, lawyers, clergymen, workmen and laborers."

The article says:

A clergyman writes that after reading the energetic articles against the New York cigar and tobacco trust, he made inquiries of some of his flock as to the localities of trust stores, so that he could avoid bestowing his patronage by mistake upon a trust store.

To his satisfaction he found that those of his flock who were using the weed were not only posted as to the locations of the trust stores, but all were also in sympathy with him to avoid them.

It is probable that this man of God in his enthusiasm for a righteous cause extends his help directly from the pulpit and delivers notices something like this:

"Remember the regular prayer service on Wednesday evening at half past seven. We have received great spiritual blessing at these services lately and a full attendance is desired. Brethren are requested to get their smoking and chewing at Blank's; all independent goods. Five-cent brands a specialty. Regular communion on next Sunday morning at 10:30."

SANTELLA TOBACCO CO. MUST PAY DAMAGES OF $9,400.

A case which excited much interest in the Northwest, and which has been vigorously contested in the courts, has been settled by the award of $9,400 to the plaintiff. The case was that of Otto F. Lange vs. the Santella Tobacco Co., of Dubuque, Ia., in which the plaintiff claimed that the defendant company had violated its contract in depriving him of the exclusive agency of a certain cigar.

PROTEST AGAINST TARIFF CUT.

New England Growers' Association Asks Congressmen to Prevent It.

The New England Tobacco Growers' Association has placed itself on record as being firmly opposed to any further reduction in the Philippine tariff, and is making efforts to prevent any such action. In furtherance of this the association is sending to each Senator or Representative in the present Congress the following letter, dated from Suffield, Conn.:

To aid the Philippines, the proposition is made that there shall be a further reduction of the United States tariff on the products of those islands.

Among those products is tobacco, an article holding a most important place in the agricultural economy of the United States. To make a further reduction of the duties on Philippine tobacco would transfer to those islands a very large part of the business which now supports thousands of American citizens in the cigar-leaf growing districts of the United States—citizens whose investments in this specialized form of agriculture can not well be turned to other use.

If this plan of reduction comes before you for decision, we desire you to bear in mind the interests of the tobacco growers of New England and of the other leaf-producing districts of the United States.

Lest this appear as a blunt protest against aid justly due to a newly acquired and unexploited dependency of the United States, we call your attention to the peculiarity of the leaf tobacco situation, whereby all tropical countries suited to tobacco culture and having supplies of cheap labor are able to compete with the home producers in temperate climates, even with protective tariffs. If it be the destiny of the Philippine Islands to produce leaf tobacco and cigars on a large commercial scale, such an industry will surely develop there without further reduction of our present tariffs, which are such as allow tropical countries having no 25 per cent advantage to ship tremendous quantities of tobacco to the United States in competition with home growers.

The letter is signed by Edmund Halladay, president, and Thaddeus Graves, E. N. Phelps and Frank Abbe, committee.

BURNED TOBACCO IN ORDER TO ACCOUNT TO GOVERNMENT FOR IT.

Deputy Revenue Collector Feather burned about 150 pounds of unused tobacco at Sinclairville, Pa., last week while a curious crowd of residents of the place witnessed the proceedings. The tobacco, which was owned by F. C. Holtz, was damaged, and he instructed the deputy to destroy it, as every pound of tobacco purchased by a manufacturer of tobacco goods has to be accounted for by him to the government. Should he discontinue business at any time he must either sell the material on hand or destroy it, and he must first pay the government tax on it.

NO TRUST IN MISSISSIPPI.

Governor Vardaman Turns Down Fisher Tobacco Co. as a Violation of Law.

West Point, Miss., Dec. 29.

Governor Vardaman of this State has held up the charter of the Fisher Tobacco Co., of this city, on the ground that the company's charter is in violation of the spirit of the anti-trust laws of the State.

The charter was presented for executive approval some weeks ago, and the Governor's action was taken on account of a clause in it which provides that any tobacco company or corporation domiciled in Mississippi or in any other State of the Union, can hold stock in the West Point company.

The anti-trust laws of the State provide that no corporation can hold stock in another corporation, since only in this way can the State prevent combines, and thus hinder one company from owning and controlling the stock of all companies engaged in a similar line of business. This is the first time this provision of the anti-trust law has been put into operation in Mississippi.

There is no chance of securing the charter until an amendment is made eliminating the objectionable features, to which the Governor has called attention.

WILL TEST TRADING STAMP ACT.

Before those principally affected will submit to the new excise law in Massachusetts, which taxes trading stamps, coupons, etc., test cases will be brought and strong efforts made to prove the law unconstitutional.

A member of the legal firm of Platzek & Strooch, of New York, counsel for the United Cigar Stores Co., has been in Fall River, Mass., during last week in consultation with City Solicitor Dubuque and David F. Slade, counsel for the Green Trading Stamp Co., and it was stated that the conference was held with a view to bringing a test case for violation of the excise tax law at as early a date as possible.

The American Tobacco Co., as told last week, has taken the stand that the law was not meant to apply to coupons of the nature of those used with tobacco.

TELEPHONE THIEVES ARE FOILED.

Extend Operations to Louisville and Fail to Get Away With the Goods.

The telephone order thieves have extended their operations to Louisville, Ky., after successfully working the game in New York and other cities, but in the Kentucky town the game was nipped in the bud after the cigars had been gotten out of the store.

As in the other cases, an order for stuff was made by telephone, this time for $50 worth of cigars at J. T. Stier & Son. An employe became suspicious at a remark made by the expressman who called for the goods later, and followed him and recovered the cigars.

Dealers in all parts of the country are warned to verify all telephone orders, no matter how safe they may seem.

The Old Salesman's Musings.

A FEW REMARKS A LA DR. SWALLOW

Thanking you in advance for your kind attention, I think I shall use my space this week to preach a short sermon, out of which I sincerely hope somebody will get some good. I, too, hate amateur preachers who butt cheerfully in where a wise gentleman would stay away or send in his card, but I was so shaken up by an experience I had the other night that I can't forbear.

It's about Rum! Perennial old rum! And before I get any further I am willing to remark concerning myself, that I never insisted on being gagged, bound and chloroformed in order to permit someone to force a small horn down me, so I am not speaking from the icy pedestal of the W. C. T. U. But there are persons who use alcohol, and persons whom alcohol uses, and it's up to every man to make snap judgment on which class nature has fitted him out for.

To begin my story properly: On a dark and snowy night, about ten years ago, I boarded a train in Western Pennsylvania and soon got into conversation with the only passenger in the car, a young fellow not more than 23.

For all his youth, he very evidently had brains, was an unusually interesting conversationalist, was really witty without having to repeat, and altogether made such a strongly favorable impression on me, that I made him promise to let me hear from him.

He was a frank youth and he told me that his father was a member of a firm in Philadelphia, and was sending him out to learn the business on the road. I happened to know his line pretty well, had made his territory many a time, and loosened up some pointers for which the kid seemed properly grateful.

Well, I met him again in a few months, and he told me he was getting along finely. Before many more months had passed I began to hear of him from other salesmen, as having made a big hit both with his customers and his brother salesmen, and I felt glad of it. I said as much to one man who was praising the boy to me.

"Yes, he's all right," added the man. "And the child's a perfect tank. I don't think he exactly looks for booze, but he naturally is mixed up with it a lot, and they tell me he can put some of us old ones under the table twice, and then go out and sell a bill."

"Well, I hope he don't push a good thing too far," I remarked, and then forgot it.

I didn't hear from Billy (that is the boy's name) for a couple of years and then I ran into him again. He was a good deal wiser in the world's wisdom than he had been before, but he still had an appearance of boyish innocence and was at the same time as quick as a trick. He seemed glad to see me and we drifted into a heart-to-heart talk over the dinner table. He drank a lot of whiskey before, during and after the meal, which struck me as a mighty bad sign in a boy of his age, and I made some remark about it.

He laughed it off at first, but grew more serious and admitted that he was hitting it too hard.

"I really have about decided to cut it out," he said, "but I ought to change my job to do it. Everywhere I go I'm mixed up in it. I have stopped for a while two or three times, and then got tied up in crowds with women and I had to be either a dead one or a sport, and somehow the latter always won out. It seems like a cowardly admission, doesn't it?" he asked.

I agreed with him, and mentioned numerous cases I knew of where bright, young fellows had succumbed to the falsely seductive combination of wine, women and song. He appreciated it all, and we parted.

I saw him again in five years during which time I had occasionally heard of him, always as a successful salesman making lots of money and spending it in the same old way. He had left his father's employ because he thought he wasn't making enough, and several subsequent houses had been obliged to let him go after particularly flagrant sprees.

I was with him this time for about ten minutes in company with two or three other men and I had no chance to talk to him. He was more careless about his dress although he wore expensive clothes, and he looked decidedly bloated. His pockets were full of money and he had no more idea of its value than a cave dweller.

About a year ago a sweet looking woman called upon me who said she was Billy's mother and explained that he had told her all about me and my good advice, etc. The dear lady, much to her own annoyance, began to weep, and finally asked me if I wouldn't try to find her son who was drunk, somewhere, and hadn't been heard from for a week.

I tried and didn't succeed but learned that he got home a few days later. It seems that he still made his home with his family in Germantown, when he was off the road.

I met him in New York about six months ago, and was delighted to see that he had a clear eye and a steady grip. He was much more like the boy in the little midnight train, in Pennsylvania, and he told me he was working inside, keeping away from the gang, and was just finishing up a certain much advertised treatment for inebriecy.

"I feel different in every respect," said he, "and I wouldn't go back to the old game for anything on earth. I'm working for myself now, not a lot of saloon keepers and queer women."

I tried to tell him how glad I was to hear it and we separated in the best of spirits.

One night last week I was hurrying up lower Arch street, Philadelphia, when as I reached Fifth street, a man crouching by the meeting-house wall grabbed me by the arm with a frenzied grip and, pointing to something in the road, fairly hissed "What is that? Oh, God, tell me what that is?"

It was a mere, harmless cat on a char-

THE REALM OF THE RETAILERS

IT is the hope of the editor of this department that during the coming year every subscriber among the dealers will find the page of constant use and aid to him, and will come to watch eagerly for the paper. A number of dealers have adopted suggestions made here from time to time and have reported gratifying success.

Whatever hints and suggestions to retailers are made during the coming year will be carefully weighed and wherever possible will be made from actual experience. In furtherance of this, another request is made that dealers and readers in general write to us, telling us about ideas that have actually been tried or are proposed.

Bear in mind that a scheme which might not be advisable under one set of circumstances might be the precise thing needed by some other man differently situated.

You may have tried an idea which seemed good but somehow failed to bring results. Send it along and we will try to explain it. Again you may have tried something in a doubtful frame of mind and found that it brought lots of business. We would like to hear about that.

If this page has ever helped you, help it to help someone else. Don't be so indifferent when it comes to helping some body else, and remember that this means YOU.

LET A FEW FACTS STICK TO YOU AS YOU MOVE ALONG.

BECAUSE a man keeps a cigar store it does not necessarily follow that he is an expert judge of tobacco or that he knows all about his stock that there is to know. The ignorance of the usual customer and at the same time his belief that he is all wise, is proverbial, although sometimes his ignorance is not much greater than that of some of the small dealers.

"Nine men out of ten when you hand them a cigar will roll it tenderly between the fingers and smell it knowingly before attempting to smoke it," said a cigar man recently. "After puffing on it a minute, he will tell all about the cigar, its make, grade and price, and inform you in a confidential way that he knows all about tobacco, and cigars in particular. In ninety-nine cases out of one hundred his information will be wrong, as only the tobacco expert can quickly judge of the intrinsic merit of a cigar, and frequently he will be at fault.

"For commercial purposes all cigars are divided into three grades of tobacco, known as dark, medium and light, but there are forty or fifty shades, which are grouped into five sub-headings.

"The grade of a tobacco used in a cigar has nothing whatever to do with its size, and there is practically no limit to the number of sizes. Any cigar manufacturer may bring out a cigar of special size and give it whatever name he pleases. The best known and most frequently used sizes, however, in the cigar trade are the conchas, which are divided into bouquet and especial, regalia bouquets and puritanos, the breva and panatella having distinct shape of their own. The panatella is a long, thin cigar, with tapering ends, whereas the breva is finished off short at both ends and has an even thickness throughout, except a slight narrowness at the end that is held in the mouth.

Undoubtedly the best tobacco smoked in cigars in this country is the native grown Cuban tobacco, and the cigar is further improved if it is made in Cuba, particularly in the province of Havana. For this reason many so-called Havana cigars are in reality cigars made in this country and shipped to the islands, whence they are reshipped to the United States and the revenue stamp is duly pasted on the boxes to deceive the uninitiated.

Many smokers who prefer a light wrapper enjoy the flavor of the Manila wrapper with the Havana filler. To satisfy this taste the Havana tobacco frequently is wrapped in Connecticut wrapper.

"Inferior grades of cigars frequently are made of doctored tobacco, acid being used to stain the wrappers and light straw color in spots. The best leaf of the tobacco plant is that which grows nearest to the ground, and when the rain splashes mud on the leaf these little straw colored spots appear when the tobacco is cured. When these spots are genuine the wrapper will be a good tobacco of its grade, but whether it is acid stain or not only the expert will be able to determine."

WHY DID THE RETAIL BUSINESS FALL OFF?

THERE is a general complaint among retail cigar dealers of the country of the falling off in the sale of cigars. It is said that this decrease has been shown greatly in the past three months.

A prominent cigar dealer yesterday said that he had learned from officials of the internal revenue department that the entire sales of cigars in the United States had decreased 40,000,000 last month over that of October.

"When the cold wind begins blowing," he continued, "then our busines falls off. In the summer time our best trade is on. Men who usually smoke have a cigar in their mouth while walking down the street. As soon as snow falls and the air is filled with frost they leave off the smoking in the streets. This in a measure temporizes the habit with them and they do not do so much smoking when they are at home.

"This year we have had good, pleasant weather up till a few days ago. For the past month or six weeks the cigar trade has been falling off. There are not as many pipes or cigarettes sold and I am unable to account for the decline in the business. It may be that many young men have retrenched on their cigar money that they might save it for Christmas. If such is the case it is the first time in my memory that such retrenchment took place prior to New Year's day. At that time the cigar business always falls off for at least one month. Thousands of men at that time 'swear off' with good intentions of not smoking any more. This lasts about a month or six weeks and we can easily see the way the resolutions are broken by the steady advance in the sale of cigars."

QUEEN CITY TOBACCO CO.'S DISPLAY AT THE SHOW.

A BOOTH at the Tobacco Show in Horticultural Hall which attracted much attention was the "Home of the Red Devil," conducted by the Queen City Tobaccco Co., of Cincinnati, to advertise its well known brand of smoking and chewing tobacco. The Company secured the constant attention and interest of the crowds by giving away chances on a gold watch, the winner of which was determined at the end of the week. The display was in charge of W. J. Wood.

PLAY CARDS FOR CIGAR CHECKS.

A HARTFORD CITY (Indiana) man who runs a cigar store is thinking seriously of taking out the pool tables and substituting card tables. Checks are bought and played for in card games payable in tobaccos. In a number of neighboring towns this plan has been adopted. At Richmond the popularity of card games in these places has been growing so rapidly that the number of players had in some cigar stores increased beyond the capacity of the tables.

EASILY ANSWERED.

AN exchange prints the following verses humorously settling the question of what should be done to the workman who ruins good tobacco by turning out inferior work under a standard label and renders the dealer helpless in pushing the cigar:

The best cigar-hand sometimes makes mistakes,
Whereat the man's employer greatly grieves,
And asks, "How shall we treat the man who makes
A bad cigar of good tobacco leaves?"
This problem he to arbitration takes,
And in due course the answer he receives,
An echo of his words, "The man who makes

TWO CATCHY SIGNS.

A MARKET STREET (Philadelphia) dealer is calling attention to a particular brand of cigar by these two signs, the verse in each case being followed by the name of the cigar:

Rain or shine,
Wet or dry;
This is the cigar
You want to buy.

Not too short,
Not too long;
Not too mild,
Not too strong.

acteristic, mysterious nocturnal promenade. I said so, after I had recovered from the start he gave me.

"Yes!" he panted. "I know it's only a cat; but it's a crawling, crawling cat." He swore horribly in an agony of fear. Something in his voice made me draw him into the light, and—it was Billy.

I got no sleep that night, and in the morning managed to get him home, way up in Germantown, in a carriage. His mother, who hadn't seen him for days, was very white-faced but seemed to know just what to do, and his father, who had retired from business, told me that the boy had not been able to hold any sort of a job for months, and that he had gone on a terrible debauch only a month before. "The doctors say that his constitution wont stand more than one or two more," said the old gentleman in a monotonous, sad tone."

That's all, I guess. There will probably be a sequel before long, but I don't think I care to be in at the death. The other night will hold me for awhile. Judging by the language he used from time to time, the poor boy had gathered a knowledge of every form of vice that was ever invented and I've been sort of sick at humanity ever since. Billy's is only one of a lot of cases and all I've got to say about it is this:

The difference of time beween the last drink that you are consciously able to refuse and the one which you must have, is often not more than two minutes.

LESS DEMAND IN HAVANA FROM NORTHERN BUYERS.

Reports From Country of Heavy Damages to Crops From High Winds Keep Prices Firm—Will Be Large Percentage of Torn Leaves.

HAVANA, December 26, 1904.

During the week just passed the Havana market has felt the lessened demand from the Northern buyers, and business has assumed the holiday character natural at this season of the year.

Prices, however, remain very firm, particularly as the news from the country about the new crop speaks of heavy damages done by high winds, which have prevailed for nearly a week here in Havana, as well as in the Partido and lowland sections of the Vuelta Abajo.

Many of the tent-covered fields had their cheese-cloth covers blown to pieces, while the breakage of the leaves of the nearly ripe plants must have caused serious damage. In all likelihood there will be a large percentage of quebrados and torn leaves in the 1905 crop; besides which, the high winds are apt to burn the edges and tips of the leaves. If the temprano part of the growth, which is usually considered as the choicest part, will have a large percentage of defective tobacco, there is less hope for a good average crop, even if the medium tiempo or tardido plant should experience a more favorable growing season.

It seems a pity that the hopes of the farmers, which had been raised to a high pitch of expectation through timely rains, should have had such a rude set-back just at the critical time when they are preparing for the first cutting of the ripe plants. On the other hand, the dealers who are carrying stocks here in Havana will be benefited by this occurrence and be able to dispose of their holdings more readily at better figures, so the old adage about "an ill wind, etc.," may also prove true in this respect.

Many buyers from the north are expected here during the month of January, while some dealers here have taken occasion to purchase all suitable lots in the market that their owners wanted to realize upon.

Sales

amounted to 3,703 bales in all, or divided into 2,548 of Vuelta Abajo, 488 of Partido, and 667 of Remedios. The American buyers have taken 1,911, European exporters 385, and 1,407 bales were written off for home consumption by cigar and cigarette manufacturers.

Buyers Come and Go.

Arrivals:—A. Fromherz, of the Fromherz-Berlizheimer Co., Celestino Vega, of C. Vega & Co., and William Beitz, of the William Beitz Co., Chicago; D. Hevia, of D. Hevia, New York: Joseph Mendelsohn, of Mendelsohn, Bornemann & Co., Havana and New York.

Returned:—Joaquin Hedesa, from Key West.

Departures:—Faustino Lozano, for Tampa; Edward Hilson, Julius Lichtenstein and Bernard Lichtenstein, for New York.

Havana Cigar Manufacturers.

While business as a rule is quiet, there is, however, quite a good demand from Great Britain, and Germany also seems to be ordering more than was expected. The call from the United States is fair. Canada and South America are ordering quite some quantities.

The new design of the export labels having been approved by the government and accepted by the general meeting of the Union of Manufacturers, is now being printed, and will be ready for use early in the new year. The design is a little larger and wider than the old label ("precinta") used heretofore, and on one side will be the coat of arms of the Republic of Cuba, as well as the seal of the government, while on the other side will be the bust of Columbus and the signature of each individual manufacturer, besides the printed guarantee that the cigars contained in the box are made of Havana tobacco and manufactured on the island of Cuba.

All these precautions, however, will not prevent the refilling of boxes by dishonest retailers, although the rings on each cigar, if used universally, may be more effective. The best guarantee the smoker of imported cigars has, however, is to purchase his supply from such houses as are reliable and above reproach.

H. Upmann & Co. received some very large orders from Great Britain, Germany, as well as from the United States. They shipped 550,000 cigars last week.

Cifuentes, Fernandez & Co. are still very busy, and have orders from everywhere for their Flor de Tabacos de Partagas & Co.

Rabell, Costa, Vales & Co. are turning out some very fine goods in their Ramon Allones and Cruz Roja factories, and that this is being appreciated by consumers of the whole world is evidenced by the good orders they are receiving.

Behrens & Co. note no diminution in their Sol factory, as they are shipping

J. F. Rocha & Co. are likewise busy turning out close to 50,000 cigars daily in their Crepusculo factory. They received orders of 400,000 cigars for Great Britain and her colonies, besides 150,000 for Australia, while Nene and Jefferson are called for from the United States.

Buying, Selling and Other Notes of Interest.

Julius and Bernard Lichtenstein, who left last Saturday, purchased nearly 1,500 bales of all kinds of leaf during their stay here.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez were sellers to the extent of 500 bales of Vuelta Abajo, but besides this they have just closed a deal for the Spanish Regie of some 4,000 bales of Yara tobacco, which were purchased at Manzanillo.

Celestino Vega secured 500 bales of Vuelta Abajo for his Chicago factory.

Muniz Hnos. & Co. disposed of 400 bales of Montezuelo leaf.

J. M. Garcia & Co. received 895 bales from the Vuelta Abajo, part of the finest of this year's crop, and running from $80 per bale upwards, all vegas, including colas, net weight per bale being from 80 to 90 pounds.

Sobrinos de V. Diaz closed out 325 bales of Vuelta Abajo, and this made Don Narciso Gonzalez feel in excellent spirits when your correspondent called to see him last Saturday.

Ed. Hilson, president of the Hilson Co., did not tarry long, but he left quite satisfied with his trip to Cuba, and he secured about 700 bales of the best Vuelta Abajo leaf to be had.

Gonzalez Benitez & Co. made several transactions amounting to 250 bales of Remedios and Vuelta Abajo.

H. Upmann & Co. bought 500 bales of different kinds of leaf in the city, as well as in the country.

Aixala & Co. sold 200 bales of Remedios and Partido leaf.

Joseph Mendelsohn arrived here in the best of health and spirits from his short vacation north, and can again be seen hustling daily in the market. Mendelsohn, Bornemann & Co. have made the following shipments of leaf tobacco: 23 bales and 13 packages to Crump Bros., Chicago, via New Orleans; 28 bbls to Lilies Cigar Co., Kalamazoo, Mich., via Mobile, and 140 bales to Cohn Bros., Chicago, via Mobile.

B. Diaz & Co. made one deal of 200 bales of their fine Partido holdings.

Faustino Lozano secured some 500 bales of Vuelta Abajo for his Tampa factory.

Rabell, Costa & Co. disposed of 115 bales of Vuelta Abajo leaf.

A. Fromherz, who arrived here from Chicago, has commenced operating by buying some good-sized vegas of Vuelta Abajo.

A. M. Calzada & Co. turned over 86 bales of Vuelta Abajo to one of their Tampa customers.

Jorge & P. Castaneda received 300 bales of a Rio Hondo escojida this past week.

Loeb Nunez Havana Co. shipped 78 bales of Remedios, but, pending confirmations by mail, they sold about 500 bales additional from their large stock of all kinds of leaf.

Jose Menendez has done some business, but the number of bales could not be ascertained.

Garcia & Co. have not been idle either, although when it comes to disclosing transactions Don Manuel Garcia is like a sphinx.

COUNTY CLUBS WILL MEET AT CHATHAM.

Danville, Va., Dec. 31.

The Pittsylvania executive committee of the Inter-State Tobacco Growers' Protective Association have called an important meeting of the county clubs to be held at Chatham, Va., at 11 o'clock a. m. on the third Monday in January, 1905.

Every club will be entitled to send one delegate for every twenty-five members and fraction thereof over twelve. Each club, however small in membership, shall be entitled to at least one delegate.

All farmers in sections where no clubs have yet been organized are cordially invited to attend and take part in the deliberations, except that only delegates will be allowed to vote on measures coming before the body.

It will be the effort of the committee to have several practical speakers on hand and make the occasion one of interest and instruction.

No club should fail to send its full allowance of delegates, and all other farmers interested in the movement will be most welcome guests. Monday, Jan. 16, is the day.

SALES RESUMED IN RICHMOND.

Forty Per Cent of Crop Already Sold, Mostly Sun-Cured Tobacco.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 3.

Sales of tobacco were resumed yesterday at the local warehouses, and as all the farmers had been notified by the Board of Trade, many were on hand with their product.

Richmond has sold to date 3,295,312 pounds, which is generally thought to be 40 per cent of the crop. If true, these figures will make this crop 8,238,280 pounds, which is still more than the average for the last six years.

About 90 per cent of the total sales are thought by tobacco men to have been sun cured tobacco. This class of the plant is steadily on the increase, both in point of amount raised and demand.

The annual loose tobacco sales on the Richmond market for the last six fiscal years beginning October 1, have been as follows: 1899, 6,322,933 pounds; 1900, 8,507,228 pounds; 1901, 6,564,269 pounds; 1902, 7,189,345 pounds; 1903, 9,241,718 pounds; 1904, 8,245,220 pounds. Average for the six years, 7,668,452 pounds.

TOBACCO NEWS OF THE WEEK IN GOTHAM

New York, Jan. 3, 1905.

Retail tobacconists and cigar dealers along Broadway and the main arteries of the thoroughfares of Greater New York assured me to-day that their sales on New Year's Eve broke the record for any one day in their experience, and the grade of cigars sold was generally higher than usual, a statement which proves that the best goods will have the best chance for ready sales in the future.

In New York there is but little call for 5 cent cigars, and this is said to be largely due to the fact that there is more treating to cigars when friends meet on Broadway, on Fifth avenue and along the Rialto than ever before.

It is considered better form to invite a friend to smoke than to drink, and naturally the average man does not treat his friend to a 5-cent cigar. Two for a quarter or three for a half seems to have been the average price paid for cigars this New Year's, and dealers have had to work overtime counting up their day's receipts for the past week—a by no means unpleasant tax upon them.

The shops were kept open New Year's Eve until the New Year was at least an hour old and the blare of the tin horn and the whirr of the creaky wooden rattle had subsided into silence. And during all this turmoil of seeing the old year out and the new year in, amid the noise of the horns, the sweet chimes of Trinity, Grace and other churches, and the ribald songs of roysterers on the prowl, there was being enacted a test of the endurance of a cigar, or rather of cigars, of different brands.

This latter interesting pastime and educational event occurred in the "den" of Robert J. Ferns' residence on Neptune avenue, New Rochelle, where a dozen New Yorkers had been invited to escape the din of the city during the passing of the old year.

Among them was "Billy" Proctor, at whose Pine street cafe it is the boast that only good cigars are kept.

Each guest was permitted to select a cigar from as many boxes of as many different brands, and at exactly 11 o'clock each man lighted his cigar and settled down to a calm, deliberate, thoughtful, silent, brooding smoke. The idea was to see how long, with one lighting, a cigar would last and yet burn out to the very tips.

Scarcely a remark was made until the ship's clock on the den mantel struck the midnight hour, and then each man solemnly raised his glass, bowed to his companions and said "A Happy and Prosperous New Year to You!" immediately relapsing into silence and the contemplation of his cigar.

One hour had passed and no man had permitted his cigar to go out, and no cigar was much more than half consumed. It was curious to watch the smokers. Some sought to prolong the life of his cigar by puffing long, slowly and infrequently, while another tried frequent short puffs. One man, Benjamin Hayes, whose father was the only high constable New York ever had, let his cigar go out while temporarily dozing, and he of course was voted out of the contest, so he lighted a fresh cigar and watched the other contestants.

The man who won out is named Clark, buyer for a Fifth avenue firm, but it is not my province to make mention of the name of the particular brand of the cigar he smoked. All I can tell you is that he smoked it incessantly for two hours and three minutes and then burned his lips. Five of the men smoked their cigars for an hour and a half and two for one hour and fifty-one minutes. My own experience is that the average cigar is smoked in twenty minutes, unless indeed it be an exceptionally good one.

Messrs. J. B. Cobb, A. H. Burroughs and Harold Roberts, who returned from a business trip to Europe a few days ago, were not to be found at their respective offices at No. 111 Fifth avenue within the past few days owing to the holidays, and it is doubted if they will have much to say about their experiences as yet, for excellent business reasons.

I am assured that Robert E. Lane, T. J. Donigan, W. W. St. John, F. B. Aschner, S. J. Freeman, D. Oshinsky, C. Blayney, I. W. Jacobson, M. Babaya, "Lou" W. Boyer and Charlie Fox, and the rest of the New York delegation, were so well impressed with the tobacco exhibit in the Quaker City last month that they are in favor of a similar but more extensive, elaborate and exhaustive exhibition in New York during the coming spring.

It is admitted that Madison Square Garden is too large and too expensive, but there are several other suitably situated and spacious halls which may be negotiated at rentals which need not necessarily prove prohibitive.

It is not unlikely that there will be a meeting of those interested at the Hotel Imperial early in February, when the subject of ways and means will be discussed and a temporary organization effected with, of course, Mr. Lane high up in the directorate.

There are admittedly many importers, manufacturers and dealers who were penny-wise and pound-foolish when the question of the Philadelphia exhibit was first mooted, and it is said slyly by the knowing ones that these dilatory gentlemen will not again let slip an opportunity to exploit their wares, but stand ready to avail themselves of the projected show in New York, should it assume tangible and material shape.

A petition in bankruptcy was filed on Friday against Maurice Kaim who did business as Maurice Kaim & Co., formerly cigar manufacturer at 1385 avenue A, by the Fidelity Bank, a creditor for $3,898 for money advanced on two notes of the Juan Muriel Cigar Co., of which Mr. Kaim was president, treasurer and manager. It is alleged that he is insolvent, that on December 5 he transferred property at 137 and 139 Wooster street to Charles Stich; that he has transferred part of his property to creditors, and has removed a part of his property.

The Wooster street property is a six-story loft building assessed for $80,000, and was transferred to Mr. Stich for a nominal consideration, subject to a mortgage of $20,000. Mr. Kaim has been in the cigar business for over twenty years, and was succeeded by the Juan Muriel Cigar Company, which was incorporated in July, 1903, with a capital stock of $40,000.

Judge Truax of the Supreme Court appointed a receiver for that company on December 8. Its liabilities were $20,550 and assessed $11,650.

While the new year does not record as many changes in leaf circles as has been the case in some previous years, there are a few announced. I. M. Jacoby, who has been identified with the I. J. Schoener Co., will resign and become connected with the firm of S. Ruppin, Inc. M. Bauml, heretofore a salesman, will take an interest in Mr. Schoener's business.

Julius Schack, Canadian representative of H. Duys & Co.; Howard Kinney, Western representative of the firm, and R. R. Uhler, Pennsylvania representative, have been in New York during the week planning a campaign for the coming year. Mr. Schack will return to Canada in about a week.

Herman Rosenberg, of the Colonial Tobacco Co., of Philadelphia, has opened an office in the U. S. Arcade building of this city, and will make a specialty of Sumatra tobacco. Frank Pulver, who has occupied suite 3 in this building, will move into room 9 in Mr. Rosenberg's quarters.

EDWARD W. MAY.

JAMES W. GEYER'S STORE IN NEW YORK.

ONE of the most popular of the hundreds of retail cigar stores in New York city is "Geyer's," at 439 Tenth avenue, which is just above Thirty-fourth street. Mr. Geyer took hold of this store when it was by no means in prosperous condition. Energetic up-to-date methods soon brought the store up to standard and it acquired a wide reputation as a place at which to get right goods at right prices. Mr. Geyer has completely re-modeled and re-decorated the store until it is notable for its pleasing, business-like appearance. The Indian's head on the sign at the top is very striking and catches the eye at considerable distance.

Burling Slip has lost none of its old-time prestige, and, indeed, according to Darius Ferry, the well-known leaf tobacco broker of No. 7, it is gaining in popularity in the leaf trade. This may be evidenced by the fact that carpenters and decorators are busily engaged in fitting up No. 19 Burling Slip as offices for the newly-organized and incorporated firm of Heyman & Hollaender, brokers in imported and domestic cigar leaf tobacco. David Heyman and Maurice Hollaender are both well and favorably known to the trade, and for nearly a score of years were connected with S. Ashner.

Cincinnati's Dull Leaf Trade.

Market Reports—The New Crop is Expected to be Larger than that of 1903.

Cincinnati, O., Jan. 2.

So far as the volume of transactions and the business of the commission leaf tobacco warehouses are concerned, the year 1904 will go down in the history of the local trade as the worst in many years. The tremendous upheaval which the combine gave the market last summer by going into the country and buying all tobacco they could lay their hands on inside of ten days is attributed as the cause.

The brilliant coup of the combine buyers wiped out more than $3,000,000 of this market's business as compared with figures for 1903.

The Louisville market also suffered in common with Cincinnati but to a far less extent, for the reason that this is a white burley market exclusively and the heavy purchases of the Continental (now the American Tobacco Co.) extended only to that class of tobacco.

The year opened with light stocks on hand, the total in all warehouses being less than 9,000 hhds. The market was fairly strong and active until about April 1, with prices all around about 1½ cents higher than closing prices of the preceding year. The long, cold, dry spring prevented the work of prizing and packing and definite information as to the size of the crop was not ascertainable until this work could be undertaken.

Then the entire trade—growers, jobbers and manufacturers—suddenly awoke to a realization of the fact that the crop was decidedly short, being variously estimated from 30 to 40 per cent. Evidently the Continental Co. was first in possession of accurate information in regard to the shortage. In a quiet way, least calculated to arouse suspicion, it first absorbed the greater part of the white burley offered in the Cincinnati and Louisville markets. All this time it was planting its agents in every town in the burley belt and at the word they started buying. Prices went up by leaps and bounds, the general advance being from 6 to 8 cents per pound.

Then the independent manufacturers, badly frightened, entered the field in a mad scramble, only to find that it had been swept clean by the combine. Planters and growers benefited very little by the boom market as the greater portion of the crop had passed into the hands of packers, jobbers and speculators. The failure of the planters to realize a share of the phenomenal advance in 1904 was the main incentive to the reorganization of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Association.

The new 1904 crop which is beginning to come on the market, it is believed will show an increase in quantity of about 30 per cent over 1903. The increase, however is not evenly divided, the greater portion being in the Central Kentucky belt. Close observers assert that the crop will be largely a red one, color and especially colory goods of decided merit being most scarce. Weather conditions so far have been unfavorable for prizing and packing.

There have been no auction seed leaf sales for the past two Saturdays here, the warehouses observing the holiday season.

BUHRMAN.

CLAIM DEALER SCHEMED TO PREFER CREDITORS.

The Shields & Wertheim Cigar Co. and the Louis Klein Cigar Co., of Cleveland, O., through their attorneys have filed an involuntary petition in bankruptcy against C. M. Van Pelt in the United States district court.

It is charged in the petition that Van Pelt transferred his cigar stand in the Baldwin hotel to Harry Bradbury, a creditor, with the intention of giving preference to Bradbury's claim.

It is also claimed in the petition that Van Pelt arranged so that other creditors could have preference.

—The Ward-Bowlin Cigar Co. is the name of a new corporation of Wheeling, W. Va., just formed with a capital of $10,000. The incorporators are W. A. Ward, of Ward & Co., brokers; L. D. Bowlin, J. H. Klieves, F. L. Miller and W. H. Breidenstein, well-known business men of that city. The company has opened offices in the City Bank building, and will do a general brokerage, wholesale and retail cigar and tobacco business.

ABOUT OURSELVES.

In pursuance of its earnest efforts to make this paper of the most possible importance to advertisers and readers, the Tobacco World Publishing Co. has taken offices at No. 7 Burling Slip, New York city, from which address a large measure of its business will henceforth be transacted. The news staff in that city has been adequately enlarged, and the New York department will be one of wide interest.

The advertising bureau of the five boroughs is in charge of Mr. John S. Grey who is a man of experience and resource in his particular field, and who will see that the interests of our advertisers in Greater New York are carefully conserved.

The list of firms, corporations, merchants, and business houses generally, who believe they can get good results by telling about their business in our columns has been increasing largely and steadily of late and it will continue to. The business man of today is wise in the placing of his advertising and the Tobacco World will benefit from that fact, for it knows it can give results.

When a man appropriates a certain sum from his business to be expended in advertising, he considers it as an investment, and unless, as a result of the manner of expenditure, it becomes a profitable investment, he must change that manner or henceforth use his money to some other purpose.

The Tobacco World's advertisers soon find out that their investment has been a judicious one. Our prosperity is dependent upon our making it a judicious one, and we welcome each new advertiser as one who is certain to receive as much if not more benefit than ourselves.

A 25-PER-CENT CUT IN THE PHILIPPINE TARIFF.

It seems fairly probable now that the most Secretary Taft will accomplish in the Philippine tariff matter will be a cut of 25 per cent on the present Dingley rate, which, as Mr. John R. Young, of the National Cigar Leaf Association, asserts, would not be likely to do much harm.

Whether the Secretary of War was most powerfully moved by the representations of Messrs. Bijur and Fox and their confreres at the recent conference, whether he has properly appreciated the force of the combined opposition, or whether he has simply discovered an error in his own premises, has not been officially stated, but belief is strong that the 50 per cent rate will be recommended to Congress, which is considered equivalent to its passing.

It was made certainly plain to the highest officials at Washington that the tobacco trade of the United States did not propose to put up with a knock-off of 50 per cent or less if any legitimate means or measures would prevent it, and when business interests of this magnitude set their foot down, there is occasion for more to follow than a mere sneeze.

Indeed the tobacco people have become very prominent in Washington lately in a number of affairs, and they are becoming used to conducting successful protests.

Naturally, free trade in tobacco with the Philippines would greatly delight the consumer who might get his cigars a dollar or two a hundred cheaper, and it would certainly please Americans who have money invested in Porto Rican factories. It might even cause a passing smile of interest on the face of the coolie laborer, provided he could understand it. But there are interests infinitely more important to be considered.

AMONG those discoverers such as Columbus, Franklin, Newton and the great host of others who won undying fame in their particular lines of achievement, must now be included one Dr. Kellogg of the Battle Creek sanitarium who, all by himself, has discovered the fact that tobacco and not a wild assassin's bullet killed President McKinley.

In an address before the Young Men's Christian Association of that city, Dr. Kellogg announced his startling discovery and by reference to General Grant and others, intimated that our line of Presidents shows a very unsuccessful struggle against the terrible cigar.

"And," declaimed Dr. Kellogg with terrible, upraised finger, after reading voluminous and exciting statistics, "instead of decreasing, the HABIT IS INCREASING."

We take the liberty of suggesting to Dr. Kellogg, whoever he may be, that if the use of tobacco can contribute to the making of such men as President McKinley and General Grant, then tobacco should be planted in every cornfield and a plug or two slipped into every Y. M. C. A. boy's little gymnasium locker.

THE PHILADELPHIA TOBACCO TRADE.

Report From Internal Revenue Office.

Collector of Internal Revenue McCoach has closed his books for 1904 and found the Internal Revenue office to be in good condition. The gross receipts of the office were $6,998,675.66, which is about $700,000 more than last year.

Beer stamps were the leading figure as usual, and the sales amounted to $2,800,668.50. Next in volume come cigars and cigarettes, with $1,910,820.15. Spirits, which is the internal revenue term for whiskey, realized $816,514.21, and snuff stamps were sold to the extent of $278,675.60. Tobacco brings up the rear with $80,237.57.

There are many small items besides the above which in the aggregate amount to a good round sum. Collector McCoach says that the figures for beer show little change from last year, but cigars increased to the extent of $50,000 and whiskey $40,000. Snuff increased $25,000, and the figures for the last few years seem to indicate that the old-fashioned habit is undergoing a revival.

Here and There With the Retailers

Prospects With the Retailers.

The week was a fair one in the retail trade although as was expected, the box end of the business didn't amount to anything. Most dealers were glad of a rest after the strenuous week before Christmas and were satisfied with the fair measure of patronage, which showed that the market was in a healthy condition.

There wont be a great deal doing in January as there never is, but so far from being duller than usual, Philadelphia dealers believe that the market will rule a little stronger than the average and will brisk up for the season sooner.

A number of dealers are contemplating rather elaborate window displays, but consider it advisable to wait a couple of weeks before casting this bait. Little money will be spent for tobacco until consumers get through paying the annual batch of their New Year's bills, and all the dealers can do is simply to wait.

It was a good sign this year, though, that when the market did belatedly spring into activity just before Christmas, the nature of the business was especially good. More high grade cigars in regular or standard packages were sold and less of the marked down variety such as hit the eye on a Christmas when money is tight. Dealers consider this a fair indication that the coming year's trade will be good and steady, and consequently aren't worrying over the brief period ahead of them during which the clerks wont be very busy.

B. Greenwald, Market street below Second, is pushing the Almeda 5 cent cigar, which is a winner for the money.

Wm. H. O. Keefe reports very fair business for the time of the year. There is quite a run at present on El Rio 5 cent cigar and Royal perfectos, at 4 for 25 cents or $6 a hundred.

George T. O'Keefe, South Fifth street dealer is making preparations for a handsome display to open up the New Year trade with. Considerable of the display will be taken up by Cuban Ribbon, Mr. O'Keefe's popular 5 cent cigar, while he will also show a number of high grade brands of Porto Rican goods.

The Moor, 4 for 55 cents and La Danza, 7 cents straight, are being pushed at the Moore cigar stores.

With Manufacturers and Jobbers.

The manufacturers are still busy with their inventories and their books, but so far as can be learned at this time there is no dissatisfaction. Business for awhile was not of the best locally, but it has been unusually good in the West, quite up to snuff in the South, and as much as was expected in New England. The latter part of the year, especially, has been marked by good sales and very few salesmen have any kick coming. The most cheerful predictions are made for the coming year to the fulfillment of which everything points.

Frank Comber, of the El Draco Manufacturing Co., sent a fine box of his new brand of Governor Higgins cigar to the New York executive last night, and by the looks of the cigars as they lay in their handsome package, Gov. Higgins will have some pleasant moments coming to him.

Bayuk Bros. are installed in their new building at No. 50 North Third street, the old Boltz, Clymer & Co. building, and by the last part of this week the improvements and alterations which are being made will be completed. The removal of the firm from Market street was made necessary by increasing business which made the old quarters much too small. The new building is comfortably spacious and will give more room to customers.

H. Hilbronner has started on a trip South for Gumpert Bros., in which territory he will remain for about two months.

The corporation of Morris D. Neumann & Co. has sold out its business to Morris D. Neumann and Joseph Guckenheimer, who will continue the business of Morris D. Neumann & Co. from this date, at the same address, Broad and Wallace streets.

The Berry-Suhling Co., of Bedford City, Va., commenced a vigorous campaign on the Philadelphia market this week, and will advance on the State later. The permanent local agents of the company are Arthur Hagen & Co., but the work this week was personally overseen by William R. Darrah, who is working up a run on the Staff of Life, Mason Co. Natural Leaf, Duke of Athol and Red Raven Scrap.

Phil Verplanck, the junior member of Menendez Bros. & Verplanck, Tampa, was in town during the week and was very enthusiastic over business. Mr. Verplanck, who has for years been known as one of the best salesmen on the road, said that his firm now had orders for a million and a half cigars, and that Robertson Issues New Year Circular.

F. B. Robertson, the local representative of the Manchester Cigar Mfg. Co., has issued an interesting circular from his jobbing headquarters at 1004 Ridge avenue calling attention to this depot for goods made outside the American Tobacco Co., and asking retailers to call and see the complete line of independent goods. Mr. Robertson says:

My attitude towards union-made and independent tobacco goods, as shown by my labors in their behalf the past year, is known. Again, my efforts in behalf of retail cigar and tobacco dealers, persecuted by the Sunday Closing Association, are also known. My labors in their behalf have extended over a number of years, and of course I have been criticised by certain people—the kind who think of self alone. The comments of these people have often been harsh, untrue and unfair, and retail cigar and tobacco dealers who do not know me are asked to look up my record as their strong and consistent friend, as well as a firm advocate of the use of union-made and independent goods. Any movement favoring the interests of the retail dealers is sure of my cordial support at all times. I will add in this connection that I have been engaged to lecture to trade unions the coming year upon the advisability of using union-made and independent smoking and chewing tobaccos, cigars, cigarettes, etc.

Leaf Dealers' Jottings.

The majority of the local leaf dealers have got their books sufficiently balanced for the year to tell them that there is no particular cause for feeling blue. The year was by no means a record breaker for prosperity, but many of the houses find themselves better off than they seemed to expect.

The first six months of the year were flat and there was a general depression which was hard to lose sight of when business braced up, which it did in June or thereabouts. Since that time most houses have experienced a volume of business which brought the year up to good average proportions.

Moreover, the outlook seems much better than it was last January and there is a stronger feeling of confidence which is evidenced by the fact that there is some demand already in the leaf market whereas the first two weeks in January are expectedly slow.

L. P. Kimmig, of L. P. Kimmig & Co., went to Connecticut this week to buy tobacco. This firm reports a good year, particularly the latter part of it, with a gratifying outlook. There is a good demand now for Pennsylvania broad leaf.

Geo. Burghard has balanced his books and is able to report a satisfactory year to come.

Albert Koshland, a well known leaf salesman, has become connected with F. Eckerson & Co., and will shortly go on the road for the firm.

E. A. Calves & Co. report good demand for this season and thinks that the year will have an early start. Frank Dominguez will remain in Cuba several weeks longer.

Young & Newman have settled up their books and are satisfied to report a year which showed progress. 1904 closed better with this firm than 1903, and the present year opens up better than 1904. There is a fair demand already which bids fair to continue.

B. Labe & Sons have had a good year and are preparing to do a big business during the coming one.

NEW CIGAR FACTORIES IN YORK.

Licenses Granted, While Deputies Get Inventories From Old Plants.

York, Pa., Jan. 2.

York county cigar manufacturers have closed a very satisfactory year, in fact surprisingly good, considering that for six months during the first of the year they had an exceptionally dull spell.

The past month was as good in the cigar trade as could be expected at that season of the year. All the factories were kept running full with holiday orders. During the month licenses were granted for the establishment of 31 new factories.

District Deputies have commenced to make a canvass of the 1,400 factories under their supervision to secure an inventory of all leaf tobacco (stemmed and unstemmed), cuttings, clippings, scraps, stems, waste, cigars, cigarettes and capacity of each and unattached stamps held and owned by the various cigar men and tobacco dealers.

The large plant of Celestino, Costello & Co., commenced operations today after a close down for one week, to allow for stock taking.

D. Frank Kaltreider, of Red Lion, has commenced the erection of a large new cigar factory, immediately back of his residence.

Collector H. L. Hershey has notified F. B. Glenn, cigar manufacturer, of Red Lion, whose factory was seized by the revenue authorities, that the case has been settled. He was charged with removing unstamped cigars from the factory. He reimbursed the government and paid all taxes.

John E. Olp, a cigar manufacturer at Jacobus, has been adjudged a bankrupt, and another meeting of his creditors has been called for January 17, at the office of J. E. Vandersloot, Referee in Bankruptcy in New York.

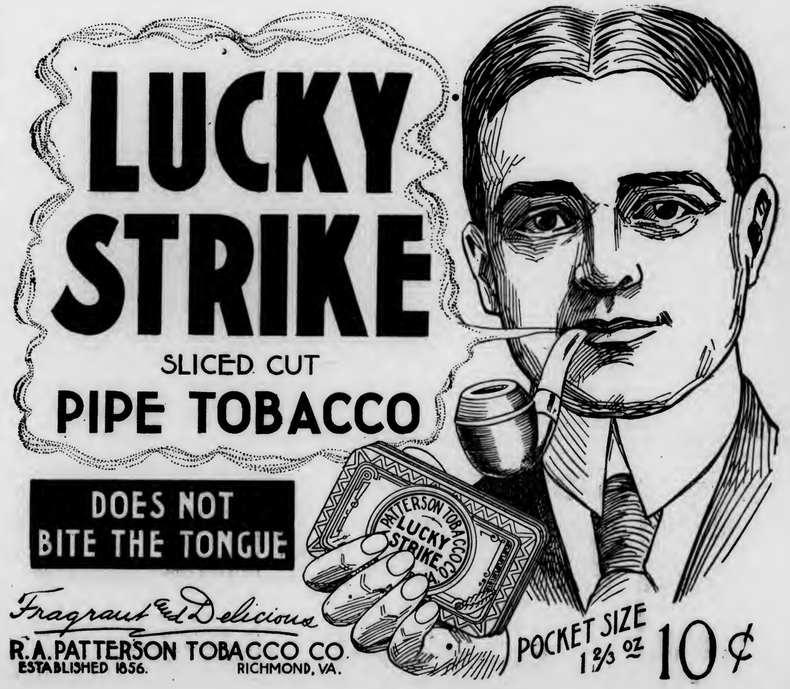
CHEERFUL NEWS FROM READING.

Splendid Outlook for the Trade in This Section.

Reading, Jan. 2, 1905.

With few exceptions, if any, the manufacturers of this section have had good reasons to enjoy a most happy New Year, for the reason that last year's business shows highly satisfactory results.



Julius G. Hausen has already commenced the new year with a most promising outlook. Regarding last year, he simply said, "I am well pleased."

Charles R. Albright, who some months ago removed to his present location at Ninth and Douglass streets, is doing very nicely. His All Bright cigar is gaining a wide reputation, and in addition he is doing a fine retail trade.

Frank P. Kalbach will engage in the cigar manufacturing business at 545 Windsor street this week, and will also conduct a retail store there. He will make the F. P. K. his leader in nickel world.

James Heist, on Oley street, has been working overtime to meet the demand for his Sentinel 5c leader, which has a good local trade.

John U. Fehr & Sons, leaf dealers, at Seventh and Franklin streets, had the largest business year since they have been in the leaf trade, and propose to show a larger and more complete stock than ever before during the coming year.

LANCASTER LEAF MARKET DULL.

But Nothing Else Was Expected, and Prospects are Good.

Lancaster, Pa., Jan. 2.

During the past week there were few transactions in the local leaf market. This dullness was not unexpected, however, and the prospects for an early resumption of activity are excellent. In fact, inquiries were beginning to arrive to-day, and it is regarded as a favorable indication that stocks with manufacturers are low and will need early replenishing.

W. E. Deitrich, purporting to be a Philadelphia cigar dealer, was arrested last week at the instance of L. E. Ryder, who brought charges of receiving goods under false pretenses. He was bound over for court and sent to jail in default of bond. The defendant has been in negotiation with numerous people in this and York county, and it is claimed that some goods were obtained, and that it is altogether likely that additional charges will be brought.

John F. Hare, of the stogie manufacturing firm of John Slater & Co., is this week on a few days' pleasure trip to South Carolina. William Fisher, with the same firm, spent Monday in Philadelphia viewing the Mummers' parade. Business is opening auspiciously with this firm for the new year, with mail orders arriving on the first business day of the year for upwards of 100,000 of their product.

TOBACCO TRADE IN HOPKINSVILLE.

Hopkinsville, Ky., Jan. 2.

This is the annual report of 1904: The beginning was all amuck, buyers saying the crop was so common and prices so low; no use for it even at low prices and planters begging for offers. Yet, in face of all this jingo, the crop has been sold and gone from the West, leaving smaller stocks for sale than for years—only 620 hhds., about half 1902 crop. The situation is much reversed now. Planters

Size, 30 in. long, 22 in. wide, 25 in. high. Weight, 60 lbs.

THE above illustration is an exact representation of the Humidor in which Cremo Export Cigars are packed and shipped by the manufacturer. This Humidor holds 6,000 Cremo Export Cigars in boxes containing 100 cigars each. It is metal lined, metal covered, with strong brass lock, and heavy brass drop handles and brass trimmings, with moistener pad in top of lid, ventilator in each end, and attractively decorated in imitation cedar wood.

Each humidor is shipped in a wood case to protect it from being scratched or damaged in transit.

The purpose of the Humidor is to protect the cigars from the deteriorating effects of changes in temperature, and to preserve them in the same good order and condition in which they leave the factory. This it does perfectly for any length of time in any climate on the globe, until the last box is used.

Cremo Export Cigars are made only in Londres, which means a straight cigar, being practically the same size from end to end. This shape is more generally smoked than any other, the world over, which fact is a pretty convincing proof that it is the most popular as well as the most desirable shape in which cigars can be made.

If you serve your customer with a Cremo Export Cigar out of a Humidor, you give him the best five-cent cigar in the world in the best condition to please him and hold his patronage; if he is pleased with one he will be pleased with every one.

Send your jobber an order for 6,000 Cremo Export Cigars, and he will have them shipped to you direct from the factory in the Humidor, freight paid, and billed as 5,500, at $35.00 per thousand.

The CREMO CIGAR is by several times THE LARGEST SELLER IN THE WORLD.

M. D. BOALES.

FIFTY PER CENT. OF DINGLEY RATE LIKELY.

Probable That War Department Will Recommend Twenty-five Per Cent. Cut on Philippine Tariff.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.

The Philippine proposition is still hanging fire and it is impossible to say definitely yet whether the conference between Secretary Taft and the delegation from the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association will have any effect one way or the other.

The committee which waited upon the Secretary was headed by A. Bijur, president, and Charles Fox, chairman, of the Legislative committee, and these gentlemen seemed disposed to feel hopeful.

It is probable that some sort of a compromise will be agreed to and it seems likely it will be 50 per cent of the Dingley rate as was intimated. Of course the only result of such a compromise would be a recommendation to Congress for the passage of such a bill instead of the 25 per cent bill which has been urged by the Insular Bureau of the War Department.

There is no doubt that Secretary Taft still favors free trade between the Philippines and the United States, but he has shown himself willing to investigate opposition and his consenting to 25 per cent of the Dingley showed that he was open to argument. It is understood that the trade interests would put up with less than 75 per cent of the Dingley rate, with a certain amount of cheerfulness if it became necessary, but will protest against the 25 per cent until the last horn.

An official of the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association said yesterday (Tuesday) that he believed that the trade would be satisfied with a rate that was not below 50 per cent of the Dingley rate and at this figure the cut would be only a 25 per cent one.

"KING DUKE" SMOKING TOBACCO IS A WINNER.

THE accompanying cut is a reproduction of a bag of King Duke smoking tobacco which is manufactured by the Lancaster Tobacco Works, at Lancaster, Pa. The brand is a new one and is issued in packages of 1⅗ oz., 3⅕ oz., and 8 and 16 oz. The tobacco has caught the market wherever it has been introduced, and has become especially popular in the Pennsylvania coal regions, where it is handled by practically every dealer.

BOOKS SHOW GOOD INCREASE.

Summing Up of Year's Trade in Wisconsin Shows Big Progress.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 3.

Now that the old year has passed into history, and the various branches of the tobacco industry have looked at the books, it is understood that the past year has been a good one all around.

First, the crop while not as large as hoped for, was of good quality, and many cases of leaf will be found to be superior. This is what the leaf men have claimed right along, that the product of the Badger State while not as heavy as some of the others, has grown a quality of leaf that averages well with the best. The growers, however, are complaining, and the annual crop of rumors that there will be a short crop in 1905, are being spread broadcast.

As as a matter of fact, the farmers have been offered adequate pay for their crops, and have been satisfied until the past two years. The growing of sugar beets within the past few years, has disturbed the minds of the tillers of the soil and they have been promised great profit from their land should they forsake tobacco raising and plant their acres to beets. It is advanced that the cultivation of beets needs no attention whatever after the first pulling takes place, and all they have to do is to dig them up and sell them at so much per.

This plan has been attractive to many farmers in the past, who are now raising tobacco again. Several of the large beet sugar concerns, which were going to do wonders right from the jump, have passed into the great beyond, and the machinery is for sale to any who desires it. This has happened in Michigan and in two cities in this State. But, of course, there are factories which are prospering. There is no other crop which catches the farmer's eye, so until the beet sugar industry flourishes, there need be no fear of the tobacco crop in Winconsin being entirely neglected.

From sources which are generally reliable, it is promised that Wisconsin will again come to the front this year with a good crop of tobacco.

Next comes the manufacturer, who feels that the past year has been fairly satisfactory. The average tobacco and cigar manufacturer in this State, or the City of Milwaukee, at least, undoubtedly has made a profit. If he has not, his business methods have been poor. The demand has existed, and if he has had the goods, he has sold them. The average cigar manufacturer was satisfied with the leaf and fillers he purchased, and outside of a few tilts with labor, has operated regularly. Wages are the highest ever paid in this city, and the workmen seem to be content with what they are getting, so long as they are not laid off too much.

There were more pounds of smoking and chewing tobacco manufactured in Milwaukee last year than in any other year in the history of the corporation. More dollars were paid out than ever before. The aggregate sum paid to wholesalers and jobbers reaches far beyond any other year. So there must be satisfaction in this quarter.

The jobbing end of the business was also favorable. Most of the large concerns operating in this city are today employing more men in one capacity or another than ever before. This is explained by the fact that more help is needed. Business has grown right along, and new territory is taken in regularly, and as the demand increases, so must the facilities increase for handling larger business. There was not a time last year when good stocks were not carried; neither was there a time when the manufacturers fell down on advance orders. Everything seemed to work in harmony, and the jobber certainly figures he did exceedingly well last year.

The retail end of these letters from time to time has set forth how business is going along in this city. There are more stores in the city today, than there were a year ago, and some of the old ones are nearly double the size they were twelve months back. Stocks are larger and of higher grade goods than was the case a year ago, and it might be inferred that the average retailer is more prosperous. As a matter of fact some of the stores are conducting business in a different way than they did a few years ago. It formerly was the case that the proprietor hired the clerks and paid little attention to his customers. This is changed now, and most every dealer in the city takes particular pains to get acquainted with his trade.

Reports from the tobacco growing sections are to the effect that the recent rains saved the crop, as casing will now proceed. Heavy rains fell for three days, and to say it was welcome, expresses it mildly. Nearly if not all the crop hanging in the shed has been taken down and within the next week or two all the big tobacco warehouses will be running again.

Milwaukee now has more than 2,600 saloons, and nearly every one sells "cigars."

PRICE AND CONDITION OF THE CROP FOR 1904.

Department of Agriculture Issues Detailed Report of the Yield for the Year, by Types, Which Shows That Binder and Filler Crops are Late in Being Stripped and Sold.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 2.

In the monthly Crop Reporter, the Department of Agriculture publishes the following detailed reports of the year's tobacco crops by types, showing the condition of the tobacco, the proportion of yield and average price in 1904. It is a noticeable feature of the crop that among the sections producing cigar tobacco, the great binder and filler crops of Wisconsin, Ohio and New York were still hanging on the poles on December 20, practically none having been stripped and very little sold.

New England and Pennsylvania had marketed but a small percentage of their crops. An exception is noted in the case of the southern district, which is composed of certain counties of Georgia and Florida, about 70 per cent of this important wrapper and filler crop having been sold and delivered.

In many of the districts producing chewing, smoking, snuff and export types, the percentage of the crop marketed up to December 20 is much smaller than usual. In the burley district, the dark districts of Kentucky, Tennessee and Virginia, and in Maryland and Eastern Ohio dry weather has greatly interfered with stripping and has delayed marketing the crop. In the remaining sections conditions have been more favorable, and a much larger percentage of the crop has been sold.

Following are the reports in detail:

Cigar Types.

1. New England.—Reports from this section indicate that the prices so far received for the fine crop of 1904 have been approximately 50 per cent higher than for similar grades last year. A weighted average of all returns shows a price of 21.6 cents per pound, in the bundle, unassorted. Prices for Havana seed range from 15 to 23 cents per pound; several sales of broad leaf reported at 30 to 33 cents. About three-fourths of the crop has been sold, but on account of dry weather not more than 15 per cent has been stripped and delivered. The cured leaf is of good color and weight, free from pole sweat, or other damage, and is far superior to the crop of 1903. Taken as a whole, the crop is considered one of the finest ever produced in New England.

2. New York.—In the Onondaga district the prices quoted range from 8½ to 12 cents per pound, in the bundle, the average being about 10 cents. Compared with prices received for similar grades in 1903, these prices are from 25 to 30 per cent higher. About half of the crop has been sold on contract, but practically none of it has been delivered, dry weather

Palm Rolling Essential to Hand-Work.

THIS IS THE SIMPLEST AND MOST PRACTICAL TOOL yet introduced in connection with Cigar-making. The cutting rollers are so equipped with ball bearings and exterior springs that they only produce enough pressure to cut the leaf, thus maintaining a sharp edge on the die and assuring a perfect, clean cut, superior to hand-work. The circumference of the cutting roller being greater than the length of the die, makes tearing or streaking of the wrapper impossible. Then, after the leaf has been cut, a slight depression with the right foot pedal will lower the die even with the table, thus making a perfectly smooth and rigid surface, enabling the operator to Roll with the Full Palm of the Hand, instead of pushing the cigar along with the finger tips.

Changing of the die to any shape, or from right to left, or the reverse, is a very simple matter on this table, and can be done within two minutes time.

These points of merit, coupled with others not mentioned, have won for this table the high standard of excellence maintained to-day, a fact that cannot conscientiously be claimed by any of our competitors.

We stand ready to prove our statement, and all we ask is for the opportunity.

We Think IT WILL PAY YOU to Investigate.

having prevented stripping. The average quality of cured leaf is thought to be better than that of the 1903 crop, but this can not be ascertained with accuracy until tobacco is taken from the poles.

In the Big Flats district prices quoted range from 9 to 11 cents per pound, being 20 to 25 per cent higher than prices received for similar grades in 1903. On account of dry, cold weather very little tobacco has been taken from the poles, but the average quality is thought to be superior to that of 1903 crop.

3. Pennsylvania.—The weighted average of 8.9 cents per pound for the tobacco crop of this section is based upon the contract prices at which about 75 per cent of the crop has been sold. On account of dry weather, it has been impossible to strip and assort the tobacco, hence not more than 10 per cent has been delivered. Prices so far have been 25 to 30 per cent higher than were received for similar grades last year. Average quality of cured leaf is thought to be somewhat better than that of 1903 crop. There was less damage during the process of curing and practically no injury by insects. The above estimates do not include hail cut and frosted tobacco, very little of which has been sold. Prices so far quoted for such crops vary from 8 cents to as low as 3 or 4 cents per pound, depending upon the extent of damage.

4. Ohio—Miami Valley.—About 70 per cent of the crop of seed leaf and Little Dutch produced in this section is reported to have been sold on contract, at prices ranging from 6 to 9 cents per pound, the weighted average of all returns being 7½ cents. No price for Zimmer Spanish has yet been established as practically none of this variety has been sold. On account of dry weather it has been impossible to strip tobacco, consequently none of the new crop has been delivered up to December 20. Compared with prices received for similar grades in 1903, the prices so far realized for the new crop are from 15 to 20 per cent higher. Quality of the cured leaf cannot be accurately estimated at this time; but the prevailing opinion indicates that the 1904 crop is a very satisfactory one, and considerably better than that of last year. Damage from prolonged drying, from pole-rot in overcrowded sheds and from a small percentage of fat-stem in crops cut late, is reported in some cases, but the injury from these causes is thought to be slight.

5. Wisconsin.—On account of the lack of sufficient moisture to produce a stripping season, practically the entire crop is still hanging on the poles. It is therefore impossible to estimate accurately the quality and to determine the average price that will be realized. The price given, 7.8 cents per pound, is based upon the reports of sales which have been made on contract, but not yet delivered. In some parts of the district, from 50 to 75 per cent of the crop has been sold on contract. Quality of cured leaf is considered better than that of 1903 crop.

6. Georgia and Florida.—Practically the entire crop of Cuban sun-grown tobacco produced in this important district is reported sold. Prices received for this type average 15 cents per pound, in the bundle, for the unfermented leaf. Only about 40 per cent of the shade-grown Sumatra crop has been sold, prices ranging from 25 to 40 cents per pound, in the bundle, for the unfermented leaf. The average price for this type is estimated at 30 cents per pound. Owing to the prolonged drought in the early part of the growing season, the shade-grown crop is inferior in quality to that produced last year, and a comparatively short yield of high grade tobacco may be expected.

CHEWING, SMOKING, SNUFF AND EXPORT TYPES.

1. Burley District.

Reports from growers and dealers throughout the counties of Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana and West Virginia, producing burley tobacco, indicate that not more than 3 per cent of the 1904 crop has been sold. Severe and prolonged drought throughout the entire district prevented growers from stripping and preparing tobacco for market as early as usual. As the weather continued cold and dry, only a few hogsheads of the new crop had been received up to December 20, on the Louisville and Cincinnati markets, to which the bulk of the burley crop is sent. A few crops are reported to have been sold at the time of cutting. Prices received so far indicate an average of 9.1 cents per pound, and compared with prices received for similar grades at this time last year, are from 25 to 30 per cent higher. Quality of the cured leaf is thought to be somewhat better than that of 1903 crop, but this can not be satisfactorily estimated until the tobacco is stripped.

2. Dark Districts—Kentucky and Tennessee.

Paducah District.—The average price of 4.8 cents per pound is based upon reports from this district, which indicate that while only about 5 per cent of the 1904 crop had been delivered up to December 20, a very much larger percentage had been sold on contract. Compared with prices received for similar grades at this time last year, the prices quoted are said to be 25 per cent higher. On account of continued dry weather very little tobacco has been stripped. The average quality of cured leaf is considerably better than that of 1903 crop, being of better texture and body, and the leaf is larger and heavier. The new crop is said to be particularly desirable for export trade.

Stemming District.—On account of dry weather, practically none of the crop of this district has been stripped or sold. It is therefore impossible to estimate accurately the average price that may be realized or the quality of the cured leaf. Reports indicate, however, that prices considerably higher than those received for similar grades at this time last year are being offered.

Upper Green River District.

In most of the counties included in this district dry weather has prevented stripping and has delayed marketing. In the southern portion of the district, however, a considerable portion of the crop has been sold and delivered, or sold on contract for future delivery. The average price, as indicated by these sales, is estimated at 4.8 cents per pound. Compared with prices received for similar grades at this time last year, the prices so far realized for the 1904 crop are about 20 per cent higher. The average quality of the cured leaf is superior to 1903 crop, the early plantings having produced some very fine tobacco. There is a marked tendency to plant Burley tobacco instead of the dark types heretofore grown in this district, and where suitable soil was to be found a larger acreage than usual was planted to this type in 1904.

Upper Cumberland District.

On the basis of sales made an average price of 4.7 cents per pound is indicated as a farm price of the crop of this district on December 1. Prices so far received are 25 per cent higher than for similar grades in 1903. About 20 per cent of the crop had been marketed up to December 20. Quality of the cured leaf is superior to that of 1903 both in color and body.

Clarksville and Hopkinsville District.

Prices received so far have been from 25 to 30 per cent higher than those received for similar grades at this time last year. On account of dry weather not more than 7 per cent of the crop had been marketed up to December 20. The average quality of the cured leaf is thought to be superior to that of the 1903 crop. It is of a darker color and has more body, thus making it much better for many purposes, though not so suitable for the French market. Prices so far will average close to 6 cents, though some tobacco has been sold below this price.

It is generally conceded that the quality of this crop is better than that of 1903 crop, and as the yield in pounds will be probably 25 to 30 per cent less, prices bid fair to continue good. In many counties of this district tobacco is being held by the farmers for better prices. They are selling more freely in this county, however, probably 2,000,000 pounds or more having been sold up to December 20.

3. Virginia Sun-Cured District.

About one-third of the 1904 crop of sun cured tobacco is estimated to have been sold up to December 20. The cured leaf is said to be sweeter and of better flavor than the 1903 crop, but somewhat thinner and lacking in body and gum. It is, however, of good rich color and well suited to domestic manufacturing purposes. The average price up to December 1 was about 7½ cents per pound, but since that date a considerable decline is noted. In explanation of this fact, the following statement is made by a prominent dealer in this type: The demand for sun-cured tobacco has increased so much that in many of the counties south of the James River growers have endeavored to sun-cure and air-cure their crops with the result that a great quantity of the so-called sun-cured tobacco is appearing on the "breaks." In consequence the price of the real sun-cured tobacco has been unfavorably affected. The point is emphasized that this type of tobacco can be successfully produced only in the counties lying north of James River and near tide water, which have been included in the sun-cured district, viz: Caroline, Hanover, Henrico, King William, Spottsylvania, Fluvanua, Louisa, and Goochland.

4. Dark District of Virginia.

On account of unfavorable weather for stripping the tobacco not more than 15 per cent of the crop of this district had been marketed up to December 20. The average farm price on December 1, as indicated by sales reported up to this time, is estimated at 6.1 cents per pound. Prices so far received have been about 20 per cent higher than for similar grades at the corresponding time last year. The quality of the cured leaf though more useful and valuable than 1903 crop, is not as good as usual in this district. On account of severe drought in the late summer and early fall the plants could not be cured as successfully as usual. The leaf is of very satisfactory size, body and texture, but with the exception of certain grades, is deficient in color.

5. Bright Yellow District.

Old Bright Belt, Virginia.—It is estimated that about 35 per cent of the crop in this district had been marketed up to December 20. On the basis of sales reported, the average farm price on December 1 is estimated at 8.6 cents per pound. Prices so far received are from 20 to 25 per cent higher than for similar grades in 1903. In average quality the cured leaf is somewhat inferior to that of 1903 crop. It contains a smaller proportion ot wrappers and common tobacco, the medium grades largely predominating. The crop is deficient in body and color, but is thoroughly ripe and sweet.

Old Bright Belt, North Carolina.—The top prices reported from some of the markets in this part of the old belt are 2 to 3 cents higher than those quoted in the Virginia counties, but a weighted average will not exceed that given for the entire district. About 45 per cent of the crop of this district has been marketed up to December 20. Prices received so far have been about 25 to 30 per cent higher than for similar grades at the same time last year. The bulk of the 1904 crop consists of medium grades, there being a smaller proportion of real fine and real common tobaccos than last year. There are more smokers and cutters, but not as many wrappers as in 1903 crop.

New Belt, North Carolina —Prices quoted on the several markets in the counties of eastern North Carolina range from 7 to 10 cents per pound, a weighted average for the section being 8.5 cents. The prices received for the various grades are from 30 to 40 per cent higher than for similar grades at the same time last year. It is estimated that at least 65 per cent of the crop has been marketed up to December 20. Compared with the 1903 crop, the medium and fine grades are of rather better quality, but common grades are inferior.

New Belt, South Carolina.—About 90 per cent of the crop in this section had been marketed up to December 20, the estimated average price for the State being 8.2 cents per pound. Prices quoted on the several markets are from 50 to 75 per cent higher than those received for similar grades in 1903. Reports from counties in the eastern portion of this district indicate that the quality of the cured leaf is considered better than the 1903 crop; but taking the district as a whole, the prevailing opinion is that the crop is slightly inferior to that of last year.

6. Maryland and Eastern Ohio—Export.

On account of dry weather only about 9 per cent of the crop had been marketed up to December 20. Prices received for the few crops sold indicate an average farm price on December 1 of 6.4 cents for the district. In the Eastern Ohio counties producing tobacco of this type prices range from 5 to 6 cents per pound, or about the same as in 1903; but the quality is somewhat better this year.

7. Louisiana.

Perique.—As compared with the crops of 1903 produced in this district, no marked deviation either as to average price or quality of cured leaf is noted.

As an additional guide to a clear understanding of the condition of the crop, the following table shows, by types, the average farm price on December 1 in cents per pound and the estimated percentage of the tobacco crop of 1904 which had been marketed up to Dec. 20:

Leaf Tobacco Markets.

CONNECTICUT VALLEY

The Crafts Brothers finished stripping in October and did not deliver it to the assorting shop until about December 21, and as it laid in one tier of bundles high until the first of December before it was piled up, they probably lost 500 lbs by having the tobacco dry off, and their bank account is smaller by $80. In my estimation, the men who bought the crop hurried them in the taking down, as they wanted the tobacco for their shop. Had this tobacco been piled up one month earlier, covered well top and ends with corn stalks and weighted down a little, the crop would have weighed about 9 tons to the 10 acres.

Our correspondents write:

East Whately, Mass.: "I have to report the sale of one crop of tobacco or part of the crop, the balance, 6 acres, still hanging, 10 acres assorted and packed, raised by Lyman A. Crafts. for 21c, to J. Kieley, of Hatfield, for Lichstenstene & Co.

Conway, Mass., Dec. 19: "Everything in the tobacco line is very dull here; no damp, no buyers. So that all we have to do is to wait patiently. I hope the growers will keep a stiff upper lip and have their tobacco assorted and not give their tobacco away when it is as good a crop as it is this year."

Conway, Mass., Dec. 26.: "C. F. Allis and A. G. Patterson sold at 13c, W. R. Batchelder and A. R. Cranson at 14c in bundle, about 8 acres in all. Very little tobacco has been taken down here, Dec. 22, 23, as it did not get damp."—American Cultivator.

EDGERTON, WIS.

The holiday week seldom brings much news in tobacco circles and the present season is no exception to the rule. Conditions have been improved amazingly by casing weather of sufficient duration to put the hanging tobacco into suitable case for removing from the sheds and the delayed work of stripping can now go forward. It is believed the greater portion of the crop has been taken down and busy times are now predicted throughout the tobacco sections of the State. Old leaf continues to be moved out of first hands though the late storms have curtailed riding somewhat during the week. The demand for low grade goods remains strong and dealers are enjoying a liberal trade from an export quarter as well as from the stogy manufacturers. An occasional lot of binder goods finds a more remunerative market, but the bulk of transactions are among cheaper lines. W. T. Pomeroy & Co. report the sale of a 100cs lot and our Janesville correspondent tells of a liberal movement in tha market.

Shipments, 200cs.—Reporter.

DANVILLE BREAKS RECORD.

Tobacco Sales in December Much More than Same Month Last Year.

Danville, Va., Dec. 31.

The sales recorded in this market, the largest in the world, during December, were enormous and a week ago had already shown an increase of more than 2,000,000 pounds over sales in December, 1903. The farmers also received nearly $200,000 more this month than during the same period last year.

The report of E. G. Moseley, president of the Tobacco Association, is very gratifying to the local trade and shows much increase in the whole year. The following figures are included in the report:

Total amount sold in December, 1904, 5,148,186 pounds, for $435,364.72; sales for December, 1903, 3,360,246, for $252,034.59; increase for December, 1904, 1,787,940, for $183,330.13. Sales for four months in 1904, 14,477,807, for $1,221,481.99; sales for four months in 1903, 11,102,216, for $730,577.18; increase for 1904, 3,375,591, for $499,904.81.

THE TOBACCO WORLD

YEAR IN THE RICHMOND MARKET SHOWS GOOD INCREASE.

Except for a Decrease in Revenue Collections on Cigars, 1904 Has Been Remarkably Prosperous for the Tobaacco Trade. Many More Cigarettes Made.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 5.

The figures which are available in this city to show the condition of business for 1904, exhibit a remarkable growth in the city's commerce, at least in the tobacco trade, and as regards the building trades which are significent of all, the year was the most active in the history of the city.

In the tobacco trade more than five thousand persons were employed in the cigar, cigarette and cheroot manufacturing interests alone, and a capital of two and a half millions was invested, the sales for the year exceeding five and a quarter millions. Nearly five thousand more were engaged in the manufacture of tobaccos other than cigars, cigarettes and cheroots, with an invested capital of more than three and three quarter millions of dollars, and sales for the year were of nearly twelve and a half millions.

The first quarter of the leaf tobacco year shows large receipts, with prices very satisfactorily maintained. A larger proportion of the crop has been sold in October, November and December than in the same period of the previous year or of several years preceding. Total sales for the quarter were 3,295,312 pounds, compared with 1,335,704 for the corresponding period of 1903, an increase of largely more than 100 per cent.

Sales for December alone aggregated nearly two million pounds. The bulk of the crop consists of filler, but a small quantity of wrappers having yet been offered. The entire crop will considerably exceed the average for the past seven years and will exceed eight million pounds. The average price will be up to and even above that of last year.

Richmond is essentially a market for sun and air cured tobacco, which, having no odor of smoke, is especially desired for manufacturing fine grades of chewing tobacco. The production of this grade of tobacco is largely limited to six or seven counties contiguous to this city, which is its natural and logical market.

Almost all the sun cured tobacco grown is manufactured into plug or twist here. The supply is limited and the demand is still increasing.

The internal revenue collections for the calendar year 1904 aggregate $2,324,832,93, a decrease of $21,505 06, compared with 1903. This decrease is chiefly accounted for by the diminished production of cigars, the output of which decreased immensely, while the revenue therefrom fell off $167,759.21 cents during the year. The production of cigarettes and the revenue derived therefrom increased $34 476 43, while the revenue derived from manufactured tobacco in its various forms, other than cigarettes, cigars and cheroots, increased $66,453.73.

But for the falling off in the cigar output the revenue receipts would have shown an immense increase. The small production of cigars is probably attributable to a transfer of much of this branch of the manufacturing trade to other points, under the new plan of operation put into effect by the operating company. The output of leaf tobacco alone increased 1,107,562 pounds.

The figures on the total exports of tobacco, cigars and cigarettes for 1904 show a decrease of 1,228,183 pounds. The number of cigars exported during the year was increased 1,744,500 over 1903, but the decrease in the number of cigarettes exported was 45,383,500. This great increase in the export of cigarettes, compared with the 1903 figures, is alleged to be attributable to the cessation of the war between the American and the British manufacturers, whereby the American company agreed to leave the British field to the British manufacturers, and the British firms agreed not to compete for American trade. The large increase in the revenue from cigarettes, as shown by the revenue report, indicates that the decrease in cigarettes exported is offset by the increased domestic sales, and that in turn by the withdrawal of the British competition in America.

DANGER THAT CHINESE WILL USE NATIVE TOBACCO EXCLUSIVELY.

U. S. Consul Anderson Says that Much More will be Grown at Home as Result of Economy of Chinese Officials, and American Tobacco May be Supplanted.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 6.

According to George E. Anderson, American Consul at Hangchau, China, it is likely if present plans are carried out, that tobacco of American product will soon be supplanted by Chinese grown tobacco unless the American trade devises some ways and means to prevent it.

"The tobacco trade of China at the present time is in a critical stage," writes Consul Anderson, "and needs to be watched by American interests. Because of the comparatively large sum of money expended for tobacco in its several forms, the Chinese authorities have naturally turned their attention to the trade with a view of keeping as much of it as possible at home. It is a well known fact that they are attempting to bring more land under cultivation in tobacco, and they are succeeding in their attempt to supplant the foreign product. The increasing purchasing power of the Chinese people is likely to be shown as quickly in tobacco as anything else. There are a number of changes in the course of the tobacco trade in China in the past three years or so which merit special attention.

"These figures, of course, cover only the trade of this port and the country tributary to it. It must also be remembered in this connection that the differences between the customs and likin systems offer opportunities for deductions which are not really warranted. However, it is probable that one or two facts may be taken from the figures for these years as pretty thoroughly established. The decrease in the total weight of tobacco brought to this port from other portions of the empire, while the value of the amount thus brought in remains about the same, indicates a decided bettering in the quality of the Chinese tobacco purchased. The average price of the gross amount imported in 1901 was a fraction over 7 cents per pound; in 1902 it was 7.1 cents per pound, and the average price in 1903 was 9.7 cents per pound. The fact that the amount of stalk tobacco bought in the three years remains about the same, and at about the same price, may reasonably be taken as indicating the decided change in the tobacco trade.

"It will be noticed that the figures on the importation of foreign tobacco do not promise much for American tobacco interests. This, however, is not to be taken as indicating too much. The importation of foreign stalk and prepared tobacco has ceased altogether. Generally speaking, the figures and other facts indicate that the Chinese are commencing to improve their grades of tobacco and their methods of handling it. The cigarette factory at Shanghai, now owned very largely by Americans, has much to do with the change. This enterprise is likely to have large influence on the tobacco business in China. At present it is using American tobacco to a great extent, but expert American tobacco men are here with the purpose of adapting Chinese tobacco to its use by treatment of the leaf to remove some of the rank qualities. The change which is likely to come in a short time will be important. The concern which controls the foreign tobacco trade in China (the British-American Tobacco Company) last year imported about $4,000,000 Mexican (about $1,850,000 gold) worth of tobacco and tobacco goods. Some of this came from Japan, probably about $100,000 worth gold, but most of it came from the United States. Now that the Japanese Government has taken over the tobacco business in Japan as a monopoly, the importation from that country into China for the time being has practically stopped.

"The supplanting of the American product by native tobacco, therefore, will cut into the trade of the United States more than it will into that of any other nation. The immense increase in the use of the better grades of tobacco in China, however, is likely to relieve the situation to a great extent. Possibly this increase and the increased buying power of the Chinese generally will result in a considerable increase in the use of American goods in spite of the proportionate loss. The importation of cigars and high grade tobaccos from the Philippines into the parts of China frequented by foreigners is satisfactory in volume and constantly increasing. It can be further increased by reasonable effort. When once the Chinese are able to buy

Chicago Civil Service Board Puts Tobacco Under Ban at Examinations.

Chicago, Jan. 9.

An order has been issued and put into effect by the police department of this city which is unique. For the first time in any municipal civil service examination, patrolmen were not permitted to use tobacco in the desk sergeant's test last Saturday.

The majority of the policemen have smoked themselves blue in the face heretofore, during examinations and last week's applicants didn't like the new order for a cent. The edict reads:

"The use of tobacco in any form during the examination is prohibited. Any violation of this rule will be considered sufficient cause to exclude the offender from the examination."

DEALER CAUSES ARREST OF BOYS.

Who Quickly Make Counter Charges That Dealer Sells to Minors.

The dealer who thinks trade with boys is worth having, in face of the law and his own common sense, must bear in mind the old truism, that it is a poor rule that won't work both ways. Fred Lough, a dealer in Portland, Ore., has got himself in hot water by disregarding this fact.

Lough caused the arrest of Thomas Campbell and Alexander McDonald, two minors, on the charge of using abusive language. A double complaint has been sworn to by the boys, charging Lough with selling tobacco to minors and allowing gambling to be conducted in his place.

The boys were brought before Judge Hogue, where the case was continued, charges being made by the lads alleging that Lough has sold them tobacco and has allowed poker games in his store.

YEAR IN THE RICHMOND MARKET SHOWS GOOD INCREASE.

Except for a Decrease in Revenue Collections on Cigars, 1904 Has Been Remarkably Prosperous for the Tobaacco Trade. Many More Cigarettes Made.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 5.

The figures which are available in this city to show the condition of business for 1904, exhibit a remarkable growth in the city's commerce, at least in the tobacco trade, and as regards the building trades which are significent of all, the year was the most active in the history of the city.

In the tobacco trade more than five thousand persons were employed in the cigar, cigarette and cheroot manufacturing interests alone, and a capital of two and a half millions was invested, the sales for the year exceeding five and a quarter millions. Nearly five thousand more were engaged in the manufacture of tobaccos other than cigars, cigarettes and cheroots, with an invested capital of more than three and three quarter millions of dollars, and sales for the year were of nearly twelve and a half millions.

The first quarter of the leaf tobacco year shows large receipts, with prices very satisfactorily maintained. A larger proportion of the crop has been sold in October, November and December than in the same period of the previous year or of several years preceding. Total sales for the quarter were 3,295,312 pounds, compared with 1,335,704 for the corresponding period of 1903, an increase of largely more than 100 per cent.

Sales for December alone aggregated nearly two million pounds. The bulk of the crop consists of filler, but a small quantity of wrappers having yet been offered. The entire crop will considerably exceed the average for the past seven years and will exceed eight million pounds. The average price will be up to and even above that of last year.

Richmond is essentially a market for sun and air cured tobacco, which, having no odor of smoke, is especially desired for manufacturing fine grades of chewing tobacco. The production of this grade of tobacco is largely limited to six or seven counties contiguous to this city, which is its natural and logical market.

Almost all the sun cured tobacco grown is manufactured into plug or twist here. The supply is limited and the demand is still increasing.

The internal revenue collections for the calendar year 1904 aggregate $2,324,832,93, a decrease of $21,505 06, compared with 1903. The Old Salesman's Musings.

IF YOU'VE GOT A STORE, TEND IT.

I know at least three stores that were sold for almost nothing last month, because the proprietors did not personally look after them. They were good locations and had always had the reputation of being prosperous stands. In each case the sums paid were surprisingly small.

Last month wasn't an exception, either. There are such cases every month in the year, and will continue to be as long as a man thinks he can add to his income by simply buying a cigar store and allowing a few clerks to run it.

This is what these men did, and they're sick enough over it, now.

To an outsider, a cigar store looks like a gilt edged proposition anyway you take it. Like the saloon keeper, the usual piker thinks that the only requisite is a little money at the start off, and the ability to count the bunches of it that come in afterward.

Oh, foolish!

The man who gets rich out of a retail cigar business deserves every dollar he's got in bank. The big ones are playing them closer every year, now, and it takes a genius to keep his balance swelling.

Every once in a while you hear of a ball player, a prize fighter or some other gent in the kindly public eye buying a cigar store and settling down. It usually isn't long before he's settling up, unless he's got a partner who is really a business man, and then it isn't the ball player's business at all. A lot of callow youths buy their Sweet Caporals at this store for the sake of getting an occasional word from the fielder or pitcher, but that's all the extra trade that comes in on the deal.

But about these three stores that were sold. The circumstances were similar in all three cases. The men who owned the stores were engaged in some other business and weren't able to get around very often. They hired an experienced manager and left all the details to him. Well, during the last few months of the year, the retail business has not been on the boom, exactly, and receipts grew less and less. The other businesses demanded more and more time and attention, and it got so that not one of these three men, really knew what was going on in his store.

At last they were running at a loss, and managed to dig up a buyer somewhere, mighty glad to get the white elephants off their hands.

But the manager game is all right, you say. Lots of stores are being run that way. Perhaps so. But if you'll check up a little, you'll discover that quite a number of these managers have an interest in the business, or else they're plugging the game along for what they expect to get out of it later. How many cases can you think of right now, of managers who finally opened stores of their own, and took their trade along with them?

What protection has the proprietor who doesn't clerk, against that? If the manager by hard work builds up a personal trade, he feels that he has a right to keep it, when he secures an opportunity to better himself.

But, suppose he hasn't any interest in the firm, has no hope of getting a business of his own, and his sole interest is in seeing that he gets his salary every Saturday. This salary is in very few cases enormous, and the manager simply bosses his clerk and floats along.

Why, I know of one such case right here in Philadelphia. One of these managers was making enough out of his job to dress fairly well, and occasionally buy a chorus girl a meal. The proprietor was out of town a good deal and sometimes didn't get around for two or three weeks at a time. The manager was a wife's nephew or some such thing.

After a while the manager began to buy the chorus girl two meals and soon had to knock down a little to do it. Then he found it hard to get down in the mornings at all early. The clerks were a wise lot and he had to fire two because they developed a tendency to shoot off their mouths whenever he had occasion to call them down.

He hired a couple of new clerks, and as the store was not in the real proprietor's name, started by allowing them to believe that he, himself, owned the establishment. It was a good game while it lasted. The boss was in Europe for a month, but he finally came back, as all things will

He stopped in his store one morning about 10 o'clock. The clerks were strange, but he didn't wonder much about it. The manager wasn't in. The proprietor asked for a ten cent cigar. He is a man who spends less money on his clothes than anything else about him, and he was on his way to get shaved.

One of the clerk, said "Yes sir, in a minute," and continued an account of his experience with a girl he picked up the night before. The proprietor drummed on the counter for a minute and then said sharply:

"Where's Mr.——?"

"Oh, he never gets down this early," was the answer. "What do you want to see him about!"

"That doesn't concern you, young man," responded the proprietor who was beginning to get a little hot.

"Well, cheer up old sport; the worst is yet to come," said the clerk, merrily, and with considerable more truth than he suspected. "I'll give you a straight tip, though, if you're a collector you'd better chase yourself around the block till this afternoon. The boss always starts the day with a fierce grouch."

By this time a number of sentences appropriate to the occasion were seething around in the outraged proprietor's brain but he was spared a selection by the arrival of his manager. That gentleman's eyes resembled nothing so much as the marks made by a cigarette when laid carelessly on a blanket and he was accompanied by an overpowering odor of peppermint, calamus, sen-sen and brown taste.

His overworked nerves gave a sickening leap when he saw the customer, and in his agitation he tipped his hat, said "why" twice, "you" once, and then "why" again.

The proprietor contented himself by merely remarking: "Ya a-s!" and, to cut a painful episode short, the two clerks went—quick, and the manager lasted until Saturday night. The man tended shop himself with the aid of one clerk for two weeks, and although firmly convinced that he had what could soon be made a paying proposition, was compelled to sell out because he hadn't the time to give to it, and was afraid to risk any more managers.

And you can use your own judgment in copping out the moral.

CIGAR MACHINES BENEFIT THE DEALER.

WHAT a tremendous difference a slot machine makes to a store that has regular customers and does not have to depend largely upon transient trade. As a well known Philadelphia manufacturer declared in a recent article in the Tobacco World, there was a very noticeable difference in the size of orders which retailers gave the factories immediately after all the slot machines were forced out hy the authorities.

There is probably no man on earth who has not the instinct of gambling in some degree at least, and as the cigar machine presents an opportunity of gratifying it in the most harmless way, hundreds of men take a chance in this way who would not think of throwing dice. There are plenty of towns where slot machines are permitted or overlooked now, and they are operated in a quiet way in certain Philadelphia stores. Wherever they appear the dealer will tell you that they have made a difference in his sales. If they hadn't he wouldn't have them in, particularly in Philadelphia where he has to take a chance.

The machine which seems to be the most popular is the one which throws poker hands. This beats out the dice cup machine, probably for the reason that the average man would rather handle a poker deck than a dice cup. With some of the machines the player drops a nickel in the slot and is sure of one cigar, standing to win as many as twenty-five with a Royal flush. This is considered less of a gamble than the machine which is fed with pennies and pays cigars for high throws only

Dealers are of different minds as to which of these two varieties is the most lucrative, inasmuch as, while he of course disposes of more cigars on the nickel proposition, he frequently gets caught for a lot of big winnings all at once which he has to stand himself. On the other hand the penny play is made against long chances and the dealer gets a big percentage of the gross receipts. Frequently, two or three customers will throw cold hands on the machine simply to make side bets and out of two or three hundred pennies the dealer may not be required to pay more than a half dozen cigars.

Then there are machines in which the insertion of a cent or nickel, whichever it may be, will set a couple of dice cups turning until they finally make a throw. Besides these there are machines in which the coin percolates through a lot of pins to a chance destination, bicycle machines in which the hind wheel makes the run and numerous other devices, in all of which the dealer has the best percentage of chance whether the machine is "fixed" or not.

The chief value to the dealer of the machine, however, lies in its stimulation of trade. The man who plays it once and loses is almost sure to try again and if he wins, he'll play once or twice more for the looks of the thing, or else to push his luck while he has it. When he "wins big" he usually treats everyone in the store and as a result needs cigars again just as quickly.

Moreover it is quite possible to develop a cigar machine habit which will be quite as binding as a gambling habit in any other form. Some time ago there was a certain little cigar store in a town about twenty miles from Philadelphia. The stock wasn t large, the store was miserably shabby and the most ornamental article in the place was a handsome, nickel plated slot machine. This was of the poker hand variety, and some of the customers had to be taught the value of the hands.

In about two days there was a regular crowd around that machine during every noon hour and immediately after supper until ten or eleven at night. And every son-of-a-gun who could, would break away once or twice during working hours to take a chance. The business done by the store was out of all proportion to any normal expectation and one or two other stores soon got machines in.

The average salary of the customers was not high, say $15, and it is no exaggeration to say that for two months, an average of one third of his salary was left by each man. And it got worse instead of better until a few men got positively feverish over it, and their wives made so much talk over having nothing fit to eat on the table, that the ministers took the matter up and there was a great time.

The dealers had to throw their machines out and the first one lost considerable of his regular custom, because many customers when they came back to earth started to save money or else were ashamed to go into the store again.

That's only one case and it's literally true. So it is easy to realize the great difference which the machines make to the dealer in whose customers there is any sporting blood.

A RETAILER should remember that he spends nearly half his lifetime in his store and for that reason should make it as attractive as his home.

DISPLAY MADE BY B. LIPSCHUTZ AT TOBACCO SHOW.

A TASTEFUL display of well known brands of cigars and little cigars was made at the Tobacco Show by B. Lipschutz, of 44 North Twelfth street, Philadelphia. The manufacturer's popular "44" 5 cent brand came in for much admiring attention as well as "The Bride," label in cigars and little cigars. The Lipschutz booth was made unique by a novel feature in the shape of "Phroso," the automatic man, which can be seen at the right of the picture. Phroso created much merriment during the week and attracted everyone's attention to Mr. Lipschutz's pleasing exhibit.

WINDOW DISPLAYS SHOW TOO MUCH DETAIL.

FROM a cursory sizing-up of the general run of displays in cigar store windows there seem to be two particular faults which occur most frequently. One, a carelessness and indifference on the part of the dealer which is rewarded by a dead, stale, absolutely unattractive appearance of the window, and the other an over-elaborateness which is apt to defeat its own purpose.

The objects of a window display are, first and primarily, to tell the passerby whether the store sells cigars or leather goods or is a drug store, and secondly, to present a portion of the stock in a way which at once causes the passer by to feel a desire to make a purchase.

It is not easy to see how this second object can be accomplished by a window which is loaded up to the gunwales with samples of everything in stock. There might follow an abstract desire to have some of the things, on the part of anyone who idly stopped to look in, but there would be no immediate, concrete longing for a certain article which, eight times out of ten, leads the consumer into the store.

During the holidays, a Market street store gave over a whole window, and a large window at that, to one brand of cigars. The window was draped in green and decorated with a little evergreen and holly, and in the centre, resting on a large piece of draped velvet were two or three boxes of this cigar in its principal sizes. The cigar is lucky enough to have a striking package, and the simplicity of the thing was tremendously effective. Walking by, one stopped short and thought how very inviting the cigars looked. That was worth ever so much more than a window full of heaped up junk, on the same principle that wise advertisers will insist on as much white space as there is ink and will stick to one thought.

Here is a suggestion for a window which should by used by a dealer who is intending to push one brand of cigars for a while at the expense of other brands.

If your window is roomy enough, get two or three dozen empty boxes of othe brands. It is better to select brands for this purpose which you are not handling yourself, or which are not particularly well known. Pile the boxes up in a pyramid heap, as if done carelessly. The more battered and old the boxes are, the better the effect.

At the front of the window, and directly in front of this nondescript heap, set a box of the brand to be advertised, on a handsome stand. The box should be open and the label and cigars showing and on it should be a neat card, reading:

THIS IS THE CIGAR THAT HAS SUPPLANTED THEM ALL.

Naturally, as was stated, this must be at the expense of other brands, but frequently dealers are in a position where they are willing to do this, particularly if it is their own brand, and if they can do it without knocking any other particular cigar or cigars that they have in stock, the effect will be striking and will be sure to bring results.

DANGER THAT CHINA WILL USE NATIVE TOBACCO

American tobacco products they will probably furnish a steady demand for them, but until their purchasing power is materially increased the demand will be for the low grade goods at the cheapest price possible.

"As stated heretofore, the officials of the several provinces are alive to the need of saving as much of the tobacco trade to China as possible, and are giving every encouragement practical to Chinese farmers who raise the tobacco plants. Chinese farmers have a number of advantages in this connection. In line with their usual intensive methods of culture, they are accustomed to plant tobacco in their mulberry groves. The stripping of the leaves from the trees for the silk worms gives the tobacco plants the light they need when they need it, and later the shade of the trees affords them protection when it is required. All Chinese culture is intensive and the tobacco plants are treated with the fertilizers peculiar to China.

"The tobacco grown is rank in quality and would be rated very low in American markets, but it supplies the Chinese consumer with a product within his reach financially, and this is the chief thing to be regarded in the tobacco or any other trade in the far East. Methods of treatment of the tobacco plant are crude and are not such as to improve the product. The vast bulk of the prepared tobacco is fine cut, made by pressing a quantity of the tobacco leaves together and planing off the edges with a tool much like a carpenter's plane. The use of cigarettes is increasing.

"The amount of tobacco used in China is enormous. Most of it is produced by the consumers or in the immediate vicinity of where it is consumed, and does not get into the trade reports at all. The foreign tobacco trade has scarcely scratched the surface of the field. Whether the improvement in the Chinese methods of cultivating and caring for tobacco plants and products will eventually shut out the cheaper grades of goods from abroad remains to be seen, but at present the indications are that American manufacturers must handle the situation in China promptly and with tact if they are to hold the market they have and to obtain the market they ought to have."

ANOTHER DULL WEEK, BUT BUYERS ARE EXPECTED.

Prices in Havana Market are Firm for Good Grades, and if Crop is Not Badly Damaged There Will Be No Retrograde Movement.

HAVANA, January 2, 1905.

Another dull week must be chronicled in the Havana market owing to the very limited number of northern buyers in town, but everybody seems to look forward hopefully to an excellent business to be done this month, as a crowd of purchasers from the United States is expected to arrive here.

Prices are held firmly for all fine growths, and there appears no prospect of any retrograde movement, particularly if the report of damages to this year's crop is only to a limited extent true.

It is the custom among the Spanish dealers to close their books by the end of March or April, by which time preparation for the packing season in the Vuelta Abajo and Partido section usually begins, but your correspondent is now busy compiling figures to show the receipts and sales of the 1904 crop and the balance resulting therefrom, and at the same time taking the approximate actual stocks on hand in the different warehouses, thus proving the correctness or errors which might have occurred during the past twelve months.

Sales

amounted to 3,269 bales in all, or divided into 2,204 of Vuelta Abajo, 135 of Partido, and 930 of Remedios. American buyers purchased 2,080 bales, for Europe 205 were acquired, and the local cigar and cigarette manufacturers took 984 bales.

Buyers Come and Go.

Arrivals:—Frank Dominguez, of E. A. Calves & Co., Philadelphia; Facundo Arguelles, of Arguelles, Lopez & Bros., Tampa; Rafael Alvarez, representative of the Viuda de Joser Gener, at New York; C. S. Egerton, of Egerton & Joel, Boston.

Departures:—Wm. Beitz and A. Fromherz, for Chicago. To leave on the 3d: Leopold Loeb and Arturo Loeb, for Philadelphia; Jose M. Cayro, Key West; Rafael Alvarez, New York; Celestino Vega, Chicago.

have closed the old year tolerably well, as contrary to the usual custom of having nearly a whole month, from December 15th to January 15th, barren of any orders to speak of, the demand this season has kept up during the entire month of December, particularly in the larger independent factories.

The trust is having its troubles with its salaried employes, who are universally opposing the innovation of having to sign a contract whereby they can not claim any more salary than for the actual working time, and that they can be dismissed at any moment, without the right to receive the full wages up to the end of the month and one month extra besides. The Spanish commercial code, which is still ruling here, states distinctly that any employer who discharges his help during the middle of the month is obliged to pay the discharged party one and one-half months' wages.

This rule has been in force here for years, and the framers of the commercial code undoubtedly had it in mind to prevent these classes from becoming paupers, or being thrown upon the street. None of the independent manufacturers have complained about its being a hardship to them; neither would they let their help suffer if they were unable to keep them busy all the time. If the trust, for the sake of economy and in order to do a large business, is obliged to institute such an oppressive measure with their employes, it will become less liked by the working people than it is at present.

H. Upmann & Co. continue very busy and shipped last week 50,000 cigars to all markets.

Cifuentes, Fernandez & Co. have enough orders on hand to keep their Partagas factory running as lively as now through January and February.

Rabell, Costa, Vales & Co. are active in their Ramon Allones and Cruz Roja factory, and all their brands continue to be called for in good round numbers. La Eminencia cigarettes, made by J. Vales & Co., stand at the top of the list, and are the most popular ones.

Behrens & Co. closed a very successful and satisfactory business for the year, and the prospects for this year are very promising indeed.

J. F. Rocha had a small strike in their factory, because the union of cigarmakers insisted upon their re-employing bad rollers which they had discharged for incompetency. This is surely an imposition, and upon sober reflection the union must back down from a standpoint which it cannot maintain.

Enrique Dorado & Co. are fairly busy for all markets shipping El Rico Habana cigars.

Remigio Lopez y Hno. have finished moving their factory to 113 San Miguel street, and will start in filling the orders on hand for La mas Fermosa and Magnetica de Cuba.

Buying, Selling and Other Notes of Interest.

A. Fromherz, of the Fromherz, Berlizheimer Co., Chicago, purchased 500 bales of Vuelta Abajo, among which was the famous vega "La Llanada" of San Luis, so they ought to turn out a superior cigar.

Antonio Suarez closed the last week o 1904 by making a transaction of 800 bales of Vuelta Abajo to a local factory.

Leopold and Arturo Loeb, who leave to morrow for their Philadelphia home, have done some good business, but are expected to return here by the end of this month. The Loeb-Nunez Havana Co. sold 375 bales of Remedios.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez shipped from their previous purchases for the Spanish Regie 3,740 bales per German steamer Prinz Joachim to Santander, Spain, and they sold 400 bales of Vuelta Abajo from their stocks.

Frank Dominguez is again in town trying to replenish the holdings of E. A. Calves & Co., Philadelphia, and has started right in making some purchases.

Jose F. Rocha disposed of 200 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

Facundo Arguelles also paid another visit to Havana, as their factory at Tampa is turning out goods faster than Arguelles, Lopez & Bros. expected to do, and he has already secured some 400 bales of choice Vuelta Abajo.

A. M. Calzada turned over 125 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido to one of their northern customers.

Mendelsohn, Bornemann & Co. closed a very satisfactory year, having exceeded the 12,000-bale mark of purchases for their customers.

Gonzalez, Benites & Co. sold 125 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Remedios.

Sol Hamburger is as usual going very carefully over the market in picking out only such lots as Hamburger Bros. & Co. can quickly dispose of, and he has already made some good-sized purchases.

Grau, Planas & Co. disposed of 120 bales of their Remedios holdings.

Sobrinos de V. Diaz turned over 80 bales of Remedios.

Joaquin Hedesa closed out 60 bales of Partido, but has a very fine stock of Artemisa wrappers and caperos still for sale.

Rabell, Costa & Co. were sellers only to the extent of 59 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

Vicente Pazos has just returned from a trip to the Vuelta Abajo, and while it is too early yet, still he believes in making his arrangements for the coming packing season so he can start in immediately the season opens up in May or June. A. Pazos & Co. sold 50 bales of Vuelta Abajo to a local factory.

Garcia & Co. closed a very satisfactory and successful year, and will be heard from in 1905.

Jose Santalla died here last Wednesday, and was buried last Friday morning. He was an old-timer in the leaf tobacco business, of the well-known firm of Santalla, Eschevarria & Co., and later Santalla & Co., although for the last two years he had virtually retired from business. He was the ex-president of the Centro Gallego, and a man universally liked and esteemed. The funeral was attended by at least 300 people, and the hearse was drawn by eight horses. Two hearses were required to carry all the wreaths of flowers.

TOBACCO NEWS OF GREATER NEW YORK

[From The Tobacco World's Correspondent.]

New York, Jan. 10.

Last week's storm, which effectually blocked traffic, kept the more fortunate ones indoors and paralyzed trade. The weather conditions were such that no one attempted to smoke on the street and retail tobacconists and cigar dealers found slim receipts in their cash drawers when they counted up every night.

This week opens up brighter, however, and the prospects of a better retail trade look encouraging. Of course the weather did not greatly effect the wholesale trade but many drummers have prolonged their New Year's holidays and will not start out on their districts for a week or two.

According to the United States Consul General, in Havana, Frank Steinhart, the total output of Havana cigars last year was to the value of $12,302,969, of which tidy sum $2,888,111 only were imported into the United States, chiefly through the New York Custom House. Comment is made in this city that while $2,888,111 worth of cigars came to the United States, England imported twice as many Havanas at double the price.

So far as domestic cigars are concerned there is a rapidly growing tendency to improve the grade and the "five center" is looked at askance both by maker, jobber, dealer and consumer, although their "day" may never go.

According to statistics the total output of cigars manufactured in the United States in 1903 was 6,886,647,455 and the total for the year just ended will fall a little short of that, the output for the eleven months ending with November being 6,484,174,150. While New York is a greater producer of domestic cigars than Florida the total output in 1904 fell below that of the previous year, and various are the reasons assigned for the interesting if not encouraging fact.

More domestic cigarettes than ever are made in New York which in its output outstrips Louisiana and Virginia. The output of cigarettes in the United States for 1903 was 3,210,325,015 while for the eleven months of 1904 there were made no less than 3,584,654,161 with New York city a long way in the lead.

The total output of smoking and chewing tobacco in 1903 was 320,802,285 pounds and for the eleven months in 1904 303,381,469 pounds, a very favorable comparison say the New York traders.

Robert E. Lane, Thomas J. Donigan and Sidney J. Freeman, who were appointed a committee at the annual meeting of the Retail Cigar and Tobacco Dealers' Association to formulate plans for the contemplated Tobacco Exposition of the metropolis are all enthusiastic on the subject and promise some definite plans for publication next month.

At the annual meeting in question the following directors were selected for 1905: Messrs. Lane, Freeman, Donigan, Fred B. Aschner, James W. Geyer and Charles A. Hilkenbach.

The two latter represent 1,504 and 1,503 shares respectively, while the former gentlemen each represents 1,537 shares.

In his annual address President Donigan spoke of the splendid growth of trade and alluded at length to the removal of the import stamp and the evident disposition on the part of the independent firms and individuals to close up their ranks and pull together for mutual interests. He declared that in his opinion the high handed methods of the trust are no longer a menace and he fully believes that from now on, the independents will have a wider field and the best chance of success.

As delegates to the Chicago National Convention, the Association selected Messrs. Aschner, Donigan, Lane, Freeman and St. John.

The Association decided that hereafter the annual meetings shall be held on the third Tuesday in January instead of the first Tuesday as heretofore. This action was found necessary as it has been inconvenient if not impossible to get in all annual reports in the first week in January.

New York plug tobacco men are discussing with interest the removal of the Paul Brown Tobacco Works from St. Louis to Louisville, a move announced by R. K. Smith, the vice president of the American Tobacco Co., who was formerly resident director for the company in Kentucky. This change in the policy of the tobacco company is made in pursuance of a plan long contemplated and full details were given in The Tobacco World of two weeks ago.

On and since last Monday the Morton Trust Company has been exchanging definitive engraved securities for certificates of deposit for the 6 and 4 per cent bonds and the preferred and common stocks of the American Tobacco Company. Bonds are issued in coupon form of $1,000 each and in registered form in denominations of $50, $100, $500, $1,000, $5,000, $10,000, $50,000, and $100,000. The dividend of 1½ per cent declared by the American Tobacco Company on its 6 per cent preferred stock, payable to stockholders of record as of December 31 are also being distributed by the trust company.

Special Inspectors Hoadley and O'Neil visited the steamship Niagara on her arrival from Havana last week and seized 275 cigars which were secreted in the wainscotting of the forecastle, and which were of a variety which would be worth 15 or 20 cents apiece in the retail trade. The same inspectors seized 600 cigars on board the steamship Olinda from Cuba. These were done up in twenty-four packages and were secreted under the boilers of the vessel.

Another seizure of 400 cigars and 25 packages of cigarettes was made by officers from the Surveyor's office. The merchandise was found on the steamship Morro Castle, from Havana, and was in charge of the fireman. Each package contained 16 cigarettes.

Leaf tobacco men along Water street report a healthy activity despite the fact that most of the dealers and manufacturers are busily engaged taking inventories of stock, which for January are said to be unusually small.

In domestic stock the leaf in greatest demand is 1903 Pennsylvania broad leaf. For fillers there is a brisk demand for 1903 Zimmer Spanish and for binders 1903 Wisconsin Havana seed.

A few lots of 1904 Connecticut Havana seed have appeared on the market and have shown up handsomely but prices rule high. In Sumatra a fair business is doing with a prospect of increase.

The Convention of the Cigar Dealers' Association of America, now in session in Chicago, opened Monday and closes today (Wednesday). Robt. E. Lane, President of the Association, was unavoidably absent but sent an interesting annual report to be read before the convention.

E. W. May.

RESUME OF THE YEAR.

J. B. Moos, of Chicago, Sums Up 1904 in the Trade.

Chicago, Jan. 9, 1905.

J. B. Moos, of J. & B. Moos, one of the best known firms in this city, makes the following interesting general comment on the year in the trade:

"Despite the fears prevailing a year ago, that the year 1904 would be marked by a further decline in business activity, the cigar and tobacco trade has had a prosperous year. Manufacturers found a steady, improving demand, and at the close of the year they found great difficulty in filling their orders. Unionism in the cigar and tobacco industry has been on the decline, and although a strong effort has been made to get the 'closed shop,' but few factories of any importance are now operated under union regulations.

"The increasing prosperity of the country has had a marked effect on the growing demand for the better grades of cigars, and not only have the manufacturers of clear Havana cigars increased in number throughout the country, but the manufacturers of the leading well known brands have all largely increased their output. Another well-defined change has been the growing discrimination on the part of smokers of 5-cent cigars.

"The consumption of smoking and chewing tobacco has largely increased, and this increase has been chiefly on the old-established brands. Little success has been attained in the introduction of new lines.

"Owing to the increase in the cost of leaf, prices of smoking and chewing tobaccos were generally advanced about 10 per cent early in the year, and there have been no price changes of consequence since.

"The increased consumption of high-grade cigarettes is still a marked feature of the trade, and the granulated tobaccos used by the consumer for rolling cigarettes also show a decided increase.

"The cigar and tobacco trade has no reason to doubt continued prosperity in all its branches during the coming year."

GEO. R. GROSS & SON SELL OUT TO ROBT. L. FEE.

Geo. R. Gross & Son, one of the oldest cigar houses in Detroit, sold out last week to Robert L. Fee, and the business will henceforth be conducted at the same address, 209 Jefferson avenue, by the Robert L. Fee Company, which will devote its attention to the wholesale trade in the Southwest.

Geo. R. Gross & Son is well remembered by the older Detroiters, and at one time the firm occupied a high position in the local cigar trade. The Ives bank failure three years ago started the firm's financial difficulties, and the loss sustained at that time was never made up. Recently a chattel mortgage was placed on the company's stock to secure creditors, and yesterday negotiations were closed by Mr. Fee.

GOVERNMENT WANTS EXPERTS.

Tobacco Examiners for Service at Various Ports of Entry.

Tobacco experts in the East and Middle West will have a chance to work for Uncle Sam if they care to. The Treasury Department is having difficulty in getting expert tobacco examiners for service at the various ports of entry, and civil service examinations are being conducted without a great deal of success. The position pays $2,000 a year.

A week or so ago the Civil Service Commission certified the names of half a dozen men who had successfully passed the examination required of applicants for these places, but upon investigation Secretary Shaw learned that not one of them knew the difference between a hand stem of natural leaf and a package of fine cut. He, therefore, refused to place them on the roll. The Civil Service Commission will hold another examination in Chicago in a short time.

PHILADELPHIA, JAN. 11, 1905.

THE ANNUAL CONVENTION OF THE C. D. A. OF A.

The Cigar Dealers' Association of America has been in session in Chicago during the early part of this week, and the enthusiasm and importance of the gathering is significant of the progress of the independent movement throughout the country.

The national body is represented by a local in nearly every large city in the eastern half of the United States, and though the local association in Philadelphia has, for some reason not given, seen fit to remain outside the national association, it is working in the same cause and toward the same object.

The convention showed that the association is in a healthy, progressing condition, one which bids fair for its future accomplishments, but the address of President Robert E. Lane, which was read before the meeting and which is printed in full in another column, presented pertinent reasons why more has not been accomplished than actually has. Mr. Lane said:

> It is my opinion that we should depend upon ourselves even more than we have in the past; we are strong in numbers, influence and knowledge of our business, and should not lean on others and expect them to fight our battles, or even supply us with ammunition.

Later, he said:

> The interest relaxed in certain local branches is to be regretted, and while the officers should not be hastily blamed, they must to some extent be criticised, and must regard themselves as servants of the organization, and not as masters. I feel that the lack of frequent meetings is the main cause of apathy.

This last sentence is particularly a keynote. No dealer who has the right spirit can feel that the time he gives to his association is a sacrifice. Neither should he waste time in the belief that someone else will be glad to do what he is unwilling to do himself. As Mr. Lane puts it, "Unity should be the watchword impressed deeply upon the mind and heart of every member," and every member should make it a point to get out to every meeting, if only to swap cigars with the man he sits next to.

PLANT 'BACCY INSTEAD OF COTTON.

There are a lot of people who console the cotton grower who has managed to go broke on his industry, with the admonition to "go plant tobacco." There are several things readily to be thought of which are easier to cultivate with good returns than tobacco, but there are quite a number of instances on record where cotton soil has responded nobly to tobacco seed, and there may be something worth regarding in this oft-repeated tip, after all.

It must be remembered, however, that the Southern tobacco growers made a great clamor lately that they have been raising crops at a dead loss on account of a monopoly in the buying. The same sort of a complaint has come from out Wisconsin way, and the Pennsylvania crop went considerably to the bad this year, so that the farmers wont be able to pay off very many mortgages. Like wise, the Connecticut farmers were in the dumps a year ago, and while they seem disposed to make up for it by the prices on 1904, the same thing may happen next year.

Still, tobacco growing is found to be a congenial occupation by many, and if a farmer must go broke, he might as well as not, do it on something new. At any rate, the soil gets a rest on cotton.

Tobacco is now raised in twenty-six States, covering New England, the South and the Middle West. Of these, Virginia North and South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee and Kentucky produce an average of 75 per cent of the total crop. It is a Southern industry, and though tobacco is an arbitrary plant, it has been proved that it can adapt itself to almost any section of the South.

Cotton farmers down in Texas, who have tried switching their crops, have made out very well considering, and there seems no vital reason why the same thing can't be done through other sections of the South.

SOME tobacco manufacturers may soon find themselves in the meshes of the pure food law if they don't watch out. At Los Angeles the city chemist tried to excuse himself from examination under the pure food law, of campaign cigars, on the ground that they were not food. But the protestants countered by claiming that cabbage is a food if tobacco is not, and that to place a tobacco wrapper around a roll of cabbage leaves and sell the result to candidates for campaign purposes ought to be made a violation of pure food ordinances.

Philadelphia Tobacco Trade.

To Permit Sunday Cigar Sales.

Every magistrate in Philadelphia has signed a petition which will be presented to the present Legislature asking for the passing of the bill which will be attached, to permit the sale on Sunday of non-intoxicating drinks, tobacco and cigars, certain articles of food and newspapers. The bill, which is a result of the peculiar activities of the Philadelphia Sabbath Association provides that—

"Hereafter it shall be lawful to sell drugs, medicines, soda and mineral water and other harmless nonintoxicating drinks, bread, oyster, cakes, pastry, ice cream, candy, milk, fruit, cigars and tobacco, to prepare, print and sell newspapers on the first day of the week, commonly called Sunday.

"Provided, That nothing herein contained shall be construed to allow the sale of any nonintoxicant or other drinks, in any saloon, inn or tavern licensed by law for the sale of intoxicating beverages."

October Revenue Returns.

The returns from the Internal Revenue Collector's office for the First District of Pennsylvania, for the month of December, consist of the following figures:

Cigars at $3 per M.	$150,349.20
" at 54c. "	46.98
Cigarettes at $1.08 per M.	4,039.74
Cigarettes at 54c. "	82.08
Manuf'd Tob. at 6c per lb	8,475.63
Snuff stamps at 6c per lb	21,388.02

Fred W. Hoch, of Fred W. Hoch & Co., of Columbia avenue, has named the new member of his family Anita, which is Mrs. Hoch's name. The firm also has a popular cigar label of that name.

With Manufacturers and Jobbers.

New Factory in Philadelphia.

It was stated this week by a well known local retailer, who said he had been given the information in confidence, and could not divulge the details, that a big factory will be built in Philadelphia this spring which will manufacture a complete line of cigars. The plant will be operated by a firm which will be organized for the purpose, one of the members of which is declared to be a man already identified with the trade in this city.

Sig. C. Mayer & Co., the new firm of manufacturers at 417 Locust street, is starting the new year with a great many orders in hand for cigars. The company has the brightest prospects, as their brands have made a decided hit on the market. Mr. Mayer is about to leave on a trip South to push Sig. C. Mayer & Co.'s Verybest, George M. Dallas and Sigwado, 5-cent cigars, and El Morento, a 10-cent brand. During his absence George J. Watson will have charge of the office.

William H. Banton, jobber at 315 South Fourth street, is having a very large run on his own brand, Pine Apple Cut Plug, which Mr. Banton says has made a better hit than anything else he has ever handled.

D. W. Glover, Western representative for Vetterlein Bros., paid a short visit to the Philadelphia office last week, and has again returned to the West. Mr. Glover says that everything points to a splendid business year in his section. Vetterlein Bros. are still engaged with their inventory and balancing of their books.

F. B. Robertson, who has a depot for independent goods at 1004 Ridge avenue, suffered at the hands of burglars on Monday night for the fifth time since the genial Match It representative has been located in Philadelphia. Mr. Robertson figures out that he has lost about $20 from the cash register, 500 cigars and 1,000 cigarettes. Two other business places in the neighborhood were also robbed on the same night. Mr. Robertson has recently moved to the above address from 1133 Ridge avenue, and burglars entered the other establishment on four separate occasions. The police were put on the case, but it is doubtful if the thieves will be caught.

Lester Newburger, of Stewart, Newburger & Co., will shortly leave on a business trip through the South, and at about the same time another of the firm's salesmen will leave for his regular trip.

C. C. Rosenberg, of the El Provedo Co., left for Cuba at noon yesterday, and after transacting his business in Havana will visit the firm's Florida factory to see that everything is in fine working order.

Roy Valentine, of A. S. Valentine & Son, is South on a well-earned pleasure trip. The business done by this house last year was so gratifying that Mr. Valentine thought he had a little rest coming to him.

After being brought together for the annual banquet given by the Theobald & Oppenheimer Co., at the Bourse last week, the firm's salesmen from far and wide have all dispersed to their respective territories and are prepared to jump into the New Year's work. E. D. Marshall has left for San Francisco where he will push the William Penn, Royal Lancers and the La Toco along the Pacific coast; W. S. Dennis has returned to St. Paul, John Bain is about starting for St. Louis: Ramon Fernandez, superintendent of the Tampa factory, has gone South, John T. Dee left for Chicago yesterday and Emory Reynolds went to Boston on Monday. All the Theobald & Oppenheimer factories which were closed down to permit the taking account of stock, have resumed work on full time, and the books of the Company show the best year it has ever had.

Last week was another pretty good one with the retailers and the slumpy condition of the market seems so much a thing of the past now that many dealers are commencing to make optimistic predictions about the spring trade. There never is any rush early in January, but last week showed a good, steady demand and the majority of Chestnut and Market street dealers expressed themselves as satisfied.

One man who is manager of one of the most important stores along Chestnut street, and who was extremely gloomy a few weeks ago, was in good spirits this week and expects to remain so. This man has been in the trade for years, and his former worriment was owing to the fact that the extreme stagnation of the market was seemingly unexplainable. He now believes that trade has fully recovered its natural tone and will remain good through the spring.

Many Porto Rican Brands On the Market.

Porto Rican cigars of varied brands and prices are to be seen prominently displayed in a good proportion of the retail stores, and some dealers declare that the demand is an increasing one. These, however, are dealers who make more or less effort to push this particular product, and display it in a way to tempt the casual consumer to buy it.

It is said that a good percentage of these experiments result in a regular customer on the line. On the contrary other dealers say that they have not had much demand for the Porto Rican smokes and that what inquiry there is, is decreasing.

One dealer who has a good average class of customers declared that he did not see how the ordinary cigar from the Philippines could possibly win out over a domestic cigar.

"We wouldn't consider for a moment," said he, "handling any cigar made in Porto Rico, which was made to sell at more than $5 per hundred for it is very hard to get more than that for them. I have smoked them enough to make a fair test, and to me its like eating soup without salt. The leaf seems coarse to me and there is no distinct flavor. Of course the high grade brands are better but they aren't the kind usually bought. In spite of what some dealers say, I don't believe there will be any great demand or even one large enough seriously to hurt the domestic cigar because I don't think the cigar can compete on its own merits, even when it is sold at low price."

Slot Machines Captured.

A number of Philadelphia dealers, appreciating the extra sales which slot machines make for them, have been operating them in a quiet way for some months. The ubiquitous Mr. Gibboney got wind of the fact some ago and in connection with several constables and a few of the Law and Order agents, raided a number of cigar stores and pool rooms for slot machines Saturday night and captured 17 of them. On Tuesday he again descended upon unwary dealers and captured 15 more.

The result of the raids was as follows: Cigar store, Tenth street, south of Walnut, two machines. While at work the raiders discovered a poker room in full blast in the basement, and captured $2, the receipts for the house of the game. The players bolted with several hundred dollars, the stakes that were exposed on the table. At the cigar store on Sixth street near Chestnut three machines were taken, and one machine was confiscated in a cigar store on Arch street near Third.

Two machines were found in a cigar store on Second street near Buttonwood; while two were captured in a cigar store on Fairmount avenue near Fourth street; one in another cigar store on North Twelfth street above Race; two in a store on Tenth street above Spruce, and three in a pool room at the corner of Fairmount avenue and Eighteenth street.

Tuesday's machines were confiscated at the following places: Cigar store, Ridge avenue and Mount Vernon street, one machine; Tenth and Ogden streets, one; one each at Cumberland street near Tenth, Germantown avenue above Cumberland street, Susquehanna avenue near Fourth street, Dauphin street and Germantown avenue; four on Kensington avenue above Cambria street; one on Kensington avenue above Lehigh avenue; two on Kensington avenue near Somerset street, and one on Buttonwood street near eighth.

The machines made a full wagonload, and at different points of the raid large crowds witnessed the raiding. Mr. Gibboney says the city is again full of these gambling devices and that he will continue to drive them out.

H. Jackson is opening a new retail cigar store at 160 North Ninth street and if the present arrangements go through, will have everything in readiness for consumers tomorrow morning. The new store will carry a full line of popular brands.

The popular proprietor of the Moore cigar shops is confined to his home, at present, suffering from an attack of grip, which malady has laid quite a number of the trade low lately.

Hancock & Adams, Seventh and Chestnut streets, are making a handsome window display of the Lyric Theatre brand which sells for 5 cents straight.

N. W. Young, who is now conducting the store at Third and Chestnut streets, which was recently owned by Goldsmith & Co., is having quite a run on the John Hay 10 cent cigar and Rugby 5 cent brand.

Among the salesmen who got around among the dealers this week were Geo. Weiss, of the National Cuba Co., and Mr. Strauss, of Bustillo Bros. & Diaz.

Leaf Dealers' Jottings.

Geo. Burghard, has just received a large shipment of 1903 Wisconsin Havana seed binders for which there is already a fair demand.

The Amsterdam Sumatra Co., which is one of the younger leaf firms on Third street, is starting the year with a good demand for both Havana and Sumatra.

The travelling representatives of Julius Hirschberg & Bro. will start out in a few days through their respective territories. This firm is perfectly satisfied with the business done last year and said that it always would be, with the same returns. The new year is opening up with a good demand.

George W. Newman, than whom there is no better known man in the leaf trade, received a handsome badge of honor on Monday night to commemorate his retirement as Commander of the George C. Meade Post No. 1, in which office he served during 1904. The decoration is in the form of the regular G. A. R. badge but is of gold and much handsomer. On the back of the pendant is an engraved record of the presentation and on the front is the figure "1" set with seven diamonds.

L. P. Kimmig, of L. P. Kimmig & Co., is in Connecticut buying tobacco for his firm. Mr. Kimmig also made a New England trip last week and secured a good lot of the new crop of Connecticut wrapper and filler which he says is of fine quality, but is commanding very high prices.

Frank Dominguez, who is in Cuba buying for E. A. Calves & Co., writes that he is considerably disgusted with the prospects on the present crop. Mr. Dominguez purposely arrived on the field early in order to secure the run of the market, but declares that he may not be able to get as many as 400 bales of Remedios of good quality. Prices are fully 50 per cent higher than last year and the tobacco no better if as good. That being the case it is scarcely a paying proposition to lay in a very heavy stock now until some indications of what the next crop will be are obtained.

1905 WILL BE GOOD IN OHIO.

Manufacturers Say That Prospects for Coming Year are of the Best.

Cincinnati, O., Jan. 9.

Walter J. Friedlander, proprietor of the Day and Night Tobacco Company, in an interview with The Tobacco World correspondent, said: "All the independent manufacturers that I have come in contact with expect the year 1905 to be a banner one, inasmuch as systematic steps have been taken to put a stop to certain phases of the trust's methods. The chief evil of the business is the giving away of all kinds of presents."

It is reported that the telephone company is working up cases against a number of prominent down town cigarists, who, it is alleged, have been allowing customers to use their phones, which have not the slot arrangement, instead of referring them to the pay stations.

F. J. McCormick, president of the Gem City Tobacco Company, when asked his views on the outlook for this year, replied: "Prospects are exceedingly bright, and we anticipate a bigger business than last year."

It is semi-officially reported that Cincinnati capitalists have subscribed for $400,000 worth of capital stock in the Burley Tobacco Growers' Association. President W. B. Hawkins, who was here last week, did not affirm or deny the story.

CIGAR DEALERS' ASSO. OF AMERICA IN ANNUAL SESSION

Col. M. W. Diffley is Elected President and Other Officers are Chosen. Resolutions Commending President Lane, Protesting Against Philippine Tariff Cut, Etc., Adopted.

[By wire to The Tobacco World.]

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 10.

The Cigar Dealers' Association of America met at the Sherman House in this city today in annual session. The President of the Association, Robert E. Lane, of New York, was unable to be present, and the chair was taken by Vice-President Holton. The most important business transacted at the session was the annual election of officers which resulted as follows: M. W. Diffley, president; Robert E. Lane, New York, first vice president; R. G. Fisher, Minneapolis, second vice-president; Henry Leopold, Chicago, secretary; Jacob Berolzheim, Chicago, treasurer.

Mr. Lane's name was first proposed by the nominating committee for reelection as president, but was withdrawn by Sidney J. Freeman, of New York, obeying instructions from Mr. Lane, who felt that he would be unable to occupy the chief office for another year. The following board of directors was elected:

Robert E. Lane, Sidney J. Freeman, T. J. Donigan, W. W. St. John, Fred B. Aschner, of New York; Henry Leopold, Jacob Berolzheim, Albert Breitung, Otto Schraeder, Edward Holman, Jacob Benner, O. B. Eisendrath, J. J. Dolan, Joseph L. Freidman, of Chicago; R. J. Fischer, of Minneapolis, and E. L. Smith, of Grand Rapids.

The convention opened with a large representation of delegates on hand who were welcomed by Albert Breitung, who expressed his gratification at the goodly attendance and hoped that all present would hear something of benefit to take back to their various locals.

Sidney J. Freeman, of the New York Association, responded to the address of welcome and read the annual report of President Lane. Immediately following this the following committees were appointed: Credentials, Mr. Breitung, Chicago, and Mr. Freeman, New York; constitution and by-laws, Henry Leopold, Chicago, and E. L. Smith, Grand Rapids; resolutions, I. Latzar, Ed. Kolman, Joseph A. Moos and Col. Diffley, of Chicago; nominations, Messrs. Dolan and Leopold, of Chicago, and G. L. Hutchinson, of Minneapolis.

These committees retired for conferences and the convention conducted an open discussion on association stamps. Testimony was given by a large number of the delegates as to the undoubted benefit resulting from the use of the association brand and it was decided that this end of the work would be pushed more vigorously during the coming year.

The committee on credentials here reported that fifteen cities were represented by delegates, with sufficient proxies to amount to representations from thirty-four cities.

After some discussion resolutions were unanimously adopted commending President Roosevelt for his efforts to check the trusts and to secure enlarged powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission. The general opinion of the convention seemed to be that the President is willing to do everything in his power to help along the independent movement, and has already shown such disposition by a number of his actions. A resolution was also adopted demanding the passage of the Hearst bill, and one commending the able administration of President Lane.

Arrangements were made for a strong protest to be forwarded to President Roosevelt and Congress against any reduction whatever of the present tariff rates on cigars and tobaccos from the Philippine Islands.

Secretary Henry Leopold reported that the association's liabilities were $2,800 at the first of last year, and had not only been wiped out, but there was a good balance on hand. He said that from the time of Secretary Case's resignation last year, the expenses were reduced from $400 to less than $100 per month.

After a brief consideration of the matter, it was decided to make no change in the constitution and by-laws.

The board of directors of the National Association met this afternoon and appointed the following standing committees:

Executive committee—President, M. W. Diffley; J. J. Dolan, Albert Breitung, Henry Leopold, Otto Schrader, all of Chicago. Finance committee—C. D. Alschul, Jacob Benner, Edward Kolman, Chicago; T. J. Donigan, Sidney J. Freeman, New York; Joseph L. Friedman, Chicago. Board of trustees—Albert Breitung, Henry Leopold, J. J. Dolan, all of Chicago.

Ways and means were discussed to interest more manufacturers and dealers in the association stamp, and during the coming year their sale will be pushed under President Diffley's direction with renewed vigor.

President Lane's report, which was read by Mr. Freeman, was very interesting and contained many pertinent suggestions. It is as follows:

To the officers and members of the Cigar Dealers' Association of America, in convention assembled:

Gentlemen—Owing to the circumstances, over which I have no control, I regret that I can not be with you on the occasion of the third anniversary of our association, and although absent in person, you may be assured that I am with you in spirit and good will.

In the past year, as your executive officer, I have endeavored to promote harmony and loyalty in our association; neither praise or censure has influenced me to forget that harmony, the support of all institutions, must prevail in our ranks, that we may, when circumstances demand, present an unbroken front to our adversaries.

The reason that our efforts in carrying out the objects of our organization have not been crowned with greater success is known to you all.

That we are again free from debt is, I trust, a source of gratification to every member, as it certainly is to me.

As your executive, it is my pleasure to announce that our existence has not been in vain. We are now recognized as a power in the land, and so considered by every allied trade and industry, as well as by the highest public officials; and although we have been defeated in Congress in some cherished aims, we must not give up the fight. There is still hope, especially in the ultimate passage of a measure similar to the Otjen Tawney bill, which is to be introduced in Congress in the immediate future.

That we assisted, in a great degree, in securing the modification of the import stamp, must be considered as a decided victory for our association, and this was the first time that the trust has ever been defeated when seeking favors from the Government.

As your representative, I have also borne a part in the agitation against the reduction of the tariff on cigar imports from the Philippines, an agitation which we trust will prevent the American cigar industry being brought into competition with the coolie labor of the Orient.

Notwithstanding the activity of the trust, and its retail auxiliary, our members seem to have prospered as though oppression had instilled them with new life and ambition, and forced them to become, through their own exertions, more prosperous and successful merchants, rather than serfs to the whims and caprices of the trust, as that corporation desired.

It is my opinion that we should depend upon ourselves even more than we have in the past; we are strong in numbers, influence and knowledge of our business, and should not lean upon others and expect them to fight our battles, or even supply us with ammunition. Let us be like the sturdy oak, rather than the clinging ivy. Let us be men, furnish the funds, and carry on the war of agitation, education and publicity throughout the land.

Unity should be the watch-word impressed deeply upon the mind and heart of every member.

The allied trades have wearied of supporting the association, since the individual dealers have not made the most of their opportunities in the past. This matter, I trust, will be given earnest consideration at this convention, and it is earnestly hoped that some steps may be taken to continue our work through our own exertions.

The interest relaxed in certain local branches is to be regretted, and while the officers should not be hastily blamed, they must, to some extent, be criticized, and must bear this criticism as a part of their official burden, as they must regard themselves as servants of the organization, and not as masters. I feel that the lack of frequent meetings is the main cause of apathy.

Our sole revenue during the past year has been from the sale of the association stamps. That these have not been more generally used by independent manufacturers is due in a great measure to the fact that their purpose is not adequately appreciated by most of those who should be most deeply and sincerely interested in the success of our movement.

As your president, I desire to express my utmost confidence, which I believe is fully shared by every member of our organization as well as by the independent dealers, in the devotion of our Executive Committee to the cause which our association represents.

The cost has never been too great, the distance too far nor the time too precious for me, as president of the National Association, to assist in organizing or building up local associations; and during the past year, as your executive, I have always stood ready to aid or assist in every manner possible in the upbuilding of such local organizations.

In conclusion, I desire to congratulate the members of the association on the fact that while a few short years ago the pathway of the independent dealers and manufacturers seemed beset with difficulties, there is to-day a movement well-nigh world-wide in its scope to correct the abuses of the tobacco trust.

Practically every civilized nation is now moving against this giant monopoly.

In England, in Australia, in Canada, in Germany, in Austria, in Japan, in Italy, in Spain and in Cuba, as well as in the South American republics, steps have either already been taken, or are now under way, to check the further encroachments of this great, soulless trust, which has sought to capture the tobacco trade of the universe.

We, the pioneers of this movement, have every reason to feel that the people will not be content to long remain dormant in this endeavor to secure for every member of the trade the right to enjoy the liberty guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States of America.

Wishing the association every prosperity in the years to come, and trusting that my successor may enjoy the same loyal support that has been accorded my administration, I remain, Yours sincerely,
Robert E. Lane.

Good to Keep Good Cigars Good

Your Jobber will give you a Certificate covering small quantities, and when you accumulate Certificates showing purchases of 6,000 CREMO EXPORT Cigars, you will be entitled to one of these handsome Humidors free. :: ::

Size, 30 in. long, 22 in. wide, 25 in. high. Weight, 60 lbs.

THE above illustration is an exact representation of the Humidor in which Cremo Export Cigars are packed and shipped by the manufacturer. This Humidor holds 6,000 Cremo Export Cigars in boxes containing 100 cigars each. It is metal lined, metal covered, with strong brass lock, and heavy brass drop handles and brass trimmings, with moistener pad in top of lid, ventilator in each end, and attractively decorated in imitation cedar wood.

Each humidor is shipped in a wood case to protect it from being scratched or damaged in transit.

The purpose of the Humidor is to protect the cigars from the deteriorating effects of changes in temperature, and to preserve them in the same good order and condition in which they leave the factory. This it does perfectly for any length of time in any climate on the globe, until the last box is used.

Cremo Export Cigars are made only in Londres, which means a straight cigar, being practically the same size from end to end. This shape is more generally smoked than any other, the world over, which fact is a pretty convincing proof that it is the most popular as well as the most desirable shape in which cigars can be made.

If you serve your customer with a Cremo Export Cigar out of a Humidor, you give him the best five-cent cigar in the world in the best condition to please him and hold his patronage; if he is pleased with one he will be pleased with every one.

Send your jobber an order for 6,000 Cremo Export Cigars, and he will have them shipped to you direct from the factory in the Humidor, freight paid, and billed as 5,500, at $35.00 per thousand.

The CREMO CIGAR is by several times THE LARGEST SELLER IN THE WORLD.

ASK YOURSELF WHY?

TRADE QUIETER IN BOSTON.

American Tobacco Co. Will Pack No More Coupons for Massachusetts.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 8.

Trade with the retailers has quieted down considerably since the holidays. The sales of cigars by the box to the holiday buyers fell off, but the sales of pipes increased, there being plenty of calls for fine meerschaums.

The cigar manufacturers have started in working again, and the majority of drummers have started out on their routes, but the orders they are sending in show trade to be quiet, especially in the nearby towns.

The American Tobacco Co. caused considerable gossip this week by sending to both jobbers and retailers the following circular:

January 3d, 1905.

Several customers in Massachusetts have requested that we do not pack coupons in our tobaccos or cigarettes intended for shipment into Massachusetts. In deference to this desire, and because of the obvious inconveniences that would be incident to packing coupons in goods intended for some customers and leaving them out of goods intended for other customers, we have concluded to cease packing coupons into any of our tobaccos or cigarettes hereafter shipped into the State of Massachusetts. This, of course, does not apply to shipments made into the State of Massachusetts by or for customers whose places of business are outside of that State.

Chas. Stewart has been spending the week here doing some good work on Kismet, Brandy and Clawhammer plug tobaccos manufactured by Strater Bros.' Tobacco Co., Louisville, Ky.

S. M. Frank, of S. M. Frank & Co., pipe manufacturers, New York, and H. Burger, representing the Manhattan Briar Pipe Co., New York, were both here calling on the trade.

Postal cards have been received from Maurice Bondy announcing that he will call on the trade in a few days' time.

The wife of Charles L. Polep, the Hanover street tobacconist, has presented him with a bouncing baby boy. The event was celebrated by a grand spread on Thursday, which affair was attended by many tobacco men, among whom were Joe Manning, John McGreenery, Louis Jeselsohn, B. M. Wollenberg and S. A. Frank, L. Miller & Sons' Northeast representative.

N. Alfowich, of Alfowich Bros., spent the holidays visiting friends in New York.

L. Miller & Sons are doing good work here on their Kozy 2½ ounce package of cut plug, the sales of which are steadily increasing.

Geo. Harris & Co. are now operating the cigar store at the corner of Howard and Court streets, formerly occupied by the Goodwin Sisters.

The Mentor Co. has launched a new 10c Turkish cigarette on the market called Turkish Naturals.

H. White has purchased the cigar store at 1279 Tremont street, formerly owned by S. B. Klein.

J. Gordon, who operates a very fine cigar store opposite the Columbia Music Hall, has a fine window display this week of El Cafe and Grumbler cigars.

The Marlboro Cigar Co. is pushing Stahl's Smokers in every cigar store possible.

YORK WILL HAVE A GOOD YEAR.

What the Manufacturers Are Doing in this Busy Section.

York, Pa., Jan. 9.

The new year seems to be starting in surprisingly well with our local manufacturers, a large majority having opened for business again on Tuesday last.

A recent distribution of cigars said to have been made by prisoners in the York County Jail aroused the suspicions of the Internal Revenue officials and resulted in a visit to that institution last week by Superintendent Alexander, Assistant Superintendent Farrar, of Philadelphia, and Deputy Collector Liggett, of York.

Beyond the fact that large quantities of tobacco said to have been sent to the prisoners by their friends were found, nothing was developed. It is not yet known whether or not cigars were made from tobacco thus secured and sold in jail.

Samuel A. Stump, a former Red Lion cigar manufacturer, who is charged with forgery, will not be tried at this term of Court by mutual consent of counsel on both sides, the case having been postponed until the April term. The Grand Jury has found three indictments against the accused.

The new cigar factory being erected by M. Meyers is now under way and will be ready for occupancy early in the spring.

A new scrap manufacturing establishment has been organized here by M. Kats & Son, who are located at McKenzie and Howard streets.

The Hanover and McSherrystown manufacturers have opened the new year with excellent prospects.

A. F. Hostetter, of Hanover, reports 1904 to have been the largest year he ever had, and continues to push with old-time vigor the "Stage Favorite," the most popular brand of 5-cent cigars made at this factory, the sales of which are increasing steadily.

The Hanover Variety Works, printers of embossed cigar ribbons, labels and specialties, also had a very excellent year during 1904, and say that the prospects for continued good trade were never so bright as they are at this time.

T. I. Smith & Co., of Centennial, Adams Co., has opened a new union factory at Hanover. The business of the Centennial Cigar Co. has been sold by T. I. Smith to G. F. M. Smith, who will continue the business in the old factory premises. They will not, however, manufacture union-made goods.

H. J. Roth & Co., of McSherrystown, will erect a new factory building on Ninth street, near the Square, early in the spring, which is calculated to give them the much-needed increased facilities.

A. J. Brady & Sons, of McSherrystown, report to the writer this week that orders continue to come in most encouragingly for their "Stephen Crane" and "Robert E. Pattison" brands of 5-cent goods, as well as the "Havana Post" in the 10-cent variety.

The McSherrystown Cigar Co. are planning for the erection of a new cigar factory, to be built early this spring. During the few short months in which they have been engaged in business here they have done remarkably well and have already found it desirable to secure additional factory facilities.

George W. Parr, of Littlestown, is making a very aggressive campaign on his "Fernside" 5-cent cigar, upon which he was awarded a medal at the St. Louis Exposition last summer.

George A. Buddy and James A. Collins, lately trading as the Littlestown Cigar Co., have dissolved partnership. Mr. Buddy will continue business at the old factory building, while Mr. Collins will re-enter the trade on his own behalf at his former factory building in Littlestown. Mr. Buddy, however, has not yet fully decided whether or not he will continue under the old firm name of the Littlestown Cigar Co.

During 1904 H. F. Kohler, cigar manufacturer at Nashville, this county, had the most extensive trade he ever experienced. During the few short years in which he has been located there he has built up a reputation as a cigar manufacturer that will, no doubt, be a source of much benefit for many years to come.

PRIZES FOR WRAPPERS, LOTTERY.

Government So Decides, and Wisconsin Collectors are Up Against It.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 6.

A certain tobacco factory here, which has been conducting a scheme consisting of the awarding of prizes in money to collectors of wrappers, will have to call it off owing to a ruling of the Government that the scheme is a lottery. Many consumers have formed clubs for the purpose of collecting the wrappers, and unless some way is discovered of evading the ruling, they are doomed to disappointment.

According to the scheme as presented at Washington, the company advertised that on a fixed date a sum of money in gold would be given those persons sending forty or more wrappers. The person sending in the largest number of wrappers was promised $300 and the next person $200. Other prizes were offered according to number of wrappers presented.

It is held by the department that the scheme comes under provision of section 2, act of July 1, 1902, because even after the wrappers have been presented there is an element of uncertainty as to what they are worth.

LIBERMAN'S
Latest Suction Machine

Adopted by the Leading Manufacturers.

Palm Rolling Essential to Hand-Work.

THIS IS THE SIMPLEST AND MOST PRACTICAL TOOL yet introduced in connection with Cigar-making. The cutting rollers are so equipped with ball bearings and exterior springs that they only produce enough pressure to cut the leaf, thus maintaining a sharp edge on the die and assuring a perfect, clean cut, superior to hand-work. The circumference of the cutting roller being greater than the length of the die, makes tearing or streaking of the wrapper impossible Then, after the leaf has been cut, a slight depression with the right foot pedal will lower the die even with the table, thus making a perfectly smooth and rigid surface, enabling the operator to Roll with the Full Palm of the Hand, instead of pushing the cigar along with the finger tips.

Changing of the die to any shape, or from right to left, or the reverse, is a very simple matter on this table, and can be done within two minutes time.

These points of merit, coupled with others not mentioned, have won for this table the high standard of excellence maintained to-day, a fact that cannot conscientiously be claimed by any of our competitors.

We stand ready to prove our statement, and all we ask is for the opportunity.

We Think IT WILL PAY YOU to Investigate.

THE WEEK IN CHICAGO.

C. D. A. of A. Directors' Meeting Was a Pleasing Affair.

Chicago, Jan. 7, 1905.

The chief topic of interest in tobacco circles this week is, of course, the National Convention, scheduled for next Tuesday at the Sherman House, and of which a full report is given elsewhere in this issue.

But few business changes are noted thus far this year. Harry Allen, who for many years has been with W. F. Monroe, has resigned and will take charge of the new store of the First National Cigar Stores Company, which will be opened a few weeks hence in the Dearborn street side of the First National Bank Building. He is now at the company's stand in the rotunda of the building getting posted. George Renaud will be his successor with W. F. Monroe.

The directors' meeting of the Chicago branch Cigar Dealers' Association of America took place Wednesday night at the association rooms, at which time the new officers-elect were installed in a manner most creditable and pleasing to all. While the organization lays no claims to being a secret society, it was evident that both Former President Kolman and President-elect Albert Breitung were made to feel that they were victims of no small amount of merriment during the progress of the meeting.

One after another of the members arose, assuming a serious attitude, and criticized the official acts of Former President Kolman. After carrying the joke to a degree almost uncomfortable to that gentleman, a happy termination followed, when President Albert Breitung, in a neat little speech, expressed the true sentiment of the members and presented Mr. Kolman with a handsome gold watch as a token of the high esteem in which his efforts had been regarded.

On the other hand, Mr. Breitung had been generously "jollied" throughout the evening concerning the beautiful bunch of American Beauties that ornamented the table, which he was accused of having placed there in token of his great esteem for himself. This, too, finally proved to be but another expression of the high regard in which incoming President Albert Breitung was held by the members. Mr. Breitung is still enjoying the pleasant aroma of the flowers and has assumed his duties with full assurance of the hearty co-operation of his fellow-workers.

Louis P. Wiser, a well-known South Side cigar dealer, shot himself and then jumped into the lake last Thursday night. He left a note at the store stating that his body would be found at the foot of Fifty-third street, but gave no reason for the deed. He leaves a wife, but no children. His store at 103 Fifty-third street was a favorite resort for the wealthy citizens of his locality, and he had a very excellent trade.

The dealer who won't confess to a holiday trade considerably in excess of that of 1903 is as hard to find as the proverbial needle in the haystack. All lay stress on the increased demand for high-grade goods. While trade of course shows a marked contrast to that of the week preceding Christmas, the year has opened up in a good, healthful way, and everybody in the trade appears to be satisfied.

Colonel James G. Davis, who, with his son Graham, so ably looks after the western interests of Bondy & Lederer, has been elected financial secretary of the Chicago Press Club.

LOBERG.

—L. F. Naftzer, of Wichita, Kan., has purchased the cigar and grocery store of Casey & Garst, for $24,100, and will close it out at once.

INVESTIGATION IN WISCONSIN'S

Trade Says That Government Agents Have Not Begun Yet.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 9.

The trade in this city is still waiting for something definite to come out of the report that President Roosevelt's special appointee to investigate the American Tobacco Company's operations would commence his work in this section. No one can be found in this city who will admit knowing anything definite, and the general opinion is that if the Government's agents are working around here they are going about it in a very quiet way.

Predictions were made by those who are anxious for the investigators to go as far as they like that Wisconsin would be found to be a very fertile field and one from which a gratifying bunch of sensations would be sprung. A daily paper made the following statement: "While no further announcement is made than that Wisconsin is to become the seat of early operations, it can safely be said that the chief point in this State that will be covered will be Milwaukee and Edgerton—Milwaukee as the field for manufacture, wholesaling and retailing; Edgerton as the seat of the tobacco growing industry."

A general canvass of the trade this week brought out a general round of denials that anyone had been approached and these denials bore every appearance of sincerity. A bona fide investigation conducted without fear or favor would undoubtedly cause a big agitation in the Wisconsin tobacco field.

Figures of interest to tobacco growers of Wisconsin are found in the annual report regarding the principal farm crops of the United States.

In a comparative table showing the prices for the different grades of tobacco grown in the United States, Wisconsin products are shown to rank fourth in point of price obtainable, being considerable in excess of the average price received by Ohio growers. While this State produces only the cigar type, used largely for fillers and binders, the quality has steadily increased, as the growers became more experienced, until at the present time Wisconsin tobacco stands well at the head among tobacco producing States, both as regards quality and quantity.

A notable feature of the 1904 tobacco crop, as shown by the table, is the very small percentage of the crop marketed up to December 20. Among the sections producing cigar tobacco the great binder and filler crop of Wisconsin was still hanging on the poles at that date, practically none having been stripped and very little sold.

BURLEY ASSO. MEETS IN SECRET

Get Together in Cincinnati to Make Good Subscriptions Lacking.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Jan. 5.

Between thirty and forty members of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Association, which has been maturing its plans for some months to gain control of the entire burley market in competition with the combine, held a secret meeting in Cincinnati this week. None of the members registered at any of the hotels, and the utmost secrecy was observed. It was stated that the object of the meeting was to make good a few subscriptions that had fallen down and fill out the required amount of half a million dollars.

To the correspondent of the "Tobacco World" President W. B. Hawkins, of Lexington, Ky., said: "I cannot give you the details of the meeting, but you may say that our work will be consummated in a few days, and not until then will the public know what transpired. The members are pledged to secrecy." From other sources, believed to be reliable, it was ascertained that efforts

PRICES TOO HIGH IN LANCASTER.

Lancaster, Pa., Jan. 9, 1905.

There was more activity in the leaf market in this city during the past week than was expected, and a fairly good local trade was done, although no large transactions were reported. The severe storms of the past week have interfered somewhat with the buying of the new crops, but it is believed that a major portion of these crops have already been secured.

The prices are running high and quite a few local packers declare that they will not undertake to buy any goods at the present high mark. Not a little trouble has already been experienced with the new goods. It appears that considerable damage has already developed, owing, it is believed, to the fact that soon after the tobacco was placed in the drying sheds the cold season came on and some of the tobacco was frozen before it was thoroughly cured.

It is known to be a fact that in a number of tobacco sheds water dripped through to the floor, indicating the excess of moisture. Of course, the tobacco that has thus far been received at the packing warehouses was undoubtedly the poorest among the lots, for the reason that the tobacco last put into the sheds, some of which may have been slightly nipped with frost, was the first to be taken down, stripped and brought to the warehouse. It has, however, had a discouraging effect, and some of the packers are feeling ill at ease in consequence.

The exact output in numbers of cigars in this district for the month of December was 59,882,000, which was 908,000 more than during the month of December of 1903, with a total output for the year of 1904 of 775,250,000.

The fitting season among the local leaf packers is now about over, and the changes were less numerous this year than some previous years. E. M. Cohn & Co. have removed, as was stated in these columns some time ago they would, from West James and Prince streets to their old headquarters on Chestnut street near Duke. Cohn's old building is now being occupied by the leaf department of the American Cigar Co.

Kramer & Goldberg are now in full possession of the warehouse adjoining their premises, which was formerly occupied by Cullman Bros. John F. Brimmer has removed from 230 North Queen street to the Baumgardner warehouse. Samuel Sissel has moved into the warehouse just vacated by Brimmer. Charles Tole & Co. have removed from West James and Prince streets to 232 North Queen street.

The tobacco growers in the vicinity of Washington borough are complaining that they have considerable difficulty in getting their tobacco from the poles, owing to the lack of warm rains to moisten it, and for that reason it is likely that some of them will be late in delivering their crops to the warehouses.

A. W. Mentzer, the veteran cigar manufacturer and dealer in general merchandise at Ephrata, has retired from business. Mr. Mentzer has had a long, useful and successful career, extending over a period of 49 years. The business, however, will be continued by his three sons—viz., Dr. J. F., H. S. and J. G. Mentzer, who have for many years associated with their father in business. They will continue under the old firm name of A. W. Mentzer & Sons.

READING SHOWS UP WELL.

Output Larger Last Year, and Manufacturers are Still Busy.

Reading, Pa., Jan. 9.

Reading is justly proud of its fine showing in the cigar output during 1904. The figures for the year for this division of the First district were 162,000,000, as compared with 143,000,000 during 1903, an increase of 19,000,000.

There have been few business changes made here at the first of the year.

The Fleck Cigar Co., Ltd., of this city, has contracted for the manufacture of a large line of goods for Fleck & Co., cigar distributors at Philadelphia, which is regarded as a very desirable line of business.

H. Rindskopf has succeeded the American Leaf Tobacco Co., at Fifth and Washington streets, Reading, and has removed his entire business to that address. Mr. Rindskopf commenced business here a little more than a year ago, and has made remarkably good progress.

The cigar manufacturing firm of Shively, Miller & Co., at Pottstown, is dissolving, Messrs. W. H. Sassaman and C. F. Shively retiring from the firm. Mr. George Miller, the senior member of the firm, will continue the business at the old stand. He also retains the services of Mr. Jacobs, who has for many years been the firm's bookkeeper and confidential man. In addition to the manufacture of cigars, the company will also engage more extensively in the manufacture of scrap tobacco.

Roesh Bros. report business very good. They boast of a distinction enjoyed by but few—that their "Indian Ax" 5-cent cigar is sold in every cigar store, drug store, restaurant and news stand in and about Pottstown. Their "Bronze Medal" 10-cent cigar is fast getting to be a leader in Jersey City and New York.

A. Keely & Son, of Phoenixville, report that the outlook for this year is very good, and that the jobbing trade is holding out nicely.

De Wan Bros., cigar manufacturers, will this week resume active operations in the marketing of their "Overholt" 5-cent cigars and say they see good prospects ahead.

Leaf Tobacco Markets.

CONNECTICUT VALLEY

The storm of last week enabled the farmers to get the most of their tobacco from the poles, and the stripping is well along We can see no reason now for the assorting shops to shut down, at least, for the want of tobacco to assort, provided the buyers and growers can come to an agreement as to the amount of money that will be required to move the crop. If the price should rule high it will take a longer time to buy up the crop and require a deal more haggling.

Our correspondents write:

Westfield, Ct.: "The rain and fog of this week enabled farmers to take down some of their tobacco, although it was not quite warm enough to get into first-class shape. But it could be handled very well. No sales to report as yet."

South Deerfield, Mass.: "It is reported that Charles Williams & Son have sold their crop in the bundle at private terms, about ten acres."

West Suffield, Ct.: "Leading tobacco growers here have formed a society for the improvement of the tobacco and other farming industries. The idea is to learn and introduce the best methods of cultivation, particularly of tobacco, for the excellence of which this district already has a good reputation."

East Hartford, Ct.: "Growers have been making the most of the damp spell and have been hustling about taking down the rest of their crops. Hired help is at a premium for this work. Nearly the whole crop is now down."

New Milford, Ct.: "Farmers have been hindered in getting down the tobacco by the scarcity of help and several hired women to do a part of the work. The crop is now practically all down."

Windsor, Ct.: "The crop is now ready for stripping and sorting, thanks to the wet spell. Some large growers worked all night."—Amer. Cultivator.

EDGERTON, WIS.

Interest now is centered largely in the new crop which the growers are hurriedly preparing for market. Another season of casing weather during the week has afforded an opportunity of removing the leaf from the curing sheds and stripping is being pushed as rapidly as possible in the country districts. Now that the great bulk of the crop is down and in condition for a critical examination buyers are venturing out again and a resumption of the buying movement is confidently expected.

A few deliveries have commenced to arrive at the warehouses and enough is already stripped to start warehouses handling at several market points the coming week, and others will follow shortly, Packers who have contracts booked for large acreage are anxious to get the assorting business under way. The United Cigar Manufacturers will begin handling the crop at Edgerton, Viola and Postage the coming week.

Old leaf is still being vigorously hunted in country hands and the movement shows but little dimunition, though the remnants left are continually being reduced, with a prospect that it will be lifted at low prices. Mrs. Lee sold 24cs '03 at 5. 2 and 1c.

Reports coming from the western portion of the State are that growers were not so fortunate in getting down as large a portion of the hanging crop last week as in this locality.

Buyers' stocks, Jan. 1, 293 hhds; Sellers' stocks, 756 hhds.

There were no transactions during Christmas week. Our receipts for two weeks were 11 hhds, offerings this week 17 hhds, sales 13 hhds. Market unchanged. We have had one rainy spell which enabled tobacco to be taken down in the barns but it turned off cold, and but little stripping has been done.

The actions of the Dark Tobacco District Planters Protection Association has greatly restricted sales of loose crops, but sales have been made here and there. The Association is now contracting with dealers to prize the crop and propose holding it in that form until it realizes its ideas as to prices. The preparation of leaf for the British markets promises not to be large, and prices paid for loose crops are far above the parity of the prices in these markets for strips and dried leaf.

For Old Tobacco, we quote:

Low Lugs	$3.50	to	$3.75
Common Lugs	3.75	to	4.00
Medium Lugs	4.00	to	4.25
Good Lugs	4.25	to	4.75

Common Leaf	5.75	to	6.75

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED BY C. D. OF A.

Chicago, Jan. 13.

There is a feeling of much satisfaction at the headquarters of the Cigar Dealers' Association of America as a result of the annual convention held during the first part of the week, as the enthusiasm shown is taken as indicative of the present vigor of the association.

Following are the resolutions in full, which, as stated in last Wednesday's paper, were recommended by the committee on resolutions and adopted by the association protesting against the proposed Philippine tariff cut:

Whereas, Secretary Taft is reported to be anxious to send to Congress a bill to reduce the Philippine tariff in compliance with a cabled request from the Philippine Chamber of Commerce;

Whereas, Any reduction in the present tariff rates on tobacco and cigars produced in the Philippine Islands would be extremely detrimental to the tobacco and cigar industry of the United States, as well as to all American labor engaged therein;

Whereas, A policy forcing the product of Chinese and coolie labor into competition with the product of American labor is hurtful to all classes of labor, and beneficial to none;

Whereas, A similar reduction in tariff rates heretofore granted to Cuba upon the pretext of assisting the needy islanders has proven to benefit only American trusts, and not those for whom such reductions were pretended to be beneficial, therefore, be it

Resolved, By the Cigar Dealers' Association of America, in convention assembled at Chicago, this 10th day of January, 1905, that a strong protest be forwarded to the President of the United States and Congress against any reduction whatever in the present tariff rates on cigars and tobacco from the Philippine Islands.

Following were the two sets of resolutions adopted, commending President Roosevelt and Robert E. Lane:

Whereas, The President of the United States, in his efforts to stop illegal trusts in their purpose to crush competition;

Whereas, The President of the United States recommends the enlargement of the powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission, which policies meet with the full endorsement of this association, be it

Resolved, That the Cigar Dealers' Association of America fully approves of the recommendations of the President of the United States and demands of Congress the passage of the Hearst bill now before Congress.

Whereas, Robert E. Lane, of New York, National President of the Cigar Dealers Association of America, has filled this office under the most trying and discouraging conditions during the past year; and

Whereas, During the administration of Robert E. Lane all the conditions injurious to the existence and purposes for which this association is organized have been removed and perfect confidence and harmony restored, be it

Resolved, That the Cigar Dealers' Association of America, in national convention assembled, this 10th day of January, 1905, extends a vote of thanks for the great work done during his administration.

GOVERNMENT REPORTS ON TEXAS AND ALABAMA TOBACCO.

Chief of Bureau of Soils Gives Encouragement to Farmers Who Contemplate Planting in Texas or Alabama. Certain Soil Will Produce Fine Trade Leaf.

In last week's issue of The Tobacco World was an editorial treating the possibility of growing tobacco in Southern soil which had hitherto been used for some other purpose. The matter is one which is just now exciting considerable interest among farmers, owing to the possibilities latent in the idea and the following report made by Milton Whitney, Chief of the Bureau of Soils of the Department of Agriculture, throws considerable light on the subject and defines the opportunities which have been discovered to exist in East Texas and Alabama for the production of cigar leaf tobacco.

Chief Whitney says that a few years ago the attention of the Bureau of Soils was called to a new tobacoo industry in East Texas, where it was reported considerable progress had been made in growing a domestic filler leaf from Cuban seed. It was found that qute an extensive acreage was being planted around Willis, Montgomery Country, and that several warehouses and cigar factories were in operation there.

An examination of the tobacco, made by the Bureau expert, showed that some of the leaf produced was of excellent quality, surpassing in aroma any domestic examined up to that time, but that the crop as a whole, for reasons not determined, was not such as to warrant the prediction of any phenomenal development of the industry.

The matter was again given some study in 1899 as the result of the notable superiority of some Texas samples exhibited at the Paris exposition. Owing to the manner in which the collection had been made, however, it was impracticable to determine whether this quality was the result of the particular soil upon which the leaf had been grown, of the kind of seed used, of any special system of fertilization, or of care and skill in handling and curing.

In 1901 the Bureau made a survey of the soils around Willis, at the same time investigating the condition of the tobacco industry, and especially the relations of the quality of the leaf to the soil producing it. The tobacco interests were then found in a languishing condition. From a maximum acreage of 1,000 acres planted in 1898, the plantings had declined to 500 acres in 1899, and thence to less than 100 acres in 1901; and the growers although needing some crop, like tobacco, in which to specialize, had become very much discouraged. The causes assigned by the Bureau's agent for the decline in the production of this crop were mainly two—the lack of knowledge among the growers as to the methods of handling the crop, and the peculiar market conditions always to be met with in a trade so highly specialized as the tobacco trade. However, an important result was the discovery that the type of soil had a marked influence on the quality of leaf produced, and that the leaf grown on the type given the name Orangeburg sandy loam (a reddish or grayish sandy loam with a red clay subsoil) possessed a much finer aroma than the leaf grown on any other soil in the area.

Other surveys made in 1902, 1903 and 1904 have established the fact that the Orangeburg sandy loam is a soil of wide distribution in East Texas, as well as in the other Gulf and South Atlantic States. It is associated with other Orangeburg soils, of which the Orangeburg clay is also believed to be a good tobacco soil.

There is thus an ample area of soil suitable for the growing of cigar leaf tobaoco in Texas and other Southern States, and in Texas particularly, and the thought occurred that whatever deficiencies formerly produced were due to an indiscriminating use of soils might at once be eliminated in the light of knowledge of soil adaptation gained during the Willis and subsequent surveys. Following out this idea, the Bureau in 1903 conducted a series of tobacco experiments on the Orangeburg soils around Nacogdoches, Luskin, and Woodville, Texas.

This crop has been sold and distributed among the pricipal cigar manufacturers of the country who have expressed practically unanimous satisfaction with the leaf. It is the general feeling of the trade that this tobacco will fill an important place in the market, if produced in sufficient quantities and at reasonable prices. The tobacco being an entirely new product, and having at present time no fixed status in the market, it is to be expected that its introduction will be more or less slow and tedious, and the growers of this Texas leaf must not at first look for the highest prices.

The value of this tobacco, as far as the Bureau has informed itself to the present time, varies considerably, the prices for the finished product ranging from 25 to 40 cents a pound, according to the grade and quality of the leaf, but the grower can not expect to obtain at the outset more than 15 or 20 cents for the unfermented leaf. From computations based on the past work of the Bureau, it is estimated that the cost of growing the tobacco, under normal conditions, should not exceed 10 cents a pound. The average yield is estimated to be 600 pounds or more per acre.

During the past two years the Bureau has also conducted experiments in Perry County, Alabama, and in Darlington and Orangeburg counties, S. C., upon the same types of soil as in Texas.

The tobacco grown in Alabama, while not considered quite so good as the Texas product, meets with much approval from the trade, but the leaf so far produced in South Carolina is pronounced less satisfactory, and while the Bureau will continue its experiments in that State on a small scale, in the hope that methods for the improvement of the leaf product there may be discovered, it does not for the present recommend that the farmers enter into its production.

Inquiries regarding the cooperation of the Department in the leaf growing of tobacco in any of these areas, may be made of the Chief of the Bureau of Soils, or of G. T. McNess, the chief tobacco expert of the Department in Washington, or W. M. Hinson, expert in charge of the work in Texas, whose present headquarters are at Nacogdoches, Texas.

Cincinnati Seed Leaf Board of Trade Explains Why.

Editor Tobacco World:

The cigar leaf trade and the cigar manufacturers of Cincinnati and the First Internal Revenue District of Ohio, in common with their colleagues in other parts of the country, are much concerned about the proposal to reduce the tariff on cigars and tobacco from the Philippines to 25 per cent of the present tariff rates.

This industry has been for years singularly harassed by legislation affecting the national revenues, and which does not by far obtain to the same extent in any other branches of industry.

The tariff on imported leaf tobacco and cigars, excessive as it is on some kinds of leaf tobacco, is recognized as necessary. The trade has adapted itself to the conditions, but it requires stability both in the tariff and the administrative features thereof, to insure continued success as a prosperous business and a national revenue producer.

With the enactment into a law of the contemplated reduction to 25 per cent on all tobaccos and cigars coming from the Philippines, there can be no question but that everyone connected with the industry down to the humblest worker, both in shop and field, would be very materially injured and in many cases ruined. Every workman in cigar factories, every farmer, both land owners and tenants raising cigar leaf tobacco, would unquestionably have to abandon the manipulation and cultivation of cigar leaf tobacco, and to that extent depreciation in the value of tobacco lands would follow.

Cheap land, the cheapest kind of labor, both of which everyone must admit exist in the Philippines, coupled with a tariff of but 25 per cent of present rates, are the factors that will afford the aforesaid undesirable conditions.

It has been amply shown that Philippine cigars and tobacco can be laid down in the United States under the 25 per cent rate at prices with which no dealer in tobacco and no manufacturer of cigars can possibly compete.

The standard of wages and cost of living in the United States bears no comparison to the simpler necessities of the Philippines, and any discrimination in favor of the so called "poor Filippinos" that works a hardship on a deserving class of our own people is a violation of that sense of justice which has always characterized the American people.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED BY C. D. OF A.

Chicago, Jan. 13.

There is a feeling of much satisfaction at the headquarters of the Cigar Dealers' Association of America as a result of the annual convention held during the first part of the week, as the enthusiasm shown is taken as indicative of the present vigor of the association.

Following are the resolutions in full, which, as stated in last Wednesday's paper, were recommended by the committee on resolutions and adopted by the association protesting against the proposed Philippine tariff cut:

Whereas, Secretary Taft is reported to be anxious to send to Congress a bill to reduce the Philippine tariff in compliance with a cabled request from the Philippine Chamber of Commerce;

Whereas, Any reduction in the present tariff rates on tobacco and cigars produced in the Philippine Islands would be extremely detrimental to the tobacco and cigar industry of the United States, as well as to all American labor engaged therein;

Whereas, A policy forcing the product of Chinese and coolie labor into competition with the product of American labor is hurtful to all classes of labor, and beneficial to none;

Whereas, A similar reduction in tariff rates heretofore granted to Cuba upon the pretext of assisting the needy islanders has proven to benefit only American trusts, and not those for whom such reductions were pretended to be beneficial, therefore, be it

Resolved, By the Cigar Dealers' Association of America, in convention assembled at Chicago, this 10th day of January, 1905, that a strong protest be forwarded to the President of the United States and Congress against any reduction whatever in the present tariff rates on cigars and tobacco from the Philippine Islands.

Following were the two sets of resolutions adopted, commending President Roosevelt and Robert E. Lane:

Whereas, The President of the United States, in his efforts to stop illegal trusts in their purpose to crush competition;

Whereas, The President of the United States recommends the enlargement of the powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission, which policies meet with the full endorsement of this association, be it

Resolved, That the Cigar Dealers' Association of America fully approves of the recommendations of the President of the United States and demands of Congress the passage of the Hearst bill now before Congress.

Whereas, Robert E. Lane, of New York, National President of the Cigar Dealers Association of America, has filled this office under the most trying and discouraging conditions during the past year; and

Whereas, During the administration of Robert E. Lane all the conditions injurious to the existence and purposes for which this association is organized have been removed and perfect confidence and harmony restored, be it

Resolved, That the Cigar Dealers' Association of America, in national convention assembled, this 10th day of January, 1905, extends a vote of thanks for the great work done during his administration.

GOVERNMENT REPORTS ON TEXAS AND ALABAMA TOBACCO.

Chief of Bureau of Soils Gives Encouragement to Farmers Who Contemplate Planting in Texas or Alabama. Certain Soil Will Produce Fine Trade Leaf.

In last week's issue of The Tobacco World was an editorial treating the possibility of growing tobacco in Southern soil which had hitherto been used for some other purpose. The matter is one which is just now exciting considerable interest among farmers, owing to the possibilities latent in the idea and the following report made by Milton Whitney, Chief of the Bureau of Soils of the Department of Agriculture, throws considerable light on the subject and defines the opportunities which have been discovered to exist in East Texas and Alabama for the production of cigar leaf tobacco.

Chief Whitney says that a few years ago the attention of the Bureau of Soils was called to a new tobacoo industry in East Texas, where it was reported considerable progress had been made in growing a domestic filler leaf from Cuban seed. It was found that qute an extensive acreage was being planted around Willis, Montgomery Country, and that several warehouses and cigar factories were in operation there.

An examination of the tobacco, made by the Bureau expert, showed that some of the leaf produced was of excellent quality, surpassing in aroma any domestic examined up to that time, but that the crop as a whole, for reasons not determined, was not such as to warrant the prediction of any phenomenal development of the industry.

The matter was again given some study in 1899 as the result of the notable superiority of some Texas samples exhibited at the Paris exposition. Owing to the manner in which the collection had been made, however, it was impracticable to determine whether this quality was the result of the particular soil upon which the leaf had been grown, of the kind of seed used, of any special system of fertilization, or of care and skill in handling and curing.

In 1901 the Bureau made a survey of the soils around Willis, at the same time investigating the condition of the tobacco industry, and especially the relations of the quality of the leaf to the soil producing it. The tobacco interests were then found in a languishing condition. From a maximum acreage of 1,000 acres planted in 1898, the plantings had declined to 500 acres in 1899, and thence to less than 100 acres in 1901; and the growers although needing some crop, like tobacco, in which to specialize, had become very much discouraged. The causes assigned by the Bureau's agent for the decline in the production of this crop were mainly two—the lack of knowledge among the growers as to the methods of handling the crop, and the peculiar market conditions always to be met with in a trade so highly specialized as the tobacco trade. However, an important result was the discovery that the type of soil had a marked influence on the quality of leaf produced, and that the leaf grown on the type given the name Orangeburg sandy loam (a reddish or grayish sandy loam with a red clay subsoil) possessed a much finer aroma than the leaf grown on any other soil in the area.

Other surveys made in 1902, 1903 and 1904 have established the fact that the Orangeburg sandy loam is a soil of wide distribution in East Texas, as well as in the other Gulf and South Atlantic States. It is associated with other Orangeburg soils, of which the Orangeburg clay is also believed to be a good tobacco soil.

There is thus an ample area of soil suitable for the growing of cigar leaf tobaoco in Texas and other Southern States, and in Texas particularly, and the thought occurred that whatever deficiencies formerly produced were due to an indiscriminating use of soils might at once be eliminated in the light of knowledge of soil adaptation gained during the Willis and subsequent surveys. Following out this idea, the Bureau in 1903 conducted a series of tobacco experiments on the Orangeburg soils around Nacogdoches, Luskin, and Woodville, Texas.

This crop has been sold and distributed among the pricipal cigar manufacturers of the country who have expressed practically unanimous satisfaction with the leaf. It is the general feeling of the trade that this tobacco will fill an important place in the market, if produced in sufficient quantities and at reasonable prices. The tobacco being an entirely new product, and having at present time no fixed status in the market, it is to be expected that its introduction will be more or less slow and tedious, and the growers of this Texas leaf must not at first look for the highest prices.

The value of this tobacco, as far as the Bureau has informed itself to the present time, varies considerably, the prices for the finished product ranging from 25 to 40 cents a pound, according to the grade and quality of the leaf, but the grower can not expect to obtain at the outset more than 15 or 20 cents for the unfermented leaf. From computations based on the past work of the Bureau, it is estimated that the cost of growing the tobacco, under normal conditions, should not exceed 10 cents a pound. The average yield is estimated to be 600 pounds or more per acre.

During the past two years the Bureau has also conducted experiments in Perry County, Alabama, and in Darlington and Orangeburg counties, S. C., upon the same types of soil as in Texas.

The tobacco grown in Alabama, while not considered quite so good as the Texas product, meets with much approval from the trade, but the leaf so far produced in South Carolina is pronounced less satisfactory, and while the Bureau will continue its experiments in that State on a small scale, in the hope that methods for the improvement of the leaf product there may be discovered, it does not for the present recommend that the farmers enter into its production.

McNess, the chief tobacco expert of the Department in Washington, or W. M. Hinson, expert in charge of the work in Texas, whose present headquarters are at Nacogdoches, Texas.

The Old Salesman's Musings.

CURB YOUR IMAGINATION.

There was once a circus which fell by inheritance to a man who didn't know anything about circuses, but had ideas on everything. This man looked the show over after he had taken hold, and sized it up as a fair, average circus. He had a confab with his press manager, and took this position:

"See here; I am tired of seeing these glittering lithographs which promise all sorts of impossible things, and make any number of absurd claims. This is a pretty good show, but it isn't any wonder of the world, and we're going to take the public into our confidence and tell them just exactly what we have. When they come, and discover that, if anything, we have under-promised, we'll get to be the most popular show on the road.

"We haven't got three rings, and we aren't going to say so. We've got one elephant, not seven, four monkeys, not two cages full. Our acrobats are clever, but they're not the greatest in the world. The women trapeze artists are well worth seeing, but they aren't unique.

"I simply want you to go over our advertising literature with a fine tooth comb and revamp it until we've simply got a straightaway outline of what really comes off."

The press man shook his head and shrugged his shoulders, but he knew the folly of trying to convince a man who doesn't know anything about it, so he went ahead.

The lithographs and posters were a curiosity, from a circus standpoint, and the public didn't know how to take them at all. The majority of them apparently made the usual discount from the face value of the promises, and, figuring up the result, decided that they would wait for the next show. Business for three months was simply rotten, and made such a heavy drain on the wise man's bank account, that he finally had a quick heart to-heart talk with the press man, and gave him carte blanche. That foxy gentleman made not a single change in the performance, but got out a new set of lithographs. Business immediately picked up and made good, not only in strange towns, but on return dates, proving that the patrons of the show did not consider that they had been fooled.

All of which goes to say that you must put a certain amount of hot air into circulation to make good. As Pete Dailey sings in "A Little of Everything," You Wont Do any Business if you Haven't Got a Band." That sterling line that we all used to scratch bum copy book imitations of—Honesty is the Best Policy—is considerably elastic now-a-days, and practically every man in business is apt toexpand his statements to suit the occasion.

You have to hypnotize a man to a certain extent, to sell him goods now-a-days, and the modern advertisement is a part of the process. Show a man a certain article, and let him examine it thoroughly without comment on your part, and if he is not already eager and ready to buy such an article, you will propably not make a sale. Go at the man with a clever advertisement, and he is interested at once, it doesn't matter whether the ad. is verbal or printed.

The advertisement may boom the article to the skies, but if there is a reasonable percentage of truth in it, the man will not feel that his confidence has been abused. If your advertisement confined itself to the mere statement of bald facts, it wouldn't attract for a cent.

It is in the proper combination of truth and fancy that the value of advertising lies, and the most successful advertisers are those whose judgment is the best in determining this proportion.

The man who lays it on with a paint brush defeats his own purpose and soon acquires a reputation by which the people to whom he makes appeal undervalue the grain of truth that does really exist in his statements.

A certain business man in Philadelphia got into a habit not long ago of exaggerating greatly, everything that he said or printed about his business. The habit grew until it was beyond all bounds and was doing him an amount of harm with his old established trade which was by no means made up by the new business resulting from these methods.

He had a department store on a small scale, and it got so bad that when he happened to have two blankets of an odd lot left over that he wanted to sell quick, he would advertise "A thousand Navaho, superfine blankets come to our hands as the result of a mistake in the invoice. We are keeping them and standing the loss. Our customers benefit. As long as they last today at $3."

One day a couple of old time friends of his stopped in to see him. They hadn't seen each other for some time but had corresponded. The merchant was proud of the business he was doing and began to talk fulsomely about it. His friends were politely interested and asked questions, but always after the department store man had finished a remark, the others would fall into a minute of silent meditation, moving their lips as if calculating.

The merchant noticed it and finally asked about it. "What's the matter with you boys?" he said. "What do you do that for?"

"Oh, nothing," was the answer. The conversation was continued and in a little while the merchant asked again:

"Tell me why you do that? You make me nervous."

"Well," said one of the visitors hesitatingly, "we are just translating you as we go along. We have discovered that it is safe to reduce it to seventeen and a half per cent to get facts."

The merchant was rather inclined to get mad but they laughed at him and then gave him a good talking to. They told him that everybody was getting on to him, that his statements published or otherwise were winked at and laughed at, and that it was up to him to work a quick reformation.

The merchant had sense enough to take their advice, secured the services of a clever advertising man who knew his business, and is building up a reputation for reliabilty. All of which can be summed up in the pithy statement that you can go as far as you like, as long as that isn't too far. THE OLD SALESMAN

SAYS CIGARS ARE NOT SO GOOD NOW.

"I WENT into a cigar store the other day to buy a cigar," says a writer in a New England paper, "and I saw some lying in the case that were quite popular a few years ago, but which are not bought very extensively at the present time. The dealer told me that he had had several thousand during the days of their popularity, and that these were some that were left of the lot.

"He added that while they were but an average cigar at the price when they were first placed on the market, that they now were really much better, from the fact that they were made before the revenues were raised. He claimed that the cigars made since the raise in revenue are not of the same quality or material that they were before, and that the cigar referred to was therefore a better cigar than others at the same price.

"The cigars of to-day are not quite what they were a number of years ago. A few years ago it was almost impossible to get a five cent cigar that was fit to smoke, but at the present day, in spite of the fact that it is claimed it costs more to smoke a cigar, the five cent cigars have greatly improved in quality. Every now and then a new five cent cigar is placed on the market, and as a general rule it is pretty safe to buy them when they first come out. If you follow the scheme up, you will be pretty sure to get a good cigar at a reasonable rate.

"Pittsburg stogies seem to be rather popular. A prominent cigar dealer tells me that he sells hundreds of them a month, the most of them being sold by the box. If the right kind of a stogie is bought, it makes a good, clean smoke, and one can afford to consume several of them a day without any pangs of conscience. It would be surprising to learn just how many of these stogies are used in a day by people who can well afford to buy ten or even fifteen cent cigars. Cheroots are sold to a large extent, as is plainly evident by the store windows of cigar dealers."

HOW TO TREAT A BORE.

IT is not always best to take a woman for granted and go ahead on the belief that you have got her actions all classified and cut and dried.

One man is telling a joke on himself apropos of a box of Christmas cigars. The oft repeated tale of the cigars which a woman selects is the theme, but in this case the cigars were good.

Receiving a festively trimmed box of cigars from a woman friend, the man, without trying them, gave them away, box, gold bands, ribbons and all. The following day the friend he gave them to, who happened to be something of a bore, called at his office and enthusiastically returned thanks for the cigars. Following up his acknowledgement of the favor he asked the donor to dine.

When the dinner was over, he handed out a cigar. It was a particularly fine one and the man who was a guest said so. "Yes," returned the other, "it's one of those you gave me yesterday."

ISN'T THE PIPE RESPECTABLE?

IT is a curious fact that no matter how expensive the manufacture of pipes may become, they are likely always to be held to a certain extent in disrepute as regards their use before the public. In New York, for instance, and indeed in other large cities, the majority of first-class restaurants refuse to allow the smoking of pipes even in the men's cafe, and many clubs limit pipe-smokers to certain rooms.

The University Club, when it moved into its new Fifth avenue quarters some years ago, established a rule that pipes should be smoked in one room only. Now a prominent Brooklyn club, which is especially favored by young college men, has posted a rule that pipe smoking is prohibited in the grill room during dinner hour, from 6 to 8.

It is not exactly clear why pipes should be so much more under the ban than cigarettes, the odor of which many men detest, unless it is because the elaborately carved meerschaum is a distant cousin of the Irishman's clay, but the prejudice, if it may be so called, remains, and it is likely to remain for an indefinite period.

CIGARS THAT RETAIL AT $2.

DURING the holiday season just past there was some demand, at least, for cigars selling at as high as $2 each, the cigars being bought in nearly every case to give away. These and other high-priced cigars, such as sell at $1.50 and $1 apiece, come in trim boxes containing five, ten or twenty-five.

But while such cigars are mostly imported and sold for the holiday season, they may be found on sale and more or less of them are sold the year around. They are sometimes sold for wedding gifts and for banquets and for special costly dinners, where the guest would be more likely to put one of these cigars, when they were served, in his pocket as a souvenir of the occasion than to smoke it, for many of these costly cigars are large and more of a smoke than a man might want to take.

These expensive cigars are of the finest and costliest tobacco and are made with the greatest care by cigarmakers of the highest skill; there are only a few men who can make them at all, and these get high pay for their work. It might be that the mere cost of the labor on the most expensive of these cigars would be 15 or 20 cents each. Nearly all of them are large, most of the costly cigars are also graceful in shape, but not all of them are.

There is, for instance, a $2 cigar that is rather clumsy in its outlines; it is longer than the ordinary big cigar, much thicker, and its general build a stubby, chunky cigar. But while one may or may not admire its type, the cigar itself is made with the utmost perfection of workmanship. There is, for example, another costly cigar that is big, almost straight sided and cylindrical in form and stubby at both ends, certainly not a beautiful model, but the cigar itself simply perfect in its form.

The same is true of all these costly cigars. Whatever the type may be, homely or graceful in outline, the workmanship displayed in the making of them is uniformly faultless, and not only is each cigar in every way perfectly made, but the cigars in a box will be found perfectly matched. These costly cigars represent, in fact, the highest art of cigarmaking.

Such cigars may be found in the showcase, duly labeled, at $1, $1.25, $1.50, $1.75 and $2, and there are some sold in the ordinary way to smokers. There is now and then a smoker who likes that kind of a big, heavy smoke, and who comes in and buys a $2 cigar and lights it up. The purchaser is quite likely to be somebody with plenty of money who is feeling cheerful over a good dinner, but while such cigars are sold at retail there is not often occasion to hand them out to a purchaser.

As a matter of fact, there are not many men who pay a dollar or more for a cigar. No matter how much money a man has or how fond he may be of smoking, he hesitates to pay $1 for a smoke. It is not until a lower price still is reached, say in the 50-cent cigars, that the costly cigar becomes an article of comparatively common consumption.

And, indeed, 50 cents is about the top-notch price for cigars in the most expensive hotels and restaurants. Higher priced cigars may be had, but half a dollar for a cigar is about as much as men often pay.—Exchange.

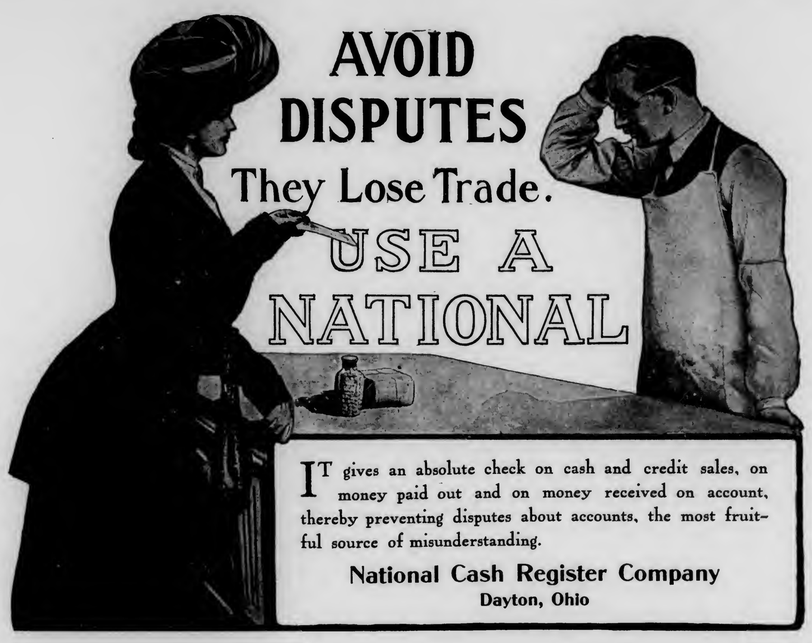
DON'T BE TOO BIG TO LOOK AFTER YOUR STORE.



THERE is a prosperous retail store in Milwaukee which has built up the best part of its trade in the last two years. That length of time ago the proprietor didn't even have his name on the window. He was simply in the business for the money there was in it, and only went around to count up the money on Saturday night. Some of his friends told him, when he complained that he wasn't making a success, that he would lose every cent he had unless he got busy. He took a tumble and did a little clerking on his own account. Now there is no friendlier man in the city. He even has a large sign hanging over the cash register, which reads:

BE FRIENDLY.
DROP IN OCCASIONALLY.

R. A. PATTERSON TOBACCO COMPANY AT THE SHOW.

ONE of the large displays at the recent Tobacco Show in Horticultural Hall was the one made by the R. A. Patterson Tobacco Company of Richmond, Va. The picture shows how Patterson Seal and Lucky Strike, two of the best known brands on the market, were attractively presented to consumers. This exhibit was much larger than the cut gives an idea of, and caused much favorable comment.

IT gives an absolute check on cash and credit sales, on money paid out and on money received on account, thereby preventing disputes about accounts, the most fruitful source of misunderstanding.

UNION ASSISTS HEALTH BOARD.

Cigarmakers Help Physicians Enforce Sanitary Laws.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 12.

The cigarmakers of Milwaukee are co-operating with the local health authorities in enforcing the sanitary laws of the city. This was one of the first places in the country where the craft joined hands with the authorities in working for the public good.

The idea of assisting the authorities in ferreting out places liable to breed disease has been in vogue among cigarmakers many years.

They never permit a union shop to get in such shape as the majority of non-union shops are in most of the time, according to officers. This is the great reason why you find so many men who are bitterly opposed to organized labor always smoking union made cigars. They know that when they smoke a labeled cigar there is little danger of it having been made in an unsanitary shop.

Few people are aware, doubtless, that in a union shop men are not permitted to squirt tobacco juice about the floor. Every man working in a shop is provided with a cuspidor and he is required to use it. They are death on all germ breeding factories and the filthy practices that produce them.

Union men say tobacco in itself is a germ destroyer, and that during the great cholera plague in Hamburg years ago it was found that men who were employed in the manufacture of cigars were in no danger of taking the disease. But when tobacco dust is permitted to accumulate on a floor, it is liable to become the breeding place of certain disease germs.

Despite the vast number of factories here, the State factory inspector has found conditions excellent, with only occasional instances of complaint.

SHOULD MARKET SLOWLY.

Richmond Tobacco Farmers Advised Not to Glut the Warehouses.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 16.

This week and next will witness large sales at the local warehouses providing weather conditions are not too unfavorable. One warehouse man of this city says:

"There will be good demand for the present crop, and if the farmers will hold off and not crowd the crop on the market within a few weeks, thereby causing a glut and consequent breaking of prices, they will obtain better results.

"Loose sales on the warehouse floors will run until May 1, which will give ample time to dispose of the crop without crowding the market, and if farmers will bear this in mind and distribute the offerings over this period of four months, it will add greatly to the price received."

FINED $25 FOR SELLING TO MINORS

W. H. Minghini, who operates a cigar store on East Philadelphia street, Los Angeles, Cal., was convicted in Justice Gidley's court of selling tobacco to a minor and was fined $75, which he promptly paid. Minghini protested his innocence.

FIGURES FOR 1904 FROM THE HAVANA MARKET.

A Synopsis Which Gives a Detailed Report of Sales in Havana and Stocks on Hand.—Present Market is Still a Little Dull, but Big Transactions are Early Expected.

HAVANA, January 9, 1905.

The following statistics are herewith presented to the readers of The Tobacco World in regard to the Havana market during the year 1904:

	Bales.
Stocks on hand, as per report of Jan. 4, 1904, of all kinds of leaf Jan. 1, 1904,	101,407
Receipts from the country Jan. 1 to Dec. 31, 1904, at Havana of all kinds of leaf,	420,021
Total supply,	521,428
Sales reported at Havana by your correspondent from Jan. 9 to Dec. 31, 1904,	322,936
Stocks belonging to the second hand upon Jan. 1, 1904, as per report of Jan. 11, and which ought to have been eliminated, as the sales should only be from first hands,	41,407
Receipts from the country sold direct by the farmers to manufacturers and a few American exporters not reported among Havana sales,	67,085
Balance of stock on hand of all kinds of leaf upon Jan. 1, 1905, in first hands at Havana and ascertained by the various dealers,	90,000

The above clear synopsis ought to put a quietus for all time upon the malicious reports published, or expressed verbally, that the Havana correspondence of The Tobacco World publishes sales in excess of the actual transactions, and as one party even stated in a printed interview in a New York contemporary, three times in excess of the crop of a single year.

The above figures prove conclusively that the reported sales constituted only about three-fourths of the crop, and are therefore as nearly correct as they can be, as long as no official statistics are kept. A few people may exaggerate the amount of their sales, while others on the other hand diminish them, but the average is approximately true, and answers all needful purposes.

The 1904 crop can be estimated as follows:

	Bales.
Receipts from the country by railroads, steamers and sailing vessels at Havana Jan. 1 to Dec. 31, 1904,	410,021
Estimated stocks in the country in farmers' hands, Vuelta Abajo and Partido, about	15,000
Received by carts, bundled tobacco packed here, and baled tobacco from nearby points, about	10,000
Eastern end of the island, partly in hands of farmers and dealers, or exported from such ports as Santiago de Cuba, Manzanillo, Gabara, Caibarien and Cienfuegos (Manicaragua),	20,000
Less received from the 1903 crop up to April 2, 1904,	12,001
Total estimated 1904 crop,	443,020

Or say, in round numbers, about:

	Bales.
Vuelta Abajo,	250,000
Semi-Vuelta,	24,000
Partido,	66,000
Remedios,	83,000
Mayari, Yara, Gibara, Remedios, shipped from Caibarien, and Manicaragua from Cienfuegos,	20,000

The new year has just opened, and while the transactions are not yet large, a good many northern buyers have arrived during the past week, and there is no doubt that this month will show some big transactions. Prices are very firm.

The latest crop reports are mixed, and speak of a rather diminished growth in most sections for want of uniform rainfalls; still all judgment ought to be suspended as to quantity until next month. If the dry weather prevails the quality will be too heavy and unsuitable for the clear Havana manufacturers in the north as well as here.

ran up to 3,516 bales in all, or 918 of Vuelta Abajo, 78 of Partido and 2,520 of Remedios. American buyers took 2,398, European exporters 393, and local manufacturers 725 bales.

are a trifle less busy now than is usual at this period, but the large independent factories are nevertheless well supplied with orders and have not discharged any cigarmakers. Everybody expects to see a good business for the next five months, and then it will depend upon how the prospects of the new crop are turning out as to wrappers, colors and quality.

Busy factories are H. Upmann, Partatagas, Ramon Allones, Sol, Crepusculo, Por Larranaga, El Rico Habano and La mas Fermosa. H. Upmann & Co. shipped 400,000 cigars last week. J. F. Rocha & Co.'s strike lasted a couple of days and was quickly settled.

The new label is now being used universally by every manufacturer to all countries, and is a guarantee that the cigars are made in the island of Cuba.

Buying, Selling and Other Notes of Interest.

Frank Dominguez has been a heavy buyer in the Havana market, securing a large number of bales of Remedios and Vuelta Abajo leaf, so that E. A. Calves & Co. will have a choice stock to sell.

Gonzalez, Benitez & Co. were the heaviest sellers this week, disposing of 900 bales of Remedios and Vuelta Abajo to a number of buyers in town.

Sol Hamburger has made good use of his three weeks' stay in Havana, as he has already purchased fully a thousand bales and has not finished yet. That he has picked out only the best goods stands to reason, and as he is a close buyer, the high prices which he has been obiged to pay will be represented by the first quality. He has purchased principally Vuelta Abajo leaf.

Facundo Arguelles bought in all 789 bales of fine Vuelta Abajo fillers.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez turned over 400 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Remedios, and are trading on some larger lots with a number of parties.

Mendelsohn, Bornemann & Co. are busy.

Aixala & Co. disposed of 200 bales of Vuelta Abajo. Don Jose Aixala returned from his short trip to Tampa, bringing along several orders.

Grau, Planas & Co. turned over 100 bales of Remedios.

Joaquin Hedesa did a fair business in Key West on his last trip.

A. M. Calzada & Co. bought and sold 100 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Remedios.

A. Waldman, of the firm of J. Friedman & Co., Chicago, who was reported here as having arrived three weeks ago, has finally made his appearance in town, and it was rumored that he must have been hidden in the Vuelta Abajo all the time.

Monsr. Blondeaux, the French regie buyer, is looking over the condition of the market preparatory to making his selection of leaf for this year.

Rabell, Costa & Co. disposed of 64 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

The two chief trust lawyers, Parraga & Govin, received orders by cable to come to New York and report at headquarters, 111 Fifth avenue, and left last week, with only a few hours' notice. People here are wondering what is up.

Antonio Suarez sold 11 bales of wrappers for $6,000 to a local manufacturing concern.

Jose H. Cayro shipped 125 bales of his stock to Key West customers.

Voneiff & Vidal Cruz are busy at work stripping for their customers.

Harry Esberg, with his foreman, J. Lowe, arrived on Friday and left again on Saturday. He had just time to register some tobacco. He left so quickly on account of the fact that his brother, Alfred Esberg, of San Francisco, is going to be married to Miss Sussman on the 17th, therefore Harry could not tarry if he wants to get to San Francisco in time for the wedding festival.

THE WEEK'S MOVEMENT IN LEAF.

Since the beginning of the new year, all firms have been very busy sampling their holdings and dispatching their salesmen to respective territories. Some returns in the shape of orders have been coming in slowly from the nearby cities already visited, and inside of a week business is expected to hum.

Quite a few Western buyers have appeared and acquired good blocks of the new force-sweated Connecticut. This tobacco is showing great activity for so early in the season, and as soon as a lot is sweated and sampled, it finds a ready sale.

The manufacturers have taken hold quite freely of the 1903 Zimmer, and sales of 1,000 cases at 15½@16c have been reported. Pennsylvania broad leaf, old Wisconsin Bs and quite some 1902 Wisconsin binders have changed hands recently.

Sumatra is moving well, considering the low stocks the importers carry at this season. If what reports we receive from Holland are correct, every bale of this old crop will bring its price by summer, but the Amsterdam reports are sometimes like the Wall street tips. We all remember last year, we were going to have "large percentage of light colors and big yield."

Havana is moving in an upward direction, and the market is in a good, healthy condition. Limited stocks of old tobacco, and more inquiry as to the new crop are being heard.

A WORD TO THE WISE.

We had a most interesting caller in The Tobacco World office the other day who is one of our successful jobbers in leaf tobacco, but who certainly can make "Ralph Rose" look like thirty cents when it comes to handling the hammer. He started his conversation like this: "What in —— is the matter with those Havana importers—going to Cuba and running up prices the way they have, and then expecting jobbers like myself to sell our customers 1st Capaduros at 60 to 65c? They don't realize that such prices are a temptation to the honest manufacturer to water his milk with seed, and the manufacturer who only uses half milk at the present time, will use all water in the future; then what will the Havana importer do? The devil only knows we use little Havana enough since the Spanish war."

During this monologue there entered a man who is recognized as a very level-headed tobacco merchant, who buys tobacco in every clime. He took exception to the remarks by saying; "Just let me post you, my friend, as to the real situation in Havana tobacco. I have been to Cuba investigating this crop several times since it was planted and cut, and at the beginning every one agreed that the Vuelta and Remedios bade fair to be a very fine crop, but on account of the gum in the Remedios, it would be late in March or April before it would be sweated well enough to use. Well, the opinions have changed since then, and the Vuelta did not show the beautiful tobacco we expected, while the Remedios is ready for use now, instead of March. As to prices being high, that is easy to account for. When the war closed every farmer planted tobacco and raised a crop—good, bad and indifferent—and the result was such a glut that prices went to the lowest ebb. And every year since then there has been a reduced acreage in the Remedios section, and the farmers have turned their attention to planting sugar.

"Certainly, during this past year fully 25 per cent less tobacco was planted in Remedios. I should judge the crop to be, say 200,000 bales, of which 70,000 bales are 1st and 2d Capaduros. Is it any wonder prices are high when the supply is so limited? Take my word for it, you will be glad to get aboard at 60c inside of six months. Even the manufacturers who visited Cuba and kept posted, are at this time buying the new tobacco in New York. We in New York may think the Philadelphia manufacturer slow, but if this trade only knew how much new Havana the cigar manufacturers of Philadelphia have acquired in the past month, they would allow that the Philadelphia pace was fully up to if not ahead of the New York standard. A word to the wise is sufficient."

CAN'T GET TOGETHER ON TARIFF.

"Did it ever occur to the members of the trade the cause of so many unsuccessful attempts at legislation in Washington on behalf of the tobacco trade?" This question was asked of your correspondent by a tobacco merchant of forty years' experience, who continued as follows:

"Away back in 1878 the Government was considering the raising of the tariff on imported tobacco, and a meeting of our Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade was called and a committe appointed, consisting of Edgar M. Crawford, Gerson Mayer, Darius Ferry and Simon Auerbach, to go to Washington to confer with the Ways and Means Committee. On their arrival they talked the matter over, and each member of the committee presented his views.

"After having done so, the chairman (Congressman Abraham S. Hewitt, from New York), addressed them as follows:

"'Gentlemen, we would ask you to return home, and when you can agree among yourselves as to just what you want, let us know, and we will try to grant your request.'

"But up to this day no representative committee of the tobacco business has ever been able fully to agree upon any tariff rate offered by the Government, and it probably never will.

"The reason for this dissension is plain. We have three distinct interests to contend with—Havana, Sumatra and seed—and although they are all classified under the head of cigar leaf tobacco, they are as different as trotting, truck and car horses, and can hardly be expected to travel in the same class. No matter what rate of duty is imposed, it necessarily works a hardship on one commodity or the other. I expect to be many years older before we see a 'community of interests' on tariff in the leaf tobacco trade."

John Wardlow, of Ruy Lopez fame, arrived at the home office on the 12th, looking exceedingly well and prosperous. He expects to remain with us about two weeks, when he will return to the factory at Key West.

The Florida Tobacco Co., in other words, Mr. Alex Shaw, of Quincy, Fla., has opened a very up-to date office at 131 Maiden Lane. They are showing a few sample bales of their fine product, as a type of what kind of tobacco to expect when they get to rights. With the very able assistance of Edward C. Downs, who was for years with Schroeder & Arguimbau, success is assured.

Charles P. Bidwell will shortly leave for the East, carrying the colors of S. Ruffin, Inc., importers of Havana. This firm has had wonderful growth since its conception, and with the added prestige of J. W. Jacoby, formerly of I. J. Schoener & Co., and Charlie P. Bidwell, should rapidly reach a position of even greater prominence.

The offices of Ernest Ellinger & Co., 161 Water street, have undergone extensive alterations, and business has started up very promisingly. With the assistance of S. H. Friedlander, the success of this new firm is assured.

J. H. Duys, of H. Duys & Co., in company with the firm's genial representative, "Bob" Uhler, sailed into Reading and York county the past week, and as usual something was "doing."

Henry Fisher, representing A. Cohn & Co., has returned from Boston after spending a week selling Sumatra to his many customers.

Chas. E. Crawford, of Dohan & Taitt, of Philadelphia, closed out several lots of tobacco in this market this week. Charlie is certainly one of our "old timers," but works like a "four-year-old."

Ben Rothschild, of Rothschild, Son & Co., Chicago, was a large buyer in our market this week. We are always glad to see Ben.

Harry S. Rothschild, and there is only one Harry S., returned from his Key West factories, and is again taking up the management of the immense Waldorf-Astoria Segar Co.

Jesse Falk, of G. Falk & Bro., is having his samples of Sumatra made ready for another of his whirlwind trips on the road. Jesse's great business has never tempted him to smoke a cigar, and still he does know how to sell tobacco.

RETAIL NUBBINS.

Richard Green, manager of the Norma Martinez Cigar Co.'s stand in the drug store at No. 240 Broadway, was for years the manager of the cigar department of the Hegeman Drug Co., at No. 200 Broadway, and is one of the best known cigar salesmen on lower Broadway. He reports a thriving business, and for a drawing card has in his window a photographic group of school children on a Porto Rican tobacco plantation. Crowds stop to gaze at the photo, and their eyes naturally wander from the photograph to the stock of cigars and smoker's articles artistically displayed.

"Tom" Roberts, who is the manager of the cafe of the Hotel Endicott, has always some eye-catching idea for the cigar stand, which is run by Thomas Buckley and William Ottman. The patronage of the Endicott is largely horsey and sporty, and not a few well-known medical men and newspaper men occasionally rest an elbow on the bar rail or on the cigar case.

John Kennally presides at the cigar stand at the Hotel Majestic, and Chris Farley brags about the cigars sold over the glass case at the Buckingham.

Among the visitors to the New York office of The Tobacco World, at No. 7 Burling Slip, yesterday was Charles Testera, the superintendent of the Columbia Yacht Club, whose beautiful club is at 83d street and Riverside Drive. Another visitor was George Grant, who runs the cigar department at Kid McCoy's cafe, at No. 1432 Broadway, while another was John Fenton, who has charge of the cigar department in Wilson's drug store, at Broadway and 42d street.

"Al" Gleaning, who has the stand at the Montauk, at Maiden Lane and William street, reports a rapidly increasing business.

In a cigar dealer's window on Nassau street I saw pedestrians stop to read a set of maxims said to have been compiled by Stephen Allen a former mayor of New York who, with others, lost his life at the burning of the steamboat "Henry Clay" off Yonkers, several years ago.

The maxims were as follows:

"Keep good company or none. Never be idle. If your hands cannot be usefully employed, cultivate your mind.

"Always speak the truth. Make few promises. Live up to your engagements. Keep your own secrets if you have any.

"When you speak to a person look him in the face. Good company and good conversation are the very sinews of virtue.

"Good character is above all things else. Your character cannot be essentially injured except by your own acts.

"If one speaks evil of you, live so that no one will believe him.

"Drink no kind of intoxicating liquors.

"Ever live (misfortune excepted) within your income. When you retire think over what you have done during the day.

"Make no haste to be rich if you would prosper. Small and steady gains give competency with tranquility of mind.

"Never play any game of chance. Avoid temptation through fear you may not withstand it."

PRETTY GOOD IN CHICAGO.

Chicago, Jan. 14.

Considering that only two weeks have elapsed since the holidays, trade conditions in this part of the West are very satisfactory. Naturally enough, the lull that usually follows the holiday season is felt in some measure. The fact that no failures are reported, and that all hands are busy either making inventory, serving customers, or planning larger fields of operation, speaks plainest for general conditions in the western field just now.

I. Latzar, who has been on a brief business trip to Cincinnati, is expected home tomorrow evening.

Gus Hoefer, who has gone to represent E. A. & Co., at San Francisco, briefly visited friends here lately.

W. F. Monroe, the popular down town dealer in the Tribune Building, is preparing for an extended visit to Florida in the near future. His wife and children will accompany him, and the trip will consume several months time.

Leo W. Mayer, vice-president of the Hilson Company, was a visitor this week.

Harry Harris, secretary of the Khedivial Company, manufacturers of cigarettes, has returned from the East and will leave at once for an extended Western trip.

Manuel Lopez, of Manuel Lopez & Co., New York, visited here this week on his way to the Pacific coast.

C. J. Holton, of Detroit, and several other members of the Cigar Dealers' Association of America, recently attended a meeting of the Chicago Retail Drug Association, which body they addressed on matters touching the cigar interests, and urged the handling of independent goods. The members of the National are doing good missionary work in more ways than one.

Your correspondent recently visited the Chicago headquarters of Geo. Schlegel, the well known manufacturer of cigar box labels and trimmings. E. E. Thatcher, the able manager of this end, spoke in good terms of the patronage enjoyed by the Chicago house. He anticipates a good year and says the tendency of the trade to adopt private brands, is on the increase.

The E. Hoffman Co., Chicago's reliable manufacturers and importers, continue doing business at the old stand. They carry, in addition to their well selected stock of cigars and tobaccos, a large assortment of smokers articles. The firm are distributors for the well known Bachelor cigar, in which they report an excellent business. They also report good sales in Hoffman's Spillman mixture, which it is claimed, to "the man behind the pipe," makes an excellent smoke.

Col. Diffley's several retail stores all appear to be enjoying their full measure of patronage, as do also those of President Breitung.

Among leaf men, some changes are noted. J. Waitel has associated himself with the Wedeles Bros., and Mr. Levison has gone to the Rothschild Sons & Co. Messrs. Hathaway, of H. Smith & Co., Springfield, Mass., Levison of J. Bernheim & Sons, New York, Chas. Waxelbaum, of A. Cohn & Co., New York, Soliday and Benno Newberger, of E. Rosenwald & Bros., New York, are late trade visitors. Sol "Dewey" has joined the forces of Metzger & Co. The firm of L. Abeles & Co. have dissolved partnership, W. Wetzler retiring from the business, and L. Abeles & Son to continue the same.

Leo Tuska, the busy broker in leaf tobaccos, appears to be enjoying his full proportion of business, and says the year is opening well with him. LOBERG.

1904 PRICES IN RICHMOND.

According to an estimate made by several prominent tobacco men, of Richmond, a few days ago, the general average of prices received this season has been from 75 cents to $1 a hundred pounds higher than the prices of last season. On the lower grades the increase has been larger. One man said that all his grades have cost him more than $1 higher this season than last. On the upper grades, however, the increase has been less, and so the general average has been made.

PHILIPPINE COMMISSION RECOMMENDS 25 PER CENT RATE.

Secretary Taft has submitted to the President the annual report of the Philippines Commission and the President has transmitted it to Congress. The Commission among other things, recommends that the tariff on sugar and tobacco be reduced to not more than 25 per cent of the Dingley rate, and suggests legislation authorizing the Commission to make reductions on present and future tariff schedules when, in its opinion, to do so will be in the public interests.

Secretary Taft's action would seem to indicate that he still believes the 50 per cent cut to be the only one advisable in spite of the rumor that he had consented to a compromise at 50 per cent of the Dingley rate.

The legislation has not yet been enacted, however, and it behooves those who are fighting against it to continue operations. Each week produces a batch of additional protests from various trade bodies throughout the country and as all of these are sent to Washington, it must by this time be fairly obvious in the Capital that there are a few persons in the United States and in the Republican party who are rigidly opposed to any such change.

The mere fact that the domestic interests may not be of absolutely one voice as to precisely what the rate of duty shall be, does not seem to be a good reason for nearly eliminating it altogether.

It would appear that while, personally rather inclined to the cut, President Roosevelt appreciates the fact that there may be more than one side to a question, and is desirous of satisfying himself of the rights of the matter before action is taken.

WORRYING ABOUT THE CIGARETTE.

The cigarette seems to cause an amount of trouble out of all proportion to its size. Medical authorities are continually disagreeing as to whether it is deadly, and there are always to be found a half dozen or more cities where a frenzied crusade is being waged against it.

Aside from the question of the potency of the commodity as a health destroyer on general principles, it does not seem quite clear why there need be so much worry about the cigarette habit in boys. A boy with the average boy's rugged health will not smoke more than a limited number of cigarettes if he smokes any, for the reason that he wont crave them.

Your cigarette fiend isn't healthy, and in the majority of cases he smokes continually because he is in bad health, instead of being in bad health as a result of his smoking. The most forcible argument against the sale of cigarettes to boys is that it helps them to form a habit which they might otherwise not form until their judgment and selfcontrol were more matured.

The child cigarette fiend in practically every case has the sort of nervous system that would have found some outlet whether it was cigarettes or not. The temperament of the American boy is such as largely to protect him against the desire for excessive cigarette smoking, and in his case, the father of the desire is merely the wish to be a hero.

In Spain it is different. The cortes has received a bill from the minister of the interior absolutely prohibiting the sale of tobacco, cigars or cigarettes to any person under 17 years, and provides a penalty carrying a heavy fine or imprisonment. This is because of a claim that racial degeneration in Spain is due in a great measure to the use of cigarettes by the young, but it is doubtful if the race is confronted by any new conditions.

GOODS ORDERED ARE NOT ALWAYS PAID FOR.

The trade is warned against the man who rented a store on Ninth street, Philadelphia, last week, and succeeded in getting several bills of goods on credit, sold them at cheap and hasty private sale and skipped out. The man gave the name of "H. Jackson," and was apparently a perfect stranger in this city. He evidently expected to find Philadelphia a very easy mark, and was throwing out his lines in other directions when forced to duck.

Jackson ordered bills and had them sent C. O. D. He offered checks, which were refused in some cases but accepted by the expressmen in others, in which cases the goods were left. If it were less easy to get credit in the cigar and tobacco business, swindlers of this sort would find themselves helpless. Anxiety not to lose any business, however, induces some jobbers and manufacturers to take long chances, and it is by the purest of good luck rather than good management that Jackson did not succeed in getting away with more goods than he did.

> There is no ground for the professed fears of the tobacco growers of this country that lower duties on Philippine tobacco will unendurably injure them, as may readily be understood by those who note that about two-thirds of the country's crop is now exported.

There we have it. The only thing left now is for the tobacco trade to hide its diminished head in chagrined shame.

Philadelphia Tobacco Trade.

Swindler Operates on Ninth Street.

A smooth proposition, who had chosen as a cognomen "H. Jackson," spent a few busy hours in Philadelphia last week, and came mighty near making a number of manufacturers and jobbers sick at the pit of their stomachs. As it is, some of them are guessing, but it is not believed that the man got away with very much.

"H. Jackson" arrived in town and rented No. 160 North Ninth street, paying out $50 in real money. He had his sign put on the window in white enamel, "Jackson's Cigar Store," and induced a firm which sells cigar store fixtures to deliver a set of showcases, etc., for which he made an initial payment of $10.

Thus fitted out, "H. Jackson" visited a number of manufacturers and jobbers, who found him a very agreeable individual. He left orders for 4,000 cigars at one place, and similar orders at others, the merchandise to be paid for on delivery. The store was to be opened last Thursday afternoon. Many of the bills arrived, and those expressmen who kindly consented to be hypnotized were presented with a brand new check which "H. Jackson" would remove from a book of busy-looking stubs. The only tiny irregularity important enough to mention was the fact that "H. Jackson" had not gone through the formality of depositing any money in bank.

Somebody gained a little wisdom and began to ask questions here and there, some friend told "H. Jackson" that it was about time, there was a sudden disappearance, and those who had sold bills on credit gathered around No. 160 to engineer a bunch of replevins.

About the first warning that the momentary proprietor was not AAA1 was given by the Keystone Tobacco Co., of North Ninth street, the members of which firm had watched with mixed interest "H. Jackson" carrying cigars out of the store and selling them around the corner.

It is now believed that the man's plans originally admitted of his keeping his store a day or two longer, so that he could conduct his swindling operations with this business address as a background. It is said that a representative of a certain cash register concern wined and dined "H. Jackson" at Green's in order to effect a sale, and that when the newly-embarked cigar store proprietor casually mentioned that he wanted to buy a couple of diamonds for his wife's birthday present, a friend of the cash register salesman steered him up against a jewelry house and showed a disposition to vouch for him. "H. Jackson" ordered the stones delivered at the Ninth street address, Check O. D., but the jeweler did not seem to care to do a face business.

While no retailer was doing a land office business this week, there were few if any kicks coming, as every dealer who was asked, declared that he thought the market at least normally active for this time of year. Some had a little better report than this to make, but it is safe to say that the average business done was as good as any January can show for some years. There was an average demand at the Chestnut street stores, but in the residence sections trade suffered a little perhaps from the fact that the Christmas donations have not all been smoked up yet. All dealers expect the month to end well, however, and February to open up better than ever.

Z. John Norris, the local representative of the Thomas Allen Tobacco Co. and of I. Lewis & Co., whose popular countenance is extremely well known among Philadelphia dealers, spent last week in Newark and New York, planning the local campaign for the coming year.

Augustus Fleck, of Fleck & Co., which firm recently retired from business at 220 Market street, is about leaving for an extended trip through the South. Mr. Fleck expects to put in two months or more down where it's warm.

The store at 144 North Eighth street, which is operated under the name of the Pennsylvania Cigar Stores Co., has been sold again and is now being operated by M. Gartner and Albert Lang as Gartner & Lang, although the establishment will continue to trade under the name of the Pennsylvania Cigar Stores Co.

Both of the new proprietors are men of thorough experience as manufacturers and retailers, and are prepared to make the stand a very prosperous one. The two are New Yorkers, but are fairly familiar with this market.

The store, until a few weeks ago, was operated by Wm. Catlin, who in order to join the Victor Thorsch Co., sold out to Hartman & Kohn, of New York. During the latter's holding, the place was managed by E. E. Shaw.

C. A. Smith & Co., jobbers at 18 South Delaware avenue, have retired from business and sold the stock, fixtures and good will to Runge & Co., who will conduct a retail store at that address. The latter company have been doing business at Delaware avenue and Chestnut street, but have been compelled to vacate to allow the Pennsylvania Railroad Co. to erect a warehouse on the site. The removal took place late last week.

Wm. H. O'Keefe, of South Fifth street, has decided to give up the cigar stand which he has been conducting in the front of the saloon at 835 Market street, and will close it up on Friday of this week. Mr. O'Keefe finds it necessary to devote more time to his main establishment.

Walter H. Lazar, Chestnut street below Tenth, has a handsome window display of the La Verdad brand, which he offers in fifteen sizes.

A report was circulated this week that the United Cigar Stores Co. had taken the Bainbridge Shoe Store at Second and Market streets, in which to open a branch. It seems probable that the report is true, although the manager of one of the local United Stores refused to confirm it.

With Manufacturers and Jobbers.

Jos. Wertheim, of Jose Lovera & Co.; W. T. Taylor, the American representative of the Punch and the Romeo and Juliet factories; and Tom E. Bowen, of Guerra, Diaz & Co., were among those who got around among the Philadelphia trade during the week.

R. Choate, who was connected with Fleck & Co., 220 Market street, for seventeen years, has entered business for himself as a jobber at 111 Market street and will sell cigars and tobacco.

Frank Winslow, manager of the cigar department of Finley Acker & Co., will retire from that position in order to become a full partner with Wm. H. Hartley, of 2333 North Eighth street, who is already well known upon the market with his American Traveler brand. The new firm will enlarge the present business extensively.

D. Dubin, jobber at 722 South Ninth street, who became insolvent some months ago with assets of about $115, has been discharged in bankruptcy, and Albert Driver, Referee in Bankruptcy has sent out a circular to creditors announcing that there are no funds and asking the creditors to come up with the expenses which have already been incurred.

Leaf Dealers' Jottings.

The leaf market has been fairly active during the week so far as inquiry is concerned, but there has been a disposition on the part of buyers who want goods to hold off a bit. The prices are ruling very high, much higher than this market is used to, and buyers don't feel like paying what they will finally have to. Pennsylvania is scarce and high, Connecticut wrapper is high, and the buyers for the leaf houses who have already been to Havana, report the same conditions there. There does not seem to be any possibility of a much easier market. The inquiry, however, is quite good for this time of year, and the few salesmen who have already started on the road are making some returns. In a few weeks practically all the leaf salesmen will be out on their territory, and it is expected that the business will be average good.

George Burghard received a nice lot of Connecticut wrapper this week. A. M. Lake will start out on the road in about two weeks.

The leaf house of Morris Rosenberg, on Third street, was closed yesterday on account of the funerai of Joseph Rosenberg, a brother of the leaf man, who died on Sunday.

Walter T. Bremer, of Bremer Bros., has returned from a short trip on the road, and will go out again next week. He considers that he did very well for January.

Frank Dominguez, of E. A. Calves & Co., has returned from Cuba, where he was buying for the firm, and is anything but optimistic over the conditions as he found them. The tobacco was not of particularly high grade and the prices were very much higher than last year.

W. H. Myers, of E. A. Calves & Co., left last night to make the New York State trip.

L. P. Kimmig, of L. P. Kimmig & Co., has returned from Connecticut where he acquired considerable tobacco which he will pack both at Hatfield and Lancaster. Mr. Kimmig says he paid stiff prices for his holdings, but believes it will continue to be a high market.

George W. Newman, of Young & Newman, leaves today for a Western trip, where he expects to find things in lively shape.

F. Eckerson has left for Cuba to buy for the Eckerson house. The new year is starting with a satisfactory demand with this firm.

WAITING FOR UNITED CO. TO ACT.

Milwaukee Dealers Would Not Stand for More "Tag" Stores.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 17.

The half dozen tobacco and cigar men of this city, who attended the sessions of the Cigar Dealers' Association of America in Chicago last week, are full of hope of great benefits from this meeting, and Milwaukee stands ready to do her share in "agitation, education and publicity" against the trust, as urged by President Lane in his written address to the convention. While not a single cigar dealer in Milwaukee or Wisconsin is named in the list of officers or on the executive committee, still this section can be expected to supply some of the funds and some of the hustling men needed in any war to be waged.

Since the Chicago meeting local dealers are getting braver about discussing the probable action in this city against the chain of stores system. If the business done by the two local retail stores was heavy enough to affect the business of other first-class stores, there would have been joint action with the Chicago independent dealers when this plan was proposed some time ago. But thus far, no reliable dealer in this city has felt like making a fuss, simply because he has in no way felt the encroachment of the chain stores, which, on the other hand, have made little noise, attending to their own business. Consequently, in Milwaukee, there has been no trouble and no ill feeling. Just how long this will last is the length of time before other chain stores are established here. The advent of any more "tag" stores would mean that something had to give. As it is, local dealers do not want to be pushed into a fight of any kind until they have sufficient ammunition to carry it to the end.

What is of more interest just now than the proposed war on the trust, is the plan of Secretary Taft to lower the tariff from the Philippines. Local dealers and producers are bitterly opposed to the contemplated action, and the Wisconsin members of Congress will be fortified with resolutions and many personal letters declaring against any such action. These resolutions will set forth that the great industry in this State would be practically wrecked should the tariff rates from the islands be reduced to 25 per cent of the present rates. It would work havoc with the producing and manufacturing interests in Milwaukee, Wisconsin and the entire country at large, they will say.

The Tobacco Workers' Union will attempt to give the B. Leidersdorf Tobacco Co. of this city as fair a hearing as possible upon the question of whether or not it is entitled to the use of the union label. To avoid the display of prejudices that may have been formed as a result of the previous entanglements, the arbitor who will pass upon the case will be one who has heretofore had no connection with it. He will be Charles Hardy, president of the Tobacco Workers' Union No. 16, of Louisville, Ky. Mr. Hardy is here, and has declared he will put forth every effort to settle the trouble here in a fair and impartial manner, and will merely sift the facts as presented.

The B. Leidersdorf Company operates a union shop and observes union rules, it is claimed by members of the organization. The reason the use of the union label has been refused is that it is claimed the company is a branch of the American Tobacco Co. The employes of the Leidersdorf factory side with the company.

TOBACCO SHOW FOR NEW YORK.

Will be Either in Madison Square Garden or Herald Square Hall.

New York, Jan. 17.

Because one of the busiest, Thomas J. Donigan is one the hardest men to catch either at his Centre street store, his Cortlandt street shop or at Association headquarters, but I coralled him this afternoon at the first address and asked him if it is true that he is one of the applicants for space in the Times building.

"Not much," he promptly answered, "not at a $5,000 rental. I don't think it would pay any cigar dealer to pay $5,000 unless he got plenty of window space to show off his goods."

Asked to review the business situation and trade conditions Mr. Donigan said:

"There is a general feeling that trade is fair, but I think myself that this is an optimistic view. I should say it was only middling, and with many I know it to be dull. There are certain conditions in connection with the cigar and tobacco trade which are not important factors in other lines of business, or at least not so apparent. For this very reason you cannot always figure on the trend of trade. Last year was a very unhealthy year in New York and much pneumonia prevailed, so that tobacconists and cigar dealers suffered a diminution of trade.

"Tell The Tobacco World something about the proposed exhibition. The Committee of Three will report progress at the next meeting of the Retail Dealers' Association on January 23, when Mr. Freeman will report on the Chicago Convention. There are over eleven hundred members of the Retail Cigar and Tobacco Dealers' Association, and if New York cannot make such an exhibition a success, I don't know any city that can. Aside from dealers and manufacturers I think that nearly everybody is interested in tobacco. Now the Philadelphia contingent broke the ice and opened up a field for tobacco exhibits, and I think ours will be a hummer, but it may not be ready by spring. The committee has decided on one of two exhibition halls, either Madison Square Garden, which will cost about $7,000 a week, or the Herald Square Exhibition Hall, which will cost about half that sum and yet afford almost as much area surface for exhibits.

"The objection to the latter hall is that it has to be reached by elevators, which is not the case at the garden. Still it will accommodate eighty exhibitors, including manufacturers of smoking and chewing tobaccos, cigars, boxes and labels. The admission should not be over 25 cents.

The United Cigar Stores Co., who a week ago adopted a system of insuring its adult employes, is gradually extending the work, paying the premiums on $1,000 policies for all men who have

SALES GOOD IN CINCINNATI.

Cincinnati, O., Jan. 17.

Offerings were fair in size at last Saturday's cigar leaf sales, the total being 85 cases with sales at three of the warehouses. Taken as a whole the quality was below the average. The Zimmers were the best feature, the greater portion of this type selling between 6¼ and 10c. In Connecticut wrapper the record price for over a year was established, a single case of fancy wrapper bringing the unusual figure of 42c, under keen competition. Connecticut binders ranged from 7½ and 15c, and fillers from 2 and 6¾c. Wisconsin's ranged from $1.55 and 2.60 per 100 pounds. The market was strong except on common stogie stock, averaging from ½ and 1c higher than at the last break which was 3 weeks previous.

The Planters' Warehouse, located at Vine and Water streets, resumed operations last week after idleness of six months. Hereafter, according to Manager Lee Spalding, both burley and cigar leaf sales will be held regularly.

Clement McIntyre, who for years was a conspicuous figure on the burley leaf breaks, acting as buyer for various eastern independent companies, has removed to Louisville where he opines the market is better suited to his purposes.

The following report was received Saturday by a local firm from Farmersville, Ohio: "Tobacco being stripped. It is in excellent condition, and general indications are that there will be a good crop."

The Wm. E. Fisher Tobacco Co. has secured a lease on the five story building at No. 126 East Pearl street, at $840 per annum. The building will be used as a warehouse.

Edward R. Singleton and P. G. Gordon, both of New York city, representatives of the Continental Tobacco Co., were mysterious visitors here last week. When asked their opinion concerning the possibilities of the Burley Growers' Association, concerning the 1903 crop, Mr. Gordon said:

"The plan does not look feasible to me. They have tried it a number of times but we were never caught asleep. Whenever it is attempted you usually find two people playing the same game and there is generally a pretty loud crash. Suppose the Association does corner the crop? They think they will force us to buy, and so do others. If we cannot get burley, we can get a substitute. You know 'necessity is the mother of invention' "significantly remarked Mr. Gordon. After they left the city, reports arrived of heavy purchases by combine buyers in Kentucky. At Owingsville a number of crops were purchased at top prices from 11 and 13¾c per pound. It is said that the Burley Association people have in no instance offered figures that high. At Lexington thousands of pounds were purchased at a general acreage of $11.50 per 100 pounds. BUHRMAN.

COLUMBUS FACTORY GROWING.

The business of the Martter Cigar Co. which established a factory in Columbus, O., has grown so that the factory now gives employment to about 300 cigarmakers. The output of the Columbus plant will average 100,000 cigars a day. The officers of the Martter Co. are Joseph F. Martter, president; F. A. G. Law, Secretary.

OHIO AUTHORITIES CONFISCATE CIGARS OF CUBAN SALESMEN.

Chillicothe, O., Jan. 7.

A sensation was created here last week when revenue authorities confiscated 2,500 cigars from Benjamin Sauases and I. Pinto, two Cubans, who claimed to be salesmen for a New York firm. It was alleged that the cigars were not properly stamped. At a preliminary hearing both men had their cases continued.

Good to Keep Good Cigars Good

Your Jobber will give you a Certificate covering small quantities, and when you accumulate Certificates showing purchases of 6,000 CREMO EXPORT Cigars, you will be entitled to one of these handsome Humidors free. :: ::

Size, 30 in. long, 22 in. wide, 25 in. high. Weight, 60 lbs.

THE above illustration is an exact representation of the Humidor in which Cremo Export Cigars are packed and shipped by the manufacturer. This Humidor holds 6,000 Cremo Export Cigars in boxes containing 100 cigars each. It is metal lined, metal covered, with strong brass lock, and heavy brass drop handles and brass trimmings, with moistener pad in top of lid, ventilator in each end, and attractively decorated in imitation cedar wood.

Each humidor is shipped in a wood case to protect it from being scratched or damaged in transit.

The purpose of the Humidor is to protect the cigars from the deteriorating effects of changes in temperature, and to preserve them in the same good order and condition in which they leave the factory. This it does perfectly for any length of time in any climate on the globe, until the last box is used.

Cremo Export Cigars are made only in Londres, which means a straight cigar, being practically the same size from end to end. This shape is more generally smoked than any other, the world over, which fact is a pretty convincing proof that it is the most popular as well as the most desirable shape in which cigars can be made.

If you serve your customer with a Cremo Export Cigar out of a Humidor, you give him the best five-cent cigar in the world in the best condition to please him and hold his patronage; if he is pleased with one he will be pleased with every one.

Send your jobber an order for 6,000 Cremo Export Cigars, and he will have them shipped to you direct from the factory in the Humidor, freight paid, and billed as 5,500, at $35.00 per thousand.

The CREMO CIGAR is by several times THE LARGEST SELLER IN THE WORLD.

MUCH CHEER IN LANCASTER.

Business is Better Than Was Expected and Trade is in Good Humor.

Lancaster, Pa., Jan. 16.

The volume of business done in the local leaf market during the past week has been an agreeable surprise since it was really larger than was expected it would be.

The new crop has been pretty well cleaned up. It is estimated that about three-fourths of the crop has been bought by packers and large manufacturers, and a considerable quantity of it is now beginning to arrive at warehouses. It is expected that, if the condition of the country roads improves any, it will not be long before sufficient tobacco will be in packers' hands to start up their respective warehouses in full blast.

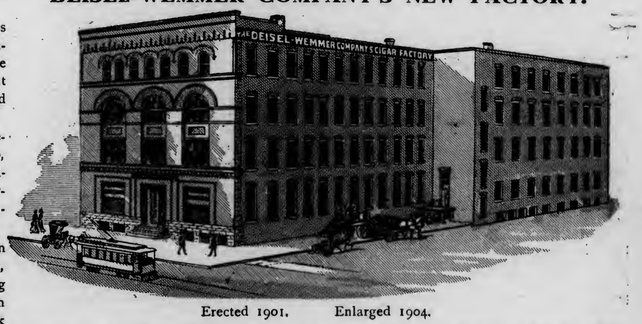
The Lancaster County Tobacco Growers' Association will hold a meeting today, which will be attended by Profs. Frear and Armstrong of the State Agricultural Department. It is also expected that resolutions will be adopted protesting against any further reduction in the tariff on tobacco from the Philippines. A request will also be made for governmental aid for experiments in curing tobacco in the shed.

H. W. Killian, a cigar manufacturer of Ephrata, was spending a few days in Philadelphia this week.

A charter has been applied for by the S. R. Moss Cigar Co., which is to have an authorized capital of $200,000, and which new corporation is to take over the present business of S. R. Moss, and also the Banner Cigar Company.

A. G. McLaughlin has discontinued the manufacture of cigars, and the premises at 228 W. Grant street are now occupied by C. K. Hengst & Co.

T. D. Hene, with Wedeles Bros., of Chicago, and R. M. Granat, of Gillen & Granat, were circulating among the Lancaster trade last week.



Visiting leaf salesmen are out in force this week, a greater number having been encountered than were met in any week of this year. They generally report a fair outlook for business.

WORLD'S FAIR TOBACCO SOLD.

Three of the hogsheads of tobacco shown in Kentucky's great exhibit at the St. Louis Fair were sold at auction last Wednesday on the Louisville breaks. One of these is a burley, another a Green River and the third a one sucker, and all three were recognized not only by the International Jury of Awards at the exposition as the best types of their variety ever displayed, but they are conceded by tobacco experts of Kentucky to be the best of the crop of 1903.

The hogsheads occupied conspicuous places in Kentucky's tobacco display which was given the largest amount of space devoted to any one product at the whole exposition. The money from the sale goes into the fund of the commission.

DEISEL-WEMMER COMPANY'S NEW FACTORY.

Erected 1901. Enlarged 1904.

The above is an illustration of the enlarged cigar factory of the Deisel-Wemmer Co., at Lima, O., which has just been completed. The main portion of the present building was erected about three years ago, and was 50x120 feet in dimensions, affording facilities for 500 hands.

The addition in the rear is 65x80 feet, and permits the employment of 200 more people, giving the company an output of about 1,000,000 cigars per week. Both the main building and annex are built of stone and brick, and contain four stories and basement.

This business was established in 1891 by Henry Deisel, and a few years ago was incorporated under the name of the Deisel-Wemmer Co., of which the following are the officers: Henry Deisel, president; William J. Wemmer, vice president; Henry G. Wemmer, general manager, and R. J. Plate, secretary and treasurer.

The company's popular leader is the San Felice 5c cigar, but this is by no means its only brand. The American Stag and Star Green are also good sellers in the nickel variety of output, while the General Stark, made in four sizes, is a strong leader with them in the 10c line.

The firm caters largely but not exclusively to the retail trade direct, and employs a force of ten salesmen. The product is almost wholly in hand-made goods, which are sold throughout the entire country. The San Felice has become a veritable password throughout Ohio and other Middle Western States, where the demand is growing at an astonishingly rapid rate. These goods are sold to the trade at $35, less the usual discount for cash in ten days.

"ORIGINAL PACKAGE" SETTLED.

Iowa Supreme Court Sustained by U. S. Supreme Bench.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.

The Iowa Anti-Cigarette law was upheld by the Supreme Court of the United States today in the cases of Charles P. Cook and Robert E. Hodge, affirming the decision of the Supreme Court of Iowa. The cigarettes were shipped into the State in small boxes, and the contention was made that, in enforcing the law, the State authorities were interfering with interstate commerce.

The Court refused, however, to hold that the small boxes were original packages, and concluded that the action of the State authorities in assessing a tax upon Cook and Hodge was no violation of their constitutional rights.

It has been understood that the American Tobacco Co. was backing the plaintiffs with the idea of getting a final question on this point of law.

The law prescribes that no goods must be sold except from the package which bears the stamp, and the controversy has been as to whether the large package in which the cigarettes are usually sold at wholesale is the original package from which, according to the law, goods must be sold, or if the small package of ten comes under the law. Small dealers who will sell less than ten, have contended that the second reading of the law is the correct one.

In the cases appealed, the claim is that a package of ten cigarettes is an original package in the meaning of the law. The packages were shipped loose to the retailers, without any other box, wrapping or other container. The position of the State authorities was that this method of shipping is altogether unusual, and is a mere subterfuge for the evasion of the law. They hold that the term "original package" means the package in which goods are usually sold at wholesale.

CHANGE IN H. N. MARTIN TOBACCO CO., OF LOUISVILLE.

Casselberry Dunkersch has been elected secretary and treasurer of the H. N. Martin Tobacco Co., of Louisville, Ky. He succeeds Edgar D. Martin, who has entered the tobacco business. W. G. Roark has been made manager of the sales department of the company. John W. Brown has been re elected president and W. S. Logan vice president and superintendent.

LANCASTER AGAINST TARIFF CUT.

County Tobacco Growers' Association on Record as Opposed to it.

Lancaster, Pa., Jan. 16.

The Lancaster County Tobacco Growers' Association held its annual meeting here today, when resolutions were unanimously adopted protesting against the reduction of the tariff on Philippine tobacco.

Several European manufacturers inquired whether or not they could purchase and pack in the local market, and to this President Herr replied that they would be welcome here.

William DeHaven, who had charge of the Lancaster County cigar and tobacco exhibit at the St. Louis Exposition, complained that he had not been paid, but that the matter had been taken to Governor Pennypacker, who directed the Pennsylvania Commissioners to the Exposition to pay the bill.

A committee was appointed to ask the Legislature for an increased appropriation for conducting the State experimental stations in this county.

FACTORIES BURNED IN YORK.

Three Cigar Plants are Destroyed by Fire of Unknown Origin.

York, Pa., Jan. 16.

Fire of an unknown origin destroyed three large frame cigar factories, owned by Thomas Adair, A. Fauth & Co. and James Adair, at Red Lion, and occupied by the respective owners and M. Kalisch & Co., at an early hour on Friday morning last, entailing a loss of approximately $13,000, a small part of which is covered by insurance.

The three factories were two-story frames with attics, and all were used as cigar factories. The fire was discovered at 12:45 o'clock in the factory occupied by Max Kalisch and James Adair, and it spread so rapidly that all efforts of the firemen to save the factories were futile. Henry Obendorf, watchman in Miller Bros.' cigar box factory, gave the alarm, and the people of the town responded promptly.

The Dallastown firemen were telephoned to come to the aid of the Red Lion department, but when it was seen that the fire would not spread beyond the burning cigar factories the request was countermanded.

The buildings were all partly filled with tobacco, cigars and machinery. The losses sustained are estimated as follows:

A. Fauth & Co., $1,200 on building, $700 on stock, insurance $1,400; James Adair, $5,000 on stock, fixtures and building, $2,800 insurance; Thomas Adair, $2,000 on building and stock, insurance $500 on stock; Max Kalisch, $3,500 on stock and fixtures, $1,000 insurance; St. Paul's United Evangelical Church, damage to windows and stable, $400, windows covered by insurance.

Kohler-Snyder Cigar Co., of York, which won a gold medal for the cigars exhibited at the St. Louis Exposition, received the award last week and it is now on exhibition. It is highly prized by the firm.

F. H. POWELL'S "OXUS."

There is not another man in Camden who has done more effective work in the cigar industry than F. H. Powell, 126 Federal street. "Oxus," which is the name of Mr. Powell's specialty has become a sort of pass word with the cigar-loving people throughout the State, and is fast becoming firmly entrenched in its bordering city Philadelphia.

The cigar has been on the market many years and each succeeding year's sales show a healthy increase. The sales in Philadelphia have grown marvelously fast, and a branch office is being conducted at 5 Market street.

Mr. Powell is not only well known throughout New Jersey, where he is extremely popular, but he is also prominently indentified with the trade in Pennsylvania and is President of the Powell-Witter, Leninger Co., of Reading, extensive manufacturers of high grade cigars. It is at this factory that the Oxus is made.

Some months ago a new dress was given the Oxus, which has greatly added to its attractiveness and general improvement of its appearance. The brand is made up in several of the more popular sizes and is sold to retailers at $35 per thousand, less the usual cash discount.

NUBBINS FROM READING.

Good Business, but Not Much of News Interest.

Reading, Pa., Jan. 16.

The Reading trade continues in high spirits over the way business is commencing this year, and a majority of the factories have ample orders on hand to keep them running steadily.

The Fleck Cigar Co. is especially busy at present, and prospects are for a continued good trade.

John U. Fehr & Son in 1904 had the biggest year's business in the history of the house. In fact, their business has grown at a wonderfully rapid rate,

The new factory of Otto Eisenlohr & Bros. is rapidly nearing completion, and will soon be ready for occupancy.

ALLENTOWN NEWS.

Allentown, Pa., Jan. 16.

Trade has opened nicely, jobbers and retail dealers in paricular reporting a fairly good trade for this season of the year.

Julius Alvarez & Co. have the recently opened factory filled with a force of thoroughly skilled cigarmakers and are turning out a fine large line of goods.

Victor Thorsch Co. open a new factory today at Coplay, with a force of seventy-five cigarmakers. They have been unremittingly busy during the whole of the holiday season. Sales of the Bachelor are growing steadily. Buster Brown is a new 5 cent product which they are just marketing, and an innovation for this firm is being introduced with this brand. The goods will be banded, and the bands will be redeemed at the firm's main office in Allentown.

Berninger Bros. are operating with a full force and have a good lot of orders on hand for their Golden Horse Shoe brand of 5 cent cigars. Bondy & Lederer's factory is also very busy. ALLEN.

Palm Rolling Essential to Hand-Work.

THIS IS THE SIMPLEST AND MOST PRACTICAL TOOL yet introduced in connection with Cigar-making. The cutting rollers are so equipped with ball bearings and exterior springs that they only produce enough pressure to cut the leaf, thus maintaining a sharp edge on the die and assuring a perfect, clean cut, superior to hand-work. The circumference of the cutting roller being greater than the length of the die, makes tearing or streaking of the wrapper impossible. Then, after the leaf has been cut, a slight depression with the right foot pedal will lower the die even with the table, thus making a perfectly smooth and rigid surface, enabling the operator to Roll with the Full Palm of the Hand, instead of pushing the cigar along with the finger tips.

Changing of the die to any shape, or from right to left, or the reverse, is a very simple matter on this table, and can be done within two minutes time.

These points of merit, coupled with others not mentioned, have won for this table the high standard of excellence maintained to-day, a fact that cannot conscientiously be claimed by any of our competitors.

We stand ready to prove our statement, and all we ask is for the opportunity.

We Think IT WILL PAY YOU to Investigate.

CUBAN STAMP NOW ON BOXES.

Pasted on the Bottom of the Box and Has Not Attracted Great Attention.

The export stamp which has just been issued by the union of manufacturers in Cuba is now in active operation and is seen on all the later importations in every cigar store handling that class of goods. Practically all Havana manufacturers are using the stamps on goods shipped not only to the United States but to every other country.

The stamp was reproduced actual size in The Tobacco World of two weeks ago and as was at once noticed, is considerably larger than the old red import stamp of the United States. It is of a quiet color, however, and all those which have been seen so far by the writer were pasted on the bottom of the package where it could not readily be noticed.

A dealer whose trade is largely in imported goods was asked whether the stamp had thus far attracted much attention among his customers:

"No, it has not," he declared. "I don't think there has been a single comment made yet, although at that I have had the stamp in the store only a short time.

"Oh, some men are very quick to notice such things," he continued, in answer to a question. "But it has just happened that none of that sort has seen the box yet. At a rough guess, I should say that with my trade, about seven men out of 25 would immediately notice any change in the markings or form of the package containing their favorite brand.

"For instance, the very firsr time I put out a box with a new U. S. stamp on to a customer, he exclaimed on the second: 'I don't want that; where's the red stamp?'

"Of course it was precisely the same cigar in every way that he had been buying, and I explained the situation to him and showed him the smaller stamp on the bottom of the box. He took it all in, and I suppose believed me, but he made me get a box with the old stamp on that I had in stock for him to select from.

"On the other hand, the next five men who asked for imported cigars didn't pay the slightest attention to what the box looked like, but simply verified the label at a glance, took their cigars and went out.

"And as I said, there hasn't a word been said yet about the Cuban stamp, but the next man who comes in is likely to see it at a glance."

FARMERS MUSTN'T BREAK WORD.

Growers' Association Will Prosecute if Tobacco is Not Forthcoming

Clarksville, Tenn., Jan. 12.

Chairman Felix, of the Dark Tobacco Growers' Association, has received instructions to take legal steps against farmers and buyers who violate their pledges to the organization.

It is not believed that there will be many instances where such steps will be necessary, but it is considered best to be prepared and the chairman proposes to act vigorously if it becomes necessary.

As a result of a conference between a special committee from the Association and the owners of a number of prizing houses, it has been arranged that the prizers shall furnish the house, hogsheads, execute bond for faithful duty, uniform assorting and regularly packing so as to prevent leakings. The prizer will also pay the cost of insurance while the tobacco is in their house. The farmer is to deliver the tobacco, be responsible for the order in which it is delivered and remove the tobacco to the storage house after it has been prized.

It was agreed that the uniform price for prizing should be 75 cents per 100. The prizer will also give the farmer a certificate stating the amount of tobacco delivered, which can be deposited by those desiring to have money advanced. Twenty-two prizers in this section agree to prize for the farmers upon the above conditions.

MARKET ACTIVE IN RICHMOND.

Greater Now Than Any Time Since Holidays.

Richmond, Jan. 14.

The local tobacco warehouses this week took on a greater amount of activity than at any time since the resumption of sales after the holidays. O. Shelburn's warehouse reported a fine sale of about 40,000 pounds and a top notch price of $26, which is the highest price since the beginning of the new year. All grades sold well and the farmers went home well pleased and saying that they will return with more tobacco as soon as they can conveniently do so.

E. Shockhoe sold about 40,000 pounds at good prices. The other houses had smaller sales, but ones that showed the market to be in good condition.

RETAIL TRADE BETTER IN BOSTON.

Some of the Brands That are Moving Out Best.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 15.

The trade has improved a trifle during the past week on what it has been since New Years, and the wholesalers seem to be confident that business will improve much more in the next few weeks especially now that the Falls River strike has been settled temporarily and the mills have started again. Many firms in this city were effected a great deal by this strike, and for months it was almost useless for salesmen to go there.

Sig. Baum, with the Turco-American Tobacco Co., spent a few days here this week, and had no trouble getting orders. The Omega is the best 5 cent Turkish cigarette selling in this locality.

The American Tobacco Co. has a salesman here placing two new brands of Turkish cigarettes, Bizak, a 10 package plain tip, the price of which is $7.00 per M, (and they give gratis with each thousand 4 packages of Turkish Trophies and 4 packages of Moguls) and the Murad, a 15 cent Turkish cigarette, is being sold at $10 per M., a similar package to the Moguls.

A. H. Hill, the well known Water street cigar jobbers left on Thursday for a brief business trip to New York. Mr. Hall is the distributor for Boston for Straitton & Storm's goods.

Geo. S. Harris & Co. are having quite a trade on their Prince of Wales cigar, in their new Howard and Court street store.

L. Miller & Sons, of New York, announce a deal on their Kozy 2¼ ounce 5 cent package and with every 5 pounds they offer 50 Puritans gratis. This deal terminates February 15.

"Edgeworth" made by Larus Bros. Co. is selling nicely and is packed in three styles 4, 8 and 16 oz. tins.

F. X. Oberle Co.'s Bostonia 10 cent cigar is rapidly forging its way to the front in popularity. F. J. Greener, Jr., is now representing the firm on the road and suburbs.

F. R. Grim & Co., 85 Dover street, who make a specialty of jobbing union and independent goods exclusively, are increasing their business daily. Their leaders in 5 cent cigars are, U Can't Beat It and El Cafe Bouquets.

Joe Gordon, of Gordon Bros., the south end tobacconists, contemplates getting married some time in March.

M. Falk, of the Falk Tobacco Co., is calling on the local trade. Mr. Falk is very popular here on account of his long connection with the late firm of Cameron & Cameron.

The American Tobacco Co. is about to place on the market here a new short smoke similar to Leroy little cigars that will retail at ten for fifteen cents. The name of the brand is Flexo.

A. Shadoff has been engaged by J. O. Cohn as city salesman.

During the past week there has been quite some business done on the Pride of Virginia sliced cut tobacco, as many of the jobbers are well stocked with same. Having obtained it with tags and coupons of the Floradora Tag Co., it stands them very low in price.

Grumbler cigars are selling well here. C. H. Carruth & Co. who operate one of the largest bowling alleys here, placed a nice order for some of these cigars this week.

Sam Marcuson, representing the American Tobacco Co., is certainly making good on the Hassan cigarettes and these goods can be found in almost every first class cigar store in Boston. BEN ALI.

ROYAL CIGAR CO. ORGANIZED.

New York Concern is Thought to be Part of United Cigar Stores Co.

New York, Jan. 13.

The Royal Cigar Co., with a capital of $250,000 is the latest in the field in this city, and the new firm commences business with John F. Whelan, of the United Cigar Stores Co. at its head.

The company last week purchased the cigar store at Twenty-sixth and Broadway, the fitting up of which place is said to have cost $150,000. The change of ownership took place on January 9.

The Royal Cigar Company has been organized under the laws of this State. The capital stock is set at $250,000. John F. Whelan, of Syracuse, is the president, and several men well known in the tobacco trade are said to be interested. The company announces that it will run a chain of cigar stores in New York, to deal in high grade goods. It is said to be looking for other eligible locations, especially for one on Wall street.

The Whelans who own and operate hundreds of stores throughout the United States under the corporate name of the United Cigar Stores Company are, it is believed, the principal owners of this new company, which while apparently a competing company, is apparently to work in harmony with it.

It is thought that through the new company, the organizers of the United Cigar Stores Co. desire to market a better grade of goods than is the case with the United Stores.

The store in question was opened a year ago by the Havana Cigar Company and has been considered one of the handsomest establishments in New York city.

INCORPORATIONS.

Judge Joseph Henry Lumpkin, of the Superior Court, has granted a charter to the Southern Cigar Co., the incorporators of which are F. R. Jamison and E. W. Hallowell. The company will deal in all kinds of tobaccos and manufacture cigars.

Articles of incorporation have been filed with the Secretary of State by Ferris & Grady, wholesale cigars and tobacco, Minneapolis. Capital stock $25,000. Incorporators, James R. Ferris, Wm. H. Burd, and James H. Grady.

The Independent Cigar and Tobacco Co., of Boston, has been incorporated with a capital of $250,000. The promoters are P. S. Chase, A. P. Goodell and M. I. O'Donnell.

The C. A. Smith Cigar Co., with a capital of $5,000, has been incorporated at Binghamton, N. Y., by Charles A. Smith, Menz W. Goodell and William S. Polly.

The Thomas Cigar Co., of Chicago, has been incorporated by M. Salamon, N. A. Stern, and Menzo I. Rosenbaum, with a capital of $2,500.

Leaf Tobacco Markets.

CONNECTICUT VALLEY

For a distance of about one mile each way from my home, on the road from Greenfield to Northampton, there were raised last season 148 acres of tobacco, yielding on an average 1,500 pounds per acre, or 220,500 pounds, and the probable price will not be far from 15c per pound. For this the farmers will receive over $31,000; how much of this will stick to the inside linings of their pocketbooks is a problem. With a poor crop last year, and the probable indebtedness for fertilizer for the raising of this year's crop, and the paying for fertilizer for the coming crop, my opinion is that with some there will be a very small surplus left for a working fund. I wish it might be larger than it will probably be. With the increased amount of the crop to be raised this year I think more of the money coming may be allowed to stay with the workers.

Our correspondents write:

Montague, Mass.: "A. M. Lyman sold three acres at 13c. Donaldson & Brown, about two acres at 13½c. I think farmers have their tobacco all stripped now."

Hadley, Mass.: "The tobacco crop of 1904 has been about all taken down and is being stripped and in the bundle; 16c seems about what the buyers are paying per pound. No sales have been reported as yet this week."

Conway, Mass.: "We have had considerable activity here in the past week in the tobacco business. We had a fine, damp time and all but one grower finished taking down and we are having a fine, nice, warm time to strip without taking it in by a fire. Nearly all the tobacco here is sold. Those who sold last week are H. T. Newhall, H. D. Pease, Charles Parsons & Son, G. H. Johnson, D. Newhall, D. Weston; prices ranging from 11@14c in bundle."

Suffield, Ct.: "Tobacco men are interested in an experiment tried by W. S. Pinney, of Suffield, who this year, instead of cutting his crop in the usual way, picked six tons of it, using the method employed in the harvesting the shade-grown. Mr. Pinney is enthusiastic over the plan, but says its value cannot be estimated until the crop has been through the sweat. Now it is in excellent condition and is a very handsome crop. He made two pickings; one included all but the four top leaves, and the second the top leaves. One leaf is packed at a time, and forty leaves put on one lath. As each leaf is separate there is no danger of polesweat. He thinks by this method more weight to the acre can be obtained. The cost of picking, hanging and getting the leaves into bundles averages about $6, or $3 more than the old way. The longed for damp spell came Tuesday, and all were quick to take advantage of it and get their tobacco down. Buyers are looking at the crops, and I hear of one sale at 16c."

Bradstreet, Mass.: "I have to report the sale of one crop of tobacco of 14 acres at 18c, sold by Oscar Belden & Sons. Stripping all done."—American Cultivator.

EDGERTON, WIS.

The week has been largely a stormy one, holding back a good deal of riding in country districts that otherwise might have been done. The new crop is receiving some attention but not much organized effort to take it over is noticeable. Prices for choice lots bring anywhere from 7 to 10 cents for bundle delivery. The search for old leaf continues so that the deliveries made at packing points are about equally divided between the new and cured tobaccos.

F. S. Baines purchased a 175cs lot of old goods of Chris Olson of Stoughton. W. T. Pomeroy & Co. sold 200cs of '02 and '03 leaf.

The handling of the new crop is now under way at several packing points and the number of warehouses opened will be increased soon. It is believed the deliveries will be sufficient to keep them steadily running, though not over 25 per cent of the Crawford county leaf has been removed from the poles to date. The American Tobacco Co. intends to commence warehouse handling at several packing points the coming week.

Shipments were 947cs.—Reporter.

CLARKSVILLE, TENN.

M. H. Clark & Bro.

Our receipts this week were 20 hhds., offerings on the breaks 45 hhds., public and private sales 93 hhds.

The quality of the offerings was poor, with a full proportion of nondescript leaf.

The market was active and rather stronger in price. Holders of what remains of the 1903 crop look for higher prices, as the new crop is held at very much larger figures than those ruling for old tobacco, the gap between the two is a wide one. The hands of the Planters' Association are strengthened by the steady signing of crops to its management and a full reduction of this year's planting is generally discussed.

There is but little doing in the loose tobacco market. The weather for the past week has been cold with one snow storm.

For Old Tobacco, we quote:

Low Lugs	$3.50 to $3.75
Common Lugs	3.75 to 4.00
Medium Lugs	4.00 to 4.25
Good Lugs	4.25 to 4.75
Low Leaf	4.75 to 5.50
Common Leaf	5.75 to 6.75
Medium Leaf	7.00 to 8.00

GERMAN FARMERS' QUAINT WAYS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10.

United States Consul Brittain, at Kehl, Germany, writes the following interesting matter concerning the small planters in Baden and their primitive methods of cultivating tobacco. Consul Brittain says that in the Grand Duchy of Baden during 1903 there were engaged in the cultivation of tobacco 35,091 small planters who had under cultivation 16,610 acres, chiefly in the valley of the Rhine. Many of the plots contain but a few square rods of land, cultivated by men and women working side by side in the fields. The total value of the crop harvested in 1903 was $1,541,466. There were 848 less acres of land under cultivation than in 1902, and 2,327 fewer planters engaged in the business, and the decrease in the value of the crop was $393.389.

The leading causes for this decrease, says Consul Brittain, were the difficulty in obtaining young plants and the unsteady condition of the tobacco market. While the crop of 1903 was below the average the quality was good and the planters realized an average price of a fraction over 5 cents a pound when the tobacco was dried. The 1904 crop has not been marketed, but will be less than that of 1903, as there were 903 acres less planted.

In Alace-Lorraine 3,456 acres were planted in 1903, yielding 7,810,582 pounds which sold at an average of 5.7 cents a pound. The quality of the tobacco in Alsace Lorraine was not very good, and the indications are that the crop of 1904 will be considerably less than that of 1903, as the area pianted is 3,348 acres less.

The farmer or planter is not obliged to pay any tax on his tobacco, but as soon as it passes out of his hands an excise duty of $10.71 per 220.46 pounds must be paid. Many of these small planters or farmers handle their tobacco in a very primitive manner. When the tobacco is cut the leaves are hauled to the home of the planter in old wagons drawn by one or two cows. The leaves are then hung up to dry in rows around the outside of the house or other buildings. Some of the more extensive planters have special drying houses.

CALL IN SUCH SLUSH.

Independent Chicago Dealers Should Suppress Newspaper Silliness.

Some time ago an extract from a Chicago daily paper was printed in these columns and comment was made that such rot was doing the independent dealers in that city more harm than good in their fight against the United Cigar Stores Company. The article in question was a highly flavored account of a reputed encounter between a trust salesman, an independent dealer and a symthetic customer, in which the first was put to rout, and the affair was about as plausible as a sale of rain coats in the Sahara.

Here is another, recently printed in the Chicago Journal, the same paper which has printed continued installments of such slush:

"Salting the brands" is a phrase that smokers are now becoming well acquainted with, and in consequence the goods of the tobacco trust are being left in their gaudy boxes instead of making Chicago smokers dizzy.

An amusing incident, showing how quickly smokers have caught on to the scheme of placing inferior cigars under well known names, is related by a prominent dealer.

"A well dressed man entered my store a few days ago, briskly laid down a quarter, and asked for a couple of cigars. When the clerk passed over the box the customer looked at them and became very much confused.

"Are those really good cigars?" he asked.

"They are as good as any in the market," replied the clerk.

"I don't think they are," said the man. "They look all right, but I guess I won't buy."

"What objection have you to this brand?" asked the astonished clerk.

"Well," said the doubting Thomas, "you people used to have some good cigars once on a time, but they are all out of the market. You control good locations, but I may as well be candid. You are 'salting' the brands."

Before the clerk could recover his breath the man was outside.

A minute later the same customer was back at the counter.

"Good Lord," he gasped; "I thought this was one of those stores where they work off cheap cigars in high class boxes. The joke is on me and I'll take a box of those perfectos I was looking at."

The sooner the independent dealers in Chicago, or anywhere else, awake to the fact that such "pipes" as this will only injure their cause, the better off they will be. The newspaper in question recently printed a large advertisement for the independents and is evidently desirous of making good.

The Tobacco World would like to see the independents succeed and offers as the best possible advice the suggestion that the dealers call off this Chinatown reporter.

—The Wisconsin Cigar Co. of Madison, by its president, N. P. Strause, and secretary, H. M. Curtis, filed an amendment increasing its capital from $10,000 to $25,000.

CUBAN RECIPROCITY WISE MEASURE BUT TARIFF CUT BAD.

President Frye, of New England Growers' Association, Defends Senator Platt's Cuban Amendments which Association Originally Opposed, but Scores Secretary Taft's Philippine Reduction.

Hartford, Conn., Jan. 20.

The recent annual meeting of the New England Tobacco Growers' Association held in this city was remarkable for its vigor and enthusiasm which showed the organization to be brimful of life and one of the strong bodies to be reckoned with by those in favor of adverse legislation relating to the tobacco trade.

H. S. Frye, of Poquonock, who was again elected to the presidency after a vacation from the office of two years, made an extremely interesting address, of which a portion follows, placing himself on record as in favor of Cuban reciprocity. He took up the cudgels for Senator Orville H. Platt, whose measure was originally opposed by the Association. Mr. Frye said that he accepted the presidency again as not only a vindication of himself, but of Senator Platt, who had favored Cuban reciprocity. If he (Mr. Frye) had been at home the five years that he had been at Washington he would have looked at the question in the same way as the farmers in this section. Speaking further, he said in substance:

I fully endorse and heartily sympathize with the tobacco farmers in their opposition to the extremely low rates of duty proposed on Philippine tobacco, but I have no sympathy with that bigoted fanaticism which, stooping to misrepresentation and bearing false testimony, could drive the New England Association into opposition to one of the wisest, one of the most just and equitable, one of the most necessary and honorable measures, that have ever redounded to the honor and credit of this country; an opposition, too, that could not be justified even under the most selfish considerations of self interest, for the result has proved the truth of my contention then, that reciprocity with Cuba could not injure the tobacco interests of New England to the amount of a single dollar.

And today the whole diplomatic world regards those two measures—Cuban reciprocity and its projenitor—the Platt amendments to the Cuban constitution—as among the most noted examples of wise statesmanship and diplamatic beneficence ever recorded. Through the beneficent effect of these two measures, one of which the New England Association is on record as opposing, we were instrumental in founding a new republic, struggling in poverty and clothed in rags 'tis true, yet working bravely and hopefully on to the attainment of that dream of every Cuban patriot, when Cuba shall become the home of a free, happy, contented people.

I thought I knew something about the Cuban question, but Senator Platt knew a great deal more about it than I did, for his opportunities of knowing were vastly greater and better than mine. Now if Senator Platt was right I was right. If I was wrong Senator Platt was wrong. But who in the light of actual facts today dares question the honesty, the good judgment, or patriotism of Senator Platt in this matter? But laying aside all that Senator Platt knew or said on the question, what did happen in the absence of those two measures? Porto Rico, a densely populated island, and the Philippines a vast archipelago with (it is said) 8,000,000 of people, were annexed. For a long time now Porto Rican tobacco and cigars have been coming here, free of any duty at all, and now you are up against the issue of a very low tariff on Philippine tobacco, with the prospect of none at all in the not distant future—an issue you will have to meet and one I expect you will have to accept, too, sooner or later, whether you like it or not.

And so now, in the light of experience and the logic of historical facts, justifying as they do the prophesy of what would have happened to Cuba had we become a nation of repudiators and through servile fears refused to keep our pledges because we were vastly bigger and stronger than the child of our own creation, I thank God when the crucial test came I was not found lined up with that cabal of beet sugar insurrectos whose every claim was a falsehood, whose every prophesy proved untrue.

The following resolutions were adopted by the Association:

Resolved, That the New England Tobacco Growers' Association regard with great interest the tobacco seed selection work of the bureau of plant industry of the Department of Agriculture, which aims to improve the strains of tobacco seed through the closer observation and selection of the seed plants and the discarding of the inferior individual plants, instead of allowing such inferior characteristics to be reproduced.

Resolved, That we urge the continuance of the work of the bureau of plant industry particularly to demonstrate whether the improved characteristics as obtained in the past two years are sufficiently fixed and permanent as to be regularly transmitted in future plant generations.

Resolved, That we request our senators and reprentatives in Congress to aid in continuing the appropriations for the work.

Resolved, That the present tariff rate on tobacco from foreign countries is satisfatory to the New England Tobacco Growers' Association and we earnestly request our senators and representatives in Congress to use as far as possible their influence to maintain the same rate of duty.

—McGee Bros., of Janesville, Wis., dealers in leaf tobacco, are building a large addition to their warehouse on North Academy street, which will greatly facilitate their handling the 1904 crop. The addition will contain 1,200 feet of floor space.

TARIFF CUT WOULD AFFECT ALL.

Well Known Leaf Dealer Explains the Situation.

"All tobacco interests in the United States will be affected by the proposed reductions in the duties of imports" said W. F. Englehardt, of the firm of Englehardt Brothers., wholesale toboaco leaf dealers of Milwaukee, who is qualified to speak on such subjects.

"The Philippine islands raise enough tobacco to supply the whole of this country. At the present time, duties remaining as they are, Philippine dealers are able to deliver supplies of cigars in the States at from $12 to $15, of a grade which the dealer in this country pays his men from $12 to $15 for making. Tobacco dealers might not be affected directly but the result of such a reduction would be felt by them. The grower and cigarmaker would suffer directly, and in this way other departments of the business would be affected.

"Cheap labor of the Philippines is responsible for these conditions. Where labor can be hired for scarcely a living wage the finished tobacco can be delivered here, all expenses paid, at a figure equal to that which it cost a dealer of the States to work up the article. I cannot say whether the trust would control the tobacco in the islands, if such a reduction was made. It is probable, however, that they would in time.

"Wisconsin is one of the leading tobacco growing States in the nation. Other States are nearly as greatly interested. The plant is being cultivated until we are able to produce tobacco here that compares favorably with that grown in the Philippines. It may be necessary to develop the interests of our new possessions, but I doubt if it is wise to do it at the expense of our home industries."

CIGARMAKERS' UNION ACTS.

Circulars Have Been Sent Out Instructing Protest Against Philippine Cut.

General President G. W. Perkins, of the Cigarmakers' Union has sent out circulars to every local in the union urging the recipients to communicate with the Congressmen and Senators of their State requesting them to use their influence against the bill proposing to cut the tariff rate from the Philippines.

President Perkins writes that the cigarmakers in the islands are paid no more than 37 cents per day, and that the freight charges are hardly a factor in the retail price. The general belief is that if such a law is passed it will kill the cigar industry in every large city in the country for the reason that on account of such low wages the Philippine product could be laid down in New York for next to nothing, driving out the cigars made in this country by better paid labor.

CALL IN SUCH SLUSH.

Independent Chicago Dealers Should Suppress Newspaper Silliness.

Some time ago an extract from a Chicago daily paper was printed in these columns and comment was made that such rot was doing the independent dealers in that city more harm than good in their fight against the United Cigar Stores Company. The article in question was a highly flavored account of a reputed encounter between a trust salesman, an independent dealer and a sympathetic customer, in which the first was put to rout, and the affair was about as plausible as a sale of rain coats in the Sahara.

Here is another, recently printed in the Chicago Journal, the same paper which has printed continued installments of such slush:

"Salting the brands" is a phrase that smokers are now becoming well acquainted with, and in consequence the goods of the tobacco trust are being left in their gaudy boxes instead of making Chicago smokers dizzy.

An amusing incident, showing how quickly smokers have caught on to the scheme of placing inferior cigars under well known names, is related by a prominent dealer.

"A well dressed man entered my store a few days ago, briskly laid down a quarter, and asked for a couple of cigars. When the clerk passed over the box the customer looked at them and became very much confused.

"Are those really good cigars?" he asked.

"They are as good as any in the market," replied the clerk.

"I don't think they are," said the man. "They look all right, but I guess I won't buy."

What objection have you to this brand?" asked the astonished clerk.

"Well," said the doubting Thomas, "you people used to have some good cigars once on a time, but they are all out of the market. Yon control good locations, but I may as well be candid. You are 'salting' the brands."

Before the clerk could recover his breath the man was outside.

A minute later the same customer was back at the counter.

"Good Lord," he gasped; "I thought this was one of those stores where they work off cheap cigars in high class boxes. The joke is on me and I'll take a box of those perfectos I was looking at."

The sooner the independent dealers in Chicago, or anywhere else, awake to the fact that such "pipes" as this will only injure their cause, the better off they will be. The newspaper in question recently printed a large advertisement for the independents and is evidently desirous of making good.

The Tobacco World would like to see the independents succeed and offers as the best possible advice the suggestion that the dealers call off this Chinatown reporter.

—The Wisconsin Cigar Co. of Madison, by its president, N. P. Strause, and secretary, H. M. Curtis, filed an amendment increasing its capital from $10,000 to $25,000.

CUBAN RECIPROCITY WISE MEASURE BUT TARIFF CUT BAD.

Hartford, Conn., Jan. 20.

The recent annual meeting of the New England Tobacco Growers' Association held in this city was remarkable for its vigor and enthusiasm which showed the organization to be brimful of life and one of the strong bodies to be reckoned with by those in favor of adverse legislation relating to the tobacco trade.

H. S. Frye, of Poquonock, who was again elected to the presidency after a vacation from the office of two years, made an extremely interesting address, of which a portion follows, placing himself on record as in favor of Cuban reciprocity. He took up the cudgels for Senator Orville H. Platt, whose measure was originally opposed by the Association. Mr. Frye said that he accepted the presidency again as not only a vindication of himself, but of Senator Platt, who had favored Cuban reciprocity. If he (Mr. Frye) had been at home the five years that he had been at Washington he would have looked at the question in the same way as the farmers in this section. Speaking further, he said in substance:

I fully endorse and heartily sympathize with the tobacco farmers in their opposition to the extremely low rates of duty proposed on Philippine tobacco, but I have no sympathy with that bigoted fanaticism which, stooping to misrepresentation and bearing false testimony, could drive the New England Association into opposition to one of the wisest, one of the most just and equitable, one of the most necessary and honorable measures, that have ever redounded to the honor and credit of this country; an opposition, too, that could not be justified even under the most selfish considerations of self interest, for the result has proved the truth of my contention then, that reciprocity with Cuba could not injure the tobacco interests of New England to the amount of a single dollar.

And today the whole diplomatic world regards those two measures—Cuban reciprocity and its projenitor—the Platt amendments to the Cuban constitution—as among the most noted examples of wise statesmanship and diplamatic beneficence ever recorded. Through the beneficent effect of these two measures, one of which the New England Association is on record as opposing, we were instrumental in founding a new republic, struggling in poverty and clothed in rags 'tis true, yet working bravely and hopefully on to the attainment of that dream of every Cuban patriot, when Cuba shall become the home of a free, happy, contented people.

I thought I knew something about the Cuban question, but Senator Platt knew a great deal more about it than I did, for his opportunities of knowing were vastly greater and better than mine. Now if Senator Platt was right I was right. If I was wrong Senator Platt was wrong. But who in the light of actual facts today dares question the honesty, the good judgment, or patriotism of Senator Platt in this matter? But laying aside all that Senator Platt knew or said on the question, what did happen in the absence of those two measures? Porto Rico, a densely populated island, and the Philippines a vast archipelago with (it is said) 8,000,000 of people, were annexed. For a long time now Porto Rican tobacco and cigars have been coming here, free of any duty at all, and now you are up against the issue of a very low tariff on Philippine tobacco, with the prospect of none at all in the not distant future—an issue you will have to meet and one I expect you will have to accept, too, sooner or later, whether you like it or not.

And so now, in the light of experience and the logic of historical facts, justifying as they do the prophesy of what would have happened to Cuba had we become a nation of repudiators and through servile fears refused to keep our pledges because we were vastly bigger and stronger than the child of our own creation, I thank God when the crucial test came I was not found lined up with that cabal of beet sugar insurrectos whose every claim was a falsehood, whose every prophesy proved untrue.

The following resolutions were adopted by the Association:

Resolved, That the New England Tobacco Growers' Association regard with great interest the tobacco seed selection work of the bureau of plant industry of the Department of Agriculture, which aims to improve the strains of tobacco seed through the closer observation and selection of the seed plants and the discarding of the inferior individual plants, instead of allowing such inferior characteristics to be reproduced.

Resolved, That we urge the continuance of the work of the bureau of plant industry particularly to demonstrate whether the improved characteristics as obtained in the past two years are sufficiently fixed and permanent as to be regularly transmitted in future plant generations.

Resolved, That we request our senators and reprentatives in Congress to aid in continuing the appropriations for the work.

Resolved, That the present tariff rate on tobacco from foreign countries is satisfatory to the New England Tobacco Growers' Association and we earnestly request our senators and representatives in Congress to use as far as possible their influence to maintain the same rate of duty.

The Old Salesman's Musings.

A BROTHER OLD-TIMER MAKES A FEW REMARKS

The musing habit among old time salemen seems to be contagious, as the following few remarks have been received from "an old Knight of the Grip." This knight, after mournfully comparing the silver and gold days of the past to the sad present, takes occasion to air a grievance, the timeliness of which will be appreciated by many a leaf dealer.

THE OLD SALESMAN.

When I get retrospective and look back to the good old times when the traveling man's existence was a thing of joy and compare it with the strenuous times we are now experiencing it makes me give expression to the old saying that "good things never last."

When I first started on the road some twenty-five years ago I simply had to present my card, to be sure of a hearty reception and an invitation to call on the man's family. I was handed a good cigar and was generally treated hail fellow well met. My prospective buyer would call at my hotel, look over my samples and buy about twice, yes, three times as much as I could sell the same man now with the same amount of working force.

Now, when I call on the trade I am given a more or less frosty reception, and after separating myself from a quarter for which I get two, as a general thing, bum cigars—the customer takes the other—I am told with a glassy eye that "Mr. Blank, your competitor, was here yesterday and sold me a case of tobacco that has yours "skinned to death," for 2 cents a pound less than you want."

Then I am asked to buy a ticket for a raffle on a gold mounted pipe and to cap the climax my customer's children came in with miniature bricks selling at only 5 cents apiece to help build a church. Then I am likely to be told that when I call again and have some cheap goods (quoting price about 20 per cent under market values) he may look me over.

The outlook for business this year is of the brightest. Tobacco is high and for that reason none of the manufacturers large or small are overstocked and consequently salesmen will have no trouble to dispose of goods that are desirable, as I have never seen good tobacco scarcer that it is now.

I can only explain this by saying that the demand has almost doubled, but the acreage hasn't increased to any visible extent. Would advise any farmer who has good rich soil to raise tobacco and he can command a good price for it, and get it at that. The jobber today is in an unenviable position. Formerly the large packers and importers sold only to jobbers, whereas now they cater direct to the manufacturers and none are too small for them. I know of several instances where one of our leading concerns sent a small manufacturer samples of Sumatra and he being unable to pay the duty cash, they sold him at "long" price glad to take his promises to pay for what they had already paid duty.

Such competition makes a jobber feel like licking his grandmother, but that is what he has to buck against and even worse. The evil of selling a man 50 cases of tobacco, letting him take them as he needs them, and settle from date of shipment, storage and insurance free for an indefinite period, seems to be increasing instead of diminishing. Competition is so keen that dealers give more liberal terms than in any other legitimate business. Profits are cut to a minimum and at the end of the year Mr. Dealer says: "I have done a big business but where is the money?"

I wish we could stamp out this evil. If a man wants 5 cases of tobacco, let him buy it and not carry 50 when he needs only 5 at a time. The chances are if the market slumps, the buyer will say with tears in his eyes: "I'm sorry but I can't use your goods any more as they don't fit my combination," or give some other frivolous excuse while the seller may have held the goods 2 or 3 months and might have sold them a half dozen times. If, however, the market takes a bull movement the buyer has the safest investment in the world—making money from other people's capital. I agree with an old friend of mine in saying that a tobacco man can never be happy.

It is the hardest thing under the sun to make a manufacturer, especially a small one, believe that the market is high but in "the sweet bye and bye" when they find what I tell them is true they will be gnashing their teeth that they didn't take my advice. It is a Herculean undertaking, in fact almost an impossible one for a importer to raise the price of his cigars, but at the leaf price ruling at present he must either do this or "cut" the quality of his cigars.

BILLY.

TRAVELING SALESMEN AS TRADE GETTERS.

United States Vice Consul General George H. Murphy sends from Frankfort, Germany, the following statement from a report of the French vice consul at Mogador, Morocco, in regard to German commercial activity in that country:

By their astonishing activity and wonderful patience the Germans have distanced all competitors here. Our trade is declining because we have no traveling salesmen. On the other hand, the Germans themselves offer their products for sale, gather information in regard to what is wanted in Morocco, and carefully comply with the demands of the market in the matter of forms and colors. It is accordingly easy to understand why they are succeeding.

—S. H. Gordon and E. W. Pamperin will organize the Gordon Cheroot Co., of Richmond, and establish a plant at Fifteenth and Main streets. D. T. Manget & Co. will establish a cigar factory at Newnan, of which Bowen Reese will be superintendent.

HOW THE LARGE HUMIDOR IS CONSTRUCTED.

"WHAT would you think of spending $150,000 for a humidor just to keep Havana cigars moist?" asked the busy manager of the cigar department of a big distributing house. "Makes your $4 Christmas present of an oak humidor look rather insignificant, does it not? This costly vault is installed in one of the modern fire proof buildings in New York—in the warerooms of one of the big cigar companies."

The step from the animated office, thronged with salesmen filling out orders and stenographers busy with the firm's correspondence, into the cigar vault, through an armored door, is not unlike entering a cooling room at the Chicago stockyards. But instead of rows and rows of sides of beef cooling out, the cigar vault is lined with shelves on which rest the choicest importations from the Queen of the Antilles.

The most striking feature about the big humidor is the center mat of plain red brick. This portion of the floor is what furnishes the humidity for the room. Made of a special kind of clay and burned with infinite care in a special kiln, these bricks really are sponges. They are dampened regularly and give off their moisture with such automatic regularity that the most precious fabric in the highly varnished box from Cuba will not be injured.

Safely secured in each box, the fragrance and bouquet of each cigar is not permitted to escape. Although it is not contemplated that Havana stocks shall remain a long time in the vault, experts are agreed that they might be kept for months without loss of flavor, quality or value.

The entire sheeting of the vault is zinc—a splendid nonconductor—and between that and the outside sheath of the big humidor are many thicknesses of felt. The floors are set in a bed of cement and felt, and the porous bricks are laid with the care of mosaics.

Essentially the big cigar humidor is the same whether it costs only a few hundred dollars or as much as the most costly one in the country. It must have a zinc lining, thick doors and the moisture-disseminating bricks.

In a well-appointed cigar vault the temperature is just 50 degrees Fahrenheit. The humidity is indicated by a system of dials. The latter varies according to the amount of moisture in the bricks, the outside temperature and the draught from the opening and closing of the doors.

Havana goods are delicate and have to have considerable solicitude shown for their welfare. You may take from a humidor or vault some of the choicest imported cigars for a European trip, only to find that after crossing the Atlantic your cigars have lost many good qualities—have taken on others not so desirable as they might be, and you complain of them.

The ocean voyage, plainly affects fine tobacco. The cigars are as susceptible to climatic changes as ivory is. The humidor humors the cigar—the dealer watches it with the care of a physician, and the consumer appreciates this solicitude. After all, it's simply one of the up-to date phases of business.

WHAT A WINDOW DISPLAY ACCOMPLISHED.

THERE is every reason why just as much care should be taken in preparing the show windows of a small cigar store, as is the rule with the enormous windows of the modern department store. There never was a store so small that it didn't pay to display samples of its goods, and the merchant who is satisfied by the mere act of dumping a quantity of stuff on the floor of the window and allowing it to remain there indefinitely, does not deserve to have a window in his store.

He would never dream of doing business without a show case. As a matter of fact, his window is a more important adjunct than the show case, for it stands to reason that anyone who sees the show case, sees it because he is inside for the purpose of buying something, whereas, the window display is supposed to catch those who before they saw it had no idea whatever of making a purchase.

The dealer whose store is situated in a residence section of the city, or in a small town, is apt to get the idea that a certain amount of trade will fall to him anyhow, and so it is a useless proceeding to go to any trouble and expense attempting any display changes.

It is a very mistaken idea. In a flourishing country town not a great distance from Philadelphia is a cigar store which was purchased about three years ago by the present proprietor, a man not more than thirty years old. The store is near a drug store, the owner of which has progressive ideas, and makes at least one different window display, after the manner of the Evans stores in Philadelphia, every week.

The cigar store had been allowed to run along with its regular trade before the present man took it, and the goods in the window at the time of the purchase had probably been there six months. The old proprietor, being used to it, didn't see anything out of the way, but the new man saw it with different eyes.

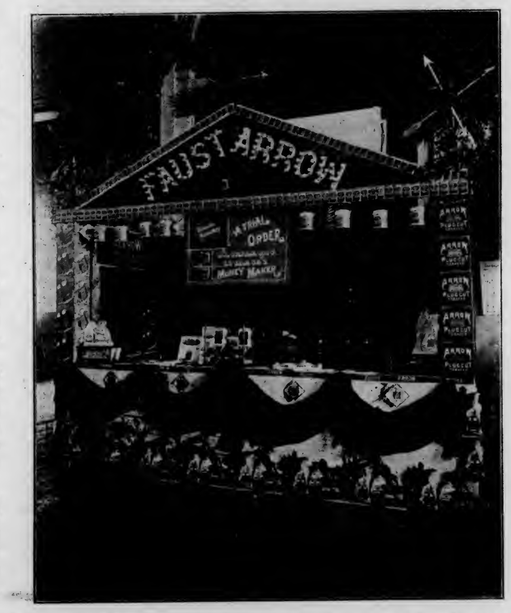
Beside the fresh looking drug store window his place looked the limit of dinginess. He got busy at once. Out came the fly-specked stuff and everthing else in the window. It was a new game on the man, and he had the sense to hire a professional window decorator. When the latter got through, the store looked like a different place, and attracted the attention of everyone in the town. The proprietor, who is a man with natural good taste, at once began a study of window dressing, having the professional come in once a week until he felt that he could try it alone.

People began to watch for the displays. The dealer was just as careful with the interior of the store, and was one of the sort whose whole heart was in his business. Some of the best smokers in the town, who had been buying at some other store or getting their stuff in Philadelphia, came to the conclusion that such local enterprise should be encouraged, and stopped in to look the place over. They found the young proprietor to be an intelligent man, who took an interest in his customers' favorite brands and was always ready to receive or impart information.

Every smoker, no matter how seldom he smokes, likes to consider himself a good judge of tobacco, and enjoys an occasional conversation on tobacco with the man he buys his cigars from.

They discovered that this man really had the interests of his customers at heart, was always informed on the latest thing on the market and was dependable in everything that he said.

And as was touched upon in a previous article, the customers began to take pride in the store as if they had a financial interest in it. They looked for the window displays, often made suggestions for new ones, some of which were practical and good and made the concern a sort of co-operative one.



The proprietor of that store bought the business at a ridiculously low figure, and today he has one of the tidiest businesses outside the big cities. The window and interior displays are a lot of trouble and some expense, but they pay him. The store is never crowded with customers and to a casual observer would apparently not begin to be doing the volume of business of which the average city store can boast.

Nevertheless, it is a safe bet that the man's books will show up better than some of the pretentious stores in Philadelphia, and the business is so settled that he can count with practical certainty on his income.

Enterprise, if it is demonstrated in the proper way, will always be recognized by the buying public.

WHEN you change your window display it is a good scheme to paste paper or some other covering back of the glass even, if you have a curtain, and allow it to remain a short time during the day, when people are passing. Sunday is best, if you live in a good neighborhood. It stimulates curiosity, and if your store is located where many of the same persons pass every day, they will be sure to watch for what is coming. You thus secure just double the benefit from your display.

WEISERT BROS. TOBACCO COMPANY'S DISPLAY.

WEISERT BROS. TOBACCO COMPANY, of St. Louis, displayed its Arrow Plug Cut, Faust Granulated and a number of other brands at the Tobacco Show in Philadelphia, and, as the cut demonstrates, did it in a very beautiful way. The company also gave away a large quantity of tobacco in souvenir packages during the week of the show, and this, in conjunction with the artistic booth arranged and conducted by H. J. and W. C. Miller, made a good deal of a hit with consumers.

A National Protects Profits

AGAINST PILFERING MICE AND CARELESS MEN

When Mr. Lensink and some of his clerks were cleaning up under the counters they came across a mouse nest in which they discovered a five and a ten dollar bill which the little fellows had abstracted from the till. Contrary to the custom of those animals the bills were still almost entire.—Orange City (Iowa) Herald.

The point of this odd little incident of the mice and the money is that $15 was taken from the merchant's till without being missed. Had a National Cash Register been in use in the store, the money would have been missed at once.

GENTLEMEN: We enclose a clipping taken from the Hull correspondence of the Orange City (Iowa) Herald—one of our local papers. It is the story of a mouse and an open cash-drawer in which you probably will be interested.
It occurs to us to wonder, if the firm in this case missed the money, which of its clerks was blamed for the loss. If a National had been on guard the bills would not have been lost, of course, but even if they were lost no clerk would have been unjustly suspected. If the merchants did not miss the bills the mice borrowed, they certainly were in need of a National to protect their cash.
Such things as this can't happen to us. We use a National Cash Register. It is mouse-proof and gives absolute protection to our clerks. We would not be without it. The good it has done for us would fill many pages if we tried to write it.
You may use this letter as you wish.
Yours truly,

"POR LARRANAGA" FACTORY ENTERTAINS DISTINGUISHED GUESTS

Havana, Jan. 16, 1905.

One of the pleasant incidents of the assembly of the "American Public Health Association," which held its sessions in Havana at the Ateneo Club building last week, and at which there were about two hundred prominent American physicians, was a visit to the "Por Larranaga" factory on Friday and Saturday made in response to an invitation extended by Don Antonio J. Rivero, the proprietor.

It was evident that the medicos were greatly interested by their tour of inspection, which was made much more entertaining by the care which Don Antonio took to explain every detail of the factory work. After the guests had visited every room in the vast building at No. 2 Belascoain street, where 500 cigarmakers can work comfortably without being crowded, and were given minute explanations and descriptions of how the raw leaf is wetted, the stems taken out and the leaf after being dried is turned into cigars, which latter have to be selected according to 32 different colors, they became convinced that the successful management of an undertaking of this kind did not require a vast amount of capital alone, but also a thorough knowledge of where to acquire the right kind of leaf, and of the blending that is necessary in producing the mild sweet taste combined with the most subtle aroma.

This factory only uses the choicest Vegas of the lowland districts of the Vuelta Abajo, and in order to obtain the right kind often enough, fabulous prices have to be paid as the competition is keen. The Havana cigarmakers make only handwork, no machinery is used, and they become artists in being able to twist the leaf in any kind of shape imaginable.

Don Antonio J. Rivero is a good type of the Spanish gentleman, and having lived for a number of years in the United States, speaks the English language as fluently as his native tongue. After having completed a tour of the factory, from the ground floor to the top, the guests were invited to the office and each visitor was handed a bunch of seven Deliciosos, enveloped in a yellow silk ribbon, which read thus:

"POR LARRANAGA"
Established 1834
COMPLIMENTS TO THE CONGRESSISTS
HAVANA, CUBA,
January 14th, 1905.

The guests were pleased and charmed by the liberality of the host who also entertained them with a light lunch and wine, and some gave orders for hundreds and thousands of cigars before leaving the factory.

Don Antonio J. Rivero evidently profited by his stay in the United States, as he has acquired much tact in doing business, and by appointing Baron Taylor, son of the famous seller of imported cigars, William Taylor, his agent in New York City, and for the United States, has accomplished a shrewd business transaction.

HAVANA MARKET ACTIVE AND TRANSACTIONS LARGE.

Rush of Buyers from the North and Limited Supply of Choice Goods Have Made Prices Feverish. Demand May Exceed Supply. Consumption of the U. S. Has Greatly Increased.

HAVANA, January 16, 1905.

As was foreseen, the unprecedented influx of Northern buyers and the comparatively limited supply of choice goods, particularly first and second capaduras of Remedios, has resulted in an exceedingly active market and the transactions have been very large.

Prices were feverish, jumping upward from day to day, and as one commission house tersely expressed it, "the market has gone completely 'meschugge' as far as Remedios is concerned." With the exception of one good Santa Clara Excojida, for which the owners will not take less than $55 per qq. for the first capaduras and $36 for the seconds, there hardly remains more than a couple of thonsand bales of Remedios in first hands, and these are not of the finest growth or packing.

The American exporters have of course taken time by the forelock and secured as much as they possibly could for their steady customers, still as the demand may exceed the supply it would cause no surprise to see prices for first capaduras rule from $60 to $65 per qq., and for seconds from $40 to $45 per qq. in the American market, just as soon as the stocks of theses grades in Havana shall have become exhausted.

Good, heavy-bodied Vuelta Abajo fillers have also been actively inquired for and round lots have changed hands at advancing figures. Light Partido fillers were in demand by the clear Havana manufacturers for Tampa, who complain about scarcity of suitable vegas and the high prices asked for same by the local dealers.

No matter what the final outcome of the new crop may be, by the time it shall have been packed and becomes fit for the cigarmakers' tables, it seems to become clearer from day to day that the stocks in the Havana market will barely suffice for the growing demand from the United States.

Evidently the consumption must have increased enormously, as Tampa alone is credited with 50,000 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido as its present quota per year, therefore the total yearly needs of the United States of all kinds of Cuban leaf must be above rather than below 200,000 bales, even if the exports last year amounted to only 196,861 bales, against 206,698 bales in 1903. The conclusion to be drawn, therefore, is that the manufacturers, instead of carrying enough stocks, have been following a policy of living from hand to mouth, and that possibly this may result in their having to pay the piper for the little foresight shown in not believing the reports of the shortness of the Remedios crop.

last week amounted to 14,917 bales in all, or 5,265 bales of Vuelta Abajo 1,002 of Partido and 8,650 bales of Remedios. American buyers have taken 12,588 bales and the local manfacturers and cigarette manufacturers 2,029 bales, while Europe only participated with 300 bales.

The total exports from the port of Havana were in 1903, 303,106 bales while in 1904 there were only 250,638 bales. The seven principal importing countries, exclusive of the United States, were:

Germany,	46,155	32,639
Spain,	32,153	8,730
Austria,	5,329	1,111

are beginning to notice a better call for their product, and while the trust seems to be less busy and has discharged many cigarmakers for want of orders, the large independent factories have not only kept their forces at work, but in several instances have seated more cigarmakers. The exports of cigars show the following comparison between the years 1904 and 1903:

THE TARIFF HEARING.

Congress' Committee on Ways and Means is giving a hearing in Washington today to representatives of the domestic interests, who are in force at the Capital to protest against any decided cut in the duty rate on tobacco from the Philippine Islands.

Hearings before the committee on the offending Curtis bill took place on Monday and Tuesday of this week but tobacco interests were not involved. Today is the time specified by Chairman Payne when the tobacco trade would be given full attention.

Naturally it is impossible at this time to attempt to define what effect the hearing will have on the fate of the bill, and all speculation at such a time must be more or less idle. It is certain, however, that the domestic trade will present its point of view and define its attitude in a way which the administration cannot possibly mistake, and it would seem that in view of the forceful and momentous arguments with which the cause is endowed, adverse action would demonstrate a gratuitous stubbornness not easily explainable.

TOBACCO SHOW A POPULAR IDEA.

The Tobacco Show proposition in on the boom just now and there are all sorts of alluring prospects in this direction. There has been some talk, most of it idle we admit, of a national exposition, in which the whole country would be represented, while one enthusiastic penman went so far as to suggest a World's Fair of tobacco.

The World's Fair is doubtless something which our great grandchildren may possibly enjoy but which is a little beyond us. Nevertheless, it seems reasonably positive at this time, that an exposition of national importance will be held in a few months in New York. As stated in The Tobacco World last week, plans have gone far enough for it to have become a question of which building is most desirable and everything—as much as can be possible at this early date—points to a proper consummation of the project.

The show will be under the auspices of the Retail Cigar and Tobacco Dealers' Association of New York city, and as things point now, will be held in Madison Square Garden, or whatever else hall is selected, for a month and then transferred to a number of the larger cities of the United States.

The proposed exhibit will be largely educational and will show the plant in the various processes of growing, harvesting, curing, manufacturing, packing and as finally displayed on a retailer's counter for sale. The manufacture of cigars, cigarettes, smoking and chewing tobaccos and of aromatic snuff will be revealed to the public in New York for the first time, and costly and interesting machinery will be shown in action.

This is a pretty large proposition, much larger than the one carried through in Philadelphia, but the New York projectors have the advantage of following a precedent, whereas, the Philadelphia Association was not only making a precarious experiment, but was making it largely in the dark. It will be a very expensive affair, but judging by the interest manifested in the exhibit in the Quaker City which presented no miraculously attractive displays, it ought to be a go.

SLOT MACHINE RAIDS REPRESENT MISDIRECTED ENERGY.

A week or so ago, Secretary Gibboney, of the Law and Order Society of Philadelphia, descended on a lot of local cigar stores and confiscated thirty or more slot machines which were operating against the law. There was a general clean up in this city about two years ago when a tremendous bonfire of the offending machines was held on a vacant lot.

The machines which were not caught in those raids were thrown out back or carted down cellar, but as time went on a few bolder dealers brought them tentatively out and operated them behind their counters. They grew less timid, until previous to the last raids, and indeed at the present time, there are quite a number of them running in the city.

Out in Des Moines a crusade is being waged against the machines which the authorities and newspapers declare have become so bad in some cases as to subordinate the cigar business itself. More or less feeble kicks have been made in other cities lately, but the most business-like incident in slot machine history was the rumpus in Portland, Ore., about three months ago, which resulted in the establishment of a periodical fine for dealers which acts as an excise tax and furnishes quite a revenue to the city.

It does seem rather silly to invoke the spectacular raiding machinery of the law in order to pounce upon one little de vice whose only offence is the affording of a diverting method of purchasing a five cent cigar.

Every man resents any attempt to deprive him of liberty, particularly in such a small matter, and the mere taking away of the machine will not prevent him from gambling if he so desires. More over it is far better for him to spend his small change in a cigar store than to throw dice or match for drinks in a saloon.

It was stated at the time the machines were so numerous in Philadelphia during the clean up two years ago, that many wives had made personal complaint to the dealers asserting that their husbands took from the wife's allowance, the extra money spent in the slot machine. It is beyond dispute that there were entirely too many machines in the city at that time and the wholesale raids were beneficial.

As long as the condition is no worse than it is at this time, however, it seems like misdirected energy on the part of Mr. Gibboney, to go after the cigar dealers and pass by the dozens of gambling places, dives, and other illegal operations of a far worse nature.

THE AMERICAN TOBACCO CO. AND THE AGRICULTURAL DEPT.

The poor tobacco trust has been accused of about every mean and unscrupulous deed under the sun and has managed to keep on doing business. Now comes a charge whose very novelty may have an effect of which the others failed.

The "Chronicle" of Clarkesville, Tenn., has printed a two column and a half article likening the situation between the American Tobacco Co. and the growers to the war in the East, and after drawing this parallel, accuses the trust of secretly engineering the Agricultural Department in its soil surveys and standing ready to cop out valuable land as soon as the department discovers it. The article says in relation to this:

> We have seen in print and heard much talk of the valuable soil surveys promoted by the Agricultural Department for the benefit of farmers. But has it occurred to the public that the tobacco trust in disguise has been all the while urging these surveys that they might discover the most valuable lands for producing certain types of tobacco, and buy such lands cheap in large bodies, which has been tried in some localities for producing fine cigar tobacco?

The American Tobacco Co. is a pretty powerful proposition, and one which has gone far to attain its ends. It is hardly potent enough, yet, though, to own the Agricultural Department.

THE independent trade notes with regret the resignation of Assistant Secretary Robert E. Armstrong of the Treasury Department, who will leave Washington to take an important place with an insurance company in New York. Mr. Armstrong leaves a small but potent monument in his official memory in the form of the new import stamp. The Assistant Secretary showed so effectively at the time of the controversy over the stamp that he was an active friend to independent interests and, moreover, could not be bluffed, that his exit from officialdom is greatly to be regretted by those same independent interests.

Local Manufacturers and Jobbers.

Marcus Kleinberg, jobber at 219 North Second street, has made application to the United States District Court to be discharged as a bankrupt. A hearing has been set for Friday of this week at 10 o'clock, when the creditors and those interested will be present. Weaver & Drake are attorneys for Mr. Kleinberg.

Quite a number of salesmen were in town during the week, and most of them reported business on the road to be a little slow just at present, with every prospect for an early quickening. Henry Kraus, of Kraus & Co., Baltimore; E. G. Carner, American Tobacco Co.; William Moulsdale, Sanchez & Haya; W. H. McBurney, Lozano, Nistal & Co.; Albert Calisch, Cortez Cigar Co., and W. Y. Connor, Amo, Ortiz & Co., were among those who got around among the retailers.

Ben Beecher, one of the El Provedo Co.'s well known salesmen, has resigned his connection with that firm and will enter the mattress business.

Thomas A. Fl[illegible]e & Co., dealers in fancy groceries an cigars at Chestnut and Juniper streets, have secured the entire building at 19S[illegible]th Second street, and will remove their establishment on June 1. There were heads shaken in the tobacco trade over this proposed radical change of address, but the firm says that considerable of its cigar business is a family trade done by telephone and wont suffer by the change.

Mitchell, Fletcher & Co. have purchased the business of E. J. Crippen & Co., Seventeenth and Chestnut streets, according to a report. Both are grocery concerns with a cigar department.

Edward A. Roberts has been engaged as salesman for the Philadelphia trade by Gumpert Bros. and has already started work.

TOBACCO NEWS OF GREATER NEW YORK

NEW YORK, January 21, 1905.

THE WEEK'S MOVEMENT IN LEAF.

The market has shown quite a little improvement over last week in the quantity of goods sold, the new force-sweated Connecticut receiving the most attention. In fact, the demand far exceeds the supply. Pennsylvania broad leaf is a ready seller, and seems to be fast encroaching on the popularity of Zimmer as a filler. Sales of 800 cases of Zimmer are reported at 16c, about 3,000 cases 1903 Wisconsin were sold for export at 10c actual, and odd lots of 1902 Wisconsin sold at 14½c marked.

The Sumatra business shows large increase over the preceding week, about 500 bales changing hands. With the first inscription announced for March 10, it gives about six weeks for importers to dispose of any desirable tobaccos they may hold.

From present reports the new crop is about 225,000 bales, or about 30,000 bales less than last year. Out of 225,000 bales there should be at least 80,000 bales good first and seconds, the balance of 145,000 bales consisting of X Blad (broken leaves) and undesirable tobaccos for this market.

Of the 80,000 bales, this country needs 40,000 bales, and we expect prices to rule high. As to the merits of the crop, no definite idea can be obtained at this time, and it will be far safer to see the tobacco from the 1st, 2d and 3d inscription before expressing an opinion. In the meanwhile we will hope for the best.

The Havana market is improving every day; what old tobacco we have is fast disappearing, and one sale of new tobacco of 500 bales of 1st Capaduros went to one of our large jobbers at 52c net. Prices are certain to advance inside of four months.

AGAINST TARIFF CUT.

The all-absorbing topic of conversation this week in the allied tobacco trades is the public hearing to protest against the reduction of the tax on imported tobacco and cigars from the Philippines. Several prominent men in the tobacco world left this evening for Washington to speak before the Committee on Ways and Means. Some of these gentlemen were especially invited to give their views by Chairman Payne, and in the delegation are representatives of the cigar manufacturers, box manufacturers, cigar labor unions, leaf tobacco dealers, growers and even steamship lines.

About fifteen interested persons left New York this evening in order to be at the opening of the hearing at 10 o'clock tomorrow (Wednesday) morning. Some will return as soon as they have entered their protest, and others will remain as long as the committee sits for this particular hearing.

Charles Fox, of F. Miranda & Co., has been busy all day with A. Bijur and others in securing documentary evidence in support of their proposed vigorous protest, and Benno Newberger, president of the New York Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade, cut short a business trip in order to appear before the committee, but he told me today that after all he was afraid he would be unable to go to Washington this week, as business is pressing in other directions.

The New Yorkers have been in constant telegraphic communication with able representatives of the various branches of the tobacco trade in Philadelphia, Chicago, Pittsburg, Cleveland, Cincinnati and other large cities for some days past, and a large gathering is expected in Washington.

In discussing the condition of trade before he left for Washington, Mr. Fox said that there is little if any change from last week. "Things are going along much the same; business is lively enough not to cause any complaint, and prices are about the same—not lower."

Mr. Bijur said that there is a great scarcity of binders, and that reports state Wisconsin good, but the growth about 25 per cent less than last year.

"In the northern part of Wisconsin the tobacco is almost cleaned out," he said, "and it is now all in the packer's hands. In the east side of Connecticut broad leaf is all bought up at prices ranging at 25c to 38c through. On the west side of Connecticnt some broad leaf has also been bought up quickly, but the price was not as high as was asked and obtained on the east side. Havana seed brought from 17c to 24c through."

A prominent member of the New York Leaf Board of Trade said:

"New Connecticut Havana seed meets with favor, but the farmers demand so high a price for their crops that there is very little satisfaction or profit to the packer. Spanish 1903 is selling well at from 15c to 16c. There is a fair demand for everything in all lines, including Pennsylvania broad leaf; Wisconsin 1903 fillers and Sumatra is asked for right along, with the supply none too large."

Messrs. A. Bijur, Charles Fox and J. F. Cullman, of the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association; James Ertheiler, of the New York Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade; Chairman Andrus, of the Executive Board of the New England Tobacco Growers' Association, and President H. S. Frye, of the latter organization, were met at the Pennsylvania depot at 3:30 p. m. today (Tuesday) by the other delegates who will tomorrow appear before the Ways and Means Committee in Washington. Among the latter were John Wardlow, of Key West, representing the Clear Havana Manufacturers' Association; Mr. Dolbeer, of the Warehouseman's Association; Walter Schiffer, of the Cigar Manufacturers' Association of America; Mr. Lauchs, representing the cigar box manufacturers; William Bird, third vice president of the Ward line of steamships, and several well known men interested in the protest against the reduction of the tax on Philippine cigars and tobaccos.

Mr. Fox, who had charge of the transportation, said that he was expecting to be joined later in Washington by Daniel Harris, president of the New York Cigarmakers' Union; Samuel Gompers, President Perkins, of the Cigarmakers' International Union; A. M. Jenkinson, of Pittsburg, of the Manufacturers' Association of Western Pennsylvania, and representatives of the Retail Dealers' Association.

Mr. Bijur said: "Congressman M. E. Driscoll, of the New York State Tobacco Growers' Association, will act with us, as will many others whom I have not now time to name. We have had offers of co-operation from lumber merchants, banks and Western associations, but we think that our delegation is sufficiently strong to compass our end without the valuable aid offered."

President Fry said that his address to the Committee on Ways and Means would be short, but sarcastic.

"I often find that sarcasm counts more than solid argument, which I shall leave to others to adduce. Sarcasm tells if not founded on fact, but when it is built on fact it is well-nigh irresistible. My brief will not take over five minutes to read if I am allowed to go on uninterruptedly, but I expect somebody will butt in on my most sarcastic points."

John R. Young is to join the New Yorkers at the Philadelphia station, and the whole delegation will put up at the New Willard.

The presentment covers between fifteen and twenty type written pages.

JOTTINGS.

Benno Newberger, of E. Rosenwald & Bro., is in Chicago this week, and before leaving received a special rate from the Western Union Telegraph Co., and he is getting his money's worth.

George Dennerlein is on a purchasing tour in Connecticut, and his adjutant-general, Max Herzog, is in command at headquarters.

Charlie Waxelbaum is distinguishing himself in the way of orders from Chicago this week.

Julius Shack closed the banner sale in Sumatra this week in Canada. One hundred and forty-eight bales are not sold every day.

Jerome Fisher, representing A. Cohn & Co. in the Canadian market, sold 70 bales in one lot. "Romey" is a young one, but certainly is a comer.

Ed Kraussman intends leaving for Havana to-day to replenish his stock of tobacco.

Sidney Rothschild, of Rothschild & Bro., arrived from Havana, and is very much pleased with the situation in Cuba.

Matt Rosenshine, of San Francisco, is with us again, and we expect some good orders before he departs.

Julius Lichtenstein has returned from Chicago, where he disposed of large lots of his celebrated packing of Connecticut force-sweated.

John Fielding, of Rothschild & Bro., intends sailing for Cuba very shortly. For so young a man, John certainly knows Havana tobacco.

W. J. Gestal, of Perez, Rodriguez & Co., announces the lease of an annex factory at 116 Pearl street, and a vast extension in business. The firm took on three more traveling salesmen this week, and will now cover the whole United States. Mr. Perez himself is at present in Havana. "Nat" Rice is in Philadelphia this week, but will proceed to Pittsburg, Cleveland and thereabouts on a six weeks' trip.

Jacob W. Cronauer is booking large orders for Perez, Rodriguez & Co.

LANCASTER MARKET QUIET.

Action of Growers' Association on Tariff Cut Has Had Good Effect.

Lancaster, Pa., Jan. 23.

The local leaf market is moderately quiet this week, and transactions have mostly been small. Tobacco growers, of course, are busy in trying to get their crops stripped and ready for delivery.

With the cigar trade generally in good condition, there is every reason to believe that the leaf market will before long revive into strong activity.

A charter has been granted to the S. R. Moss Cigar Co., with a capital of $200,000, but a complete list of the officers has not yet been announced.

In regard to the action of the Lancaster County Tobacco Growers' Association, which last week adopted resolutions protesting against any further reduction of the tariff on tobacco from the Philippines, it can be seen that their action seems to have had a wholesome effect upon the leaf trade, among which an association has existed for several years, but which during the past twelve months has fallen into a semi-comatose condition, while some of the older members seem to have gotten cold feet.

But that the blood is again circulating is testified to by the fact that on Monday evening last a meeting of the local leaf men was held, which was presided over by J. Gust Zook, the well known packer, while C. E. Long, of M. M. Fry & Co., was secretary, and Morris Rosenthal treasurer.

In further view of the fact that the trade can always rely upon the hearty support of such other well known houses as J. D. Skiles, I. H. Weaver, R. K. Schnader & Sons, Kramer & Goldberg, E. M. Cohen & Co., etc., there is good reason to believe that the local trade now has an organization that will not only be active and fully alive to the real interests of the trade, but that the personnel of its officers will wield an influence that will be of permanent benefit to the organization.

D. B. Hostetter, who was for several years past with T. D. Shertzer, has engaged with E. M. Cohen & Co.

KOHLBERG & CO. TAKE IN NEW MEMBER.

Kohlberg & Co., dealers in leaf tobacco in San Francisco, announce that they have admitted to their firm Robert B. Rothschild, who is already well known in the trade. Kohlberg & Co. feel that they have materially strengthened their house by this acquisition.

Here and There With the Retailers

Youthful Cigarette Thieves.

Three boys, none of whom was more than fourteen years old, were arrested and given hearings last week on the charge of robbing Schmidt's cigar store at Forty-eighth street and Westminster avenue. Entrance was effected through a rear window of the place, and a large quantity of cigarettes and candy was stolen. Two boys about a year older than these three had been arrested previously and are members of the same crowd. The boys were all held in bail for a further hearing tomorrow.

H. G. Cutler, well known dealer at 208 Arch street, has purchased the cigar store at 102 Arch street from John Landenberger and at once assumed active management of the store. Mr. Cutler will run both stores for a time until he decides what arrangements are best.

Joseph S. Gilleland, who has for years conducted a retail store at the northeast corner of Ridge avenue and Wood street, died on Thursday at his home at the same address. The funeral services were held on Sunday at 1.30 o'clock at the undertaking establishment of Albert Moore, 829 Vine street. Interment was made at Chelten Hills Cemetery.

The retail market was rather uneven last week for some unexplainable reason. Some stores did business enough to satisfy anybody, while others in the same class and near enough to be affected by the same conditions, reported things as being very dull. The weather was of the best and trade should have been fair all over.

Some of the dealers are taking advantage of the usual light January to make alterations in their stores and to re-decorate for the coming year, and so do not particularly miss the business. Others have suffered lighter trade owing to the fact that they have pushed big lots of special brands at low prices, and have to wait until their trade catches up. On the whole, the average tone was fairly satisfactory, with room for hope.

Wm. H. O'Keefe, Fourth street dealer, has a window display of Gumpert Bros.' Royal Perfectos, and has quite a run on them at $6 per hundred or 4 for 25 cents.

R. Goldsmith, of Goldsmith & Co., who conducts a store at Fifteenth and Sansom streets, has accepted the Washington agency for Stewart, Newburger & Co. Mr. Goldsmith will be in Philadelphia only on Saturdays hereafter.

Joseph Levy, Eastern representative of the Ballard-Fernandez Co., Tampa, with headquarters in this city, has resigned his Philadelphia connection with the firm and has a number of other plans under consideration.

Yahn & McDonnell, Fifteenth and Chestnut street dealers, report a very good week, and say that the sale of Porto Rican goods continues brisk.

During the last week the decorators have had full sway in M. J. Dalton's Fifth and Chestnut street store, with very striking results. The walls have been done over and present a very artistic appearance.

E. J. Wallis, at the Dalton Thirteenth and Chestnut store, reported last week as being the best since the week before Christmas.

F. H. Rogers, who is one of the most obliging and best liked clerks in the Philadelphia trade, has been confined to his home for a week, suffering from a severe attack of tonsilitis. R. M. Boch in whose Broad street store Mr. Rogers' holds forth, started to be ill one day last week but suddenly changed his mind.

Leaf Dealers' Jottings.

Philadelphia Leaf Board of Trade Joins Protest Against Curtis Bill.

The following telegram was sent on Wednesday of last week to Sereno E. Payne, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, Washington, D. C., by the Philadelphia Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade:

The Philadelphia Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade earnestly protests against the passage of the bill introduced by Representative Curtis reducing the duty on Philippine products, and asks that your committee grant us a hearing to show why the bill is inimical to our interests.

JOHN R. YOUNG, President.
J. S. BATROFF, Secretary.

The majority of the local leaf houses, at least those which are gunning for western trade now, did a fair amount of business last week, quite as much as could be expected at this time. Some firms reported business a little better than last January, and all agreed that, taking prospects into consideration, there was no fault to find.

The main trouble is that customers are holding off on the high prices and business moves very slowly. At the same time, as one dealer put it, manufacturers can't make cigars out of hay, and have simply got to have tobacco. There was good inquiry during the week, and the prices quoted were just about as low as could be, for the leaf dealer to live. That being the case, the dealers in a good many cases merely have to wait for the customer to make up his mind to come up. The latter part of the week showed a better tendency, however, and everyone looks forward to a very satisfactory February.

Jake Labe, of B. Labe & Sons, who is making the Western trip, has sent in a nice bunch of orders, and reports business in that section as good as he had expected it to be.

COMMITTEE ON WAYS AND MEANS HEARS PROTEST ON THE CURTIS BILL.

A. Bijur, G. W. Perkins, H. S. Frye, B. Ezra Herr, Congressman Driscoll and Others Prominent in Various Branches of the Trade Make Strong Protest Against Philippine Cut Rate.

Washington, D.C., Jan. 25, 1905.

Representatives of tobacco growers, leaf dealers, cigar and tobacco merchants and other branches of the trade assembled before the Congrssional Commitee on Ways and Means in the Capital today and presented an overwhelming series of arguments against passage by Congress of the Curtis bill, which aims to reduce the duty on tobacco from the Philippines to 25 per cent of the present Dingley rate. Chairman Payne and the committee will consider the evidence presented and report the bill.

The hearing commenced at 10 o'clock, and was opened by H. S. Frye, who represented the New England tobacco growers. Mr. Frye did not speak at great length but very forcibly voiced his protest against the cut.

"As I understand the bill," he said, "it has two objects to accomplish; first, and primarily the rehabilitation of the industries of the Philippine Islands, and second, to increase the revenues of the insular government, and both by largely increasing exports from there to this country."

Chairman Payne here said that the income of $400,000 lost by taking the duty from hemp was to be made up somehow and that Mr. Frye's premises were wrong. The latter accepted the correction and continued.

"It is an old saying, 'never look a gift horse in the mouth,' but in the privacy of our barnyard we are all apt to disregard it, as it is decidedly unwise not to do so, and I propose to look this animal over before I go into ecstatic gratitude to the giver of it. Briefly, the proposition is to impose a duty of only 25 per cent of Dingley rates on sugar and tobacco. I will drop the sugar question and would consider that that industry was perfectly competent to take care of itself, if I had not recently learned that by its absurd opposition to a reasonably fair compromise proposition it had reopened the whole question.

"Twenty-five per cent of the Dingley rates means a reduction in the duty on wrapper leaf of $1.38½ cents per pound, or from $1.85 to 46¼ cents and on filler leaf from 35 to 8¾ cents per pound; moreover as there never has been made a law and never can be that will justly and equitably collect wrapper duty on any appreciable quantity of leaf tobacco imported that can be used here for filler purposes (and Manilla tobacco can be) the result will be that nearly all Philippine leaf tobacco, wrapper and all, will actually be paying 8¾ cents per pound duty.

"We didn't dream of such things when we got our low tariff Democratic friends to give us $1.50 a pound protection on wrapper leaf in the Wilson bill, and we've been so grateful for the $1.85 cents a pound duty the Dingley bill gave us, we've kept pretty much all this country Republican ever since. Now, it's pretty tough to endure the suspicions that our old friend and benefactor is likely to go back on us now, particularly when there is no question of national honor or repudiation involved."

At this point Mr. Frye referred to the entire exemption from internal revenue taxes of Philippine tobacco which the trade understands will be the result of the bill. Chairman Payne questioned this and the matter was noted, to examine the law upon. Mr. Frye then said that there had been discrepancies in reports which should be looked into. Two years ago Judge Taft stated in a number of cablegrams that the cigar industry in the Philippines was very depressed and that the cigarmakers there were nearly starving to death. Now it is stated that the wages on the Islands are greatly increased and factories are not able to keep up with their orders.

"So that, boiled down," said Mr. Frye emphatically, "the proposition is simply to bring the tobacco and cigar industry of the Philippines to a condition of prosperity by opening this market to it free. And it follows as a natural result, that to do so, involves the injuring of our own industries to the same extent that we improve theirs. A short time ago I personally acquiesced in a proposed compromise of 50 per cent of the present Dingley rate, but that project fell through, and I now most earnestly protest against any reduction."

Mr. Frye was followed by A. Bijur, representing the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association, who delivered a very comprehensive argument, which succinctly embraced the complete situation, which follows, in full:

In presenting this statement we speak for a trade now thoroughly organized, including the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association, the Cigar Manufacturers' Association of America, the Clear Havana Manufacturers' Association, the Independent Tobacco Manufacturers' Association, the Retail Cigar Dealers' Association, the New England Tobacco Growers' Association and other organizations of the cigar leaf growers in the various States. We are also advised that our views are shared by various steamship companies, warehouse interests, cigar box makers, silk ribbon manufacturers, lithographers and others. The majority of these interests are represented in our delegation here to-day. A special delegation, representing the Cigar Makers' International Union, will present their views, in which we heartily coincide.

If a bill providing for a further reduction on Philippine tobacco and its products passes at the present session of Congress it will be the fifth tariff reduction measure affecting the tobacco interest that will have been put into effect in a period of seven years, in addition to three changes in rates of internal revenue on tobacco products made by the Spanish war revenue act, its amendment and repeal. As a result of our war with Spain three great tobacco and sugar producing countries, Porto Rico, Cuba and the Philippine Islands came into close relationship with the United States. A wave of philanthropy, carefully fostered and developed by various business interests, swept over the country and demanded that economic favors should be shown to what were variously known as the wards of the nation and our new colonial empire. This charitable sentiment reflected credit on the heart of the great American public, but the tobacco trade may be pardoned for its cynicism if it persists in wondering how much the demand for tariff reductions would have been lessened had these islands produced a variety of commodities, competitors of domestic products, in quantities relatively equal to their production of sugar and tobacco.

The tobacco trade, as a whole, has raised no objection to the tariff gifts made at its expense where it has felt that it could afford to give the amount asked. Even in the case of the Cuban Reciprocity Treaty, when the early fifty per cent. reduction proposition resolved itself finally to a reduction of twenty per cent., our objections were more that the bargain made was ill-balanced and to the disadvantage of the United States than that very serious results would follow; our most pessimistic predictions have been verified by the seventy-five per cent. increase in the import of cigars, the 30,000 bale decrease in the importation of tobacco, and the absence of any decided increase in our exports to Cuba.

So that, when we say that the proposed sixty-six and two-third per cent. reduction on Philippine tobacco and its products to twenty-five per cent. of the Dingley rates means disaster to our cigar leaf tobacco growing interest, and the transfer of the greater part of our manufacture of cigars to those islands, we expect this statement to be accepted as a truthful representation of our opinion, without color or exaggeration of any kind. As we may, with all due modesty, claim to be experts in the matter of tobacco and cigars, we must regretfully decline to consider the opinions contrary to our view of this matter, as expressed by the various great newspapers.

A great deal has been made of our total annual production of seven thousand million cigars, as compared with the present Philippine production of 150,000,000. If this Philippine output were all that had to be regarded, the cigar manufacturers would not view the prospect of tariff reduction with serious apprehension. But little Porto Rico is to-day sending to the port of New York alone 58,000,000 cigars a year, and the Philippines are thirty times as great in area, and have eight times the population of Porto Rico. Cuba raises enough tobacco to make over 2,000,000,000 cigars, and sends us 20,000,000 pounds of leaf annually, which we import in spite of freight rates and a 28 to 148 cent per pound rate of duty. The Philippines are almost three times as big as Cuba and have a population six times as great. Tobacco can be grown almost anywhere in the islands. If labor be scarce there is China to be drawn on, for no one can seriously believe that the Exclusion Act can be effective where thousands of miles of coast invite its evasion. These, then, are our grounds for apprehension; an unlimited field for the growth of tobacco under the most favorable climatic conditions, an unlimited supply of labor for its development and for the manufacture of the tobacco into cigars, and a wage rate that makes American competition impossible, unless safeguarded by a protective duty.

The greatest element of cost in the production of tobacco and cigars is labor. Tobacco field hands are paid in this country $1.50 per day; cigar makers average something more. In the Philippines field hands get from fifteen to twenty-five cents per day, and cigar makers average just below forty cents per day, according to the latest available official census figures. A tariff which, making due allowances for transportation and other necessary expenses, does not fully equalize the difference in labor cost means either lower wages for our working people, or the transfer of the industry to the point of cheaper production. Before going on to other matters we wish to point out that the forty cent daily wage of the Coolie cigar maker—so pitifully small as compared with the American wage of $1.60-$1.70—is nevertheless not so low, compared with the wages paid cigar makers in other countries, as to justify any hysterical outburst about ruin and starvation.

As regards manufactured tobacco suitable for cigar purposes, into which category Philippine tobacco falls, it is notable that, in spite of its own enormous production, the United States imports 32,000,000 pounds annually, practically all from the islands of Sumatra and Cuba. These imports are compelled, not by lack of tobacco, but by public taste. In the case of Sumatra, its light color and handsome appearance make it popular with the smoking public, and Cuban tobacco, on account of its aromatic qualities, must constitute the main part of a cigar intended for a fastidious smoker anywhere in the world. Philippine tobacco, in its present state of cultivation, can replace neither of these tobaccos. It can compete here at the 25 per cent. rate of duty only with the domestic tobacco. The Government figures on our annual production of tobacco is about 630,000,000 pounds, but in this connection we must point out that by far the greater amount is tobacco suitable for pipe or chewing purposes, as we raise only about 140,000,000 pounds of cigar leaf tobacco. The two types are about as distinct as apples are from pears, and they cannot be used interchangeably. If the problem were, could our 140,000,000-pound production, raised by labor at $1.50 a day, afford to admit to competition the present Philippine export of 19,000,000, raised by labor at 20 cents a day, with a duty in our favor of 8¾ cents per pound, and say the additional 1¼ cents per pound for transportation, we might regard the problem without apprehension. That, however, is not the problem. The proposed 8¾-cent duty will either greatly stimulate Philippine production, or fail utterly in its purpose.

There is no reason to doubt the Government reports that tobacco raising in the Philippines is capable of indefinite extension; Sumatra, Borneo and Java, with a similar climate and topography, are among the most important cigar leaf producers of the world. Sumatra and Borneo are the world's reliance for cigar wrappers, and Java furnishes binders for Europe and a large filler crop that is highly esteemed there. Government reports show that the Philippines are capable of equaling the production of the neighboring islands. So we need not delude ourselves by considering a possible importation from the Philippines of 19,000,000 pounds of rather inferior tobacco, but must look to a production there of at least 100,000,000 pounds of first-class tobacco that it is proposed to admit here at duties of 8¾ per cent. for fillers and 46¼ cents for wrappers, if this last proves collectable. And this in spite of the fact that a 28-cent duty on fillers permits us to import 20,000,000 pounds from Cuba, while a $1.85 rate on wrapper enables us to take nearly 7,000,000 pounds from Sumatra. But, above all, without the necessity of looking into the future at all, what is to prevent the import of Sumatra tobacco into the Philippines, paying 22½ cents per pound duty, it being repacked and rehandled so as to sufficiently disguise its identity, and its subsequent import into the United States as Philippine wrappers at 46¼-cent duty, or a total duty cost of 68¾ cents, as against the $1.85 duty on Sumatra tobacco, to the detriment of the honest importer and the revenues of the Government?

The same general line of reasoning applies to cigars. Philippine wages are one-quarter of ours, and their tobacco that is used in the cigars cheaper than any available for our use, and we are to reduce the duty, already 5 per cent. less than that placed on Cuban cigars under the Reciprocity Treaty, an additional 66 2-3 per cent.

It is clear to us, whether Philippine cigars become popular or not, that nothing but harm can come to our industry by the proposed rate of reduction. If the cigars are liked here it will mean the transfer of the bulk of our industry to the Philippines; if, as the friends of reduction triumphantly claim, the cigars are wretched and can never willingly be

EXPORT STAMP ISSUED BY CUBAN CIGAR MANUFACTURERS

Authorized by the Government of the Republic of Cuba

Either the name of the Manufacturer or that of his Brand will appear printed in the blank space of this precinta or stamp.

. . . IMPORTANT NOTICE . . .

The preceding cut is a fac-simile, in its actual size, of the new PRECINTA or warranty stamp which, as authorized by the Government of the Republic of Cuba is now used by the members of the Cigar and Cigarette Manufacturers' Union of the Island of Cuba as a guarantee that cigars, cigarettes and cut tobacco packages which bear these stamps were manufactured in Cuba.

The consumers of these goods, who wish to acquire the genuine article made in CUBA from pure CUBAN LEAF, should buy no other cigars, cigarettes, or cut leaf packages but those which have this PRECINTA or stamp of the Cigar and Cigarette Manufacturers' Union of the Island of Cuba, who, jointly with the Government of the Republic of Cuba, or separately, will prosecute before the courts, anyone who may attempt to counterfeit, imitate, or in any way render useless the guarantee covered by this stamp. Colors of the PRECINTA fac-simile: black with pale blue ground; fac-simile of the seal of the Presidency of the Republic: dark blue.

smoked by our public, it will damage us while the matter is being tried out, and, from the false stimulus received by the Philippine cigar industry, will result in the great and certain injury of the cigar manufacturers of the islands. The cigars whose effects we chiefly fear are those that sell at from $10 to $15 per thousand. They are well made and present a good appearance. At the proposed reduced rate of duty, the duty on these would be $15 on an average. They would have an advantage, additional to the sixty-six and two-third per cent. reduction from present Philippine duties of $3 per thousand, as compared with our cigars, as the Internal Revenue Department has ruled that cigars coming from the Philippines need not have our revenue stamp attached, although it is affixed in the case of both Cuban and Porto Rico cigars. This is a dangerous precedent, and likely to cause many attempts to defraud the Government, and should receive special and prompt attention by Congress.

A great deal has been made, with apparent seriousness, of the part transportation charges are to play in giving protection against Philippine cigars and tobacco. How absurd any such consideration is when directed toward tobacco can be seen from the fact that we imported more than 6,500,000 pounds of Sumatra tobacco, which were transported from the island to Amsterdam, unloaded and put in stores, and then again loaded on steamers and brought here. In addition, we paid $1.85 per pound duty on them. This should dispose pretty well of the transportation argument, as it affects the unmanufactured leaf. The reduction in duty proposed would be from seventeen and a half to ninety-two and a half cents per pound, and the transportation charges urged as an offset amount to perhaps a cent per pound. In regard to cigars, the cigar trade of the Pacific Coast is supplied mainly from New York, Pennsylvania and Florida. It is the custom for the manufacturers of these States to allow jobbers $1 per thousand to cover freight charges to the Coast, which would place our cigars delivered in San Francisco at a disadvantage, as to transportation, with cigars delivered there from Manila, whence the freight would probably be inside of fifty cents per thousand.

As it is declared the policy of our Government to put every business interest of the community on an adequately protected basis, we feel justified in assuming that the measure of protection accorded the tobacco interests is ours by right; and as long as the policy of universal protection obtains, our rate of protection should not be lowered in favor of any one else whatever against our welfare.

It is an indefensible scheme to put tobacco in practically the same category as hemp or copra, tropical products which have always been granted free admission under our protective system because they compete with no domestic product. We grow enough tobacco ourselves, and our cigars are within the reach of the poorest of our citizens. We cannot consent to a tariff rate that will cut our industry from under us, and we should not be asked to do so.

Mr. Curtis, father of the objectionable bill, interrupted Mr. Bijur once to declare that he understood there was a great decrease in exportations from the Philippines.

"There was a decrease, but I understand that it has been followed by an increase," said Mr. Bijur.

"A small increase," responded Mr. Curtis. "Isn't that a sign that the smokers don't want that product?"

"I don't think the smokers have ever had a chance, commercially, to get them," was the answer.

B. Ezra Herr, president of the Lancaster County Growers' Association, of Pennsylvania, submitted resolutions which had been adopted by his association, and spoke in endorsement of them. He said that the cut would be particularly detrimental in Pennsylvania and Ohio, for the reason that they are great filler States.

"It will injure us much more than Wisconsin and the other tobacco growing States," said Mr. Herr, "and we wish to make the very strongest sort of a protest. We have given our money to better the situation in the Philippines; we have built schools for them; we have sent our daughters to teach them; we have put down insurrections and we have established the Filipinos in everything they are capable of carrying out.

"Is not that enough?

"The wages paid to Philippine labor are such that no American can possibly enter into competition with them. We voted last fall for protection and it is not protection we are getting. However, the growers have by no means given up hope that the bill will be seen in the proper light and a tremendous industry protected."

Before this speaker retired he answered a number of questions as to prices in Pennsylvania and the average condition of the crop.

G. W. Perkins, president of the Cigarmakers' International Union of America, then presented the side of the cigarmakers, and began his remarks by saying that his constituents had no ax to grind, but were simply looking out for their livelihood. Mr. Perkins gave a very comprehensive and complete history of the cigarmaking industry, showing how it had grown in a half century from practically nothing to its present magnitude.

"The increase in the output of cigars since 1863 is about 7,205,000,000 per year, or 3700 per cent," said Mr. Perkins. "The value of the output during 1900 was $160,223,152, showing an increase of $159,223,152 over the value of the output of the Connecticut Valley in 1860, which at that time was the principal cigar producing center of the United States. For the fiscal year of 1904 we paid a revenue to the Government on cigars of $20,498,711.84.

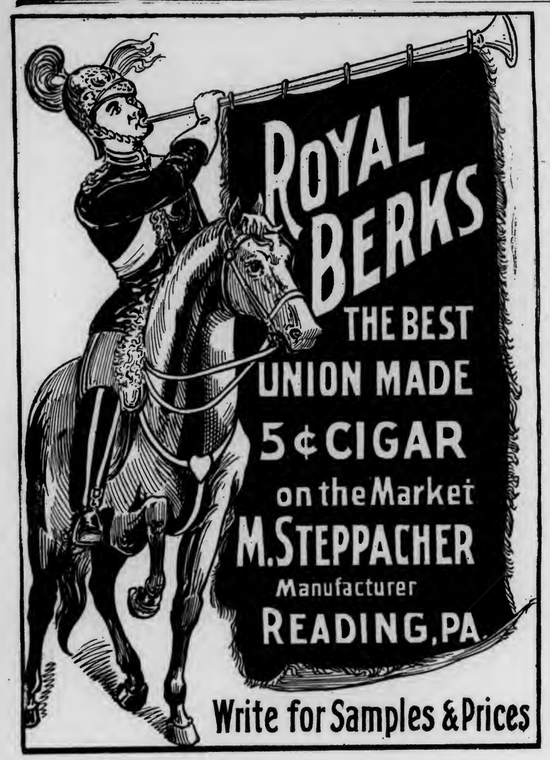
"In 1863, less than 2,000 persons were employed in the cigar industry, while Government statistics show that there are now employed in the cigar trade about 125,000, fully 80,000 of whom are skilled workmen. In the Philippine Islands about 20,000 people are employed, at an average pay of $10.21 per month, or 37½ cents a day.

"The American manufacturer now has to pay a tariff of $1.85 per pound on Cuban wrapper tobacco and 35 cents per pound for fillers. The Philippine Islands are favorably adapted to the growth of tobacco which will soon successfully compete with that grown in any other country, an advantage ours does not possess.

"A good cigar can be bought in Manila for a cent, while the home produced cigar sells for 5, 10, and 15 cents apiece. Under the proposed reduction a cheaper grade of cigars could be laid down at San Francisco for $17.62 per thousand, and the higher grades from $4 to $6 above this price.

"Give this Oriental cheap labor a market here, and the results will be ruinous to our industry. We cannot understand by what right Congress can justify legislation which will surely result in lowering the standard of living of such a large army of loyal American citizens.

"We protest against being pitted against Oriental labor in our struggle for existence. The act proposed will simply tend to drag us down to the level of the Filipino rather than raise him to ours. Moreover, I understand that all the cigar factories of Manila, thirty-one in number, are owned by foreign capital, except one.



"This protest is respectfully submitted on behalf of 47,000 organized cigarmakers in particular and the entire craft in general."

This closed the morning session and the committee adjourned until 2 o'clock. The second session did not last more than fifteen minutes, Congressman Driscoll, of New York State, representing a large body of growers in his district, speaking on general terms against the passage of the bill. Mr. Driscoll said that he knew the New York Growers' Association would consent to a cut of 25 per cent., making the altered rate 50 per cent of the Dingley tariff, and urged the committee to report such a recommendation as the most satisfactory compromise.

This ended the hearing in the tobacco interest. J. M. B.

With Manufacturers and Jobbers.

Orders are coming in nicely now with the manufacturers and it seems evident that the holiday glut is well out of the way by this time and jobbers and retailers are ready to fill up again. There are no kicks coming on the way the month is closing up, and quite a number of Philadelphia firms are increasing their corps of salesmen. A good proportion of the business is still in the West and South, and very few manufacturers are running very heavily on this market just now. Everything points to a very good spring.

The Liberman Manufacturing Co., manufacturers of modern cigar making apparatus, has a striking sign painted on the side wall of the building at Third and New streets. The name of the firm, and a picture of the cigar machine are in black on a white background, the whole sign being about fifteen feet high. It can easily be seen and distinguished at a considerable distance.

J. S. Vetterlein has been in Boston for the last week, returning today. Mr. Vetterlein was looking over the New England trade with a view to increasing their business in that section.

Jasper L. Rowe, the Virginia representative of Vetterlein Bros., was in the Philadelphia office this week for a few days. Mr. Rowe thinks it will be a banner year in his territory.

Charles S. Oettinger has been engaged by the Vicente Portuondo Co., and started yesterday for a three months selling trip through the East and South. Mr. Oettinger's long suit is on clear Havana goods.

The Vicente Portuondo Co. is pushing its nickel brands on the local market and has quite a number of extra city salesmen out.

NEW CROP FLORIDA.

On another page of this issue will be found the announcement of the Florida Tobacco Company, offering fine Florida tobaccos of the new crop which is claimed to be the finest ever grown in the South. In any event those interested in Florida tobacco would no doubt do well by looking carefully into the merits of the offerings of this company, which for the convenience of the trade in the North now has an office and sample room at 131 Maiden Lane, New York, at which address samples and other particulars are obtainable.

CINCINNATI MARKET.

Last Saturdays Sales Marked by Light Offerings.

Cincinnati, O., Jan. 24.

The cigar leaf sales last Saturday were marked with light offerings, the total being but 91 cases, all of which were sold at one house. The quality of the offerings was very fair and the condition generally good. There was, though, an almost total absence of high grade fillers and wrappers. Good old Zimmers ranged from 6 to 10¼c. and a few new from 8¼ to 11¾ cents. Connecticut binders and fillers sold from $4.10 to $9 10 per 100 lbs. Wisconsins and Little Dutch sparingly offered and poor in quality. Prices on Little Dutch ran from $2.30 to $5.40. Wisconsins ranged from $1.50 to $5.10.

—Joseph Sebastian's cigar store and factory at 1047 St. Gregory avenue was partially wrecked last Thursday evening by an explosion of illuminating gas. Several customers were slightly injured by the falling of the ceiling. All of Sebastian's show cases were broken and his stock badly damaged by falling plaster. The damage to stock and fixtures entailed $1,000. BUHRMAN.

NEW TOBACCO PUBLICATION.

"The Tobacco Colonial Quarterly" is a new publication gotten out by "Tobacco" London, England. Its purpose is to supply the colonies of England with full and complete information of events in the home trade and the happenings in the tobacco centers of the world. For those interested in the tobacco trade in the English colonies the new journal will be found to fill the bill.

A FEW CHANGES IN READING.

But all are in the Nature of Business Enlargements.

Reading, Pa , Jan. 23.

Chas. M. Yetter, of Mohnsville, near here, who during the past six years has built up an extensive cigar business, has secured a charter, and the business is being transferred to the new corporation which will be known as the Chas. M. Yetter Co. The capital stock will be $15,020, pratically all of which will be held by the Yetter family.

Arrangements are being made to build a new factory building a few miles outside of Reading, at Edison, ground having been bought some time ago with that end in view. The present factory is steadily busy, and plans are laid for an output of 5,000,000 cigars this year.

J. G. Hausen is having good success with his latest brand All Points and is looking forward to a record breaking year.

John G. Spatz, of J. G. Spatz & Co., summarized the conditions throughout the country as healthful, and especially n the West, where his firm's products have a large sale.

H. S. Dibert, of the Industrial Cigar Manufacturing Co., is also very favorably impressed with the way in which trade is opening for the new year.

F. P. Kalbach has opened his new factory at Sixth and Windsor streets and is very nicely located, with a modern retail department. His brands are the National Emblem, White Qwl, The Original and F. P. K.

Chas. R. Albright has increased his working force. He now has orders enough in hand to keep all busy until February 15.

F. H. Deibert & Co., cigar manufacturers at Orwigsburg, have changed their firm name to Deibert & Yeager, but business will continue as before.

NOTES FROM THE YORK MARKET.

York, Pa., Jan. 23.

The York county trade is rapidly getting back into normal working order again, and the output for this month it is believed will exceed that of January a year ago. Visiting leaf men find a fair business, notwithstanding the fact that it is early in the year.

The Dallas Cigar Co., of Dallastown, has closed its factory at Windsor and removed the business to Dallastown.

G. W. Gable, of Windsor, recently secured several large orders for goods that are to be sent to the Coast.

M. Katz & Son have commenced the manufacture of scrap tobacco for cigar filler purposes, and occupy a part of H. W. Heffener's old box factory building on Boundary avenue.

J. Stanley Winger, of this city, has gone on a trip through the South in the interest of some cigar manufacturers whom he represented at St. Louis World's Fair.

VETERAN IN SYRACUSE TRADE SELLS HIS BUSINESS.

Homer A. Ostrander, one of the veteran tobacco dealers of Syracuse, N. Y., has sold his cigar store in the basement of the Gridley block to Charles Ball, who will take possession immediately. Mr. Ostrander has not decided what he will go into next. He says that he has been in the business so long he has tired of it.

His first business venture was in 1875, when he and John J. Town formed a partnership and opened a stand in the old Syracuse house. He has been in his present location for nine years. Prior to the time he went into busines for himself he worked for Lewis & Whelan. Mr. Ostrander, Michael Whelan and Henry Wood are the veteran tobacco dealers of the city.

NEW FACTORIES FOR SEIDENBERG, STIEFEL & CO.

Seidenberg, Stiefel & Co., who have a number of factories in New York, have decided to open a branch factory in Middletown within the next eight weeks, and will begin work there with a force of 100 hands.

The company employs between 1,200 and 1,400 hands at the New York city factory, 98th street and First avenue. The cigars manufactured are the Grand Republic, William Tell, and the Buffo cigars and cigarettes, all tobacco. William Hollander, formerly of Newburgh, who has been employed at the Newburgh factory for the past two years, is mentioned as the probable superintendent of the Middletown factory.

The company is also negotiating for another factory which they hope to establish at New Haven, Conn., in the course of a year.

Delegations Reach Washington.

Leaf Tobacco Men are Ready to Meet the Ways and Means Committee.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24.

A delegation from New York headed by A. Bijur arrived here at 9 o'clock this evening prepared to appear before the Ways and Means Committee tomorrow morning to protest against passage of the Curtis Bill. John Landstreet, President of the Independent Manufacturers' Association of the United States arrived earlier in the evening. President Frye of the New England Tobacco Growers' Association accompanied by a few other gentlemen also arrived during the evening and registered at the St. James, the other party stopping at the New Willard. A number of others will arrive from New York and other points tomorrow in time for the hearing.

Some little time was spent by the party this evening in an informal discussion of plans for the most effective presentation of arguments tomorrow, and it is now thought that everything can be gotten through with in one day.

EMYLOYES ARE IN LUCK IN THIS FACTORY.

A physician, two trained nurses, a class in first aid for the injured and beds for emergency cases are some of the many precautions taken by the National Cash Register Company, of Dayton, Ohio, for the health and welfare of its employes.

The Company believes in good health for its employes, has followed out such a policy for a number of years, and it is safe to assert that there is not another manufacturing concern in the United States which has healthier or happier employes.

Ready for Emergency Cases.

When a person makes application for employment at the factory one of the first requirements is that he shall submit to a physical and medical examination, as it is the aim of the Company to take into its employ only strong and healthy men and women, and its employes must be protected from all contagious diseases. A special study of means to promote the health of its employes is made by the Welfare Department of the factory.

A physician employed by the Company is at the call of all employes while in the factory without cost to them, who conducts classes in first aid to the injured, aided by two trained nurses, who, themselves, are in close touch with the young women employed in the factory. The rest room in which the girls may go when ill is under their charge.

Ventilation and light receive special attention. The factory buildings are clean and light and are supplied with pure air. Everywhere are unusual sanitary provisions. In the polishing room, the air is changed every fifteen minutes, and the emery dust is drawn down by suction into a general exhaust pipe and conveyed out of the building.

The Lock and Drill Department.

The young women are provided with high back chairs and foot rests. They are also supplied with immaculately clean aprons and sleevelets to protect their gowns while at work.

Every building has its bathroom with tubs and shower appliances, and employes are given Company's time for bathing. All employes are given Saturday afternoon as a half holiday the year round.

Rest Room for Women Employes.

Dining rooms are provided where employes may secure warm lunches at a nominal charge. None but the purest of foods are served. Lectures on health and food are frequently given in the Assembly Hall for all the employes by recognized authorities on these subjects. All the known hygienic laws are observed throughout the factory. In addition to all these precautions, the employes of the factory have a Relief Association in which its members are entitled to sick benefits and the services of a physician when needed.

There is also a Men's Welfare League, which is the means of providing outdoor athletics of all kinds for the men employes of the factory.

—J. G. Teese, of the S. Omicron & Co., manufacturers of Turkish cigarettes, at 430 Walnut street, this city, who was confined to his Thirteenth street home, is now able to be out again.

Good to Keep Good Cigars Good

Your Jobber will give you a Certificate covering small quantities, and when you accumulate Certificates showing purchases of 6,000 CREMO EXPORT Cigars, you will be entitled to one of these handsome Humidors free. :: ::

Size, 30 in. long, 22 in. wide, 25 in. high. Weight, 60 lbs.

THE above illustration is an exact representation of the Humidor in which Cremo Export Cigars are packed and shipped by the manufacturer. This Humidor holds 6,000 Cremo Export Cigars in boxes containing 100 cigars each. It is metal lined, metal covered, with strong brass lock, and heavy brass drop handles and brass trimmings, with moistener pad in top of lid, ventilator in each end, and attractively decorated in imitation cedar wood.

Each humidor is shipped in a wood case to protect it from being scratched or damaged in transit.

The purpose of the Humidor is to protect the cigars from the deteriorating effects of changes in temperature, and to preserve them in the same good order and condition in which they leave the factory. This it does perfectly for any length of time in any climate on the globe, until the last box is used.

Cremo Export Cigars are made only in Londres, which means a straight cigar, being practically the same size from end to end. This shape is more generally smoked than any other, the world over, which fact is a pretty convincing proof that it is the most popular as well as the most desirable shape in which cigars can be made.

If you serve your customer with a Cremo Export Cigar out of a Humidor, you give him the best five-cent cigar in the world in the best condition to please him and hold his patronage; if he is pleased with one he will be pleased with every one.

Send your jobber an order for 6,000 Cremo Export Cigars, and he will have them shipped to you direct from the factory in the Humidor, freight paid, and billed as 5,500, at $35.00 per thousand.

The CREMO CIGAR is by several times THE LARGEST SELLER IN THE WORLD.

CHICAGO TRADE SATISFIED.

Business in the Windy City in Healthy Condition.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 21.

Trade conditions for the past week have been on the whole very satisfactory, and retail dealers in general report a healthy condition in business. Some are selling fair amounts in box lots, which indicates a return to normal conditions after the usual overloading experienced during the holidays. The wholesale houses as well appear satisfied with January business thus far. The belief is general from all sources in the business that the year is opening in a manner that pretty fully meets expectations.

T. D. Hene, who represents the well known firm of Wedeles Bros., is at York, Pa., and reports a very satisfactory business in Florida Sumatra stock in that section.

The American Tobacco Co. on Jan. 16 reinstated its former drop shipment deal, and on 50 pound plugs and over, delivered direct from the jobbers' stocks, will return its check of one cent per pound to purchasers.

The Steele-Wedeles Co.'s headquarters present a busy appearance, and good sales in their popular brand, the George W. Childs Cabinet 5 cent cigar, are reported.

The pioneer firm of Sprague, Warner & Co. are enjoying their usual good trade, as is evidenced from the business of their several tobacco departments.

A gratis deal of twenty Hoffman House little cigars free with each 100 magnums will be in effect until Feb. 15, 1905, at the J. & B. Moos headquarters. The firm is working along its usual lines, and reports a very good condition in trade.

The new national board of directors of the Cigar Dealers' Association of America met Thursday under the able leadership of President M. W. Diffley to discuss the best program for future work. While no details for publication were given out, it is evident that the new board is preparing to take up the battle with renewed energy, and will in due time be heard from.

Monroe Adler, who has been somewhat indisposed for several days, is again able to be at his office prepared for business.

Albert C. Becker has bought the store of S. Marco, at 197 LaSalle street, adjoining the Home Insurance building. It is perhaps better known as the Indermille stand, having several times been owned and sold by Mr. Indermille. The bulk of the stock of the late owner, Mr. Marco, was moved to his Fifth avenue store. Mr. Becker has for several years conducted the stand in the Home Insurance building.

Albert Breitung has again added to his growing business, and lately purchased the retail stand in the Old Colony building from Alfred Moos. The business qualifications of Mr. A. B. can best be summed up in the expressive phrase, "Nothing succeeds like success."

Sol Hamburger, of A. Santaella & Co., left recently for the company's factory at Tampa, and will from there go on a business trip to San Francisco. E. R. L.

COMMITTEE ON WAYS AND MEANS WILL HEAR TOBACCO MEN

Various Branches of the Trade are Gathered in Washington and will Today Protest Against the Curtis Bill to Cut the Tariff on Philippine Tobacco to One-third Present Rate.

Washington, D. C., Jan 24, 1905.

The House Ways and Means Committee of Congress will give a hearing tomorrow to all those in the tobacco trade who are interested in the tobacco trade and a large delegation will be on hand made up from the majority of the largest cigar and tobacco organizations in the country.

The hearing will be given in the Capital at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning by Chairman Payne and his committee and will continue until each spokesman is heard.

On the other hand, Secretary Taft has addressed a letter to Chairman Payne, explaining his purpose in transmitting to Congress the bill to amend the Philippine tariff. The Secretary says it was found that the original tariff act of 1902 had a number of defects, such as the prohibition on the importation of machinery and certain other duties not producing sufficient revenue.

The present bill was prepared under the direction of Mr. Taft while Governor of the islands after public hearings and the most careful consideration by the commission and business interests in the United States, criticism and amendment by the latter being specially invited.

Under the existing law the duty paid on the Philippine tobacco is 75 per cent. of the Dingley rate. Tobacco men have expressed a willingness to accept a cut to 50 per cent and they consider that they were given to understand that the Philippine bill would name this rate. When the measure was introduced on January 14 they learned for the first time of the 25 per cent provision.

Under the provisions of the Curtis bill, Philippine cigars could more than compete with the domestic 5 cent cigar and would create a situation compared with which the complaint of domestic manufacturers of clear Havanas against the Cuban treaty is as nothing.

Under the Curtis bill the rate on cigars and cigarettes would be cut from $4.50 per pound and 25 per cent ad valorem, to $1.12½ per pound and 6¼ per cent ad valorem. On wrapper leaf the rate would be cut from $1.85 to 46¼ cents per pound and on fillers from 35 cents to 8¾ cents per pound. A still further reduction on the duty would be realized by Philippine importers from the provision of the law which exempts the cigars of the islands from the internal revenue tax of $3.

The matter is one of great interest to Pennsylvania, and growers, manufacturers and dealers have been working steadily against the passage of the bill. Pennsylvania is now the largest manufacturing State and the army of cigarmakers employed would feel the effect of the cut at once. As a matter of fact the grade of tobacco raised in this State would come most directly into competition with the cheap labor product of the islands, Virginia and North Carolina, bright leaf centres being but little affected.

HERE AND THERE IN DAYTON, O.

American Cigar Co. is Buying Large Lots of 1904 Zimmers.

Dayton, O., Jan. 23.

The buyers of the American Cigar Co. were last week actively engaged in the purchase of the 1904 Zimmers. If reports be true, the said company have purchased heavily of last year's crop of Zimmers, and have shown no disposition to discontinue. The activity shown by them has stimulated others to follow, and in the past two weeks buying in general has been very noticeable.

O'Neill & Ruge, the well known local packers, have vacated their old quarters in the Logan street property and are now installed in the Rosenwald warehouse in Edgemont, which, with its increased facilities for handling, is better adapted to their rapidly growing business. The O'Neill warehouse has been leased to George Kemp, the local agent of Elias Bach & Son, New York. This firm is now packing in this section, and has shown excellent judgment in the selection of its representative here.

The rising temperature, accompanied by recent rains, has served the growers well, and a considerable amount of tobacco has been taken down. However, the opportunity thus afforded must be well utilized, for at this season of the year the uncertain weather conditions behooves quick action.

The writer a few days since personally inspected the new warehouse of Heeter, on Hawthorne street, West Side, and was very favorably impressed with its excellent facilities for handling. It comprises a two story building, with cement basement, thoroughly equipped and finely adapted to the purposes for which it is intended.

The Louis Heitman cigar factory was badly damaged by fire last week, entailing an almost total loss to the stock. The building, however, was not injured beyond repair, and carpenters are now busily engaged restoring the charred woodwork. The stock was fully covered by insurance. It will be several weeks before work in the old factory can be resumed. Mr. Heitman has secured temporary quarters in the H. C. Mahrt building, where the 175 employes of the company will be engaged in their various capacities until the needed repairs are completed. Mr. Heitman's trade, therefore, will not suffer in consequence of the unfortunate occurrence.

Among the out of town visitors to the local trade the past week the following representatives of well known houses were noticed: Ray C. Sutter, Sutter Bros., Chicago, and Charles Goldsmith, of Charles R. Goldsmith & Co., New York.

Fred W. Miller, the Queen City broker, was a guest of Germantown, O., packers this week. NIX.

Palm Rolling Essential to Hand-Work.

THIS IS THE SIMPLEST AND MOST PRACTICAL TOOL yet introduced in connection with Cigar-making. The cutting rollers are so equipped with ball bearings and exterior springs that they only produce enough pressure to cut the leaf, thus maintaining a sharp edge on the die and assuring a perfect, clean cut, superior to hand-work. The circumference of the cutting roller being greater than the length of the die, makes tearing or streaking of the wrapper impossible. Then, after the leaf has been cut, a slight depression with the right foot pedal will lower the die even with the table, thus making a perfectly smooth and rigid surface, enabling the operator to Roll with the Full Palm of the Hand, instead of pushing the cigar along with the finger tips.

Changing of the die to any shape, or from right to left, or the reverse, is a very simple matter on this table, and can be done within two minutes time.

These points of merit, coupled with others not mentioned, have won for this table the high standard of excellence maintained to-day, a fact that cannot conscientiously be claimed by any of our competitors.

We stand ready to prove our statement, and all we ask is for the opportunity.

We Think IT WILL PAY YOU to Investigate.

DOESN'T WANT TO BE A LABEL.

Governor of Minnesota Turns Down Manufacturers Who Want a New Brand.

Unlike the majority of public officials, Governor Johnson, of Minnesota, has resisted all appeals that he allow his name and picture to be used as a label for a cigar package.

More than a dozen applications of this nature have been received by Frank A. Day, private secretary, and have been placed on file until the governor gets leisure to decide whether he wants to go down to posterity as the champion of the weed.

One impetuous manufacturer, impatient to get the consent of the governor, yesterday called him up and beseeched him over the wires to allow his picture to go upon a brand of cigars he is about to place upon the market.

The applications began to come in almost before those of the office seekers, and continue to come in with the same regularity. Gov. Johnson has been too busy to give them a thought, but it is said that the manufacturers will have to cast around for a new name for their products.

ANOTHER WHELAN IN NEW YORK.

Michael J. Will Manage United States Co.'s Mail Order Business.

Syracuse, N. Y., Jan. 20.

Michael J. Whelan of this city has been selected by the United Cigar Stores Co. to manage its mail order department and from now on will spend most of his time in New York.

The new manager was until a few days ago confined to his residence at 612 East Genesee street by illness, but has recovered sufficiently to go to New York.

Mr. Whelan has for many years been proprietor of the cigar store at the junction of East Genesee and East Washington streets, which has been run under the name of Lewis & Whelan. Since the death of his former partner Mr. Whelan has retained the old firm name.

George J. Whelan is president of the United Cigar Stores Company and C. A. Whelan is vice president. Both were formerly in the cigar business here. John F. Whelan, proprietor of the Yates cigar stand, was recently chosen president of the Royal Cigar Co., which proposes to open a chain of stores in New York and other cities and to handle only imported and high grade cigars and tobaccos.

The connection of the Whelans with the United Cigar Stores Co. has revived the rumor that the firm would take over the Whelan stores in this city, but this is denied. Those familiar with the doings of the big company, however, say that it is but a matter of time before the local stores will belong to the big company, and it is only on account of the influence of the Whelans that the company did not open several stores here sooner.

NEW WAREHOUSE GETS BUSINESS.

Cincinnati Sales Suffered On Account of Kentucky Competition.

Cincinnati, O., Jan. 20.

For some time business on the local breaks has been quiet for the season, so much so that certain men in the leaf commission business of the city have begun to believe that the stagnation may be a result of the opening of a new tobacco auction warehouse by the Burley Loose Tobacco Co., at Lexington, Ky., which it must be remembered is in the heart of the growing district.

Sales at the local warehouses were a trifle better last week but were below the average. Farmers who are interested in the Burley Growers' Association are holding their tobacco until the Association either raises sufficient funds to combat the combine or else disbands.

It is reported in a semi-official way that if the Growers' Association is compelled to give up, its followers will ship their tobacco to Lexington, where it is thought the combine can be better fought than in the markets at Cincinnati or Louisville.

Last year at the local warehouses on Front street 23,629 hogsheads were offered, against 65,893 hogsheads in 1903. The aggregate cash amount of sales during 1904 were $2,415,760.53, compared to $5,435,453.58 during the preceding year, a loss to the city's trade of more than three million dollars. It will be recalled that the combine purchased heavy supplies direct from the country, and the decrease in the year's business is largely atttributed to that account. Whether or not the new ventures at Lexington will continue to take away that much of the city's business in tobacco remains to be seen.

IMPROVEMENT IN BOSTON.

Brief Reports of What is Doing with the Trade at the Hub.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 19.

Business in the cigar and tobacco circles for the week past shows signs of improvement; the retailers are not complaining so much as they have been, and the jobbers seem to be satisfied, as many of them have been ordering goods just as if business was at its best. Many manufacturers of cigarettes and tobacco who heretofore packed coupons in their goods, have followed the American Tobacco Co.'s course, and have notified the trade that hereafter they would cease doing so on account of the new State law, which was aimed to do away with the trading stamp business, but is effecting nearly every branch of business, where premiums, etc., are given away to help the sale of goods irrespective of what they may be.

Victor Sheppard who is now the genial representative of the Khedivail Co. in this locality, is doing some clever work in advertising and placing the Turkish Delights and one by one the jobbers are taking hold of these goods. On account of the similarity of the package to another brand made by the trust, these goods are being rapidly pushed by live dealers.

Ed. Leader, with the Allen Tobacco Co., is about to start on an extended trip, and he declares that Telonettes are selling better than ever.

H. Van Buren, with the American Tobacco Co., who is working on Cubanola cigars, and Sam Marcuson with the same concern, on Hassan cigarettes, are both in Lowell this week.

The engagement is announced of Maurice Hanauer, who is connected with the firm of Louis Jesesohn, and Miss Fanny Friedlander, daughter of the popular south end jobber, S. Friedlander.

Miss Baumgrass, who formerly was saleswoman for the Cafe Noir Cigarette Co., is now traveling representative for the Khedivial Co., of New York.

Wm. Norton, formerly with S. Monday & Sons, of New York, and Doc. Hammond, are now with the Victor Thorsch Co., doing missionary work on the Bachelor cigars.

Chas. Vetterlein, of Philadelphia, spent a few days here last week looking after the sale of their Saborosa brand which is said to be one of the best 5 cent goods sold in this market.

Julius Becker and H. Burger, of the Manhattan Briar Wood Pipe Co., of New York, are still in town going the rounds.

Sam. Harris, of the Khedivial Co., is expected to be in Boston in a few days. Sam. is very popular with the trade.

Rosenthal Bros. have taken the Boston agency for the William the Fourth clear Havana cigars made by Gans Bros., of New York.

Julius O. Cohen, proprietor of the Market Man's Cigar Store, has placed a nice order for some Espina cigars with the Straitton & Storm Co.

Lee Hammond, of 4317 Boyleston street, has a nice window display this week of the John Drew cigar.

Leroy little cigars on account of the new gratis deal are selling better than ever. S. A. Frank, who represents L. Miller & Sons in this section is placing the Grumbler and El Cafe cigars with good success.

A. S. Bearse & Co., 9 Greene street, are enjoying a good sale on Puritan little cigars and Kozy cut plug.

Visiting salesmen, when calling on D. Benditson, the popular Hanover street jobber, are always given the glad hand by Israel Dane, the buyer, but when it comes to giving orders, Mr. Dane always manages to creep out of it somehow.

Frank Grim, the principal jobber of union and independent goods in Boston and surroundings is also the financial secretary of the Cigar Dealers' Association of America. The Boston local reports that at present the Association is in good financial condition and the membership is gaining daily.

Gordon Bros. have purchased the candy store located next door to their store at 999 Washington street and contemplate enlarging the same in connection with their cigar business. BEN ALI.

REDUCED ACREAGE IN TODD CO., KY

Planters' Association Adopts Resolutions to Reduce 7 1-2 Per Cent.

At a recent stated meeting the Todd County Tobacco Planters' Association adopted resolutions pledging the membership to a reduction in acreage this year as follows:

Five acres in tobacco for every fifty acres of tillable land and 2½ acres for every additional fifty acres, making an average of 7½ acres to the hundred.

The average planting in this county for the past four years has only been 2⅔ acres per hundred. Steps were also taken looking to the prizing of the present crop.

BLAME GOVERNMENT FOR LOSSES ON SHADE-GROWN.

Connecticut Farmers Who Have Gone Broke Trying to Raise Sumatra Leaf, Declare That Misleading Reports of Government Experts are Responsible.

A number of tobacco growers in Connecticut are complaining bitterly of the Government's experts, who, they claim, submitted reports which were so misleading as to cause them to make bad investments.

The principal grievance has to do with the much-mooted shade grown Sumatra fiasco, which failure cost those concerned in it considerable money. The growers, who assert that they are victims of misplaced confidence, declare that the experts employed by the Department of Agriculture made directly misleading reports of the results of their labors, because of erroneous deductions. Accepting these favorable reports, the complaining growers say that they have lost not less than $1,000,000 in their attempt to raise Sumatra under tents in the Connecticut Valley.

Government experts stated that the tents produced conditions similar to those obtaining in Sumatra. In view of the fact that there is a tariff of $1.85 a pound on imported Sumatra tobacco, the prosperity which awaited Connecticut growers provided Sumatra wrapper tobacco could be successfully and economically grown in that State was apparent.

Government reports stated the profit was at least $1 a pound, and that under ordinary conditions the yield should be not less than 1,000 pounds to the acre.

These reports and official statements gave a working basis for alert promoters, and numbers of stock companies were organized into which scores of farmers came with what money they could raise, banking on Secretary Wilson's summing up of his experts' reports with the prediction that there would ultimately be grown in this section the $6,000,000 of Sumatra leaf which is now annually imported into the United States.

The 1901 crop sold readily at remunerative prices, the purchasers being curious packers, who were anxious to try the much-heralded leaf.

Gradually unwelcome truths became known. The tobacco was "papery." Other defects were a bad burn, a bitter taste and an odor far from fragrant. By degrees it was admitted that the big crops of 1902 and 1903 were unsold and unsalable except at sacrificial prices.

The 1904 acreage of this tobacco did not amount to much, but the late report of the Bureau of Soils seemed to indicate that the venture was considered quite successful.

Those growers who blame the Government for their losses now voice a doubt that actual sale was made of the experimental half acre crop grown in Windsor under Government supervision in 1900, and the question is being asked was the cost of the crop ultimately paid for out of the Government appropriation for soils experiments in Connecticut?

Leaf Tobacco Markets.

CONNECTICUT VALLEY

There is not much riding in this section for tobacco. One reason may be that the weather is something fearful; snow one day, the next rain, and for some days thereafter the ice that covers not only the walks but the roads, and, in fact, all the fields, so that walking is out of the question and driving perilous to both man and beast. Then, another thing, the first bought will hold the shops for some time yet. But, as bad as the going is, I saw Mr. Mendelsohn riding with F. P. Jones of this town.

Our correspondents write:

Suffield, Ct.: "Tobacco buyers are plenty, and I have heard of several sales, all at good prices. One crop sold at 19c, one of Havana at 22½c. The rest of the crop was seed leaf, but pole sweated, and brought only 16c. Another crop sold for 20c, still another crop at better than 20c, and one crop brought a little less than 20c."

East Deerfield, Mass.: "Tobacco is all taken down here and most all stripped, and I think all sold but one crop, at around 15c in the bundle."

North Hadley, Mass.: "The taking down and stripping of tobacco was finished the last damp time, and it is all sold with the exception of one or two lots. The last sale heard of was that of R. Shattuc at 14c in bundle."

Montague, Mass.: "Tobacco is all sold here. We feel that one of the hardest features of raising the crop is to sell it on its merits; that is, if you have a good crop to be able to realize a fair value for it."

Feeding Hills, Mass: "Tobacco buyers have been around this past week, and several crops have changed hands. Edward M. Wright sold his crop of six acres to E. H. Smith, of Springfield, for 18c in bundle. Two small lots on West street have been bought by a New York party. These had dark leaf. B. C. Roberts sold to same party, price not known, as did T. O'Brien and T. Griffin on Front street. An offer was made to the Taylors on their 9-acre lot, but not accepted. This last was hit lightly by hail."

Conway, Mass.: "The tobacco is almost all sold here now, only a few crops left. Those who have sold have not all delivered their tobacco yet. The buyers seem to be holding it back for some reason. That which has been delivered is weighing out at about a ten to the acre,

North Hatfield, Mass.: "E. C. Warner has sold his tobacco to Bock, 12 tons at 15c, mostly in bundles; the balance is in cases, all assorted. Willis Holden has sold 13 acres, partly assorted, for 21c; that in bundles for something less per pound."—Amer. Cultivator.

EDGERTON, WIS.

Buyers are riding the growing districts in search of both old and new leaf, but the movement has not resumed large proportions as yet. The bulk of the sales of the week probably concern cured leaf, for which there continues to be an active demand, though prices are kept within the limits heretofore established, which are generally too low to deserve mention in this column. Sales of the new tobacco run from 6 cents upwards, but hardly equal those of the early contracts.

L. Severson sold 73cs of '01 at 8¼c.

Albert Maas, 38cs '01 at 8 and 1c.

Albert Maas, 6a of '04 at 6c.

The deliveries of the new crop are coming quite plentifully to the warehouses now, and the yield and money returns are proving quite satisfactory to the growers. Dealers find but little to complain of regarding the condition of the tobacco when received and settlements are effected with scarcely any trouble. Help is plentiful and the work of packing is going forward with well organized forces and with but little friction.

Shipments were 783cs.—Reporter.

CLARKSVILLE, TENN.

M. H. Clark & Bro.

Our receipts this week were 60 hhds., offerings on the breaks 20 hhds., public and private sales 115 hhds.

The qualities offered were mainly the lower grades of leaf, as for the past few months; the market was firm and unchanged.

Some hogsheads of new tobacco appear in the receipts, but are not offered for sale.

There is but little doing in the loose tobacco market; a crop is sold here and there.

The ruling committees of the Dark Tobacco District Planters' Protective Association continue to hold their regular meetings, and are now contracting to have the crop prized. Conventions of the planters are also regularly held, which are largely attended and often with much excitement, and ratios established for the reduction of the planting this year.

For Old Tobacco, we quote:

Low Lugs	$3.50 to $3.75
Common Lugs	3.75 to 4.00
Medium Lugs	4.00 to 4.25
Good Lugs	4.25 to 4.75
Low Leaf	4.75 to 5.50
Common Leaf	5.75 to 6.75
Medium Leaf	7.00 to 8.00

BALDWINSVILLE, N. Y., WANTS A GOVERNMENT STATION.

A meeting of the Tobacco Growers' Association of the State of New York was held at Baldwinsville last week, when plans were formulated to induce the Government to establish an experimental station in Baldwinsville. A number of well known growers and others in the trade were present.

THE WAY AND THE MEANS

¶ There are more ways than ONE to do everything—but every way isn't the BEST way.

¶ If it is any part of your business to produce GOOD cigars, you need GOOD Cigar Tools.

¶ NATIONAL TOOLS are just a little bit BETTER—and a little bit CHEAPER—than YOUR tools.

¶ Because we have the patents, the skilled labor, unusual manufacturing and selling advantages, and we know our business.

¶ NATIONAL CIGAR BOARDS, hard, strong, heavy and smooth; no knots, streaks or spots; can't warp or split.

¶ NATIONAL CIGAR KNIVES and CUBAN BLADES hold their edge and never botch the job.

¶ Another thing, we don't charge several prices for NATIONAL TOOLS, and we give your money back if they don't suit.

¶ Ask for our Special Proposition, meant particularly for YOU.

¶ The coupon brings it.

GOOD SITUATION IN OWENSBORO.

Movement of Tobacco will be More Satisfactory to Auction Men.

Owensboro, Ky., Jan. 28.

A well known tobacco man in this city declared that tobacco will come in this year as it ought to, and in a way that will be perfectly satisfactory to auction house people. For some seasons now, conditions under which tobacco was marketed, have been not at all good. According to the man who predicts a beneficial change there always have been considerable quantities of tobacco sold by contract and considerable quantities at auction. When good tobacco seasons came those who sold their tobacco by contract brought it to town as rapidly as possible. At the same time those who depend on auction sales rushed their crops to the market. The result that the buyers were crowded with the tobacco bought under contract and were too busy to take much interest in the auction sales. Under this state of affairs those who sold at auction did not get as good prices as they would have gotten had buyers been more at leisure.

This time, as usual, many farmers have sold their entire crops by the contract system. A great part of this has been delivered and the remainder is being brought in as rapidly as possible. Those who propose to sell their crops at auction and who do not belong to the American Society of Equity are beginning to market their holdings and the rush will be on in a short time. But the buyers are through with the heaviest part of their contract work and will be at leisure to devote their time to auction sales. Better prices will thus be realized on the same grade of tobacco than ever before.

BROUGHT TOBACCO IN STORM.

Big Offerings at Richmond Warehouses in Spite of Blizzard.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 27.

The great storm did not interfere greatly with the movements of the tobacco farmers. Offerings at the local tobacco warehouses on Wednesday reached nearly 200,000 pounds according to estimates, and in spite of the bitter cold weather and snow, farmers appeared in large numbers. The wheels covered to hubs with snow and mud, attested the hardships of travel in many cases.

Prices received were satisfactory. At Shockkoe warehouse a pile was sold for M. P. Stanley, of Hanover, at $27, the highest price of the day at the time. Will Hazel, proprietor of Shockoe, also reported several sales at prices ranging from $13 to $20.50. Two piles, each weighing more than 500 pounds, were sold there for M. T. Cobb, of Caroline, at $17.50 and $15, respectively.

—The American Cigar Co.'s sorting station in Sparta, Wis., has opened for the season's business, with a crew of 300 persons. Considerable leaf is being received.

HOW FLORIDA TOBACCO HAS BECOME A FACTOR.

Interesting History of the Plant's Struggle for Recognition in the State. Which Began When it was a Territory Inhabited by Hostile Indians. Shade-Grown Has Gained Prestige.

[Written for The Tobacco World.]

When Florida was a territory, Gadsden county was settled by people from the old Colonial States mostly from North Carolina and Virginia. These sturdy pioneers planted their homes in the midst of hostile tribes of Indians, because of the rich alluvial hummocks in this part of the territory, and on account of its healthful hills and fertile valleys, watered by immense bubbling springs and ever flowing brooks and rivers.

Among these settlers was one Smith, and to distinguish him from the numerous others of the perennial Smith family, he was called Virginia Smith. He conceived the idea of growing tobacco there, which soon demonstrated the fact that Gadsden county was naturally adapted to the production of a marvelously fine wrapper leaf.

Buyers were attracted from all over the world for what was then called the spotted Florida wrapper, and notable among these buyers were Mr. Bergman from Connecticut, and Mr. Vetterlein from Philadelphia, the latter the father of our "Prince of Brokers," Herman Vetterlein, of Philadelphia. So this leaf grew to be the standard of merit as the finest, thinest wrapper known to the cigar manufacturers of the world, as any of our good old time manufacturers will testify.

This condition continued until our war between the States, by which the planters were so impoverished that they were compelled to give up the growing of so delicate an article as wrapper tobacco and turn to the culture of cotton which then brought fabulous prices.

Tobacco culture languished until Carl Voghts' Sons, of New York, bought a few crops in 1887 from one or two persistent growers who had continued in the face of all difficulties to market their crops, under conditions more or less adverse. These crops resulted so satisfactorily to Messrs. Voght that they at once invested largely in real estate in Gadsden county.

Then Straiton & Storm, Schroeder & Bon, and A. Cohn & Co. also bought heavily in real estate. These firms grew large acreages of Havana seed tobacco and thereby induced the growing of large quantities of the same by the independent farmers, but this paid only in a nominal way until in 1896 D. A. Shaw, of the Florida Tobacco Co., erected the first shade over tobacco in the world which has revolutionized wrapper growing.

At first the idea was laughed at as being contrary to nature, but now Florida shade grown tobacco has passed the experimental stage and we see Florida again reaching out for the prestige indicated by the soil and climate in producing such fine tobacco as the old Florida spotted wrapper in "Ye good old times of long ago."

Sumatra seed, grown under shade in Florida 1903 and 1904 has established Florida shade grown tobacco as a factor in cigar manufacturing without a doubt.

WILL REMOVE MOULD FROM LEAF.

New England Inventor Offers Process to Remedy Annoying Fault.

A New England man, named Knox, claims to have invented a satisfactory method of removing mould from tobacco, which if it really does make good, will be of decided value to those interested. The inventor claims that his process is the result of forty years laboratory work and that its action will permanently remove must and mould from the leaf by the natural law of capillary attraction.

It is a compound, which, being applied to the butts of the tobacco leaf, as packed in the cases, will pass up through the stems and veins of the leaf, removing all mould and must, and at the same time improving the burning qualities, without changing its normal color, but giving to the leaf brilliance, liveliness and silkiness found in the highest grade only.

It is a well known fact that crops of tobacco, wherever raised, vary in quality, much being so poor that it is unsalable, and on this account accumulates in various markets. To improve defective stocks of the ordinary tobacco leaf of commerce, by the simple law of capillary attraction, must be distributed throughout the leaves by only applying certain harmless ingredients, which fill the want to make a perfect leaf tobacco. The influence of this preparation is carried throughout the entire leaf, removing all mould and mus and giving desirable capacity for holding fire.

No odor or taste due to the process can be present, this infusion removing mould and must in all conditions short of rotting, as it cannot exist in its presence permanently restoring the tobacco leaf to a healthy condition.

The plans hitherto adopted to remedy this mouldy and musty condition of leaf tobacco have proved to be only temporary, as the agents used are conducive to mould and must, and do not restore the tobacco to a healthy condition.

BALTIMORE FIRM BANKRUPT.

Charles H. Klemm, Jr., of Baltimore, trading as Charles H. Klemm & Sons, cigar manufacturers, has made application in the United States Court for the benefit of the bankrupt law. The liabilities are placed at $11,799.78 and assets $3,663.18, of which $2,005.42 are debts due on open accounts and $1,648.41 stock in trade. There are no secured claims.

ANOTHER INSTALLMENT FROM THE CHICAGO JOURNAL.

The following is dreamed exclusively for all those careless enough to read it, by the Slush Editor of the Chicago Journal:

The Women's Anti-Trust Tobacco club is the latest development in the fight of the independent cigar and tobacco dealers of Chicago against the tobacco trust.

The club was organized by a dozen South side women whose husbands, brothers, or sweethearts are smokers.

Already the movement has spread to a considerable extent.

The women will use their influence with the men, asking them to boycott the trust cigar stores and to use only the better quality of goods made by the independent manufacturers and sold by the independent dealers.

The plan of the women originated at a cinch club. While the game was in progress the husband of the hostess came home smoking a cigar.

One of the women remarked on the bad odor of the tobacco, and the smoker himself agreed the cigar was a poor one. He said he had paid 10 cents for it in one of the trust stores.

The conversation turned on The Journal's articles against the tobacco trust.

Some of the women told instances in which they heard their male relatives express dislike for the cheap class of tobacco palmed off on the public in the trust's retail stores under the names of popular brands.

One of the women suddenly sprang up and cried:

"Let's form the first women's anti-trust tobacco club."

The proposition was put to vote and carried unanimously.

The women believe the movement will prove a prominent factor in the war of extermination on the trust stores in Chicago.

A large membership in the club is looked for.

MORE SUN-CURED IN RICHMOND.

Warehouse Men Urge Farmers to Make Larger Planting.

L. B. Vaughan & Co., proprietors of the Crenshaw warehouse, of Richmond, Va., have made a statement declaring that there is every reason why farmers should plant more sun-cured leaf. They say:

"The good prices should stimulate larger planting of sun-cured leaf, which is so much needed for the wants of the trade. We believe the prosperity of this valuable tobacco is hindered by the insufficient quantity raised."

The proprietors of Crenshaw warehouse have kept tab on local tobacco conditions for thirty years or so and know what they are talking about. They are by no means the only ones who see that the demand for sun-cured tobacco is ever on the increase and that the farmers are justified in increasing their acreage of this crop and watching it more closely than ever so as to produce the best possible leaf. Tobacco men agree that there is little danger of growing too much sun-cured.

—John Duley, president of the Maysville, Ky., Board of Trade, declares that the tobacco fair to be held in that town on Feb. 22 will be the biggest ever held.

The Old Salesman's Musings.

HOW AN OLD FRIEND OF MINE STARTED ON THE ROAD.

I met an old time friend of mine the other day and we had a great chat on the dead past. And the dead past, by the way, is never so dead that its contemplation does not beat out the actual present.

"I tell you, we had a lot of fun in those days," is a common enough expression, and when we get down to it, I believe that ninety five per cent of whatever might be called pleasure in this life is gotten from our reminiscent and anticipatory moods. What we actually have, isn't valued.

For instance, I have a very vivid memory that when I was a kid sporting around among the dames, somehow the girl the other fellow had, always seemed more desirable than the one I was with. If I'd been with the second girl and seen mine with somebody else, it would have been the same way.

But the only thing this has to do with the present subject is its relation to the happy chat we had in a little German rathskellar over our, I daresay, commonplace lives. We hadn't a stenographer with us, and I'd need the whole paper, anyhow, to reproduce all that was said, but my friend made some remarks which I believe will be interesting to every reader of this column. He told me, first, how he came to go on the road, "and I can just state," he declared, "that my first experience came near being my last.

"I was only twenty years old, and thought I would make just about the cutest drummer that ever left a sample case while he went around the corner. I was clerking in a drug store, and in spite of the fact that we handled the goods of only one house, I was firmly confident that what I didn't know about all the different brands wasn't worth remembering.

"I saw a want ad. which conveyed the generous informatian that a salesman could earn big money selling cigars, 'liberal expense money allowed.' This seemed as if they had heard of me, so I sent in a bond, signed by my father and another business man, and also remitted $25 for the 'salesman's outfit.' I was permitted to pick my own route, and the first place I hit was fifty miles from home.

"I sold about $5 worth of cigars and sent in the order. I went on to another town and sold a pretty fair order. I went on again and in the next town I made a water haul. By this time I had spent about $20, and my sales had not footed up much more than that. At the end of the week I sent in my expense account, which was $42.50, and I itemized my sales, showing that I had some cash coming besides the expenses.

"Well, I got a letter from them that was a pippin. They told me they wouldn't pay my railroad fare nor my hotel expenses; that I might stay in my own city and sell the cigars, if I wanted to, but until the profits for the firm would far exceed my expense account, they would not consider anything else. They also reminded me that they had in no manner agreed to pay me unless I earned something; that most of the sales were worthless, and that I would get my commission when the buyers paid for the goods they bought.

"I got back home and broke the news as soon as I could and dug out my contract and went over it carefully with my father. We soon discovered that there was no way of holding the company for what I had spent. This so disgusted me with traveling that I went back to fizzing soda and selling pills, and stayed there until I had a bona fide offer from a square house, and that was the beginning of my real life on the road.

"I have found that to sell anything, a man must learn to size up his prospective customers. Without being a sucker, he must like what they like; talk about things that interest them; be friendly to everybody, and never try to get the best of a man, for if you do, he will find it out, and it wont be long until everybody knows about it.

"Once I sold a lot of 20,000 Havana fillers with rather a cheap wrapper. I was instructed to sell them around $22 per thousand, and when I found a man who was eager for them, I hit him for $35, and got it. One of the other salesmen also had a few thousand to sell at $22, and he let them go at that. The two buyers happened to be cousins, and when one visited the other, the stock was looked over, and the man who paid $35 said: 'Well, old man, I see you have some of Jimmie's specials. I got 20,000, and he let me have them for $35.'

"'Thirty-five dollars!' exclaimed the cousin, 'why, I bought them from his house for $22.'

"You can imagine the fireworks. The house offered and did make up the difference, and I lied like the devil to square myself, but I never did. I lost his trade, and it cured me forever from working a double deal. Sell your goods at the list price, and you wont have some kicker on your neck for soaking him for a quarter more on the million.

"Another thing. I always made it a point to be civil to the customers of my customers. It never hurt me to stop and chin awhile with them, and I always managed to say a good word for the man who was retailing to them. Every little kindness was likely to win a friend. The very fellow I might be talking to would sometime, perhaps, own a store, and would look me up sure thing."

THE OLD SALESMAN.

PHILA. TRAVELERS' PROTECTIVE ASSOCIATION IN NEW QUARTERS.

At a regular meeting of Post A, Travelers' Protective Association, held Saturday evening, January 21, it was decided to move from the present quarters, at 1214 Arch street, to more commodious ones at 1602 Arch street, and since Saturday, January 28, the association has invited all friends to pay a visit to that address.

Owing to the constant increase of membership, it was found necessary to have more room and more amusement for the many that use the rooms. In line with this, there is being installed a pool table, which will be a boon to many of the members. There will also be a reading room, supplied with papers and magazines, board room, ladies' room and meeting rooms.

Through the energy of the ways and means committee there will be a play given some time in March, and judging from the interest already taken by many of the members, it will no doubt be an assured success.

THE REALM OF THE RETAILERS

TACT AND DIPLOMACY INCREASE SALES 300 PER CENT.

WHAT a difference in a man's sales a little diplomacy and tact make. The writer stood in a store for a half hour the other day and saw at least three dollars worth of sales that wouldn't have been made if the salesman had not been on to his job.

The $3 was all in small sales, one or two cigars at a time, and it was a fair exhibition of the value of the clerk's methods.

For an instance, one man came in, a stranger in the neighborhood, simply stopping in the first cigar store he came to after he felt a desire to have a cigar.

"Give me a good medium cigar about two for a quarter or three for a quarter," said he.

The man behind the counter in a very few seconds had four or five different boxes open in front of the customer, and had something direct and specific to say about each brand in a way which at once gave you the impression that he knew what he was talking about.

The customer fingered the boxes and casually mentioned a certain brand, ten cent straight, that he had once tried. In a second it was down, and the dealer showing its good points, regardless of the fact that the customer had apparently almost decided to take some at two for a quarter. He selected a couple from the ten cent box and tendered a dollar.

These will do," he said.

The dealer punched the cash register and then reached for another package.

"Here's a very pretty size in that brand," he said. "They sell two for a quarter and they're made with unusual care. They're one of the most satisfactory sellers I've got."

The customer looked them over and selected a couple. As they were being put into a bag with some matches, he was attracted by a card over the counter announcing a special price on a certain brand, and he examined one of the cigars of that brand in a near-by box.

The dealer at once explained why he was able to sell the cigars at that price, and told the truth about it. It struck the customer that he was at least sure of getting his money's worth, and he selected three or four of the cigars which were cheaper in price, and then decided that he would take enough to make up the dollar's worth.

There was eighty cents which the man had not the slightest intention of spending when he entered the store. A young fellow came in a little later and bought a ten cent box of cigarettes. A remark or two about cigarettes led to the mention of a new brand that is being widely advertised, the dealer exhibited a package, the young man became interested, other brands were exhibited and dilated upon, and as there is nothing so attractive to a cigarette smoker as a new, rich looking box, the young fellow was greatly interested and presently departed with forty-five cents worth of cigarettes, thirty-five cents of which he was counting on having with him when he left the shop.

So it went on, until the three mentioned in the first paragraph had been made up. Then the writer went out, but it is to be presumed that the dealer continued to reap the value of his wise methods. No matter whether the first customer ever came back to the store again, the dealer was ahead the few extra sales he made on him, and the same way with the man who bought the cigarettes.

If either of these customers were in a position to come back, because they were pleased with the way they had been treated, the dealer had gained a regular customer. A few, a very few only, of these every day would suffice to give him an ever growing business which would be particularly valuable owing to the fact that he could take it with him wherever he went and likewise count on building up a new one wherever he went by exercise of the same methods.

The dealer did nothing remarkable in any way, or nothing that any man of ordinary intelligence could not have done. His conversation was not highly brilliant nor crowded full of jokes or striking in any way. At the same time he was Johnny-on-the-spot, which a whole lot of those back of the counter are not. There are thousands of clerks in the business who would never sell a single cent's worth that wasn't asked for the whole year round. In fact, they don't see why they should. They wait on a man and give him what he wants, and that's all they are hired and paid for. Perhaps that's all some of them are paid for, but if they'd get a little busy with their think tank, there might soon be more doing in the pay envelope.

WOMEN BUY TOBACCO TO GET COUPONS.

ACCORDING to the following from a New York paper, the coupon system is responsible for quite a number of women customers who want the coupons as badly as they do trading stamps, the two now being interchangeable at a number of places. The article says that a young lawyer in a down town office building, who has more time to look out of the window than he wishes he had, noticed that several women were among the customers that patronized a cigar store across the street. Next time he went in for a cigar he spoke to the manager about it.

"Those women all come in to buy," said the manager. "Some of them purchase cigarettes, but whether they smoke them themselves or not I do not know. You see, we are in the line of a good many women on their way to and from the North River ferries. Perhaps they buy the cigarettes for friends. But we have women who come in here regularly for cigars and tobacco. The coupon business is responsible for that. Men let their wives buy their cigars and tobacco so as to give them the benefit of the coupons. More than one-half the articles we give for a stated number of coupons are for women's use. Uptown or downtown, it is no strange thing nowadays to see women going into cigar stores where coupons are given away."

A NUMBER of tobacco dealers state that the cigarette habit among boys is on the wane, and say there has been a big falling off in the sale of cigarettes during the last six months, due to a fad the boys now have of smoking pipes.

THIS CARD IS SELF-EXPLANATORY.

WILLIAM CATLIN, of New York, who until a few weeks ago conducted the store at 144 North Eighth street, Philadelphia, under the name of the Pennsylvania Cigar Stores Co., and who is now on the road for the Victor Thorsch Co., of Allentown, writes that he has just returned to New York from Providence, closing up a very satisfactory trip. Mr. Catlin will shortly leave for Maine, making a stop in Boston, where he will continue his energetic work on "Buster Brown." Mr. Catlin is using a novel card to introduce his goods (he seldom needs introduction himself), a reproduction of which is made above.

PHILADELPHIA AND NEW YORK RETAIL MARKETS VERY DIFFERENT.

THERE is a curious difference between the retail cigar market of Philadelphia and that of New York. Of course, it is common knowledge that the five cent cigar is a Philadelphia institution, but the queer part of it is that the average Philadelphia smoker is more critical and and particular about his nickel cigar than the New Yorker is when he throws a dime down on the counter.

A large number of the cigars sold in New York for ten cents are practically the same smoke that sells here for five. Some of them bear the same brand and are put up in the same package, although this is not the case where the brand is universally known, which is true in only a few instances.

A well known Philadelphia dealer was over in New York a few days ago and stopped in a store on Broadway. He called for a certain cigar which he, himself, had usually sold for ten cents straight, but which he had temporarily been able to sell in small lots at about nine cents. He laid down a dime to pay for it.

"Fifteen cents," said the dealer.

"Why, that's a ten cent cigar," protested the Philadelphia man.

"No, sir; we always get fifteen cents for it," was the answer.

This impelled the Quaker City dealer to look through the show case, and he found that in a large number of cases additional tariff was imposed. This, too, in the rank and file of the stores, the cigar stands in the Tenderloin in most cases getting even more money.

"That's the main reason why the United Cigar Stores Co.'s places in New York have done so well," said the Philadelphia retailer. "They pretty generally stick to one price, and a five cent cigar is always a five cent cigar. Of course, a dealer is supposed to sell according to his trade, and the New York people probably consider Philadelphia as a cut price market. At the same time, the Philadelphian is apt to get a few surprises when he is getting rid of his small change."

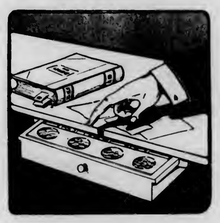
MILLIONAIRE, BUT SMOKES A PIPE.

"I HAVE a customer who buys nothing but fine cigars, usually three for a half, but I have never seen him smoke them," remarked a Grand avenue, Milwaukee, dealer who runs a big store. "But," he continued, "he is always smoking a pipe. It was only a few days ago that I found out what he was doing with the fine cigars. He cuts them up and smokes them in the pipe, and he remarked that this method supplied him with the best smoke he could get.



"Many a smoker buys what his pocket book will stand. This man is president of the largest foundry concern in Milwaukee, and is worth half a million or more, yet he smokes a pipe continually. I have other customers who also smoke pipes, but who do so from necessity, rather than from liking."

STERNBERG MANUFACTURING CO. SETTLED.

United Cigar Stores Co. May Open More Stores in Milwaukee.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 28.

The Sternberg Manufacturing Company, which recently moved here from Davenport, Ia., is now located in its fine new building. E. A. Sternberg, secretary of the company, showed The Tobacco World correspondent over the large factory and said that while the floor space occupied just now was not more than double that of the Iowa plant, there were facilities for turning out triple the amount of work in the same amount of space. The company has been flooded with orders since starting, as the removal of the machinery, etc., and the engaging of expert workmen, put them far behind.

Mr. Sternberg said that they were so busy just now that they were actually not soliciting any new business, and were not even sending out the new catalogues, which have just been printed. It is the intention of the company as soon as they have caught up with their orders, to start the manufacture of heavier machines.

The rumor is again current that the United Cigar Stores Co., is negotiating for sites for at least two more stores. It is known that options are held on store rooms on the south side and on the west side, three blocks from the main business street. Very little has been said of late, however, as local dealers are apparently not anxious to join in the fight of the Chicago and San Francisco dealers against the chain stores. ANDERSON.

STILL GUNNING AFTER PLEDGES.

Burley Growers' Association Needs 10,000,000 Pounds More From Farmers.

Cincinnati, O., Jan. 27, 1905.

As the result of a meeting in Cincinnati of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Association, buyers have been sent out under whip and spur to solicit contracts for 10,000,000 pounds of tobacco still demanded by the New York capitalists who are expected to buy. This quantity will be sufficient to give them control of the crop.

The company is confident of contracting for all the tobacco needed in a few days. June W. Gayle said there was 1,000,000 pounds in Henry county unsold, which he believed he could get. Mr. Brown, of Owen, said there is yet 1,000,000 undisposed of in his county awaiting the company's final announcement. Like expressions were heard from other delegates.

It is a matter of great interest to the growers and tobacco dealers and manufacturers generally to know who are the New York capitalists ready to advance $8,000,000 or more necessary to pay for the product. Members of the Broad of Directors stated that the financial standing of the New York people operating with them, is perfectly satisfactory.

Mr. McIvor, representative of the New York capitalists said: "The syndicate back of me, which includes three trust companies, insurance companies, and directors of national banks, are simply using me as a blanket, as they don't want their names passed about. What the different financial institutions have subscribed, or are ready to put into this enterprise would amount to a mere bagatelle to each one, such is their strength. BUHRMAN.

ANOTHER ACTIVE WEEK IN THE HAVANA MARKET.

Remedios is Steadily Advancing and Vuelta Abajo Fillers are Quickly Disappearing.—Cuba is More Prosperous Than for Years.—Sales, Exports, Etc., for the Week.

HAVANA, January 23, 1905.

Another active week can be chronicled in the Havana market, with prices steadily advancing for Remedios and heavy Vuelta Abajo fillers, which are rapidly disappearing from first hands. Truly it may be said while sugar is booming, tobacco seems to be following in its wake, therefore, the Island of Cuba is enjoying a period of unprecedented prosperity which it has not seen for a long number of years, and it is remarkable with what avidity the northern buyers have picked up all the good tobacco in sight, even overlooking small defects, as regards unclean packing, for instance.

While many of them left last week others have taken their places, so the chances are that by the end of February all of the 1904 crop will be in the hands of manufacturers, or dealers who carry stocks for their smaller customers. The only class of tobacco which has not been in such active demand consists of the so-called Vuelta Abajo factory vegas, but there is hardly any doubt that these will also be sold long before the new crop can make its appearance in the Havana market.

All the commission merchants have had their hands full attending to the wants of from two to four customers at the same time, thus hammering the iron while it was hot. Several dealers have sold out their holdings entirely, and others are carrying greatly diminished stocks. All that is published about the new crop is still mostly guess work, and the uncertainty continues.

last week amounted to 11,762 bales in all, or 5,218 bales of Vuelta Abajo 584 of Partido and 5,960 bales of Remedios. The United State buyers have secured 9,724 bales, European exporters only took 190, and local manufacturers 1,848 bales.

The exports of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana for the week ending January 21 amounted to 8,596 bales, of which over 6,500 bales were to United States ports.

Buyers Come and Go.

Arrivals:—Samuel Joseph, of the Sieber Manufacturing Co., and Francisco Fonceca, of F. A. Fonceca & Co., New York; Julius Fecht, Ottumwa, Ia.; Geo. Reichert, Milwaukee, Wis.; J. Spector, of Spector Bros., Chicago, Ill.; Felix Eckerson, of F. Eckerson & Co., and W. C. Crawford, of Dohan & Taitt, Philadelphia; W. L. Scott, of W. L. Scott & Co., Boston; V. R. Bickel, of C. C. Bickel & Co., Louisville.

Departures:—Lep Cohn, via Tama, for New York; J. M. Fortier, via Tampa, for Montreal; Manuel Suarez, E. A. Kline, Matt Berriman, for Tampa; W. C. Schutz and F. Opp, for St. Louis; Simon Batt, Charles Jacobs, J. Cohn, Jose A. Suarez and H. Spingarn, for New York; William H. Yocum, for Reading, Pa.

have not experienced the boom which the leaf dealers are enjoying, and while orders continue to come in, the volume of them is still moderate, but during the coming month a betterment is confidently looked for. The trust is said to be doing little, and so are the small independent factories, while the larger ones of the independents do not complain. Trade with the United States is a trifle slow yet, but London, Germany, France, South America and Australia are ordering good quantities. The last French steamer carried over 1,250,000 cigars, and the Mexico took 3,426,892.

H. Upmann & Co. are doing well on their H. Upmann brand, and say that business is O. K. with them. They shipped half a million cigars last week.

Cifuentes, Fernandez & Co. keep as busy as ever in their Partagas factory, and have no lack of orders.

Por Larranaga is forging ahead under the pushing and well directed management of Don Antonio J. Rivero, who spares neither time nor trouble to please his customers.

Behrens & Co., of the Sol factory, are likewise receiving a good share of the orders coming in from the United States, Great Britain and Germany. Fine cigars are bound to sell.

J. F. Rocha & Co., of the Crepusculo factory, are reporting excellent orders for London, Germany and South America, while for the United States Nene and Jefferson are called for in fair quantities.

El Rico Habano is busy filling orders for the United States and Canada, where the owners, Enrique Dorado & Co., have always a good market for their products.

La mas Fermosa is working fairly well for the American market.

Ramon Allones and Cruz Roja do not seem to know any dull period, as Rabell, Costa, Vales & Co. always appear to have steady orders from London, Germany and South America, and through their connection with the National Cuba Co. they do an ever increasing trade in the United States.

Don Jesus Vales, of La Eminencia cigarette fame, received some orders from the United States, notwithstanding the prohibitive duty on cigarettes. One thousand cigarettes cost here a trifle less than $2 while the duty is more than $11, a barbarous protection which benefits only the trust in the United States, as the latter has almost a monopoly in this article.

Buying, Selling and Other Notes of Interest.

J. Bernheim & Son sold 1,000 bales of Remedios second capaduras.

Lep Cohn was a heavy buyer in our market, securing about 4,000 bales of Remedios and Vuelta Abajo leaf, and he only bought the finest vegas and escojidas.

Manuel Mendez Parra turned over another 1,000 bales of his Remedios packing.

Otto and Gus Eisenlohr purchased 3,000 bales for their Cinco cigars during the past two weeks.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez shipped 1,839 bales of Yara tobacco in the Spanish steamer Alfonso XIII., consigned to the Spanish Regie at Santander, and they also disposed of 700 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Remedios to northern buyers and local manufacturers.

Matt Berriman bought some 400 bales more of Vuelta Abajo, thus making his total purchases 1,000 bales.

Rodriguez, Bautista & Co. closed out 900 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Remedios last week.

A. Blumenstiel was a buyer of over 1,000 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Remedios.

Grau, Planas & Co. turned over 700 bales of Remedios from their stocks.

Alfred Ettlinger also secured 1,000 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Remedios for his firm of H. Hoffman & Sons, and has now, with his son Victor, gone to the Vuelta Abajo to get an idea of the new crop.

Loeb-Nunez Havana Co. sold 600 bales of Remedios and Semi Vuelta to their customers.

Simon Batt purchased three vegas of Vuelta Abajo fillers from the lowland section of and near San Luis, which will sum up a trifle over 500 bales.

Gonzalez, Benitez & Co. disposed of 600 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Remedios.

Sol Hamburger is still here, and while his partners are closing out in New York his purchases, he keeps on laying in stock. His total purchases now amount to 1,800 bales. He knows he has to make hay while the sun is shining.

Aixala & Co. were sellers to the extent of 500 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Remedios.

Charles Jacobs secured his share by buying 500 bales of Vuelta Abajo for his Las Palmas factory.

Bruno Diaz & Co. made several transactions amounting to 450 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido leaf.

H. Spingarn was a heavy buyer of Vuelta Abajo and Remedios.

Antonio Suarez turned over 450 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

Manuel Suarez & Co. is the style of the new firm that succeeded Mendelsohn, Bornemann & Co., as per circular issued on the 17th inst. The change was only made, as Don Jose Mendelsohn explained to your correspondent, in order to please the many friends they have in this island, as for the Spanish and Cuban population the name of Mendelsohn, Bornemann & Co. is too long to be easily remembered. There is no change in the partnership or its relations to each other. They are very busy in buying for their customers on the spot, and are also executing orders by mail and cable for their United States customers.

G. Salomon y Hns. sold 414 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Remedios.

Sobrinos de V. Diaz disposed of 250 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

A. Pazos & Co. were busy in turning over 234 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido to various customers.

Rabell, Costa & Co. made several transactions amounting to 215 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

Suarez y Hns. closed out 150 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Remedios.

Jose Menendez sold 100 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

Manuel Garcia Pulido turned over 100 bales of Vuelta Abajo to a northern buyer.

Garcia & Co. have done a big business, but Don Manuel refuses to give particulars.

Among the commission merchants who have done a good business were:

Charles Blasco, 2,000 bales; H. Upmann & Co., 1,500; Leslie Plantin, 2,000; Bridiat, Mont'ros & Co., 1,000; Silveira & Co., 1,000; Mark A. Pollack, 500.

NEW YORK, January 30, 1905.

THE WEEK'S MOVEMENT IN LEAF.

The severe storm this week forced business almost to a standstill as no shipping could be handled. All types of seed are selling freely as the manufacturers are short of stock, prices are high for desirable goods, Zimmer 1903 is changing hands at standard price 18c, Pennsylvania broad leaf is being picked up close and Gebhardts are coming to the front.

The entire interest just at present seems to centre on Havana. Firms that never handled Havana before have been large purchasers in Cuba, and prices are soaring to a high point.

Sumatra is selling in good quantities every day. There have been 300 bales reported this week. It is expected that from now on until the new crop arrives, the Sumatra business will slacken up.

A LIGHT ON THE NEW CREDIT SYSTEM.

There is a certain jobbing house in this city which makes a particular business of selling tobacco in small townships miles away from the railroads. During the period of financial trouble last year this firm did a credit business with a customer in one of these towns who bought bills to the amount of about $1,000.

On account of poor summer business the customer found he could not meet his notes, so he packed his carpet bag and came on to New York to explain the situation and make his peace with the jobber. When the errand was explained, the jobber quite used to the situation said he was very sorry to hear of the embarrassment and inquired about how much the man could pay in settlement. The customer said:

"Why — er — what are they paying now?"

JOTTINGS.

Roy Barrett is on the road again with the Ruy Lopez cigars.

Maurice Newberger, of Bremen, was presented with a little heiress this week; "heiress" is used not alone from a financial point of view, but because the young lady will doubless inherit the ever flowing geniality of her father.

Geo. F. Bryan, of Winnipeg, Manitoba, was a visitor to this market. He certainly felt at home during our storm.

Jim Burns, formerly of the Havana Commercial Co., is visiting his friends of former days on Water street.

John Schlange, of St. Louis, is a buyer, reported this week.

The bonded warehouse, of C. C. Hamilton & Co., had a narrow escape from destruction by fire this week. The adjoining building was destroyed but the warehouse was so excellently built that it is impossible to claim even smoke damage.

Dave Nussbaum, of Nussbaum & Bower, left for the West to interest his many customers in leaf and incidentally in fish stories from Greenwood lake.

A. Cohn, Sr., of A. Cohn & Co., sails on Saturday for Europe and later will arrive in Amsterdam for the inscription.

Lep. Cohn arrived from Havana where he purchased over 3,000 bales for A. Cohn & Co.

POINTS FOR MANUFACTURERS ON FLORIDA WRAPPER.

It occurs to the writer that at this time an article on the knowledge necessary to bring out the true commercial value of Florida wrapper may be of interest to our many manufacturing friends. There is no class harder to convince, once he has formed a prejudice in his mind, than the tobacco man.

This prejudice which exists against Florida wrapper arose some twelve years ago, when growers, not understanding the curing of same, induced the manufacturers to try the tobacco. Of course the leaf, not being properly sweated and raised on uncultivated soil, flaked and most of all burned badly. The manufacturer at once condemned same, and at that moment formed a prejudice that has taken the past twelve years to eradicate.

Does it ever occur to our manufacturer that his lack of knowledge of treating this kind of wrapper might have been the cause of his prejudice?

It not only takes knowledge on the part of the grower, but also on the part of the manufacturer to obtain the best results of Florida wrapper. The writer has followed the improvements made in Florida tobacco from year to year, and can safely say the prejudice is fast being overcome and the tobacco improving because of our growers understanding the culture more fully, and the manufacturer realizing that he has to know more about the intricacies of raw material to make a success than he did years ago.

Very often I have seen a bale of fine Florida wrapper left to the tender mercies of a $5 per week caser in a factory, who cased same as though it were Pennsylvania heads. Of course you cannot expect a "Yale graduate" for $5 per week, but the manufacturer if he knows tobacco should educate the caser so he will earn his salary, and not cost the manufacturer more than he pays him.

The Florida wrapper situation reminds me of the Sumatra tobacco when it was first imported into this country. No manufacturer wanted to use it, and preferred to stay in the rut, using Pennsylvania wrappers. Consequently, Sumatra had as rough a time as Florida ever had.

The manufacturer who lets well enough alone is bound to go back. He should investigate all raw material intelligently. The tobacco trade has always been too slow to adopt new reforms. The successful man of today must be ahead of the "band wagon" as the seats are all engaged before the wagon leaves Fifth avenue.

HEARINGS ON CURTIS BILL END LAST SATURDAY.

Sessions of Ways and Means Committee Brought to a Close by Secretary Taft, Who Addresses the Committee in Answer to the Strong Protests Made by the Tobacco People Last Saturday.

WASHINGTON, D. C., January 28.

The series of hearings before the Ways and Means Committee on the Curtis bill were brought to a conclusion today with the appearance of Secretary of War Taft as an ardent champion of the bill. The sugar people held the floor on Thursday. Secretary Taft was to have made his argument before the committee Friday, but was unable to be present. Col. C. R. Edwards, Chief of the Bureau of Insular Affairs of the War Department, appeared for him and submitted to the committee much detailed information bearing on the subject in the way of tables and statistics Many of these tables and statistics related to tobacco. He also submitted a number of cablegrams relative to tobacco.

Col. Edwards remarked to the committee that he was much impressed by the presentation of the case of the tobacco and sugar people. They seemed so thoroughly in earnest that they have aroused the whole country. Looking at the matter dispassionately, and from both sides, Col. Edwards thought there was no cause for apprehension, certainly not on the part of the sugar people.

Secretary Taft, speaking in favor of the bill this morning, expressed himself as of the opinion that there was no danger that either tobacco or sugar would ever swamp or figure in to any material extent the markets of this country. He said every step taken toward the reduction of the present tariff would prove to those interested, both the sugar growers and the tobacco industries, that they would not be injured by the steps.

The labor question was discussed at some length, and in this connection the Secretary stated that, in his opinion, our labor was not asked to compete with Chinese labor, as there was not all told at the present time in the islands more than 75,000 Chinese, and these were not engaged in agricultural labor.

Speaking more directly to the point of the stand taken by the tobacco growers, cigar manufacturers and others interested in the the tobacco industry, Secretary Taft stated that the tobacco grown for exportation was principally in Cagayan and Isabella provinces. About 75 per cent of the tobacco lands are owned and cultivated by natives. He regarded the fear of the cigarmakers of this country that the free entry of Philippine tobacco into the United States would be injurious to them to be unfounded, and thought, on the contrary, that they would profit by the introduction of it. But few cigars, he stated, were made in the islands as compared with the output in the United States, and in this connection it must be remembered that the demand in the islands for home consumption is something enormous, it being estimated that six seventhes of the Christian Filipinos smoke tobacco. The Secretary further stated in this connection that no Philippine cigars are now being imported into the United States.

One of the most interested speakers who appeared before the committee was A. Determan, of Manila, who presented a memorial on behalf of the Philippine tobacco growers and manufacturers, in which a strong appeal was made for the free entry of Philippine tobacco.

Speaking in response to a question as to existing wage conditions and their effect on the home trade, Mr. Determan stated that the subject of efficiency taken into consideration, the wages of cigarmakers in the islands are not low. This, it will be remembered, is in direct opposition to the testimony of Mr. Bijur and Mr. Perkins, who stated that they did quite as efficient work as those of the United States. Mr. Determan said that the Filipinos feel that they have a right to the free entry of tobacco and other products into the United States in view of the fact that by reason of conditions through which they have recently passed they have lost the Spanish or home market for their products.

Leaf Dealers' Jottings.

A petition made by Teller Bros., formerly a well known firm of leaf dealers on Third street, for the refunding of about $25,000 in customs duties paid to the Government under an act of Congress in 1883, was heard last week by General Appraiser Sharretts, of New York, in the United States Appraisers' Building, in Second street below Chestnut street. The petitioners were represented by J. Stuart Tompkins, of the law firm of Hatch, Keener & Clute, of New York. The Government was represented by C. D. Lawrence, assistant counsel of the Treasury.

The Tellers claim a rebate on 345 bales of Sumatra tobacco, which they imported in 1890 and 1891. The act provided that where the grade of tobacco was such as to require more than one hundred leaves to the pound, a duty of 35 cents a pound should be assessed. When less than one hundred leaves were required, a duty of 75 cents was charged. The petitioners say it was of the lesser quality, but the Government endeavored to prove that the goods were of the better class. Many witnesses were examined. The general appraiser reserved his decision.

Things are coming a little slow just now in the leaf market, although the blizzard is responsible for the crippling of business during this last week. Buyers are still looking for goods and prices are still high, but quite a few satisfactory deals were put through during the week in spite of the weather, although some of them had been hanging fire for some time. In a short time practically all the salesmen will be out and returns will then constitute a fair test of just what the status of this year's market is. There is a good demand for Havana and Pennsylvania broad leaf, and in one or two cases sales were made at quite satisfactory prices for the dealer.

Milton Herald, of the Loeb Nunez Havana Co., is in Havana looking after his firm's interests.

George Newman, who is West for Young & Newman, has had a run of highly gratifying sales.

A visitor among the leaf houses this week commented on the large number of fine looking cats which he saw in many of the places, and wanted an explanation. It is a fact that there are a lot of felines who make a comfortable home in the offices and warehouses, and don't have to do so much work catching rats that they aren't fat and sleepy looking. Perhaps as fine a pair as can be seen on the street are the two which drowse over the fireplace in Bremer Bros.' place.

S. Grabosky, of the Empire Leaf Tobacco Co., Ltd., has just returned from Havana, where he purchased some desirable lots of Remedios and Vueltas for the company.

With Manufacturers and Jobbers.

Second Anniversary of the United News Company.

Seasoned with wit and good fellowship, the second anniversary of the United News Co. was held at the Hotel Hanover on Thursday evening, the 26th, Frank S Brandt, the host, presiding.

The spirit that laughs at obstacles, that makes possible by superb organization the distribution of hundreds of thousands of newspapers, using thirty-eight wagons daily and eighty five on Sundays, was evident in the sturdy, steady. American go-aheadness of the men around the board.

E. B. Hoppe is the right hand man of Mr. Brandt in the paper and periodical department, and proudly boasts that during the last year the company increased the sale of New York papers 80 per cent, which at this early history of this distributing company is a remarkable report.

The United News Co. engaged in the jobbing of independent cigars and tobacco August 10, 1904. When they entered the arena it was at the darkest period of the independent movement.

But they knew no failure, and worked in calm serenity until they were able to cry victory. Today, less than six months from the date of this venture, a well trained force visits every retail store in this city and its environs, and is now distributing goods for the following well-known firms: R. A. Patterson Tobacco Co., Larus & Bro. Co., Weisert Bros., Lovell & Buffington, Joseph G. Dill, Theobald & Oppenheimer, Bach Cigar Co., Eureka Cigar Factory, J. H. Lucke & Co., Byfield Snuff Co., Wells Whitehead Tobacco Co., Aslan Bros.

The company has been phenomenally successful, and has adopted means quite unique for the protection and timulating of trade, among which are the establishing of independent jobbers all through their field of operation, which includes Pennsylvania east of Altoona, New Jersey south of Trenton, Delaware and Maryland, with branch houses at Pittsburg and Baltimore. This is done strictly to protect their trade.

A premium, based on the gross purchases of each customer equal to 5 per cent in retail value, is given each customer, on the condition that he pays bills weekly.

All goods are sold to dealers at strictly factory prices, as the firm will not sell any other kind, which is a guarantee to the dealer of fair dealing.

Frank M. Toppin is the popular and able manager of the tobacco and cigar end of the business, and is a gentleman of undoubted integrity and business ability.

Robbers attempted early Friday morning to crack the safe in the office of M. C. Fisher & Co., cigar manufacturers, 1244 N. Eleventh street. Their efforts were not successful, but they stole $400 worth of cigars and $3 in change from the coin boxes in the telephone pay stations in the store.

Entrance was gained by use of a false key, and former employes of the firm are suspected of being implicated. An attempt was made to rob the store shortly before the Christmas holidays, but the thieves became frightened and ran off without securing any plunder.

L. Podolnick, South street jobber, was on the sick list this week.

The affairs of D. Margulis, 930 South Ninth street, have been settled and the name restored, the jobber to pay 25 cents on the dollar. Mr. Margulis went into bankruptcy about three months ago with liabilities amounting to about $5,000.

The El Provedo Co. is launching a new nickel brand on this market called Flor de Apte which will be pushed hard. The cigar is described as a Key West 4¾ inch Puritano finos shape. Mr. Rosenberg of this company will return in about two weeks from an extended trip to Cuba and Florida.

Fred A. Fowler, who has been prominently identified with the trade for four teen years, recently assumed management of the F. V. Eshelman establishment at Sixteenth and Arch streets.

E. L. Nissley, Receiver for Doddy, Jourdan & Co., manufacturers at Fifth and Race streets who went into bankruptcy a few months ago, has issued notices of the bankrupt sale of the stock and fixtures pertaining to the factory, at Marietta, which will take place tomorrow at 1 o'clock. The articles to be sold include the usual paraphernalia of the factory and office and quite a quantity of tobacco and labels. A sale of cigar making machinery, business office fixtures, etc., will take place at Fifth and Race streets, Philadelphia, on Friday at 11 o'clock, during which a long list of articles will be put under the hammer.

The manufacturers are doing well these days and very few complaints are heard. Orders are coming in every day, and the majority of factories are doing quite as much as they want to or had made arrangements for. A number of new brands are in contemplation and will make their various appearances during the next several weeks. As is usual, the West and South seem to be the favorite stamping grounds for the local manufacturers, although some of them are doing a pretty fair New England business. Everyone expects to keep busy now right on through the spring.

Wrong Stamps on the "Orient."

Much comment was caused this week by the movements on Monday and Tuesday of the internal revenue agents of this district in investigating an alleged irregularity in the stamping of the "Orient" package, the cork tipped five cent cigarette manufactured by the Khedivial Co. of New York.

As a result of a special inquiry from Washington, Chief Agent Alexander sent his men out to examine the condition of the Orient package on this market, and on return of the findings Mr. Alexander made a confidential report to Collector McCoach yesterday afternoon, and it is up to the collector to decide whether it is advisable to make any confiscations or take action of any nature.

The complaint is said to have been to the effect that a number of the packages of ten cigarettes bore the 54 cent stamp instead of $1.08, under which class cigarettes of this grade come. The internal revenue law provides that all cigarettes selling at more than $2 per thousand shall bear the $1.08 stamp, only grades cheaper than $2 being allowed to carry the 54 cent stamps.

The Orient sells to the jobber for $3 70, less 2 per cent, and to the retailer for $3.80. A gratis was recently given with every 500 Orients, of four packages of $7 cigarettes. These prices put the brand distinctly in the $1.08 class.

In the absence of an explanation from the Khedivial Co., which has not yet been notified of any irregularity by the revenue department, it is considered probable that a mistake was made in the distribution of the stamps, and that a quantity of the two denominations became mixed and were not noticed before the boxes left the factory. It is by no means thought that the Khedivial Co. was cognizant of the change, and aside from all other considerations, and looking at the matter in the abstract, such an attempt to save money would be foolhardy in the extreme, inasmuch as it would be certain of very early detection.

It is not thought that many of the misstamped cigarettes reached this market, as a visit to several establishments which had received consignments lately showed the stamps to be all right.

The Orient is practically the pioneer of the 5 cent cork tipped cigarettes, as it was about the first brand in this form on the market to gain much sale or to last.

NEW FACTORY FOR YORK CITY CIGAR CO. STARTED.

Gilbert & Co., the contractors, have broken ground on North Penn street, near Garfield, York, Pa., for the erection of the York City Cigar Company's new factory. The building will be pushed to completion as rapidly as possible, and it is probable that the company will be able to occupy it by May 1.

—John C. Horning, A. Lewyn and William L. Ahrens have incorporated the Premier Cigar Co., of New York, with a capital of $30,000.

To Benefit Our Readers.

The Tobacco World wants to receive from week to week all questions relating to the trade which may be puzzling its subscribers, and will be glad to supply any information in its possession or obtainable.

The columns of the paper are also open to readers for the discussion of current trade topics. If you have a decided opinion on a matter, express it, and see if some one else has good reasons for thinking otherwise.

All letters should be addressed to the "Correspondence Editor" and must be accompanied by the name and address of the writer, which may be withheld when desired.

THE HEARINGS ARE OVER: NOW WHAT?

The hearings which were conducted all last week in the Capitol at Washington in order to give the Ways and Means Committee of the Legislature a chance to consider every phase of the Curtis bill before definite action was taken, came to a close on Saturday with Secretary Taft's appearance before the body, and it now remains to be seen what good was accomplished.

Naturally everyone related to the tobacco trade is in a position to permit the assumption that he is biased or at least partial, but at the same time his position gives him the ability to prove his claims and statements.

The tobacco trade has some very strong arguments, and if every member of the Ways and Means Committee had been on hand with an earnest desire to learn a little, instead of something like an attitude of good-humored and kindly tolerance, the week would have wrought more good for the domestic cause than it did.

A man who dips however deeply into statistics relating to the growing, shipping and manufacturing of tobacco, does not necessarily become an expert on or in tobacco. Yet some of the distinguished committeemen did not hesitate to take issue with the speakers, on certain phases of the matter where any argument between a layman and a professional was likely to become ridiculous. The Hon. John Sharp Williams in particular, seemed to think it necessary to draw upon his vein of humorous sarcasm at intervals in order to help matters along, and in view of the fact that the men who appeared before the committee had traveled a considerable distance, left their businesses and work and given their time to the most earnest advocacy of their cause which they could command, some of the Congressman's remarks seemed rather petty interruptions.

The committee is bound to consider all the matter which was introduced before it; that being the case it is difficult to see how the 50 per cent. cut can be recommended.

A COMMENDABLE ACTION.

It is gratifying to note the various successive upward steps of the American employe as an individual and a man. Entirely aside from the question of unions and other strong organizations of employes which have by their united strength pushed their members up the ladder, there are now seen not infrequent instances where employing companies have demonstrated a human interest and consideration for their people which warms the cockles of a humanitarian's heart.

Such, for instance, was the action of the Queen City Tobacco Co., which recently issued accident insurance policies also carrying a death premium to all its salesmen. The United Cigar Stores Co. has also announced that it will undertake to issue policies for every one of its employes whose salary is less than $2,500 a year, paying the premium as long as the man is in their employ. The amount of the policy in this case will be the amount of the employe's salary for one year provided it is not less than $1,000, in which cases it will be that amount.

There are those who are inclined to sneer at such an offer and loudly declare that there is a string back of it somewhere. About the only string that seems findable lies in the fact that the companies may benefit from the fact that the offer will attract an unusually decent class of men to their employ. It certainly is likely to do that, and the companies deserve all the benefit arising therefrom.

If there were more of such "selfish" actions, there would be fewer anarchists, populists, socialists, Coxeyites and the like, who are are fond of regarding every man a tyrant who is in a position to hire a day's work done by somebody else.

THE ANTI-CIGARETTE league of Wisconsin apparently does not put any faith in half-way measures. According to a newspaper printed in that State, legislation to prohibit absolutely the manufacture and sale of cigarettes in Wisconsin, and to make it a misdemeanor for a boy under 16 years of age to use tobacco in any form, will be sought by the anti cigarette league this winter.

The league might just as well embody a clause making it a capital crime to be caught smoking a cigarette, as it should be quite as easy to secure legislation to that effect as to prohibit manufacturing the alluring and, if sensibly used, harm little rolls of tobacco.

THE following paragraph appeared in a Western paper:

The Unitarian minister at Topeka, Kan., was the victim of a dastardly attempt to maim or kill. Receiving a box by mail he opened it and found three cigars, each of which had an infernal machine concealed in the centre. One of them had been crushed, and this probably saved the minister from a horrible death. The postal authorities are endeavoring to locate the guilty party. Each of the cigars contained a 32 calibre loaded cartridge.

Needless alarm. This was probably only a new kind of brand which some manufacturer had adopted in these days of strenuous competition.

HERE AND THERE WITH LOCAL RETAILERS.

Retail Dealers' Association Elects Officers.

The regular monthly meeting of the Retail Cigar and Tobacco Dealers' Association was held last Thursday evening at 1305 Arch street, James F. Hasson occupying the chair and J. Harvey McHenry acting as secretary.

R. W. Boch, chairman of the Tobacco Show Company, made a long report on the show, stating that at this time the association still owes about $100, but that some of the subscribers or exhibitors had not as yet made settlement. Mr. Boch was confident that all would remit within a few days, when they could liquidate all the bills and render a final report, showing that the receipts would equal the expenses.

The committee on anti cutting made a report showing progress, but the committee on anti-coupons made a rather pessimistic report, and did not seem to think that much had been accomplished.

R. W. Boch read a communication from Sereno E. Payne, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, stating that Wednesday, the 25th, was the day set apart by the tobacco and cigar trade to meet at Washington to protest against the Curtis bill. This matter was discussed at some length, and the opinions of some of the leading local cigar manufacturers and leaf dealers were quoted, among others, that of Charles Eisenlohr, who thought that the results of the sweeping reduction on Philippine leaf would be very damaging to the cigar industry.

M. S. Frisbie moved, and was supported by J. H. McHenry, to send a resolution of protest to Hon. Sereno E. Payne, and John T. Taylor was named as a committee to draft suitable resolutions.

Seventeen new members were received, and the treasurer's report read showed the association to be in a healthy condition.

These officers were elected: President, James I. Hasson; first vice president, B. F. Batten; second vice president, D. A. Schaible; secretary, J. S. Halfpenny; treasurer, B. N. Clapp; directors, J. Harvey McHenry and John T. Taylor.

C. C. Heisler, formerly with Fleck & Co., 220 Market street, now a jobber at No. 111, was very much under the weather for awhile, but is now at his office again.

The store at the northwest corner o Third and Chestnut streets, which was recently sold by Goldsmith & Co. to N. W. Young, a contractor of Atlantic City, was emptied of its stock last Wednesday by an auction sale. Mr. Young has made a noble effort to make the store pay but was compelled to give up. There was not a great amount of stock on hand, and it and the fixtures brought very low prices, out of all proportion to what was hoped. A large wall showcase which had been listed in the sale announcement as worth $1,800 brought $65, while another showcase yielded $55. There was very little bidding. It is considered very improbable that the corner will continue as a cigar corner, although it was once considered an excellent location.

The Bainbridge Shoe Store at the southwest corner of Second and Market streets announces that it will move to Fourth and Market, southwest corner, on the first of April, thus making room at Second and Market for the United Cigar Stores Co., which has thus far been silent as to its plans. It was said this week by a salesman who claimed to have gotten it very authoritatively, that the cigar store would occupy 30 feet depth at Second and Market, for which it will pay a rent of $130. The same man stated the United Co. had plans on foot for securing stores at both Fifth and Market and Seventh and Market streets, which if true, shows that the company has evidently decided to go after the business in this town by way of pushing a store in front of every consumer until he patronizes it and then perhaps withdrawing the non-paying stores from the lot. $130 seems a decidedly low figure for that location, and it is understood on good authority that the shoe people have been paying considerably more than that. Another rumor current during the week was that the United Co. expects to lease the whole building and sublet the part of it for which it has no use, playing up its own store largely on Second street rather than Market.

Charles B. Smith, local representative of the Seidenberg, Steifel Co., New York, was presented with a handsome new daughter a week or so ago.

Dr. Lowengrund, of Third and Market streets, was incapacited by an attack of grip for a few day, but is about again.

The fierce weather knocked spots out of the retail market of the last week, and while there were one or two sunshiny days when the majority of stores did a pretty fair business, the week's sales toted up slim. Of course there is hardly any room for a legitmate kick against the weather, and complaining retailers must remember that everyone got the same dose. The package trade shows a disposition to improve, and it will be a great surprise to many, if February does not prove a very good month.

Robert Simpson, who a few months ago bought the Vanaman store at 28 South Fifth street, will shortly sell his store to Charles Mohr, jobber on Ridge avenue. Mr. Simpson, has been in very poor health lately and was laid up last week.

A. Schwartz, who runs a store at 246 Arch street, had the misfortune to lose his infant son Edward a few days ago. The child was only eight weeks old, and Mr. Schwartz has the sympathy of the trade in his bereavement.

James S. Halfpenny, who was the other night re elected secretary of the local Cigar and Tobacco Dealers' Association, has been laid up for some days, and was unable to attend the meeting of the Association last week.

Our "Quo Vadis" is undisputably the best five-cent cigar—uniformly reliable quality and absolute purity are its distinctive features.

Its delightfully blended Havana aroma just suits the smoker and he enjoys the cigar from beginning to end.

It is made strictly by hand, by expert cigarmakers—only such can produce this beautiful, modern, full size Diplomatico shape.

OLD TOBACCO INSPECTOR PASSES AWAY.

W. B. Loughridge, twelve years a tobacco inspector, died last week at his home in Louisville, Ky., aged 76 years. His death was hastened by a recent fall down stairs in which he sustained a broken arm. Mr. Loughridge had lived in Louisville since young manhood, and had constantly been engaged in the tobacco business, entering it as a member of the firm of John W. Brown Bros. Co. Later he accepted a position with the Louisville Tobacco Warehouse Co., and after severing his connection with the latter firm Mr. Loughridge was appointed tobacco inspector, and filled the position faithfully and with ability for twelve years, until age compelled his retirement.

Palm Rolling
Hand-Work.

THIS IS THE SIMPLEST AND MOST PRACTICAL TOOL yet introduced in connection with Cigar-making. The cutting rollers are so equipped with ball bearings and exterior springs that they only produce enough pressure to cut the leaf, thus maintaining a sharp edge on the die and assuring a perfect, clean cut, superior to hand-work. The circumference of the cutting roller being greater than the length of the die, makes tearing or streaking of the wrapper impossible. Then, after the leaf has been cut, a slight depression with the right foot pedal will lower the die even with the table, thus making a perfectly smooth and rigid surface, enabling the operator to Roll with the Full Palm of the Hand, instead of pushing the cigar along with the finger tips.

Changing of the die to any shape, or from right to left, or the reverse, is a very simple matter on this table, and can be done within two minutes time.

These points of merit, coupled with others not mentioned, have won for this table the high standard of excellence maintained to-day, a fact that cannot conscientiously be claimed by any of our competitors.

We stand ready to prove our statement, and all we ask is for the opportunity.

We Think IT WILL PAY YOU to Investigate.

TRADE IN NEW YORK.

What Leaf Dealers Have to Say of Present Conditions.

New York, Feb. 1.

"There's a good demand for binders, but we have only the new crop with which to supply that demand, and my brother, N. I. Bijur, is on his way back from Wisconsin, where we have six warehouses which we will have to close down next week for want of material unless we get another tobacco damp within a day or two," said A. Bijur yesterday afternoon.

"The Havana tobacco market here is inclined to be lively, but in Havana city the market is livelier than it has been in a year.

"Deliveries of broad leaf in the broad leaf sections of Connecticut are very slow, and tobacco wont begin to come in in any considerable quantities for about three weeks. The season is six weeks late. Business generally is good if only there was tobacco enough to supply the demand.

"New low grades of Wisconsin are being bought up rapidly and freely. The market is short of stock in every branch, and that condition bids fair to continue throughout the whole year. The volume of business is big, and there will be no necessity for carrying over new crops into the next year."

Continuing, Mr. Bijur added reflectively:

"So far as the tobacco and cigar business is concerned, the opinion of Secretary Taft is of exceptionally little value, if only for the one reason that he isn't even a smoker and knows absolutely nothing of tobacco."

Another recognized authority said:

"Business generally is good but the stocks of all grades and brands of tobacco are getting rapidly depleted and this is especially the case with good old filler tobacco.

"There is quite a demand for 1901 and 1902 Wisconsin Havana seed B's owing to the fact that the crop of 1903 hardly contained its quota of tobacco of this character and good cheap fillers are scarce.

"Several large transactions have occurred in Sumatra and the stocks now in the hands of importers are pretty well played out."

Towards the end of February will commence the exodus from New York of American buyers to attend the first inscription at Amersterdam. There will be sales to the highest secret bidders on March 10 and March 17, and rumor says that Benno Newberger, manager of E. Rosenwald & Co., will sail for Amsterdam on Feb. 21 on the Crown Prince Wilhelm.

Among the latest arrivals in the New York market is D. M. Schoenfeld, of Jonas Schoenfeld & Co., of San Francisco.

The Brooklyn Division of the Retail Cigar and Tobacco Dealers' Association met last Thursday and reelected its officers without any change.

The chief topic of conversation amongst the retailers is the rumored intention to break away from the trust of a large, prosperous and extensive firm, whose sales cover many States but the name is kept quiet for awhile for excellent reasons.

BURLEY GROWERS COMPANY GETS MORE TOBACCO.

A dispatch from Harrison county, Ky., states that growers in that section are jubilant over the great gains made by the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co. Although this county had already contracted 500 acres or 5,000,000 pounds and was the banner county, nevertheless, 1,250,000 pounds were secured in one day recently.

Clarence Lebus, a speculator, who has 1,000,000 pounds, joined the Burley company, and 25,000 pounds besides his was contracted. This is a long step toward the additional 10,000,000 pounds required by the Eastern capitalists who contracted to loan the growers company $10,000,000

Reports reach here that nearly 1,000,000 pounds have been contracted for in Pendleton and Nicholas counties.

THE FLORODORA TAG CO.'S NEW CATALOGUE.

The Florodora Tag Co. has issued its new catalogue for 1905, which it sends by mail to any address for ten cents, ten tobacco tags, or twenty cigar bands.

The book is a handsome demonstration of the printer's and lithographer's art and is profusely illustrated with half tone representations of the great number of varied articles which may be obtained by coupons, tags, etc. Some of these pages are taken up by beautiful color pictures of a variety of rugs and carpets included in the premiums. The catalogue also advertises the Cremo pretty freely, by aid of attractive pictures.

The offers made are subject to discontinuance before Nov. 30, 1905, if any law should be passed forbidding the redemption of tags.

SLOT MACHINE NEWS.

In Gilroy, Cal., it has been decided that cigar machines and other slot contrivances that pay in merchandise are hereafter to be rated the same as the money-paying slot machines, and will be obliged to pay the same license of $10 a quarter. This ruling was made by the Council.

O. B. Ross, of Spencer, Ia., has invented a machine calculated to simplify the retail trade in cigars. It is no game of chance machine, but strictly an affair of business. By dropping a nickel in a slot and working a lever a cigar is delivered. There are no blanks, but every time a nickel is deposited a cigar is forthcoming. And while it never cheats, neither can it be cheated. There is no possibility of getting more than one cigar for one nickel. Mr. Ross has applied for a patent.

Incorporations, Changes, Etc.

The Beck Cigar Co., of Canton, O., has been incorporated by E. M. Beck, Sada B. Waters, and Laura H. Waters, with a capital of $10,000.

J. Harry Smith, of Lebanon, Pa., has purchased the cigar store of H. C. Baney, at Eighth and Cumberland streets, in that city.

The large retail cigar and tobacco store of R. B. Cowles, at Elwood, Ind., has been purchased by Abe Wilson and Thomas Lewis, who have already taken charge.

Sam H. Brunswick opened a wholesale cigar store in Pittsfield, Ill., today and will carry on an extensive business.

NEW TOBACCO COMPANY IS FORMED IN NEW ORLEANS.

What argues well for the increased activity in the tobacco business of New Orleans is manifest in the formation of a new tobacco enterprise which has just been organized under the firm style of the Valloft & Dreux Company, Ltd. Both gentlemen whose names figure in connection with the new enterprise are among the best known men in the South, where Mr. Valloft, as the former president of the Southern Tobacco Company, was known from one end of the Southern territory to the other and where Mr. Dreux, as vice president and traveling representative of the same company, is equally well known and popular with the trade at large.

NEW CO-PARTNERSHIP.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.

I beg to announce to the trade that I have this day formed a co-partnership with my brother, MAX L. KAUFMANN, under the style of A. L. & M. L. KAUFMANN, for the purpose of manufacturing the highest grade of Seed and Havana cigars.

Having attended solely to the manufacturing interests of the firm of A. L. & A. G. KAUFMANN, with my brother Max L. Kaufmann as office manager, and both of us having now withdrawn from the latter firm, I will be prepared within a short period of time to have the new firm fill any orders that may be entrusted to our care

I shall be pleased to give any information regarding the above, and solicit correspondence with reference thereto, in care of my temporary address, the Waldorf-Astoria Segar Co., Fifth avenue and Thirty-fourth street, New York.

Respectfully yours,

ALEXANDER L. KAUFMANN.

Good to Keep Good Cigars Good

Your Jobber will give you a Certificate covering small quantities, and when you accumulate Certificates showing purchases of 6,000 CREMO EXPORT Cigars, you will be entitled to one of these handsome Humidors free. :: ::

Size, 30 in. long, 22 in. wide, 25 in. high. Weight, 60 lbs.

THE above illustration is an exact representation of the Humidor in which Cremo Export Cigars are packed and shipped by the manufacturer. This Humidor holds 6,000 Cremo Export Cigars in boxes containing 100 cigars each. It is metal lined, metal covered, with strong brass lock, and heavy brass drop handles and brass trimmings, with moistener pad in top of lid, ventilator in each end, and attractively decorated in imitation cedar wood.

Each humidor is shipped in a wood case to protect it from being scratched or damaged in transit.

The purpose of the Humidor is to protect the cigars from the deteriorating effects of changes in temperature, and to preserve them in the same good order and condition in which they leave the factory. This it does perfectly for any length of time in any climate on the globe, until the last box is used.

Cremo Export Cigars are made only in Londres, which means a straight cigar, being practically the same size from end to end. This shape is more generally smoked than any other, the world over, which fact is a pretty convincing proof that it is the most popular as well as the most desirable shape in which cigars can be made.

If you serve your customer with a Cremo Export Cigar out of a Humidor, you give him the best five-cent cigar in the world in the best condition to please him and hold his patronage; if he is pleased with one he will be pleased with every one.

Send your jobber an order for 6,000 Cremo Export Cigars, and he will have them shipped to you direct from the factory in the Humidor, freight paid, and billed as 5,500, at $35.00 per thousand.

The CREMO CIGAR is by several times THE LARGEST SELLER IN THE WORLD.

SNOW KILLS TRADE IN BOSTON.

Blizzard Knocks Spots Out of Business in This Section.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 30.

Owing to the heavy fall of snow and the disagreeable condition of the streets for the week past the retailers had a hard time of it; in fact several retailers, old timers in the cigar store line, informed me that it was the poorest week of business for this period of the year they had ever experienced.

Many are congratulating themselves that the month of January, 1905, is about over and are now looking for the heralded "good times." Many traveling salesmen have made their appearance here during the past two weeks and the orders they gathered in were not up to their expectations.

E. Bendheim with the Metropolitan Tobacco Co, New York, is stopping at the Lexington Hotel with an extensive line of pipe samples.

Wm. Catlin, representing V. Thorsch Co., has been here introducing his firm's new five cent cigar called Buster Brown.

On account of John Drew playing here this week at the Park Theatre many window displays of the John Drew cigar are in evidence.

Geo. Brewer, with Johnson & Co., of 111 State street, was one of the lucky ones in the Boston Post Proverb contest winning one of the $50 prizes.

John Manigan, with the U. S. Tobacco Co., spent the week here doing missionary work on Idle Hour sliced plug and Central Union.

Baker Bros. Smokers retailing for five cents seem to have caught on with the trade.

William the Fourth clear Havana cigars, of which Rosenthal Bros. here are the distributors, are being well placed by them, and the duplicate orders coming in, evidence the fact that there is no better brand in this market in high grade cigars.

The firm of Justus & Gould, 99 Portland street, has been dissolved by mutual consent. Geo. W. Justus continues business at the old stand under the name of the Boston Pipe Co.

Postals have been received from Robt. M. Gans, of Max Gans & Son, leaf dealers of New York, announcing that he expects to be here on or about February 1.

H. Steindler, of Steindler Bros., New York, spent a few days here this week calling on the larger cigar manufacturers.

A. Greenberg, Commercial street retailer has been confined to his home with a heavy cold the past week.

Owing to the death of his wife Lee Hammond, 43 Boyleston street, kept his store closed two days this week.

C. Ruppin, of Lancaster, Pa., had a representative call on the Boston jobbers last week.

Turkish Delights, both plain tip and cork tip, have made their initial appearance here, and it is hoped that in time these goods will outsell anything else in this line; with the valuable aid of Victor Sheppard in introducing same to the trade, the combination will be hard to beat.

Leroy Little Cigars continue to be good sellers here, and the new Leroy Cubana has made a hit with the smokers of this class of cigars.

The manager of the Broken T. D. department of Robbins & Roitman has engaged passage on the Bostonia and is about to visit Scotland to negoiate with the manufacturers abroad regarding the importation of T. D.'s in leather cases which will be the means of saving many dollars for his firm.

PITTSBURG PLANTS UNSANITARY.

Several Cigar Factories Under Ban of Board of Health.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 28.

Proprietors of some of the cigar and toby factories of this city are considerably up in the air over the result of the Bureau of Health's investigation of conditions in the factories with regard to sanitation. The investigation is now completed downtown and as a result it is intimated that dozens of buildings used as factories will be condemned and the factory owners will not be permitted to operate until alterations ordered have been made. Many of the buildings, more particularly those of the Seventh, Eighth, Eleventh and Thirteenth wards, will have to be torn down, as no amount of refitting would make them sanitary.

The inspectors are ready to go right on with the examination of factories in the East End and expect to find things in the same unsatisfactory condition,

THE CHICAGO BUDGET.

What the Trade Has Been Doing During the Week.

Chicago, Jan. 28, 1905.

January trade conditions at this point appear to be pretty satisfactory. Several wholesale houses report a good increase over one year ago; leaf houses speak well of their outlook, and report new Conecticut tobaccos as moving in a very satisfactory way, and while with retailers trade is not overly brisk, it holds its own as well as can be expected at this particular time of year.

The Philippine tariff question absorbs no small amount of attention among the leaders in tobacco circles here, who are keenly alive to every movement that aims to make for better or worse conditions in the tobacco industry.

I. M. Lederer, the well-known representative of M. Stachelberg & Co., has gone to New York on a business trip.

William Sellers, one of the oldest and best known salesmen of the Steele-Wedeles Co., is enjoying a few days visit among friends at Chicago headquarters. Mr. Sellers lives at Cliffton, Ill., and enjoys most extensive acquaintance throughout that entire vicinity.

President H. P. Steele, of the Steele-Wedeles Co., is planning a pleasant trip to Baden Baden and vicinity, early in March.

Manuel Lopez, of New York, has returned from his western trip to the Coast, and spent a brief spell greeting Chicago friends on his return east.

Leo Abraham, one of Milwaukee's popular cigar retailers, lately stopped off a short time on his return from French Lick Springs.

D. F. Whitbeck, representing V. Mancebo, Muina & Co., New York, lately circulated among the Chicago trade, and no doubt carried away with him some good-sized orders.

Ben Lesser, who tours the country in the interests of Simon Batt & Co, New York, was noted in trade circles during the week. Although struggling with a severe cold, Mr. Lesser showed no tendency to relax his efforts in placing good-sized orders for the La Verdad cigar, and in his usual optimistic way, expressed his satisfaction with business conditions throughout the cities where his duties called him.

Albert C. Becker's new store, adjoining the Home Insurance Building on La Salle street, is undergoing changes which, when completed, will place it among the best-equipped down-town stores. Mr. Becker has kept his stand in the Home Insurance Building for over fifteen years, and will continue same as of old, now giving his personal supervision to both places.

M. S. Greenbaum, of Calerc & Co., appears to be doing good work for his house locally, in spreading the popularity of the Rio Visto cigar.

Col. Ricksecker, of the Ricksecker Cigar Co., of Kansas City, Mo., is enjoying a few days visit with Chicago friends in the trade.

R. G. Fisher, a prominent cigar dealer of Minneapolis, passed through during the week, on his way to Canada, to which place he goes to visit his father, who is ill.

George D. Bow, of the Nall-Williams Tobacco Company, Louisville, Ky., called briefly on the trade while passing through last week.

J. W. Merriam, of John W. Merriam & Co, New York, whose presence among smokers makes one think of such favorite brands as the Henry Irving, "made at the sign of the Bulldog," recently gladdened the trade by a few days visit.

G. J. Brown, the popular young man who looks after cigar interests at the Steele-Wedeles Co., left yesterday for a two weeks sojourn at Old Point Comfort, Va.

W. F. Monroe, the well-known retailer and jobber of the Tribune Building, left last Thursday, with his family, for an extended trip to Florida.

George Diaz, prominently known in the trade as the popular representative of Bustillo Bros. & Diaz, has been doing business among the distributors during the week.

Oscar Banghart, of Heymann Bros. & Lowenstein, was among the trade several days recently.

Leopold Powell & Co., of New York, have opened an office at No. 36 Dearborn street. Gus Reddick will be their local representative.

A number of other well-known traveling representatives of prominent firms have come and gone during the week, among whom were noticed: A. T. Kinney, of A. Kuhles & Stock Co., St. Paul; G. J. Johnson, of G. J. Johnson Cigar Co., Grand Rapids, and C. R. Martin, of Oregon, Wis., a prominent cigar dealer of that place; also Howard Kinney and Charles Waxelbaum, representing prominent New York leaf houses.

Leaf Tobacco Markets.

CONNECTICUT VALLEY

Never has there been a time in my remembrance when the tobacco crop was bought up so closely as at present. In this neighborhood there are but three or four lots left. In fact there are but few lots in town, not 25 per cent, and that 25 per cent does not represent at most over 10 per cent of the whole crop; for the largest lots were the first to be bought. Most of the lots lett are those that range, from 2 and 5 acres. Once in a while one of 10 acres is to be found. This last week I heard of no less than 17 men around looking for tobacco, and when so many are looking a large amount is usually bought up. But in this instance the lots to be sold were few and far between, so that the real business done was not large.

The assorting shops were so full that it is difficult to make them take in their buyings. Some lots have been weighed off and left in the buildings of the sellers. I have heard of two or three where the tobacco has been weighed and a new insurance placed upon it in the growers' buildings. It has been no uncommon sight to see from 5 to 12 large loads, with at least 100 bundles to a load, pass in one day, and this has been going on for quite a number of days. The tobacco was being drawn to the local warehouses of Hatfield, Whately, Hadley and Sunderland.

Our correspondents write:

Bradstreet, Mass.: "F. F. Cooley recently sold his tobacco to Myers & Mendlesohn at 16c in bundle, about four acres. Harry Marsh has placed a contract with A. L. Strong of Hatfield for a tobacco barn to be 75x30 feet."

Feeding Hills, Mass.: "The sales of tobacco were lively all of last week. But few lots remain in growers' hands, and these mostly from difference in the price asked and offered. Most of that sold is to be delivered within the next two weeks. The prices ranged from 11 to 16c in the bundle. Some of it is to go to New York, but most it to Enfield, Ct."

East Whately, Mass.: "Quinn Brothers have sold 10 acres to a New York party for 13c in bundle. W. T. Smith sold 10 acres of tobacco to Keefe of Westfield, Mass., at 13½c in bundle."

North Hatfield, Mass.: "E. C. Dickinson has sold his crop of 12 tons of tobacco to Fairchild of Sunderland, Mass., for 20c in bundle on private terms. C. B. Dickinson commenced assorting his crop of about ten tons, Jan. 23."

Conway, Mass.: "Not much tobacco is moving here now. What was bought four weeks ago has not been delivered yet. One small lot that was bought Friday was delivered Saturday for 14c in bundle. In Hatfield one of the Boyles sold 36 cases from his lot."—American Cultivator.

EDGERTON, WIS.

Between the movements of old and new leaf the local tobacco markets are assuming a good deal of activity and the packing points present a liveliness resembling old times. Riding is being resumed in many of the growing districts, though the inquiry is directed towards the old stock more than new leaf and the deliveries show about an equal division between the two. The new crop is being bought but sparingly and at prices shaded from early sales.

McIntosh Bros. purchased a 73cs lot of '03 of Holverson & Bitters, as well as about 150cs of old from growers during the week.

The deliveries continue to be ample to keep the warehouses in operation, running full force and the packing is going forward satisfactorily.

Shipments were 500cs.—Reporter.

CLARKSVILLE, TENN.

M. H. Clark & Bro.

Our receipts this week were 24 hhds.; offerings on the breaks, 8 hhds.; sales, 9 hhds.

The excessively cold weather, (the mercury falling the morning of the 25th to 4° below zero) restricted business, and holders also look for higher prices and are not disposed to offer freely.

There is nothing doing in the loose tobacco market. The "Planters' Association" continues to add to its holdings by crops being signed to it, and have contracted with many factories to prize the crop, which may not come upon the market for months to come.

For Old Tobacco, we quote:

Low Lugs	$3.50 to $3.75
Common Lugs	3.75 to 4.00
Medium Lugs	4.00 to 4.25
Good Lugs	4.25 to 4.75
Low Leaf	4.75 to 5.50

Medium Leaf	7.00 to 8.00

THE LEAF TOBACCO BUSINESS FIFTY YEARS AGO.

When one looks back on the great changes that have taken place in the leaf tobacco trade during the past fifty years, it is no wonder that the present generation looks on it as a great development. But the writer recalls that there is not one concern existing today which was conspicuous in the 50s, especially in New York City.

There may be a few of the older members of the trade alive yet who can recall the days of P. D. Collins & Son, William Agnen & Son, R H. Arkenburg, Ridder & Crawford, Hoffman & Schubarth, Fatman & Co. and a few smaller houses, who did the business of the entire country. The crops of Kentucky and a few Western States were distributed to the manufacturers in the East, such as John Anderson & Co., P. Lorillard, Christian Lillienthal, Thomas Hoyt & Co., John Cornish (succeeded by David McAlpin), through the so-called jobbers, as were also the crops of seed leaf, grown and packed in Connecticut, Massachusetts, New York State, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin.

Let me remark here, that up to about 1863 there were few if any concerns who packed any tobacco direct from the grower, as most of the different crops in the States mentioned were handled and packed by a few large local buyers, whose goods were known in the market by their brands. This was more especially so in the case of the then considered finer grades of wrappers, grown and packed in Connecticut and Massachusetts by such men as I. W. Porter, Oswin Welles & Co., Henry P. Kent and other smaller firms, who, when ready to sell about August or September, came to New York with the grading of their packing, and without sampling would find ready buyers for their goods at about 15c, 18c to 20c through.

In those days the buyer knew from experience, learned from his manufacturing customer, about what he might expect for his money.

No one ever thought of sampling his goods before the cold weather, when the tobacco would be thoroughly sweated and in condition to go into the cigar. In those days a manufacturer would consider himself fortunate to get, say, fifteen to twenty thousand cigars from a case of best wrappers, weighing 400 pounds net. They packed tobacco heavy, especially in Connecticut, as the demand was for very dark colors, and at that time resweating was not known. Hence they resorted to hard pressure, which would of necessity produce more or less tender tobacco. This accounted for the few, in comparison to the requirements of the manufacturer of today, cigars produced per case.

However, most of the old people of the day of which I write, with a very few exceptions, left their families in very comfortable circumstances from the fruits of their labors.

It is not to be supposed that they made all their cigars from seed leaf. Quite the contrary. We had in those days several kinds of Spanish tobacco, Havana, Yara, Cuba, Cienfuegos, wnich, with the nominal duty of about two to three cents per pound, were sold as follows: Havana, 20c to 30c (with wrappers in the vegas); Yara, one cut, at 12c to 15c; two cut, at 20c to 25c; Cuba, at 10c to 15c; Cienfuegos, 15c to 18c, all duty paid.

These goods were shipped here on sailing vessels carrying sugar to such firms as Moses Taylor & Co. and Peter V. King & Co. On arrival they were placed in the hands of the two leading brokers, L. Rader and Jacob S. Gans, who sampled the goods on the dock and offered them to the jobbers, who on buying same took the goods directly to their stores.

On many occasions the goods would be resold at a fair profit before removal—in fact, resold two or three times before distributed to the manufacturers.

In the days of which I write there were all kinds of cigar factories working from five to one hundred hands, but a great many more "fives" than "hundreds." I can hardly recall more than two or three shops which worked over fifty men, and they were considered very large concerns.

The men received $4 to $5 for seed work and $7 to $8 for Spanish filler. A very few clear Havanas were made, for the reason, I presume, that one could buy a really good imported cigar for 3c retail.

I will not go into our manufacturers' troubles at this time, but you may rest assured that they had their grievances in the 50s, with the exception that they were generally free from strikes. Also, when the boys (cigarmakers) became tired of one location they took up their boards and walked out, while others would walk in. Up to the time of the war of 1861 the trade grew prosperous. Of course, that misunderstanding produced great changes, some of which I will relate in my next. OLD TIMER.

CUBA IS VERY PROSPEROUS.

Des Moines Tobacco Man Tells Why Island Has Splendid Prospects.

Des Moines, Ia., Feb. 3.

W. C. Schultz, vice-president of the F. R. Rice Mercantile Cigar Co., who has just returned from a several weeks trip to Cuba, where he was buying Havana for his house, says that he believes the Island has much brighter prospects than ever before, as all the industries are in a very flourishing condtion.

Mr. Schultz has been a periodical visitor to Havana for fifteen years, and declares that he never before received such a favorable impression.. He said:

"The city of Havana is undoubtedly now one of the cleanest cities in the world, and we have very few cities in this country that will compare with it in that respect. The beautiful small parks and squares are finely kept and greatly improved. Havana can also boast of one of the finest driving places of any city, which is being built along the seashore by the government. He also found through the country that the roads are fine and well kept, and can easily compare in keeping and cleanliness with many of the best streets in our cities. Everybody seems to be happy and contented, and they show this in their faces. The country is peaceful and their crops are large and abundant and the prices good. The sugar crop is especially large and will amount to about 1,300,000 tons. The price is about 15 per cent higher than it was three years ago.

"The tobacco crop was not as large as formerly, owing to the increased planting of sugar, and for that reason the prices on fine grades of Havana are very high. There is a great deal of shade grown tobacco, but there are very few in Cuba who seem to like it. It generally has a peculiar and bitter taste, entirely foreign to the famous and renowned aromatic tobacco. Cubans claim that tobacco cannot be grown under cover and retain its fine qualities and aromatic smoke when treated like the famous American Beauty roses are raised in the United States.

"Some of the largest manufacturing concerns on the island are working nothing but shade grown tobacco for the fancy sizes. From a financial point of view they cannot be blamed for doing so, as the wrapper for a fancy size on 1,000 cigars of the open-air grown tobacco cost about $40, while the cost of the shade-grown tobacco will only be $7 to $8 per 1,000. The consumers are the losers by this, as they do not get the genuine fine aroma of Havana tobacco of older times. Money is very plentiful on account of the large crops they are having, and, of course, that is creating a good deal of happiness on the island."

—The Robards Tobacco Co., of Henderson, Ky., will probably remove to Mayfield, in a short time, the president of the company, Ed. T. Robards, having been offered one of the best plants in the State by parties in the latter city.

SECRETARY TAFT'S LETTER TO CHAIRMAN PAYNE.

The Former Philippine Governor Urges the Ways and Means Committee to Report Favorably on the Curtis Bill and Not Countenance a 50 Per Cent Compromise.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 2.

Following is the text of the letter which Secretary of War Taft has sent to Chairman Payne, of the House Committee on Ways and Means, summarizing the reasons why he believes that the Curtis bill should be enacted. The Secretary says:

"Whatever ultimately will be done with the Philippine Islands, they are necessarily for the next generation to be a part of the United States, and the people of the United States are trustees in holding the Philippine Islands for the benefit of the people of those islands, and are under a sacred obligation to treat the people of the islands as their wards.

"Under the Spanish regime the Spanish Government maintained a monopoly in the manufacture and sale of tobacco, and took all of its supply from Cuba and the Philippine Islands. Since that time, as I am informed, the Spanish Government has purchased its tobacco where it could get it cheapest, and the Philippine markets have not necessarily been given the benefit of the Spanish patronage. The change of sovereignty, therefore, has taken away from the tobacco growers and manufacturers of the Philippine Islands, and the sugar growers of those islands, the monopoly of the valuable market of Spain. The United States is under an obligation to make this deficiency good. In addition to this there has been imposed a heavier tax on tobacco and sugar in Japan and Australia, which has much reduced the opportunities for profitable sale of both products.

"The Congress of the United States has enacted a law by which after the first of July, 1906, all merchandise from the Philippine Islands carried to the United States directly or indirectly must come in American bottoms. Unless Congress by its law shall make the markets in the United States peculiarly profitable, and shall take down all tariff obstruction to the passage of merchandise from the Philippines to the United States, this law is a most unjust law. It cannot be assumed that Congress in treating the Philippine Islands for purposes of the patronage of American ships as part of the United States, and thus imposing a burden on the commerce of the Philippine Islands, will now deny the corresponding and necessary benefit of free commercial relations.

"Congress has, for the benefit of the farmers, laborers and cordage manufacturers of this country, repealed the export tax imposed by the laws of the Philippine Islands on Manila hemp exported directly from the islands to the United States, and has thus reduced the revenues of the islands, which otherwise would have been raised there during the enforcement of this Act, $1,051,000 at the end of the fiscal year 1904. It should be said that in order to make up the deficit caused by this appropriation of the revenues of the islands for the benefit of American labor and farm and business interests, a provision was made by which all duties collected on imports from the Philippine Islands and paid into the Treasury of the United States should be turned over to the Treasury of the Philippine Islands, but this was insufficient to meet the drain on the revenues of the Philippines, so that the net loss sustained by the insular revenues on account of the repeal of the export tax on hemp during the three years was $329,000 at the end of the last fiscal year. Except for the fact that Congress regarded the Philippine Islands as part of the United States, and felt justified, because of other benefits which it proposed to extend to those islands in aiding particular classes of its own citizens in this country, such legislation would be unjust and improper. We are not pressing at this time a bill which shall permit all the products of the Philippine Islands to enter without the payment of any duty whatever. If we were to admit into the United States all products of the Philippine Islands free of duty the reciprocal obligation on the part of the islands to admit merchandise from the United States free of duty would probably arise, and merchandise from the United States could not be admitted free under the Treaty of Paris without extending the same privilege to merchants from Spain until the year 1909, a condition which would too seriously impair the customs revenue of the islands.

"The House once passed a bill reducing the tariff on sugar and tobacco to the Philippines 25 per cent. The bill passed without great opposition. There was no particular opposition because a consultation of the statistics showed that there need not be any. It was only after the opposition, which we have now seen has been nursed by paid professional agents, who have circulated unfounded statements among the trade and and have misled many persons not familiar with the facts to enter a protest. The minute that these statements are carefully examined the portentious prophecies of enormous stimulated production of sugar and tobacco in the Philippine Islands and an obstruction of the sugar and tobacco interests of the United States are seen to be only the product of timorous imaginations and to rest on no credible evidence whatever.

"For the considerations above stated, I earnestly urge this honorable committee to report favorably the bill under discussion reducing the duty on sugar and tobacco to 25 per cent of the Dingley tariff. I sincerely hope that the committee will not be led in a spirit of compromise to a reduction to merely 50 per cent of the Dingley rates. I am confident that a 50 per cent rate would not do the islands the slightest good or result in any appreciable importation of either tobacco or sugar into this market. At one time I hoped it might, but our experience with a reduction of 25 per cent satisfies me that I was mistaken. The only possible good that a 50 per cent rate would do would be to show how ridiculous are the claims of the beet sugar and tobacco men who have appeared before you as opponents of this bill, and thus to lead you slowly on to tardy justice to the Philippine Islands."

FAILURES IN JANUARY.

More Suspensions But Less Volume of Liabilities.

Failures reported to "Bradstreet's" for the month of January were more numerous than in the same month of a year ago, largely because of the increased number of casualties in the South. It is true that the Middle and New England States reported more failures than in January a year ago, but on the other hand, the Central West and the Northwest reported a great many less, and it remained for the South to furnish the entire increase shown over the same month a year ago. Failure damage in the shape of liabilities was, however, much smaller than in January a year ago, and the January record of failures and liabilities is really below the normal for the month just closed, which usually witnesses much in the way of annual balancing of books and elimination of weak vessels among the business community.

There were 1,203 failures, involving $10,896,479 in liabilities and $6,052,978 in assets, reported to "Bradstreet's" for the month of January. This is an increase of 7.3 per cent in the number over January, 1904, but a decrease of 36 per cent in the volume of liabilities. Compared with January, 1903, there is a gain of 7.9 per cent in number and 3.5 per cent in liabilities. New York city failures are slightly more numerous, but the liabilities are only about one-third of those of January last year.

COLD WEATHER PREVENTS DELIVERY.

Cincinnati, O., Feb. 2.

A warehouseman, just returned from an inspection trip through Kentucky, said to the correspondent of The Tobacco World:

"Cold weather has been general in the white burley belt for the past ten days, and has seriously interfered with the delivery of the crop, as it has delayed the getting of the weed ready for market. Growers are evincing a great deal of interest in the Burley Tobacco Growers' Association, and the majority are of the opinion that the venture will eventually prove a success."

CUBA IS VERY PROSPEROUS.

Des Moines Tobacco Man Tells Why Island Has Splendid Prospects.

Des Moines, Ia., Feb. 3.

W. C. Schultz, vice-president of the F. R. Rice Mercantile Cigar Co., who has just returned from a several weeks trip to Cuba, where he was buying Havana for his house, says that he believes the Island has much brighter prospects than ever before, as all the industries are in a very flourishing condtion.

Mr. Schultz has been a periodical visitor to Havana for fifteen years, and declares that he never before received such a favorable impression.. He said:

"The city of Havana is undoubtedly now one of the cleanest cities in the world, and we have very few cities in this country that will compare with it in that respect. The beautiful small parks and squares are finely kept and greatly improved. Havana can also boast of one of the finest driving places of any city, which is being built along the seashore by the government. He also found through the country that the roads are fine and well kept, and can easily compare in keeping and cleanliness with many of the best streets in our cities. Everybody seems to be happy and contented, and they show this in their faces. The country is peaceful and their crops are large and abundant and the prices good. The sugar crop is especially large and will amount to about 1,300,000 tons. The price is about 15 per cent higher than it was three years ago.

"The tobacco crop was not as large as formerly, owing to the increased planting of sugar, and for that reason the prices on fine grades of Havana are very high. There is a great deal of shade grown tobacco, but there are very few in Cuba who seem to like it. It generally has a peculiar and bitter taste, entirely foreign to the famous and renowned aromatic tobacco. Cubans claim that tobacco cannot be grown under cover and retain its fine qualities and aromatic smoke when treated like the famous American Beauty roses are raised in the United States.

"Some of the largest manufacturing concerns on the island are working nothing but shade grown tobacco for the fancy sizes. From a financial point of view they cannot be blamed for doing so, as the wrapper for a fancy size on 1,000 cigars of the open-air grown tobacco cost about $40, while the cost of the shade-grown tobacco will only be $7 to $8 per 1,000. The consumers are the losers by this, as they do not get the genuine fine aroma of Havana tobacco of older times. Money is very plentiful on account of the large crops they are having, and, of course, that is creating a good deal of happiness on the island."

—The Robards Tobacco Co., of Henderson, Ky., will probably remove to Mayfield, in a short time, the president of the company, Ed. T. Robards, having been offered one of the best plants in the State by parties in the latter city.

SECRETARY TAFT'S LETTER TO CHAIRMAN PAYNE.

The Former Philippine Governor Urges the Ways and Means Committee to Report Favorably on the Curtis Bill and Not Countenance a 50 Per Cent Compromise.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 2.

Following is the text of the letter which Secretary of War Taft has sent to Chairman Payne, of the House Committee on Ways and Means, summarizing the reasons why he believes that the Curtis bill should be enacted. The Secretary says:

"Whatever ultimately will be done with the Philippine Islands, they are necessarily for the next generation to be a part of the United States, and the people of the United States are trustees in holding the Philippine Islands for the benefit of the people of those islands, and are under a sacred obligation to treat the people of the islands as their wards.

"Under the Spanish regime the Spanish Government maintained a monopoly in the manufacture and sale of tobacco, and took all of its supply from Cuba and the Philippine Islands. Since that time, as I am informed, the Spanish Government has purchased its tobacco where it could get it cheapest, and the Philippine markets have not necessarily been given the benefit of the Spanish patronage. The change of sovereignty, therefore, has taken away from the tobacco growers and manufacturers of the Philippine Islands, and the sugar growers of those islands, the monopoly of the valuable market of Spain. The United States is under an obligation to make this deficiency good. In addition to this there has been imposed a heavier tax on tobacco and sugar in Japan and Australia, which has much reduced the opportunities for profitable sale of both products.

"The Congress of the United States has enacted a law by which after the first of July, 1906, all merchandise from the Philippine Islands carried to the United States directly or indirectly must come in American bottoms. Unless Congress by its law shall make the markets in the United States peculiarly profitable, and shall take down all tariff obstruction to the passage of merchandise from the Philippines to the United States, this law is a most unjust law. It cannot be assumed that Congress in treating the Philippine Islands for purposes of the patronage of American ships as part of the United States, and thus imposing a burden on the commerce of the Philippine Islands, will now deny the corresponding and necessary benefit of free commercial relations.

"Congress has, for the benefit of the farmers, laborers and cordage manufacturers of this country, repealed the export tax imposed by the laws of the Philippine Islands on Manila hemp exported directly from the islands to the United States, and has thus reduced the revenues of the islands, which otherwise would have been raised there during the enforcement of this Act, $1,051,000 at the end of the fiscal year 1904. It should be said that in order to make up the deficit caused by this appropriation of the revenues of the islands for the benefit of American labor and farm and business interests, a provision was made by which all duties collected on imports from the Philippine Islands and paid into the Treasury of the United States should be turned over to the Treasury of the Philippine Islands, but this was insufficient to meet the drain on the revenues of the Philippines, so that the net loss sustained by the insular revenues on account of the repeal of the export tax on hemp during the three years was $329,000 at the end of the last fiscal year. Except for the fact that Congress regarded the Philippine Islands as part of the United States, and felt justified, because of other benefits which it proposed to extend to those islands in aiding particular classes of its own citizens in this country, such legislation would be unjust and improper. We are not pressing at this time a bill which shall permit all the products of the Philippine Islands to enter without the payment of any duty whatever. If we were to admit into the United States all products of the Philippine Islands free of duty the reciprocal obligation on the part of the islands to admit merchandise from the United States free of duty would probably arise, and merchandise from the United States could not be admitted free under the Treaty of Paris without extending the same privilege to merchants from Spain until the year 1909, a condition which would too seriously impair the customs revenue of the islands.

"The House once passed a bill reducing the tariff on sugar and tobacco to the Philippines 25 per cent. The bill passed without great opposition. There was no particular opposition because a consultation of the statistics showed that there need not be any. It was only after the opposition, which we have now seen has been nursed by paid professional agents, who have circulated unfounded statements among the trade and and have misled many persons not familiar with the facts to enter a protest. The minute that these statements are carefully examined the portentious prophecies of enormous stimulated production of sugar and tobacco in the Philippine Islands and an obstruction of the sugar and tobacco interests of the United States are seen to be only the product of timorous imaginations and to rest on no credible evidence whatever.

"For the considerations above stated, I earnestly urge this honorable committee to report favorably the bill under discussion reducing the duty on sugar and tobacco to 25 per cent of the Dingley tariff. I sincerely hope that the committee will not be led in a spirit of compromise to a reduction to merely 50 per cent of the Dingley rates. I am confident that a 50 per cent rate would not do the islands the slightest good or result in any appreciable importation of either tobacco or sugar into this market. At one time I hoped it might, but our experience with a reduction of 25 per cent satisfies me that I was mistaken. The only possible good that a 50 per cent rate would do would be to show how ridiculous are the claims of the beet sugar and tobacco men who have appeared before you as opponents of this bill, and thus to lead you slowly on to tardy justice to the Philippine Islands."

The Old Salesman's Musings.

THREE SCORE AND TEN MORE THAN MOST MEN NEED.

Let me inform you, boys, that the way things go now-a-days, the customary three score and ten are about all the years that an ordinary man needs to have coming to him in this world. Unless your stock in trade is exceptional, you're an unburied corpse long before you've checked up on that span.

The young man is the cheese today, and he stays the cheese just precisely as long as he stays young. A man can plug along soaking up just as much experience and ability as he can crowd into the passing time, and when he gets by the fifty line, a whole lot of employers are likely to begin to look askance at him.

You can be as old as you like, if you're an employer and able to continue one, but if you're just a plain hired man, who have made a present of your lifetime for enough of the emerald paper to keep the family dinner bell in its job, you'll lose an inch of your position for every wrinkle. Perhaps the argument is that the man who is worth anything ought to be an employer by the time he is fifty. It isn't every employer, however, that make the biggest piece of money in his establishment.

This is not passed out as a new subject. "The Old Man, and How he Got it Where Tecumseh Wore the Elk's Teeth," is one of the heart dramas that we have ever with us. I just happened to witness a couple of instances within a week, though, that brought it forcibly to my mind.

I was in an office on Chestnut street, Philadelphia, one day, talking to a friend when the door opened and a rather imposing looking old man entered. I recognized him as having been a cigar manufacturer some fifteen or twenty years ago, and at one time he was considered in prosperous circumstances. I hadn't seen the man for years. He didn't know me, and stood bowing.

"Is Mr. Brown in?" he asked.

"I am Mr. Brown," answered my friend.

The old man hesitated, and fumbled with a green lawyer's bag which he carried in one hand.

"I see you use both telephones, Mr. Brown," he said. "I have here a device for registering the number of calls made." He stopped and gazed dreamily at us for a minute. "It registers every call made," he repeated, "so that there is likely to be no dispute, where the service is limited." The old man held up his little contrivance and fell into a deep reverie.

"No," said my friend, rather sharply I thought, "I'm not interested. You were talking to me yesterday about it, you know."

The agent thought on for awhile and then gave a little start.

"Oh!" he exclaimed. "Was I? To be sure I was." He hesitated again and said slowly: "It's a very good thing. It registers every call that is made."

Brown turned to me to continue the conversation; the old gentleman gazed at us sadly for a moment and shuffled out.

"Energetic old party," said Brown. "He dropped in here yesterday and dreamed around awhile until I led him out."

"It's a shame!' said I. "I used to know him when he was a good business man with a nice home and a happy family. I wonder how he came to such a pass as this?"

The door opened, and curiously enough, in came another old gentleman. He had a beautiful, white beard and a magnificent head. He was dressed in a decent, but threadbare black frock suit and wore old fashioned arctics. The loving, anxious care of his faithful, old wife stuck out all over him. He, also, bowed and favored us with a smile whose genuine sweetness had outlived a great many hard knocks.

"Gentlemen," he began in a rich, cultivated voice, "I am introducing a new publication in which every man is naturally interested. It is a history of the Asian peoples, dealing especially with the Russ and the Japanese, who are now at each other's throats in a world unprecedented struggle. This work, complete in—"

"Excuse me," said Brown very decidedly, "most unnaturally, I am not interested, and I am obliged to tell you that my time is limited."

THE REALM OF THE RETAILERS

TIMELY TALKS WITH ENTERPRISING DEALERS.

THERE is no system of advertising that pays best for the comparatively small amount of money expended than the proper care of the show window.

No method of advertising is more effective, and easier and cheaper to control, than that of window displays.

The first thing necessary in a good window display is scrupulous cleanliness. The next point is to secure a proper background for the display of your goods. This can be easily and cheaply done by putting up a curtain of a material that can be kept clean and renewed, preferably of some dark color. This curtain may be stretched on a wire from one side of the window to another, if necessary.

The drapery or curtain should be simple, as it is not the desire of the dealer to call attention to the drapery, but to the goods displayed.

The one great cardinal principle in window displays is simplicity. Windows are usually piled up with goods, which confuse the mind of the public, without attracting its attention to any particular thing in the window. It is a noticeable fact that, with crowded windows, the public leaves the display with no definite knowledge of anything beyond a confused mass of goods.

For the night display the lights in the window should be above the shade and out of the observer's sight. A strong reflector should be used to throw the light directly on the article in the window; but no light should be placed in the window so that it can be seen by the public, as it is an irritation to the eye, and distracts the attention from the goods displayed.

The subject of window displays is too large a one for us to dwell upon at length. If the principles of cleanliness and simplicity, both in the draping of the window and in the display of goods, are carried out, any storekeeper can secure a window that will attract attention, whether he is able to employ more elaborate devices, such as automatic or moving displays, or not.

Some one in the store should be detailed to attend to the windows, so that the proprietor may hold him responsible for their proper care.

NO MORE POISON IN CIGARS.

THERE is said to have been discovered a method by which cigars may be deprived of all poisonous qualities before being smoked, and it is said that as a result, Doctor Gautier, a prominent French physician, smoked thirty large, black cigars in twelve hours without any bad effects. The only trouble with the scheme is that owing to the perversity of human nature, men will probably scorn the cigar rendered harmless by such a method, just as the drinker won't touch drinks that taste and smell just like the real thing but contain no alcohol.

The new scheme provides for the cigars being sterilized, and the process by which the nicotine is neutralized is a French discovery and it is hoped that in time smokers will use only poisonless tobacco.

It is not rash to say that tobacco is the more attractive to the majority because it is a poison. It is a peculiarity of this plant that it coaxes its users into the belief that they always avoid excess and can at will abandon its use. To make smoking harmless would rob it of a chief element of popularity. It was not until persons in authority censured Sir Walter Raleigh for smoking and declared it to be a menace of health that the use of tobacco spread like a prairie fire.

Wireless telegraph, horseless carriages, featherless chickens, boneless shad, and the like, may do, but a poisonless tobacco could not serve its purpose any better han could a toothless watchdog.

CIGARETTES AND DOPE.

IT IS a cherished idea with many consumers that some tobacco and the majority of cigarettes, particularly the cheap ones, are doped. Just why the manufacturer should do this is not quite clear unless it would be with the idea of making the cigarette more seductive, so that the habit would be constantly growing. The cost and trouble, however, would make it an unprofitable operation.

A. H. Price, a wholesale tobacco salesman, well known in the middle west takes no stock in the stories that drugs or opiates are used, and tells why he doesn't believe them. He says:

"I have been in the business for years, and thought that I was pretty well posted. If there is any opium used in the preparation of tobacco, I do not know it.

"You often hear these stories, but I don't believe that there is a word of truth in it.

"It's all according to taste. If you become accustomed to a certain brand of tobacco you will prefer it to a higher priced brand which you have never smoked before. I have seen that demonstrated so many times that I know it is true."

HEAP BIG INJUN.

IN front of a cigar store on Twelfth street, just above Girard avenue, Philadelphia, is a wooden Indian that is probably the tallest in Philadelphia. The figure is fully eight or nine feet high, and perched upon a pedestal, it towers above passers-by in a very imposing, dignified way. The Indian is in good condition and does not look as if it had been made such a long time ago.

The oft repeated statement that the Indian as a cigar store sign will soon be extinct does not seem to be quite true, in Philadelphia at least, as there are plenty of them to be seen, particularly in the residential sections, on Ridge avenue, Germantown avenue, Manayunk, Kensington, and similar neighborhoods. Some new stores acquire them, and it is by no means improbable that there will be a revival of them to a certain extent.

WHY IS A CIGAR STORE A LOAFING PLACE?

IT'S a peculiar thing how definitely a cigar store has come to be regarded as a loafing place. There isn't a store so high-toned and fancy that some of its customers don't occasionally steal a loaf after they have bought a cigar.

Next to them is the class that spends a portion of every noon hour leaning on the counter and smoking, next to them is the man who makes it a point to stop in for a chat whenever he is in the neighborhood, next to him is the guy who makes the place a rendezvous and is on hand four or five nights out of the week and Sunday, if the store is open, and next to him and everything else he can get next to, is the skate who spends nearly as much time in the store as the clerk, has his mail sent there, has friends to meet him there, uses the store telephone, and buys a five cent bag of cigarette tobacco two or three times a week.

People go into a drug store to consult the directory, and use a department store in which to wait for a friend, but there does not seem to be any other class of store in which they deliberately lounge, and the extent to which it is tolerated and even encouraged is astonishing, particularly when it is borne in mind that the store's best customers are seldom numbered among the loafers.

There is a certain store which the writer has in mind, in which a back room is occupied by a couple of pool tables. Three or four dozen chairs are ranged around the room, and early every evening there is a rush for these. It is not to witness the pool playing, for the reason that on many a night there will be practically no playing. Moreover most of the chairs were there before the tables were.

This cigar store has more constant attendance than most clubs and none of the crowd seem to tire. If one man misses a night, he has to tell everyone where he has been when he shows up the next night. On Sunday the proprietor buys all the Philadelphia and New York papers and puts them out on the pool table which aren't doing business. They are leisurely read and discussed all day, and by night all the affairs of the country are comfortably settled. The proprietor takes an interest in the arguments occasionally, and his clerk who is considered something of a cut-up, always. The day's sales from this crowd are never enormous and after the price of the paper is subtracted from the profits, hardly a good day's pay would be left.

It doesn't seem clear why the proprietor runs this sort of a place as he has sacrificed some of his trade in order to do it. Sone men wont enter his store because they say it is always full of loafers. The dealer seems perfectly satisfied, however, and wouldn't drive the crowd out if he saw an easy way to do it and still retain their trade.

Many a dealer has chairs and benches put in to accommodate his hangers-on, who on the strength of a dime spent can loll luxuriously the whole evening.

Of course the big stores wont stand for any such chair warming, but their managers will tell you that they have a lot of customers who ought to know better, who would at once take advantage of any sort of encouragement in this direction. What is the particular attraction?

TO BRIGHTEN UP OLD STOCK.

THE following is very good matter from the current issue of the Canadian Cigar and Tobacco Journal and should be noted by every dealer:

"The line of goods generally designated as smokers' sundries is apt to become shop soiled, and materially deteriorate in value, when kept in stock for any length of time. Many of them, that have thus suffered, can have their appearance much improved, however, by a little effort on the part of the dealer.

"Leather cigar and cigarette cases that have become soiled, can have their appearance wonderfully improved by rubbing them with the white of an egg, and then polishing with a soft cloth when entirely dry. This should not be attempted, however, with the cheaper cases of so-called leatherette, as the least moisture is apt to ruin their appearance beyond repair.

"Silver and plated match boxes that have become tarnished, can be readily cleaned with a piece of chamois skin and a little whiting, slightly moistened with alcohol. The silver mountings on pipes may be cleaned in the same way, but care should be taken not to soil or scratch the other portions of the pipe. Immediately after cleaning a pipe mount, the adjacent parts of the pipe should be wiped first with a damp rag, followed by a dry, soft cloth.

"Briar pipes of the best class improve rather than deteriorate by being kept in stock, particularly where they are exposed to a strong light in the shop window. The wood gradually becomes darker, and the grain shows up to better advantage. In the cheaper briar pipes, where the bad spots have been filled with putty, the exposure to a strong light causes these spots to stand out more prominently, as the putty becomes pale. At times a dealer may get a piece of briar wood that does not darken as it should. In such cases it will be improved by an application of olive oil, well rubbed in. The only cleaning that an ordinary plain briar pipe requires, is wiping with a dry cloth. Carved briars should be cleaned with a dry, hard brush."

HERE is a tip for the retailer who stays in his own store from early in the morning until eleven o'clock at night: Go out regularly and get some fresh air, and make it a point to stop in a different store and buy a cigar as often as you can. Watch other dealers do business and see if your way is better or worse. The man who sticks in his own shell all the time isn't any better than a clam.

COLD WEATHER ALSO AFFECTS HAVANA MARKET.

Prices on Best Goods Ruled Very Firm, and Buyers Obtained No Concessions. Some Poorer Stocks Sold at Knock-Down Prices. Influx of Buyers Continues.

HAVANA, February 3, 1905.

The past week has been chiefly remarkable for the extremely cold weather experienced in Havana, particularly on Wednesday last, when the thermometer only marked 51 degrees, and the tail end of the blizzard from the north struck the town, making business almost impossible. Heavy overcoats were worn by the American buyers for two days, while the Cuban population was shivering in light fall overcoats; at least that portion of it who possessed this garment, as the majority of the people hid from the cold as far as it was possible to do so. Under these circumstances it is small wonder that the market has been less active, but considering that the volume of trade had to be done in these days, it must be noted as an excellent showing of vitality, nevertheless. Prices ruled very firm, and sellers will make no concessions for first-class goods. On the other hand, all dealers who hold stocks that are less salable continue to be willing to meet buyers in their views. Remedios is now concentrated in the hands of two or three Spanish houses, while the remainder is in the possession of American exporters. Good, heavy bodied Vuelta Abajo and Semi Vuelta styles remain in strong demand, while stocks have dwindled down to very small proportions. Medium to light Vuelta Abajo vegas suitable for clear Havana manufacturers can still be had, as well as a limited quantity of Partido leaf.

The influx of buyers from the north has not yet abated.

Exports from Havana

from January 23 to 28 amounted to 5,024 bales, of which the United States received 4,917, Buenos Ayres 100, and Gibraltar and Tangiers 7 (sample) bales. A large proportion of the late purchases by the northern buyers is still stored here, and will only be shipped gradually as it may be needed by the manufacturers, in order to give it the benefit of the milder climate here.

Sales

last week amounted to 7,148 bales in all, or 5,107 bales of Vuelta Abajo, 465 of Partido and 1,676 bales of Remedios. The American buyers took 5,076 bales, while the home manufacturers participated in securing 2,072 bales for their wants. No transactions were reported for Europe.

Buyers Come and Go.

Arrivals:—Joseph Hollard, the well known cigar manufacturer, G. S. Mahn, cigar importer, and T. H. Vetterlein, son of Julius Vetterlein, all of Philadelphia; Mat Wengler, of Wengler & Mandell, O. S. Eisendrath and B. Barron, of B. Barron & Co., all of Chicago; I. L. Kemper, of I. L. Kemper & Co., of Baltimore, Md.; S. Grysmich, of S Grysmich & Co., Roger Pierce and J. E. A. Blais, of S. S. Pierce Co., Boston; A. and N. E. Guedalia, of Guedalia & Co., Marcelino Perez, of M. Perez & Co., E. P. Cordero, of the Mi Hogar factory, A. Rovira, of Ghio & Rovira, New York; Fred and Sidney Rothschild, of Rothschild & Bro., New York, Detroit and Havana; E. A. Kline, of E. A. Kline & Co., New York, Tampa and Havana; A. Pazos, of A. Pazos & Co., New York and Havana.

Departures:—Barney Barron, for Chicago; Otto and Gus Eisenlohr, for Philadelphia; Alfred and Victor Ettlinger, Louis Hirsch, Simon Goldberg, Fred Rothschild and Sol Hamburger, for New York.

have also been greatly handicapped by the cold wave which struck Havana and prevented the cigarmakers from doing as effective work as usual. However, as most of the orders which are coming in require no special hurry, no harm to speak of has been done on this account. The presence of cigar importers from the United States evidently denotes that there must be a fair demand in the north, and soon the London importers are expected here upon their annual buying trip.

Exports per steamship Morro Castle amounted to 4,060,226 cigars.

H. Upmann & Co. are working along under a good flow of orders from all countries. They shipped last week 500,000 cigars of their own H. Upmann and other independent brands.

Cifuentes, Fernandez & Co. are still busy in executing old orders for their Flor de Tobacos de Partagas & Cia, and in the meantime they are receiving almost daily fresh calls to ship fair quantities to every place.

Por Larranaga is systematically managed by Don Antonio J. Rivero, who supervises, in conjunction with his brother, Don Ricardo, the perfect working of the factory. The former has also made all desirable connections in the north,

Canada, Great Britain, Germany, etc., to place the Por Larranaga before the smoking public. While the stock of leaf is large, of the very choicest lowland section of the Vuelta Abajo only, Don Antonio is already on the lookout to secure the most famous vegas this year, so that the factory shall be prepared to guarantee an A No. 1 cigar in every respect.

Behrens & Co. report a brisk business in their Sol factory. The National Cuba Co. is sending large, substantial orders from the United States, while Canada, Great Britain and Germany are calling for Sol cigars to the entire satisfaction of the owners.

Ramon Allones and Cruz Roja, under the management of Don Jesus Vales, of the firm of Rabell, Costa, Vales & Co., are doing an excellent business for all parts of the world.

Crepusculo, made by J. F. Rocha & Co., is called for in increasing quantities from London, Germany and South America, while the brands Nene and Jefferson are doing well in the United States.

El Rico Habano has no reason to complain, as orders are coming in at a lively enough pace to satisfy the owners, Enrique Dorado & Co.

Buying, Selling and Other Notes of Interest.

Loeb Nunez Havana Co. sold 700 bales of Remedios and Vuelta Abajo to their northern customers.

H. Spingarn, who was erroneously reported as having left, is still here, and while his purchases have amounted to considerably above 1,000 bales, he is still in the market, it seems, and open for more good goods.

Gonzalez, Benitez & Co. turned over 600 bales of Remedios and Vuelta Abajo.

Leslie Pantin has been a large operator for his various customers, although the exact quantity could not be ascertained.

Jose F. Rocha disposed of 450 bales of Vuelta Abajo to local factories and northern buyers.

Mat Wengler's business must be increasing substantially, as he only left a couple of months ago and is now back here again looking for more tobacco.

Aixala & Co. made several transactions amounting to 400 bales of Vuelta Abajo, Partido and Remedios.

Manuel Suarez & Co. are busy with several customers of theirs.

Rodriguez, Baustita & Co. sold 400 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

Jorge & P. Castaneda disposed of 400 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

I. L. Kemper, of Baltimore, looks well and happy, probably owing to the fact that he had given orders to buy suitable vegas before the rise, which he is only inspecting now.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez turned over 400 bales of Vuelta Abajo, but have other trades pending.

Mark A. Pollack is a very busy man, and can be seen flying around the market with his customers.

Rabell, Costa & Co. closed out 309 bales of Vuelta Abajo from their holdings to local factories.

Sol Hamburger was busy up to the last moment before he left, and his whole purchases were in excess of 2,000 bales.

A. Pazos & Co. had a good week, as owing to the arrival of Don Avelino they sold 300 bales of Vuelta Abajo and secured some 200 bales of the same kind in the country.

Max Stern has added about 2,000 bales of Remedios and Vuelta Abajo to his holdings, and disposed of 1,190 bales right in town to his customers.

Grau, Planas & Co. turned over the remainder of their Remedios holdings, some 250 bales, but they still hold some choice Partido vegas.

E. C. Crawford the genial buyer for Dohan & Taitt, has been going over our market carefully and selecting several good sized lots of Vuelta Abajo. All the dealers here have known him for the last twenty years, and are anxious to sell him on the lowest possible margin of profit. It is impossible for a new buyer to do as well as a man of sterling character, who has gained a reputation for honest, square dealing, although he may be sharp in the registering, and protect the interest of his firm all he possibly can.

G. Salomon & Hnos. disposed of 206 bales of all kinds of leaf.

Jos. Hollard, the well known Philadelphia manufacturer, has made some excellent purchases of Vuelta Abajo.

Jose Menendez closed out 200 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Remedios.

A. M. Calzada & Co. sold 200 bales of Remedios, and bought for his several customers 400 bales of all kinds of leaf.

B. Diaz & Co. made one sale of 150 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido to a local factory.

Garcia & Co. were actively buying in the country, and selling to their customers in town.

Don Alfredo Uttlinger, after his return from the Vuelta Abajo, bought 1,000 bales more of Vuelta Abajo, so his total purchases are about 2,000 bales.

NEW YORK, February 7, 1905.

WEEK'S MOVEMENT IN LEAF.

A very active market in all grades of leaf was noted this week, Sumatra and Havana being dealt in, in good sized lots. From what we can gather, the new crop of Sumatra will show a very small percentage of light colors.

It has been the general impression that no one knew anything about the Sumatra until a few days before the inscription, but there are good reasons to suppose that some favored few in Amsterdam see this tobacco on its arrival, and Water street knows what to expect before they purchase their passage tickets.

The crop on hand is fast disappearing, sales of over 500 bales changing hands the past week.

The Havana market has been very active, especially in Santa Clara and Remedios. All old tobacco is bringing good prices and is in active demand on account of the new crop being a little raw and that the shrinkage will necessarily be large, which is an item to be considered. It is surprising to see so many buyers going to Cuba at this time. It is altogether too late at this day, and buyers would do better to look around the home markets, where we believe they might buy better tobacco at at least 5c per pound cheaper than they could do in Havana at the present time.

Quite some activity in the new Florida tobacco was reported, sales of 300 bales having been made this week. This tobacco seems to be taking hold, and we think it has earned its place in the weekly report. All old seed tobacco is moving in good sized lots; 1902 Wisconsin binders and Bs are being picked up. Sales of 400 cases Pennsylvania broad leaf 1903 at 12½c, 600 cases 1903 Zimmer fillers out at 16½c, 200 cases Gebhardt at 16c, are reported.

One large transaction of 1903 Wisconsin was made consisting of one million one hundred thousand pounds. This is certainly a large deal for these days.

A creditors' petition in involuntary bankruptcy has been filed in the United States District Court against Morris Futterman, dealer in tobacco and cigars at No. 522 Willis avenue, by Louis Aaronson, $300; Frank Mankiewitz, $250, and Felix Philips, $225. It is alleged that Futterman is insolvent and has made payments to creditors with the intent of preferring them over the other creditors. It is further charged that on January 12 the bankrupt removed and concealed a large part of his assets. The stock and fixtures now remaining in the store are said to have a value of about $2,500.

Adolph Novotny, proprietor of a cigar store at 1444 Broadway, was arrested at the instance of Chief Revenue Agent John S. Sinsel, charged with violations of the internal revenue laws. United States Commissioner Shields held him in $2,500 bail for further examination.

The complaint alleges that on Dec. 13 last the accused had in his possession empty tobacco packages upon which the stamps had not been destroyed, and offered for sale cigars in boxes which had been previously used.

The accused is the proprietor of one of the best appointed retail cigar and tobacco stores in New York City. Novotny said he had been ill, and the failure to cancel stamps and the using of refilled boxed were due to the neglect or ignorance of his son.

The arrest of Mr. Novotny, who is one of the best known retailers on Broadway, came as a complete surprise to Mr. Novotny and his many friends in the trade. The action was taken upon a purely technical charge of having had in his possession empty tobacco packages upon which the stamps had not been properly destroyed, and also of offering for sale cigars in boxes which had been previously used.

Mr. Novotny states that the matter is due entirely to ignorance and oversight on the part of his son, who was in charge of the store while Mr. Novotny was ill, and it is generally believed that Mr. Novotny will be able to make a satisfactory explanation when the case comes up before United States Commissioner Shields this week.

William Catlin, with the Victor Thorsch Company, of Allentown, has just returned to this city after a ten days' visit through the New England States, where he did a very good business in placing the "Buster Brown" 5 cent cigar with distributors. Mr. Catlin leaves this week for New York State, and will visit every town of 10,000 population or over, thus covering the State thoroughly.

JACOB STAHL DEAD.

Jacob Stahl, one of the oldest and best known cigar manufacturers in New York City, died on January 27 at the age of 67 years. He was born in Germany, but came to the United States with his parents when in his youth, and began the manufacture of cigars in 1853.

The business was a few years ago incorporated as the American Consumers' Cigar Company, of which his son, Jacob Stahl, Jr., is now president, the factory being located in New Jersey.

THE NEW KAUFFMANN FACTORY.

A. L. & M. L. Kauffmann, a company recently formed for the purpose of engaging in the manufacture of high grade seed and Havana cigars, have secured factory facilities at Fourth street and Second avenue, and everything will be in readiness for operation by about the middle of the present month. The premises are 50x100 feet, and there are six stories. The building will be modernly equipped.

UNITED CO. BUYS A GOLDBERG STORE

The M. Goldberg Cigar Co., whose headquarters are at 98 Liberty street and who now operate four stores in New York and one in Brooklyn, has sold one of its New York stores to the United Cigar Stores Co. Transfer will be made as soon as Mr. Goldberg is able to leave his home, where he has been detained for several weeks by the serious illness of Mrs. Goldberg.

The Hillman Co., of this city, is doing a very large business on the Bachelor cigar of the Victor Thorsch Co., of Allentown.

JOTTINGS.

Frank Arguimbau, President of the Schroeder & Arguimbau Co., sailed on Saturday to visit the Company's farm at Quincy, Florida. He expects to return in about two weeks.

Sigmund Rothschild has arrived from his home in Detroit, looking hale and hearty and left New York for England on Tuesday. The "Field Marshall," despite his many years in the tobacco business, is much up to date and has many original ideas.

Bob White, representative of H. Duys & Co., spent a few days with us and brought a few good customers from Pennsylvania with him.

Alfred Etlinger, and his son Victor, arrived on the Morro Castle from Havana on Tuesday.

Julius Lichtenstein again in Connecticut inspecting his packing of tobacco. He says he bought the best crops in the State and they are not good enough for him.

Fred Rothschild, of Waldorf Astoria Segar Co. fame, is traveling to the Pacific coast and has been distinguishing himself by way of orders at every stopping point.

Max Adler, Sumatra buyer of Leonard Friedman, sails on February 25 to inspect the offerings in Amsterdam.

Sol Hamburger, of Hamburger Bros. & Co., arrived from Cuba having purchased largely of the new crop. He is content to live with us a short time.

Geo. M. Gillies has resigned as president of the Lopez Grau Co., and gone to Cuba, where he owns large coffee estates.

Capt. Mike Flaherty's health has been greatly benefited by his recent trip to Cuba and it is certain he did his share of business while there.

CONNECTICUT WAREHOUSES BUSY.

Supply of Leaf Ample to Keep Up Rush for Some Time.

Hartford, Conn., Feb. 4.

The tobacco warehouses in this State are quite busy now, and supplies of leaf are ample to keep the majority of houses in the broad leaf districts running on full time.

Girls are now employed for the first time in sorting tobacco in the Hartman packing house in Manchester, and the experiment is being watched with interest and is expected to succeed.

A report from Greenfield, Mass., says there is talk among some of the tobacco growers of making one more experiment in raising shade tobacco through the use of the old seed leaf variety. It has been learned, however, that the old seed leaf tobacco is better adapted to this use than Havana, the latter being too papery. Some experiments in growing this brand under cloth are predicted for next spring

THE CURTIS BILL.

The trade is grimly awaiting the action of the Ways and Means Committee on the Curtis bill, which it is its duty shortly to report to Congress.

No paucity of evidence will delay the committee in its deliberations, as what the gentlemen composing the body do not now know of the comparative exigencies of the Philippine and the United States manufacturing interests, they never will learn. Surely sufficient was said by forcible speakers among tobacco, sugar and other interests to convince any one whose mind were empty of prejudice, and if it be thought that the hearing thus becomes one sided, let it be remembered that Judge Taft stepped in last of all, swept contemptuously aside everything that previously had been uttered or adduced, and calmly pointed out to the committee the way it should go.

Will the committee stand pat?

Mr. John Sharp Williams mockingly remarked to Mr. Bijur during the hearing of the tobacco men, that the tobacco people seemed to regard the duties and taxes which the government forced them to pay on their tobacco, as so much charity.

Mr. Bijur courteously disclaimed any such notion, and explained that the trade was merely trying to protect itself against ruinous discrimination. Whereupon, Mr. Williams, having voiced his sarcasm for what it was worth, merely sniffed.

Why, because the government has removed the duty on hemp, and is desirous of donating a like amount of business to the Philippines, why must the tobacco trade be the goat? Simply because it's the simplest way of settling it?

It is absurd to argue that the removal of the duty would work no harm to the tobacco or sugar people, for the reason that, having stated that the operation of the bill would be expected to replace the duty loss on hemp, Chairman Payne virtually stated in the same premise that the domestic industries must necessarily be ruined in an equal degree, which is to the tune of sometning like $400,000 a year as a starter.

Advanced mathematics are not required to determine the fact that the pouring of a glass of water from a pitcher reduces the quantity in the pitcher by precisely one glass full.

However, the only thing to do now is to wait.

SECRETARY WILSON AND THE NEW ENGLAND GROWERS.

Some newspaper man went to Secretary Wilson, of the Agricultural Department, and told him that some of the growers in New England were rather bitter against him on account of the failure of the Sumatra shade-grown theory to materialize into coin of the realm. He asked the Secretary what he had to say.

Mr. Wilson would not admit that his experts in the Bureau of Soils were in any way at fault, but laid the blame on the growers themselves. He said they were entirely too anxious to make a dollar, and tumbled too readily into the stock companies which were formed to create all at once a large, new industry.

"Numerous large companies were formed," said Secretary Wilson, "and stock was sold all over the country in a manner which should never have been attempted. The Government did not recommend commercial enterprise of that sort."

Certainly it did not. It would scarcely be fitting for the Government to instigate or suggest the establishment of corporations, but it would seem that the reports made by the experts, who had compiled them as the result of practical work, were entitled and intended to be taken at their face value; and if it is practical successfully to cultivate tobacco under shade in Connecticut from Sumatra seed at no extraordinary expense, it does not seem illogical to suppose that it can be marketed at a profit.

The reports made by the Bureau of Soils are certainly intended to benefit farmers, and as the average farmer is neither scientist nor philanthropist, it is scarcely reasonable to expect his interest to remain an abstract one.

NEARLY every commercial house which does business in the West praises it as the best territory. Money always seems easier there than elsewhere in the United States. The old-time advice, "Go West, young man," isn't so much out of date after all.

Philadelphia Tobacco Trade.

Here and There With the Retailers

The extremely cold weather of the week reacted to a considerable extent on business among the retailers, and while a fair trade was done, considering, the small sales fell off very much On the very cold days there was little smoking done on the street, and consequently less cigars and cigarettes bought. When the wind is blowing and the temperature near zero, the majority of men hurry along with their hands jammed down in their pockets and don't want to monkey with a cigar.

"Some people try to tell me," said a down town dealer, "that this is overbalanced by the fact that men stay in doors and do even more smoking than is usual. I don't believe it. There are a great many business houses in this city which do not permit smoking inside the office and every employe has to do his smoking when he's outside. They're not outside much this weather, and as a result the retailers are quick to feel the effect of it."

A report came indirectly from the Bamberger real estate offices this week that the United Cigar Stores Co. had definitely closed the deal for the entire building at the Southwest corner of Second and Market streets, for $5,500 a year. This includes the property that was used for a jewelry store on Second street, as well as the Bainbridge shoe store. It was stated that the United building would be considerably altered and improved, and an elevator and stairway put in, and that the United people will occupy part of the first floor and sublet the rest of the building.

A meeting of the board of directors of the Retail Cigar and Tobacco Dealers' Association was held at the store of J. I. Hassen, 6633 Woodland avenue on Monday afternoon to consider the sending of representatives to a meeting to be held at 2215 Columbia avenue on Thursday, the 9th, to be composed of delegates from the Northwest, Central, and West Philadelphia Business Men's Protective Associations, and also the German Alliance.

The allied committees will run a special to Harrisburg on Feb. 14, when they expect to carry no less than five hundred men, who will voice their sentiments in favor of the McNicoll bill.

Joseph E. Tuck, retiring president of the Philadelphia Cigar and Tobacco Dealers' Association, who is spending the winter at Los Angeles, has been forced by a rather serious affliction to abandon all use of his eyes for the time. Mr. Tuck writes that he expects to be much better in a few weeks, however, and everyone will join in the hope that his expectation is verified.

H. Steinberg, retailer and sub-jobber, of 1631 Ridge avenue, has been laid up for several days.

M. J. Dalton, sailed last Saturday on the Morro Castle with a party of seven friends for Cuba, where he will spend a month or six weeks. The trip will be largely one of pleasure, but Mr. Dalton will look the market over while he is there. The Philadelphia business will be looked after during his absence, by E. J. Wallis, the capable vice president of the Dalton Co.

E. W. Moore, has a fine window display in his Second and Chestnut streets store this week of his Gladstone and Alpha 5 cent brands and Indian Planter, a 10 cent brand. Business is very good with Mr. Moore.

R. D. Engel, formerly a superintendent for Gumpert Bros, who is now manufacturing for himself at Broad and Porter streets, reports business as very good. Mr. Engel has room for twenty five hands more than he is able to get.

Mr. Monellis, of Newark, was in this market during the week introducing a new brand of cheroots called Zozo. Mr. Monellis is the man who introduced the Alaska brand of little cigars about a year ago.

At the store of Godfrey S. Mahn, at Eleventh and Chestnut streets, it was stated that business is moving well now at both Philadelphia places, and also at Mr. Mahn's New York stands.

W. T. Taylor, the representative of the Punch and the Romeo and Juliet factories, of Cuba, who has spent some time in this market recently, sailed on the Morro Castle last Friday.

Thomas E. Bowen, of Guerra, Diaz & Co., was among the salesmen in town this week. The drummers were unable to report anything phenomenal in business for the past two weeks.

Boch & Co., Broad street, below Chestnut, are having a run on Boch & Co.'s Panetelas, and have a window display of them. Business is pretty good up on Broad street just now.

Authur Dugan, formerly back of the counter for Jos. Way, at 1105 Market street, is now handing out cigars at the Vendig Hotel cigar stand.

Francisco Garcia, of F. Garcia & Bros., Havana, was a visitor among the trade this week, and reported business as opening up well.

C. Fraciscus, late of Evans, will open a new store at 4203-5 Lancaster avenue, where he will carry a full line of Key West cigars.

S. Jacobs, of Gumpert Bros., was among the trade this week and showed the lithographs of some prospective new labels.

ALFRED EYER & CO., Cigar Manufacturers,
Allentown, Pa.

James I. Hassen, 6633 Woodland avenue, is going to enlarge his present place of business by an additional story and 40 feet more depth. Mr. Hassen opened up in this section about nine years ago, and by strict and careful attention to business has built up a prosperous trade both retail and jobbing. Mr. Hassen was the first dealer to return "Devil Heads" to the Queen City Tobacco Co. for premiums, for which they congratulated him by letter. Red D. is his leading seller in scrap goods.

With Manufacturers and Jobbers.

Frank Teller, head of the firm of Frank Teller & Co., 125 South Second street, has just returned from an extensive Western trip, and reports the best January in that section in the history of the firm.

E. Cohn, of E. Cohn & Son, jobbers at 512 South Second street, experienced a sad bereavement last week in the death of his only daughter, about 13 years old Mr. Cohn has seven sons.

Mr. Jeffreys, of the Surbrug Co., of New York, was in this market during the week purchasing the Milo cigar. This brand is to be worked on extensively.

Dan McNeil, of A. B. Cunningham & Co., has left for an extended road trip for his company.

Beaston Bros., manufacturers and jobbers at 55th street and Woodland avenue, are very busy at both their places of business, and are getting their goods well established in this city and up the Schuylkill Valley.

T. H. Hart & Co., the leading importers, manufacturers and jobbers in all Havana goods in this city, report a decided increase in business for January over last year, and attribute it to the Tobacco Show. The increase is especially in the sale of Leda, all Havana, and on the Cayey Caguas, Porto Rico goods. This company also reports that they are oversold on Ramesis cigarettes, the factory being over a million short.

J. R. Vetterlein, son of Joseph Vetterlein, of Vetterlein Bros, started on his maiden trip as a salesman this week. Heretofore Mr. Vetterlein has devoted considerable of his attention to Princeton football, and has started out with the same vigor to "tackle" this new proposition.

Bayuk Bros. have just put on the market a very handsome new 5 cent cigar which they call BB Blunts. The cigar is made in a large size and is taken on sight for a 10 cent article. The package is a handsome one.

Stephano Bros. Will Erect Big Building

Stephano Bros., manufacturers of Ramesis Turkish cigarettes, have purchased the properties at 1014-16 Walnut street, where they will erect a modern seven story building, drawings and plans for which are now complete.

Leaf Dealers' Jottings.

F. Eckerson returned on Monday from his Havana trip, having after a hard hunt secured about 1,000 bales. Prices were very high, Mr. Eckerson says, and he had great difficulty in getting what he needed. Julius Eckerson will shortly leave for the West.

E. A. Calves, of E. A. Calves & Co., sailed last Saturday for Havana. Mr. Calves will remain away about five weeks, during which time Frank Dominguez will "tend store." Mr. Calves will meet many friends before he returns.

George Newman, of Young & Newman, is back from his satisfying Western trip and is now taking frequent short runs up the State while preparing for his next trip.

Jake Labe, of B. Labe & Sons, is still sending in orders from the West, while Sidney Labe and Charles Cohen are up the State.

TWO NEW FIRMS STARTED.

The "Me and Pa" Cigar Co. has been established at Lansing, Mich., by ex-Deputy Sheriff Behrendt and his father, David Behrendt. The company will manufacture a number of brands, among them "Me and Pa."

Frederick Jacoby and Martin Klingler, of Allentown, Pa., have gone into business at 206 Hamilton street, under the firm name of Jacoby & Klingler.

THE "ORIENT" MATTER STILL UNSETTLED.

There has nothing definite been decided yet concerning the matter of the "Orient" 5 cent cigarettes put out by the Khedivial Co., of New York, which were investigated last week by the internal revenue authorities on account of an allegation that some of the packages were stamped with the 54 cent stamps instead of those of the $1.08 denomination.

It was stated by Deputy Collector Wilkes, of the First District, that the goods had been examined and that representatives of the Khedivial Co. had visited the collector to discuss the matter. Mr. Wilkes said that the matter is now in the hands of the commissioner, who will shortly come to an opinion.

The affair caused much talk in the trade during the week, and in no case was any opinion expressed except that any wrong stamps reaching the jobber were the result of a blunder. One jobber stated that a revenue deputy had seized some of the cigarettes presumably on authority, but had later brought them back. A number of rumors were flying around during the week, a certain jobber declaring he had been given to understand that the rumpus and investigation had been caused by a rival company. This was unaccompanied by any evidence. It is not thought that anything will come of the matter, and if the Internal Revenue Department takes no further action, the Khedivial Co. can consider itself exonerated.

LANCASTER MARKET IMPROVES.

A Number of Important Leaf Transactions Already This Month.

Lancaster, Pa., Feb. 6.

February already shows some improvement in the local leaf market over January, although we have scarcely concluded a whole week in this month. There have been quite a few transactions of some importance closed, indicating a more active market.

I. H. Weaver, W. R. Cooper & Co., Meiskey & Heiland and John D. Skiles have been the most prominent in recent transactions, having sold during the past week in the aggregate nearly 1,700 cases, mostly old goods. Receiving days, which are usually on Friday and Saturday, are again becoming the scenes of much activity.

This is particularly true of last Friday when some very large quantities of tobacco were received at the four different warehouses of the United Cigar Manufacturers. An exceptionally large lot of the new crop was received at that time as well as at nearly every other warehouse in the city.

Samuel C. Lentz, a well known tobacco packer of this city, died suddenly last week at the tobacco warehouse of Philip Wiseman, 12 Concord street, death being due to heart trouble. He was sixty five years of age and a veteran of the Civil War. He is survived by a wife and three children, one of whom is the wife of J. L. Kauffman, who is with the Reed Tobacco Co., at Altoona, Pa.

John F. Hare, the resident partner of John Slater & Co., the well known stogie manufacturers, informs me that during the month of January their business was the largest of any month in the history of the house. Their product seems to be expanding in sale constantly throughout the entire United States. It is no longer the East alone that is the large consuming territory for these popular whiffs, as the West is also developing at a large and wonderfully rapid rate, as many as 100,000 per week being shipped to one Western city alone.

Trade is improving with our local jobbers. J. G. Shirk reports that sales are increasing for all the popular products of both chewing and smoking tobaccos.

John McLaughlin & Co. also report steady improvement for the past week. Simon Shissler, a prominent retailer and jobber on North Queen street, likewise reports a very satisfactory business.

A. W. Mentzer, one of the best known members of the cigar trade, died at his home in Ephrata on January 20 at the age of sixty nine years. Mr. Mentzer was one of the few really successful business men who had a career extending over a period of more than forty-nine years, during which time he traveled much and built up a wide circle of valuable acquaintances throughout the country.

Mr. Mentzer was formerly engaged in the general merchandise business at Schoeneck, Lancaster county, removing subsequently to Ephrata, where he continued in the general store business and also branched in the cigar manufacturing business and numerous kindred interests. The immediate cause of his death was apoplexy, and, although all possible medical skill and attention was given him he died, after suffering thirty six hours.

In 1894 he admitted to an interest in his business his three sons, Dr. J. F., H. G. and I. G. Mentzer, all of whom were practically brought up in the trade and who are thoroughly familiar with every detail of the business. In January of the present year Mr. Mentzer retired from business, leaving the same entirely to his three sons, by whom the business in its entirety will be continued.

AN APPEAL TO INDEPENDENTS.

Manufacturer's Local Representatives Form Strong Association.

The Independent Tobacco Manufacturers' Representatives, of Philadelphia, is the official name of a new association, which, as the name implies, is composed of Philadelphia representatives of independent tobacco manufacturers. Officers for the first year have been elected as follows: President, A. Fowler, with the United States Tobacco Co., of Richmond, Va.; vice president, H. J. Miller, with Weisert Bros., St. Louis, Mo.; secretary, V. R. Newman, with Larus & Bros. Co., Richmond, Va.; treasurer, Thos. F. Fitzgerald, independent jobber, 4261 Lancaster avenue, Philadelphia.

Much practical work has been mapped out and an active campaign is to be entered upon at once and vigorously followed out. On February 4, the first appeal to independent manufacturers was made and already responses have been received from the United States Tobacco Co., Richmond, Va.; Larus & Bros. Co., Richmond, Va.; Weisert Bros., St. Louis, Mo.; Wells-Whitehead Tobacco Co., Wilson, N. C.; United News Co., Philadelphia, and Thos. F. Fitzgerald, Philadelphia.

The letter issued is as follows:

Philadelphia, Feb. 4, 1905.

Gentlemen: Realizing the great importance of interesting the members of the different unions in the fight that is being made for the life of the "Tobacco Workers' Union," and in doing so to urge them to use only such tobacco as bear the union label, we respectfully ask your support in the matter. Our object is to do this work to the best advantage at the least possible cost to the manufacturers.

This Association has been organized. The purpose is to have each manufacturer represented, contribute to the association, ten dollars per month for a period of four months, should it prove satisfactory, the time to be extended in periods of four months.

The Association will employ a competent man to address the different unions and other meetings of working men, in the city and vicinity. It will also have printed a circular, containing a list of the brands sold in this market by each and every manufacturer contributing to this purpose. (Only those using the union label will be asked to join in this work.)

These circulars will be distributed at each meeting. No samples will be distributed. The speaker employed, as well as other members of the Association will make every effort to urge upon the union men and public generally, the vital importance of calling for and demanding only tobacco or cigarettes that bear the union label. This matter has for some time been under consideration by the representatives in this city as well as many others interested, and it is their belief that this effort to gain the co operation of consumers will be productive of much good.

The treasurer is a prominent jobber of this city. It will be his duty to render an itemized monthly statement to each contributing member. Address communications to T. F. Fitzgerald, Treasurer, 4261 Lancaster avenue, Philada.

DEATH OF REINHOLD STEINECKE, NEW YORK MANUFACTURER.

The sudden death of Reinhold Steinecke on Sunday last came as a great shock to his many old time friends in the tobacco trade. He died at the age of 63 years at his home, 20 East Seventh street, New York city, and by his passing the trade looses one of its oldest Seed and Havana cigar manufacturers.

Mr. Steinecke about thirty years ago represented the old firm of Schroeder & Bon, selling leaf tobacco.

After severing his connection with Schroeder & Bon to embark in the cigar business Mr. Steinecke started the now celebrated brand "Liederkranz Cabinet" which cigar has increased in popularity from year to year. The manufacturer was a highly educated and lovable man and his death will be a great loss to his many friends both socially and commercially.

BUSINESS QUIET IN BOSTON.

Dealers Sore at United Co.'s Monopoly of Coupons.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 5.

Trade conditions are about the same, there being no material change for the past week. Business remains quiet, but the outlook appears promising. The filthy condition of the streets is affecting the retailers to a great extent, and many of the larger cigar manufacturers have been laying off some of their help.

A great deal of comment has been expressed by the retailers owing to the United Cigar Stores posting on the show windows the following bulletin:

FLORADORA COUPONS.

These brands, but only when purchased in our stores, contain coupons: Tolstoi, Sweet Caporal, Bull Durham, Union Leader, Sensation Tobacco, etc.

As no coupons are being packed in the cigarettes and tobaccos sold by the other retailers, there are many complaints being made and some of the leading to-

Palm Rolling
Hand-Work.

THIS IS THE SIMPLEST AND MOST PRACTICAL TOOL yet introduced in connection with Cigar-making. The cutting rollers are so equipped with ball bearings and exterior springs that they only produce enough pressure to cut the leaf, thus maintaining a sharp edge on the die and assuring a perfect, clean cut, superior to hand-work. The circumference of the cutting roller being greater than the length of the die, makes tearing or streaking of the wrapper impossible. Then, after the leaf has been cut, a slight depression with the right foot pedal will lower the die even with the table, thus making a perfectly smooth and rigid surface, enabling the operator to Roll with the Full Palm of the Hand, instead of pushing the cigar along with the finger tips.

Changing of the die to any shape, or from right to left, or the reverse, is a very simple matter on this table, and can be done within two minutes time.

These points of merit, coupled with others not mentioned, have won for this table the high standard of excellence maintained to-day, a fact that cannot conscientiously be claimed by any of our competitors.

We stand ready to prove our statement, and all we ask is for the opportunity.

We Think IT WILL PAY YOU to Investigate.

BEN ALL.

BUSINESS GOOD IN DAYTON.

All Factories on Full Time and Some Behind in Orders.

Dayton, O., Jan. 31, 1905

The writer was forcibly impressed by the healthy business conditions existing at present. A tour through the different cigar factories showed them all to be running about a full complement of employees, and the proprietors report business as flourishing. Some say they are considerably behind in their orders, all of which goes to show that business for the present year certainly looks promising.

Providing no serious set backs are encountered, 1905 should be a banner year in the tobacco industry.

The Miami Valley Leaf Tobacco Packers' Association will hold a meeting at the Phillips House, this city, early next month. These meetings are instructive and so far have been well attended. The affairs of the organization are in the hands of capable officials, and the Association is in a flourishing condition.

The J. P. Wolf warehouse, situated on East First street, on which the Germania Building Association, of this city, holds a mortgage of $100,000 will be reappraised. It was appraised several weeks ago at $180,000 but no bids were offered hence the reappraisement. It will be remembered that auction sales of leaf tobacco were conducted in this commodious warehouse several years ago by J. P. Wolf and W. P. Sunderland. It is now occupied by two large manufacturing concerns.

As stated in my last letter, the buying of the past two weeks of 1904 Zimmer has been prosecuted with such vigor that it would be a safe estimate to say that 80 per cent of last year's crop of said variety has been purchased. Old tobacco men in this vicinity agree that it has been many years since so large a proportion of a new crop has been bought so early.

The familiar face of William Linder, of Miamisburg, was seen on the streets last week. Mr. Linder told the writer that he had closed out his entire holdings of old tobaccos. He spoke highly of the 1904 crop, and stated that there were still some bargains in the country.

On account of the limited acreage of seed and Dutch of the 1904 crop these two varieties were "cornered" in short order. While the early purchases were, in tobacco parlance, bought right, the later buying brought good prices.

William Gregg, the tobacco buyer of Ingomar, Preble county, Ohio, has recently returned from a hunting trip to South Dakota. "Billy" reports a fine time, but game was not very plentiful.

J. C. Baggott, of the Gem City Tobacco Co., kindly conducted the writer on a tour of inspection through the home of the Dark Horse scrap tobacco. This is probably one of the most complete establishments of its kind in the country. The machinery for manufacturing their product is strictly up to date, and the goods they are placing on the market are par excellence. This firm through the effective management of Baggott has rapidly forged to the front, and the gradual but steady increase of their output is a clean testimonial of his effective administraion of its affairs. CATALOGUE OF "BUSTER BROWN" PREMIUMS.

The Victor Thorsch Co., of Allentown, has issued an attractive little catalogue of the presents which are given for bands taken from the company's new "Buster Brown" cigar. The book is amusingly illustrated by the famous Outcault "Buster Brown" pictures, in addition to cuts of a number of the premiums offered, and contains the following pertinent introduction:

"We believe that every man who smokes is interested in some boy, either his own or some other one that is dear to him, and we have therefore specialized our list of presents with a view of arousing the smoker's interest through his affection for the boy. The quality of of our cigar is unquestioned, and we offer the presents listed in this booklet as a profit sharing plan, being convinced that a constantly increasing business will be the result. The articles offered in our list are all of standard quality and made by reputable manufacturers. The list comprises mainly articles for boys' wear, instruction and amusement. To the smoker we desire to emphasize the fact that we are not a part of, nor do we have any connection with any other cigar manufacturers or corporations, being strictly independent. Smoke 'Buster Browns' and let the bands help to make some boy happy."

WONT BUY FROM PLEDGED FARMERS.

Continental Company Isn't Angry, but Wishes to Avoid Litigation.

Lexington, Ky., Feb 3.

Manager Toewater, of the Continental company, of this city, has declined to purchase any tobacco from the farmers who signed contracts with the Burley Growers' company.

Mr. Toewater says that his action is not taken in order to demonstrate hostility toward the farmers on the part of the Continental company, but is due to the fact that the Continental is anxious to avoid any possible litigation that might likely occur through the purchase of tobacco already signed by the Growers' company. In some quarters it is said that the farmers who have signed a contract with the new company are bound by that contract and can not get out of it until the officers of the company announce that the deal is off.

NEW FACTORY FOR DOYLESTOWN.

The H. Sommer Co., of Quakertown, Pa., has leased a large four story and basement factory building at Doylestown, where they will at once open an up to date cigar factory under the supervision of Orris Halderman. This old and established firm has had a very successful business career, and this new factory is only another evidence of their aggressiveness.

Mary A. Steinhauer, the only female cigar manufacturer in this section of the State and who has been remarkably successful, is opening a new factory at Ridge Hill.

CONTINENTAL CO. LOSES SUIT.

Judge Miller Says Must Pay Back Taxes in Louisville.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 6.

Judge Miller has handed down an opinion in favor of this city in its suit against the Continental Tobacco Co. to recover back taxes which are claimed to be due, approaching in amount $100,000. The suit was brought some weeks ago on refusal of the Continental Co. to pay the charged taxes, on the ground that it was exempt under an ordinance of 1898 exempting new concerns and manufacturing plants locating in Louisville, from city taxation for five years.

The ordinance was intended to attract capital to the city but in this case seemed likely to react against it.

The Continental Tobacco Co., as a New Jersey company, applied for the five years of exemption. As required by the terms of the ordinance, the usual questions were put to the concern, asking it to state its management, business and purposes, and among these questions was the following: "Is this a new concern?" This query was answered by the statement that, while the companies absorbed by the Continental had formerly done business here, the new concern had not, and, that, while it had before done business in New Jersey, it was new to Louisville.

Suit was filed for the years 1899 1903 inclusive. The defendant company interposed the claim that the concern would have moved to St. Louis except for the supposed effectiveness of the exemption, and that even if the city did not gain a new enterprise, it was saved from losing one.

Judge Miller ruled that the merging of several concerns into one company, which did not palpably change the city's commercial resources could not benefit by the terms of the ordinance which was passed solely to encourage bona fide new concerns to bring an addition to the city's industrial advantges. "This," said Judge Miller, "is not to be accomplished by the absorption of several already established concerns into one concern with a new name."

MINNEAPOLIS DEALERS ARRESTED.

Crusade Against Sale of Tobacco and Cigarettes to Minors.

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb 2.

The authorities in this State are determined to prevent the selling of tobacco and cigarettes to minors, and dealers are much more careful than they were. Charles Ross, who conducts a cigar store in this city, was arrested the other day on the charge of selling to minors, and plead guilty. He was fined $25 in the municipal court.

W. E. Magie, Theodore Kovallis and other dealers were also arrested, but entered a plea of not guilty and were held for trial. The arrests were made at the instance of C. L. Davis, the truant officer.

THE OLD SALESMAN'S MUSINGS.

Your born and bred book agent would have considered this as an invitation to select the most comfortable chair and proceed. This old gentleman cast upon us a look of gentle, impersonal reproof, delivered himself of another bow, and trotted out.

"All the Homes must have gone on the bum," commented Brown, brutally, "or else these chappies are out after tobacco money."

"All the same, it's a beastly shame," said I again. "Just think of those old fellows chasing about from one office to another, getting turned down everywhere they go. That last man has been something in his time, too. It wouldn't have hurt you to use a softer tone."

"Yes it would, too," retorted Brown. "That was a good reception to what they usually get. I was in an office the other day, when one of them came in with some kind of a periodical and couldn't get any of the clerks to notice him. He finally accosted one of the firm who was passing through, who glared at him for a minute and then roared out: 'Who the h—ll let a book agent in here?'

"I was polite to one of them some time ago, and he was so affected he almost wept. Sat down there and told me his whole life story. Said he had been comfortably prosperous until he began to get old and had sold out his share in a small business and thought he would take it easy for a little while and then accept a remunerative job which a lifelong friend had always offered him. His wife became seriously ill and stayed so for eighteen months and some operations and so on pretty nearly wiped him out. He decided to take the job and found that there wasn't any. He had become branded with the brand of ill luck and nobody wanted him. He had tried for one thing after another, until he had been forced to accept a job as agent, as literally the only thing he could get.

"He told me that he was insulted every day of his life, that in some offices, the boys and even some of the clerks' would get behind the desks, if the boss happened to be out and bombard him with shot from an elastic, while the others in the office looked on and laughed. He told me a whole lot of other shameful things and said that he couldn't get results at anything he tried, because he was always in a condition of chronic discouragement.

"And he talked and talked and talked," continued Brown, "until I had to tell him to go. So no matter how much I may sympathize with 'em, I can't afford to show it."

All the same, I say again, it's a beastly shame, and it seems to me that there isn't much difference morally, in knocking a man in the head when his powers begin to fail, as some of the savages used to do, or jeering and insulting him in his pitiful attempts to keep himself from starving to death.

SALE OF HOME WAREHOUSE CO.

Louisville Tobacco Concerns Experience a Shake-up.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 3.

It is believed that the Home Tobacco Warehouse Co. and the State Tobacco Warehouse Co., will shortly become members of the Louisville Leaf Tobacco Exchange.

These were the only warehouses in the city outside the Exchange, and with the Pickett, the only ones not belonging to the Louisville Tobacco Warehouse Company. This latter company is understood to be in control of the Leaf Tobacco Exchange. With the entry of the two remaining independent companies into the Exchange, the Louisville Tobacco Warehouse Company will have practical control of the entire tobacco warehouse business in this city, and will be able to fix all rates and regulations to suit itself.

The Home Tobacco Warehouse Co. was reorganized at a meeting held in Louisville, a few days ago and a controlling interest in the Company was sold to I. P. Barnard, President of the Louisville Tobacco Warehouse Co. The Home Tobacco Warehouse Co. has had a rather tempestuous career as an independent concern and Mr. Barnard stated after the meeting that he bought the stock in order to prevent a failure which would have damaged the whole market. The house will continue to be run as a separate establishment.

BANKS CAN NOW LEND MONEY.

Tennessee Growers Able to Secure Loans on Their Tobacco.

Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 3.

The State Senate has taken a radical step which will affect a great many growers and which is expected to work great benefit to them.

As a result of the agitation of the tobacco growers of Tennessee against the tobacco combine, the Senate has passed a bill amending the banking laws of the State so that the banks are now allowed to lend money on tobacco, a privilege which was not granted under the old laws.

Heretofore tobacco growers who needed money as their crops matured were compelled to deal with the agents of the combine and either accept such price as they were willing to pay or go without the money unless it could be obtained from private sources.

The association of growers is making a hard fight, and the bill passed for their relief is said to be a step which will be followed by later legislation on the same lines.

A LITTLE DULL IN CHICAGO.

Many Trade Visitors, But Cold Snap Interfered With Business.

Chicago, Ill., Feb. 4.

The coldest snap of the present winter has been experienced here during the past week, and has to some extent affected local trade, which at this writing is inclined to be dull.

In some instances, however, business is reported better than at this time last year, and on the whole keeps up to a very fair point.

Drawing a conclusion from expressions that combine the wholesale, retail and manufacturing interests pretty largely throughout the trade, there is no particular cause for complaint.

I. Wertheimer, of Wertheimer Bros., manufacturer of high grade cigars at Baltimore, Md , is in the city on a business trip. Mr. Wertheimer says business is exceptionally good with his house, as is evidenced by some of the big orders they are receiving from various points. The firm is especially gratified with the growing popularity of their La Rosa de Carroll and El Worth brands.

John H. Rohrer, a prominent leaf man of Germantown, Pa., was calling on the trade a few days during the week.

W. L. Lyon, one of the well known manufacturers of cigars of Appleton, Wis., is among late callers.

George C. Knispel, of St. Paul, who is the secretary and treasurer of the Kuhles & Stock Co., spent a short time visiting Chicago trade this week, and left for his home again Saturday night. Mr. Knispel spoke very encouragingly of the business outlook for the season from indications of the present, and felt pleased with the liberal patronage enjoyed by his firm throughout the country.

M. Newlander, cigar manufacturer of New York, is a recent visitor. Mr. Newlander formerly did business here, and his Chicago friends are always glad to see him.

Jake Wertheim, president of the United Cigar Manufacturers, is among late visitors from New York.

Sol Rosenor, vice president of the Havana-American Company, was among late business visitors.

H. A. Robst, local agent of Celestino, Costello & Co., of York, Pa., speaks encouragingly of the growing demands, backed by constant orders, for The Barrister and Little Barrister cigars handled by his firm.

The police department is sending out circulars among the dealers, the import of which is a strong warning against any violation of the cigarette ordinance.

John J Dolan, the well known down town dealer, has enlarged his growing business by two new accessions during the past week. He has bought the cigar store of Louis Von Klein, at 71 Clark street, and will take possession March 1. He has also leased the store now occupied by Phil Samuels, at 123 LaSalle street, of which place he will take possession about May 1.

Leaf Tobacco Markets.

CONNECTICUT VALLEY

Our correspondents write:

North Hatfield: "About 30 tons of tobacco have been drawn to the assorting shops in this locality the past week."

Hadley: "C. H. Kellogg, of North Amherst, has sold his 1904 crop of Havana tobacco to Jones, of Hatfield, agent for Meyer & Mendleshon, of New York, for 16c in bundle. It was an excellent crop, and cheap at that price. There was about two tons of it. Tobacco in this town is all in the bundle. There is scarcely any news in the tobacco line. The 1904 crop is all bought up in most instances at private terms, and I can not get the figures."

North Hatfield, Mass.: "Cooley B. Dickinson has sold his Havana tobacco to Mr. Knowlton, of West Acton, a manufacturer of cigars in Boston. George Anderson sold 1½ acres at private terms, about 2,500 pounds. John & Dennis Fitzgibbons have sold about 7 acreas to Keiff, of Westfield, Mass., at private terms. John Slattery has sold his crop of Havana, about 5 acres, at private terms. Charles Carson one acre at private terms."—American Cultivator.

EDGERTON, WIS.

A week of almost continuous zero weather has interfered somewhat with the movements of tobacco dealers in country districts, but despite these discomforts a moderate amount of business has gone forward involving both old and new leaf. The activity of dealers to gather in the remnants of old stock left in country hands gives promise that very little will soon be left that can be lifted at anything like reasonable figures. There is also a quiet picking away at the new crop, but at prices that seldom exceed the 8c mark.

Among packers a fairly good trade is reported, though generally of low grade goods in smaller lots. The Davidson packing at Westby of some 300cs of '03 has been sold to a local packer.

While the deliveries so far have been ample to keep the packing houses running, the time is soon coming when dealers must accept parts of crops or close down their sorting rooms to await the time when farmers can take down their hanging leaf. The Sparta branch of the American will about work up their goods already received this week. A season of casing weather would greatly facilitate the warehouse handling of the crop.

Shipments were 500cs.—Reporter.

HOPKINSVILLE, KY.

M. D. Boales.

The month has been very cold, harsh weather preventing handling largely, as well as the organization of planters to combine and hold for higher prices. The movement is gaining rapidly and promises to revolutionize the market. Some planters have held off and are selling their crops at 5¼, 6, 7, 8c crop round, loose. As the crop is only 60 per cent, the organization is in a strong position to command the highest prices for several years. The movement of Hhd. tobacco was fair, with sales all private. The American Tobacco Co. was a liberal buyer, taking advantage of the relative difference in prices of old stock and new crop.

Our receipts this week were 68 hhds; offerings on the breaks, 14 hhds; sales, 34 hhds.

There is no improvement in the quality of the offerings, consisting of the lower grades of leaf and lugs. The market remains firm to strong.

There is nothing doing in the loose tobacco market. The Planters' Association seems at present to have firm control of the bulk of the 1904 crop, and reiterates its determination to largely reduce the planting this year.

We have had a week of wintry weather, the thermometer registering 4 degrees on the 2d, and 5 on the 3d. We have had three falls of snow, and the Cumberland river is nearly covered with floating ice and may freeze over.

For Old Tobacco we continue to quote as below, prices running mainly to the outside figures:

Low Lugs	$3.50 to $3.75
Common Lugs	3.75 to 4.00
Medium Lugs	4.00 to 4.25
Good Lugs	4.25 to 4.75
Low Leaf	4.75 to 5.50
Common Leaf	5.75 to 6.75
Medium Leaf	7.00 to 8.00

SEC'Y WILSON BLAMES STOCK COS.

Connecticut Shade-Grown Failure Result of Too Great Commercial Eagerness.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.

Secretary Wilson, of tha Agricultural Department, has assigned the failure of shade grown Sumatra in the Connecticut Valley, to the over-eagerness and enthusiasm of the commercial companies which were formed to push the project. Mr. Wilson was informed that a number of the growers in that section of the country who had lost their money in the scheme, were bitterly blaming the Bureau of Soils for alleged misleading reports from their experts, which were endorsed by the Secretary, and he promptly said that the whole trouble was caused by the fact that the commercial companies went into the affair too heavily.

"We have heard a whole lot about this failure of tobacco growing in Connecticut," said Secretary Wilson, "and the complaints appear to come principally from those who went into it too heavily in a commercial way. Large companies were formed and stock was sold all over the country on a scale which should never have been attempted. The Government did not recommend commercial enterprise of that sort."

An expert of the Bureau of Plant Industry who has been investigating the Connecticut field, thinks the failure due to the manner in which the seed was affected by the changed climatic conditions. The Government has recently conducted a series of experiments which apparently prove that an excellent grade of Connecticut-Sumatra cigar wrapper can be grown in Connecticut under the shade-growing plan beginning with the second or third year's crop.

NEW BRANCH FOR A. T. MORRIS.

The A. T. Morris wholesale cigar house of Cincinnati, O., will open a branch house in Shelbyville shortly. This move will be advantageous not only to dealers in the latter town but the accommodation will extend to neighboring towns as well. The company has branches pretty well scattered over the country. Clyde Poulter will be manager of the new branch.

TEXAS CIGARS ON THE MARKET.

Shaping up as a Definite Industry in Lone Star State.

The Nacogdoches Cigar Company, of Nacogdoches, Texas, has been incorporated by John Schmidt, L. Miller, F. C. Ford, J. E. Mayfield and E. C. Brand, with a capital stock of $10,000. The capital stock is all paid in.

The Company's factory is about ready to begin operations and will utilize the entire tobacco crop raised and cured by the Government experts which has been purchased by the Company. The marketing of this product in the form of cigars will constitute a decisive test of the availability of Texas soil for tobacco farmers.

A meeting was held a week or so ago in Palestine, Texas, in which G. T. McNess, chief tobacco expert of the Government, had a consultation with a large number of interested farmers. Mr. McNess was accompanied by a number of other experts and the Government party explained that the Government soil survey of Anderson county discloses the fact that it embraces within its limits 102,000 acres of the Orangeburg sandy loam, demonstrated by actual test in the growing, to produce a filler equal to the best grown in Florida, if not in Cuba.

The representatives of the Government require that as much as fifty acres shall be planted in this section. The acreage was made up in the hall before the meeting closed and it will be largely increased by the time the experts return to begin work.

The headquarters in Texas of the Government experimental work in tobacco will henceforth be in Palestine. The plan is as follows:

The government will maintain an expert here without expense to the growers who will select the ground upon which to plant the crop, give advice and instructions necessary to the planting, growing and gathering of the crop, building of suitable barns, etc. The expert will visit each growing crop once a week. Mr. McNess says, as a conservative estimate, 700 pounds could be grown to the acre, and that it would cost the growers from 9 to 10 cents a pound to grow and take care of it the first year, this including cost of barn in which to cure the leaf.

REVENUE OFFICIALS SCORED.

Khedivial Co. Says Seizure of "Orients" Was an Outrage.

Tobacco World Publishing Co.:

In your last issue you have an article headed "Wrong Stamps on Orients," in which you comment upon the seizure by the internal revenue agents at Philadelphia of the stock of Orients in the hands of Philadelphia jobbers and sub jobbers.

Your remarks are absolutely wrong, and your information consequently incorrect. The seizure was made by Chief Agent Alexander without authority, and as soon as our attention was called to the fact we communicated with the Commissioner of Internal Revenue at Washington, who ordered the seizure stopped and the cigarettes returned to the dealers, all of which was done.

This seizure was an outrage, and is now receiving careful investigation by this company. The Orient cigarette is stamped with the 54 cent stamp, and the cigarette is sold according to the revenue law providing for the issuance of cigarette stamps at this price. This cigarette we have made for us, and the manufacturer of the cigarette complies with the law and sells the same to us at the lawful price, as provided for by act of Congress. Our contention is a just one—that in reality we are jobbers of this cigarette and not manufacturers, and we have the right to sell our goods at what price we please.

The Orient is the most successful of all 5 cent cork tipped cigarettes, and has forced our largest competitors to follow us up in this direction, and by the time we get to the bottom of this seizure we will place the blame and instigation of the same where it rightly belongs, and you can bet dollars to door nails that this was the work of one of our large competitors. We have all the information we want, we believe, to make it very warm for the revenue officers in Philadelphia and the fellows they did business with to start on this nefarious plan of theirs.

One of the most extraordinary things in connection with this seizure was that all the sub-jobbers and Jewish jobbers of Philadelphia and the large Jewish retailers all had their stocks seized; but the stocks of the more wealthy and Christian dealers were unmolested. All the special agent office did in this regard was to telephone these people not to sell the goods, but made no seizure. There is room to read between the lines in this action, and, as I have said previously, by the time we get through with the investigation, there certainly will be a hot time in the camp somewhere.

Yours very truly,

BURLEY DEAL STILL HANGS FIRE.

Growers' Association Delayed for the Skeenteenth Time.

Cincinnati, O., Feb. 10.

So far as can be learned from authoritative sources, the New York financiers and the representatives of the Burley Growers' Association have come to no definite agreement and the deal still hangs in the balance.

Archibald Stewart, at the head of the association's representatives, has been in New York a week, and daily conferences have been going on with the financiers. On several occasions when it was reported that the contract was ready to be closed, something unforeseen arose and caused a hitch.

It was supposed by the association people that when by midnight February 1 they had secured options on 13,000,000 additional pounds of tobacco, which had been demanded by the financiers, the deal was as good as closed, and they were in high feather in consequence. The city was full of growers from Ohio and Kentucky, all in a happy frame of mind.

Then came reports from the East of various disagreements, and the planters, many of them in financial distress, became alarmed. Some threatened to revolt from the association, their contracts having expired on February 1.

Up to this time, though, Secretary E. E. Barton says there have been no desertions.

It is likely that the New York people will send a representative here to continue the conferences. There are various stories floating around. One which seems ridiculous on the face is that the fine Italian hand of the combine has caused the delays. BUHRMAN.

THE BURLEY LOOSE TOBACCO WAREHOUSE CO. ADOPTS NEW METHODS.

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 12.

The Burley Loose Tobacco Warehouse Company, of this city, introduced an innovation on the local breaks today by way of selling tobacco in hogsheads as well as loose. The loose tobacco was sold in the morning and the hogsheads this afternoon.

The change was made in order to enable the local company to compete with the Louisville and Cincinnati houses, and the surrounding towns will furnish their quota of tobacco when it can be prized. The United States Tobacco Co. and the Patterson Co. will have buyers here regularly.

A FAIR FOR RISING SUN.

The first tobacco fair ever held in Rising Sun, Ind., will take place March 1 and 2. The contest is open to growers of Ohio, Switzerland and Dearborn counties, Indiana, and Boone county, Kentucky. Premiums will be given for the best samples of bright leaf and lugs. The samples will be sold to create a fund to be paid out next year as premiums.

CIGAR BUSINESS ON THE BOOM.

Binghamton Reports Indicate Development of Great Industry.

Binghamton, N. Y., Feb. 10.

The January report of the internal revenue office in this city shows that Binghamton is getting to represent a very large cigar industry. Business in general is on the increase, but particularly in the manufacture of cigars. There was considerable improvement in the number of cigars manufactured, but a slight falling off in the sale of manufactured tobacco.

During January the sale was: For beer, $1,823.50; cigars, $24,470.58; manufactured tobacco, $448.53. During January, 1904, the sales were: Beer, $1,566.50; cigars, $17,966.49; manufactured tobacco, $485.42.

This shows an increase over January, 1904, of $6,504.09 in cigars, and $237 in beer, and a decrease of $36.89 in manufactured tobacco.

The sale of cigar stamps indicates that there were 2,168,030 more cigars made in this city during the past month than in January, 1904.

ANOTHER SLEDGE-HAMMER BLOW.

Our Little Offering of Slush for This Week.

The Chicago Journal's Chinatown reporter is still doing business at the old stand, slinging silly slush in the independent cause presumably. To wit:

Independent cigar dealers told their customers with delight today the story of how a feud between two brothers was prevented by friends who separated them as they were about to come to blows before a "trust" cigar store.

As the tale was related the two were about to enter the store run by the combine, to purchase two smokes, when the elder turned back, remarking: "This is one of those New York places. I won't buy anything here."

The younger thought he recognized in a clerk an acquaintance who frequently had waited on him at an independent store. "No, it's all right; come in," he said.

The dispute grew to serious proportions and attracted the attention of friends who stepped between the angry men.

To settle the argument it was decided the younger brother should go in and buy a cigar. He did so, and when he came out the dispute was decided to the satisfaction of all.

"Phew," said the smoker, throwing the cigar away. "The smokes are on me. Come down here to this independent store and I'll buy."

NEW HOME OF VONEIFF Y VIDAL CRUZ

Voneiff y Vidal Cruz, Havana leaf tobacco packers and importers, have just moved into new office headquarters at 33 South Gay street, Baltimore, the same site as was occupied by them before the fire

This firm engaged in the Havana business about three years ago, and now occupies commodious warehouses in Cuba and a general office in Baltimore. They handle Havana tobacco exclusively, and their trade is expanding very steadily and satisfactorily.

MUST HAVE THE JOBBER.

New York Wholesaler Says He Can Never Be Eliminated.

The question which agitates many retailers as to whether they ought to do business without the aid of the jobber was discussed in an interesting article in the Journal of Commerce a few days ago by Edwin H. Sayre, vice president of the reorganized New York State Wholesale Grocers' Association, who argues very interestingly for the jobber.

The lines between manufacturer, jobber and retailer are less sharply drawn in the tobacco trade, as in many cases small and sometimes big houses manufacture and sell much of the product over their own counters. Where the distinctions are sharp, Mr. Sayre's statements will be as pertinent to this trade as his own. Mr. Sayre says:

"My views as to this matter are not those of an alarmist; for I feel confident that not in my time, nor in the time of any of my immediate successors, will the bulk of trade commodities be delivered direct from the hands of the manufacturers into those of the consumer, no matter what present tendencies may be.

"It is absurd for any manufacturer to imagine for a moment that he can dispense with the services of the jobbers and make as much money as he could otherwise. No single manufacturer, nor any possible combination of manufacturers such as has been suggested, could reach more than 50 per cent of the retail grocers in this city, and even to reach that 50 per cent at least 10 per cent would have to be added to his annual expenses. He might deliver in centrally located districts by having his wagons make that number of stops, but for him to reach the outlying and suburban trade would be a matter of absolute impossibility.

"It is a plain business proposition. The manufacturers—some of them—are making an effort to skim off the cream of the business for themselves in the hope that the jobbers will take care of the remainder just for the sake of doing the business.

"In this they are much mistaken. The present tendency among jobbers is not to increase the volume of their business so much as to handle legitimate profit-giving articles, the quality of which they believe to be of the best, and to generally improve the service extended to customers.

"Then, too, the retailer must be made to understand that his interests all lie with the jobber. He has had his own trouble with the chain stores; but he soon learned that the danger was not so great as he thought. No revolution in trading has been brought about for the reason that the hired manager of a chain store don't do business as does the man who owns and runs his own store. The retailer's real trouble would surely begin if he had to look entirely to the manufacturers for his supplies. His whole time would be taken up in ordering goods and listening to salesmen.

"I am not greatly worried over the 'direct selling' plan of the manufacturers. It may sound simple enough, but if it became general the most complicated system of getting goods to the consumer imaginable would be the result. The jobbers of the present day are expert distributors—and that's their business."

He might deliver in centrally located districts by having his wagons make that number of stops, but for him to reach the outlying and suburban trade would be a matter of absolute impossibility.

"It is a plain business proposition. The manufacturers—some of them—are making an effort to skim off the cream of the business for themselves in the hope that the jobbers will take care of the remainder just for the sake of doing the business.

"In this they are much mistaken. The present tendency among jobbers is not to increase the volume of their business so much as to handle legitimate profit-giving articles, the quality of which they believe to be of the best, and to generally improve the service extended to customers.

"Then, too, the retailer must be made to understand that his interests all lie with the jobber. He has had his own trouble with the chain stores; but he soon learned that the danger was not so great as he thought. No revolution in trading has been brought about for the reason that the hired manager of a chain store don't do business as does the man who owns and runs his own store. The retailer's real trouble would surely begin if he had to look entirely to the manufacturers for his supplies. His whole time would be taken up in ordering goods and listening to salesmen.

"I am not greatly worried over the 'direct selling' plan of the manufacturers. It may sound simple enough, but if it became general the most complicated system of getting goods to the consumer imaginable would be the result. The jobbers of the present day are expert distributors—and that's their business."

CAN THE PRICE BE RAISED ON AN ESTABLISHED BRAND?

In another column of this issue appears a letter to the editor from Mr. E. J., which I have had the privilege of reading and which interested me, although it broaches nothing new.

The correspondent wants to know why all these infinitesimally close calculations between grower, packer and manufacturer must take place whenever there is a universally short crop or a blight, or, in short, a great scarcity, when the whole matter might be adjusted by simply soaking up the price a little to the consumer.

The farmer finds that he will be able to harvest only a small percentage of what he expected and what his soil usually yields. Prices are not so high at any time that he can afford to lose any of his prospects, and he must make his short crop bring him in as nearly as possible what a good one would have done. This he is able to do by the law of demand.

The leaf dealer must have the leaf, and at a time when every grower is in the same boat he has to pay what is asked or go without. The leaf dealer is not in business for his health, and he figures out the usual expense of buying, storing, selling and delivering, gives himself a fair margin and quotes prices to the manufacturers.

The manufacturer growls like the devil, but it is the same with every leaf house he goes to, or whose salesman comes to him, and he finally buys what he has to have. He has a number of established brands which go to the consumer at set and universally known prices. He must keep on selling to the jobber at practically the same prices, inasmuch as the jobber is not in a position to raise his prices to the retailer.

Accordingly, the manufacturer gets to work with his pencil and does some mighty close figuring. If the prices he has paid for his leaf are so high that, in order to turn out the same cigar he must do business at a loss or for nothing, he doesn't hesitate. He simply works out a cheaper blend.

Until times get better, the consumer gets a poorer cigar for his money, and sometimes he notices it and sometimes he doesn't.

This is the situation, and, as I said, there is nothing new about it, only I haven't heard E. J.'s proposition to raise the price to the consumers for so long that it sounds fresh to me, and I would like to know whether it has really ever been given a fair test on a cigar that commands its own trade, say like the Cinco.

It is a generally accepted fact that it can't be done. "You can get out the same cigar under a different name and trust to luck for it's catching on," say the wise ones, "but you can't raise the price of the same brand under any circumstances. It would ruin your market."

I am not in a position to say whether that is merely everybody's opinion based on what seem the probabilities, or whether the thing has been tried by somebody who got badly hit. I would like anybody who does know about it to tell me.

The consumer has to pay extra for all his necessities when there is a scarcity, and he has become so used to it that he hardly grumbles. Lots of men will do without what are generally regarded as necessities before they will call in their tobacco, and the point seems to hang on the question of how vital the quality of his cigar is to the smoker.

Certain men have smoked the same brand for ten years, and swear that it has been absolutely the same all the time. Of course it hasn't been. Sometimes the quality has been very much poorer for a while, and sometimes it has been cheapened to remain so permanently.

I believe that it pays to take the consumer into your confidence, for it gives him a knowing feeling that he likes to have and is willing to pay for. For instance, if the whole process were explained to the consumer as to just why he would have to pay six cents for a cigar which he could feel sure was of the same quality that he had been paying five cents for, the chances are that he would pay his little six cents cheerfully and pity the poor ignorant son-of-a-gun who was paying a nickel and getting a roll of cabbage.

The trouble is that no manufacturer is tumbling over himself to start it. He

TIMELY TALKS WITH ENTERPRISING DEALERS.

UNDER your counters, high up on your shelves or poked away somewhere, is always an accumulation of old goods that lay there dead. Oftentimes they are likely to stay there forever, paying no rent for the space they occupy, unless you take some special means to sell them. It is far better to sacrifice your profit on such goods than to hang on to them because you are afraid of a little loss on the cost prices. It is simply the difference between the problematical or theoretical value of the goods to you, and the actual money you can obtain for them and thus get the use of. Give this class of stock attention periodically.

A good plan is to place certain classes of goods under the direction of a certain clerk who when he sees an accumulation of stock, can notify the proprietor so that some method can be employed to move these goods.

One of the best ways to do this is to offer them as a rebate or present to the customer, as an inducement for cash trade. Oftentimes goods lie upon the shelf because customers do not know their value. If they are offered as a rebate for cash trade, their value will become known and their sale stimulated. In this way you could use the check issued by the register, giving so much of the goods for every $5 worth of checks returned. An electro can be made for a trifle of from forty to sixty cents, with such printed matter as may be desired.

It is well to remember that if, for instance, you should give 50 cents worth of goods for $10 worth of checks returned, these goods do not cost you 50 cents, although they are worth that to the customer. The actual cost may be 35 cents, which would represent the actual cost of this rebate to you. This check, upon which the rebate is advertised, will not only assist in the disposal of your old goods, but has many other great values as well.

Another good method is to have bargain counters, where these goods can be displayed and advertised at reduced prices. All stores have more or less custom, which is drawn by bargains.

The bargain counter should be made as attractive as any in the store, with the goods displayed to the best advantage. It should be kept scrupulously clean. The packages should always be clean. A clean and attractive counter, properly displayed, holding such goods at reduced prices, will undoubtedly move them.

Goods of this character can be sold between certain hours of the day, or on certain days. A specified day in the week can be known as "Bargain Day," when goods of this character will be displayed at reduced prices.

It is well to remember, in this as in other points of store management, that ONLY UNUSUAL METHODS CAN ACCOMPLISH UNUSUAL RESULTS.

KEEP THINGS LOOKING WELL.

YOUR spare time—and many dealers will find there is considerable spare time in the aggregate during the week—cannot better be occupied than by brightening up your stock. There is nothing more depressing than a dingy, fly-specked cigar store. Even a chronic loafer does not feel like loafing in it.

A certain dealer in Philadelphia complains steadily of poor business. He says that when he went into business at his present location he did very well. Now he has to squeeze to get out a living. Why? Well, for one big reason, because his store and stock are just as shabby as they could possibly have became in the time they have been there. One by one the customers have been won over by the brighter stores that sprinkle the neighborhood and there have been very few new ones. Here are a few hints which ought to be remembered by every dealer, and when he grumbles that it is poor policy to do twenty-five cents worth of work on a $1 pipe, he must remember that he is getting a benefit of 25 cents worth on the improvement in the appearance of the stock.

Mouth-pieces to pipes often suffer from exposure to the light, which causes them to take on a dull and sickly appearance. Those of amber and amberoid frequently assume a greasy appearance, but are readily improved by wiping with a piece of tissue paper, slightly dampened. Moisture cannot injure mouth-pieces of this description. Horn mouth pieces require dry rubbing only. Cheap vulcanite or rubber mouth-pieces are apt to become covered with a sort of whitish bloom if exposed for any length of time, but this can be quickly removed by rubbing with a damp rag.

Plain meerschaum goods may be cleaned with an ordinary silk handkerchief, but care should first be taken to remove all dust by means of a soft brush, as should there be any particles of grit on the bowl, rubbing the surface of the pipe, even with a silk handkerchief, would be apt to produce scratches. Sometimes there may be smuts or marks upon the meerschaum which cannot be removed by dry wiping, and in such cases it may be necessary to give them a careful washing with a soft sponge, and a small quantity of soap and water. In such cases extreme care should be taken not to allow any of the water to reach the inside of the pipe, or it will be practically ruined. As soon as the washing is completed, the meerschaum should be quickly wiped perfectly dry, and polished with a silk handkerchief.

In the case of carved meerschaum goods, great care should be taken by removing the dust, by means of a small, soft brush, but, as a rule, only an expert should be entrusted with the work of cleaning these goods, when anything further than the removal of the dust is required.

The interior of pipe and cigarette holder cases should be brushed out from time to time, and those covered with leather in the natural color can be improved in appearance by the application of the white of an egg, as in the case of leather and cigarette cases.

The rewaxing of meerschaum pipes is a most difficult operation to be undertaken by a person without previous experience. It can, however, be done without a great deal of trouble if great care is taken.

It is first necessary to remove the mouthpiece, and with a penknife thoroughly scrape the whole outside of the pipe. Remove also with the knife from inside the bowl, the residuum adhering to it, technically called the "coal," and clean out the stem thoroughly. A little alcohol poured into the stem will be found useful for this purpose.

Then cork the bowl and the mouthpiece end of the pipe up tightly. Place it in a saucepan of cold water on a slow fire until the water nearly reaches boiling point. Care must be taken at this point that the meerschaum is not left in the water until it actually boils, or the consequences might be serious.

When cold the pipe must be thoroughly well polished with Sapolio, finishing off by rubbing with a dry silk handkerchief.

Then heat some white wax, which must be heated on the top until it is melted down to the required state of liquefaction. While the wax is melting the pipe must again be placed in the hot water, so that the melted wax may be applied with a piece of flannel to the hot pipe.

This is the critical part of the operation, and the greatest care is necessary in applying the wax so that it may be put on perfectly even. If this is done successfully the surface of the pipe when dry will not break out in lumps or patches.

The success of this experiment depends to a great extent on the genuineness of the white wax—and, for the benefit of the uninitiated, it should be mentioned that this substance is made up in thin, round cakes, and that paraffin wax, which is similar in color and much cheaper, might be offered as a substitute for the genuine article—a substitution against which the man who attempts to rewax a pipe should be on his guard.

IMPORTED CIGARS HEAVIER.

"THE wholesale cost of imported cigars this winter," said a well know salesman to a retail customer, "is from seven to ten per cent greater than last year, which is due to the fact that the tobacco of the last season's crop is heavier in weight than that of the year before.

"As a result, each individual cigar is heavier and the customs duty, which is levied by weight, is greater. This difference will be divided between the manufacturer, the jobber and the retailer, but the customer will get a heavier cigar for his money. This, however, does not mean that the cigar will be any better from a smoker's standpoint. The weather conditions in Cuba last summer are responsible for the increased weight in the leaf.

"Last year's tobacco crop was a large one, probably the largest ever harvested on the island. Since American interests have assumed control the industrial conditions have shown wonderful improvement, and the island is in better shape than ever before in its history. American capital is responsible for that. American methods have supplanted Spanish methods, and the transformation has been a wonderful one. Most of the Cubans, I believe, favor the island's becoming a part of the United States, although there are some left who favor the old Spanish regime.

"American methods have made the island, especially its cities, inhabitable for Americans, and, as a result, many people now go there from this country for vacations, as well as for business."

LOOK TO YOUR PROFITS.

THE amount of profits you receive from your business does not depend alone upon the amount of business you do. There are two ways of increasing the profit in any business. One is to reduce your operating expenses to the minimum. The other way is to increase your sales and get the increased profit from this increased business.

The dealer, of course, should see at all times that his expenses are not unnecessarily high. It must be remembered, however, that it is not always economy and best business principle to reduce your expenses to the point where your business suffers in consequence.

Probably what will lead to increasing your profits more than any one thing, will be to provide a system in your store that will prevent the leaks and losses which now lessen the amount of your yearly profits. Wherever anything is left to chance, whether it be in the general management of a store or the handling of cash received by the clerks, losses are sure to follow.

Every possible effort should be made by the storekeeper so to systematize his business that every clerk is responsible for every cent he receives and for every item he charges.

POOR TOBACCO!

HERE is a cheerful, unbiased little comment on tobacco which appeared in a Kansas paper and which embodies a number of timidly expressed statements which every dealer will be glad to learn to recite at the annual lodge banquet;

TOBACCO.

"Tobacco is inpurity's hand maid; no advertisements are so vile as those that advertise tobacco, no pictures so corrupting as those on cigarette packages. Business men oppose the use of tobacco among their employees because it deadens the moral sense."

"Duke, the millionaire manufacturer of cigarettes, boasts that he never smoked one of the dirty things in his life."

Nearly all cigarette smokers have diseased lungs.

would have to take more or less of a big chance in blazing the way, knowing that if he lost out all the other manufacturers would give him the laugh, whereas if he won, they would come falling in after him. It would be missionary work of the purest, for every manufacturer is bound by his brethren.

If that were not so, a manufacturer after cheapening his brand and getting the same price for it, might maintain its low quality after he was able to buy leaf cheaper, and thus make all kinds of profit. Alas, for that, the man who makes the rival brand does put the Havana back again, and if one consumer doesn't notice it another does, and it gets around, to the decided detriment of the the first brand. Independence is too often a costly quality.

It certainly would be interesting, though, to see what would happen if, after an unusually bad year for tobacco, some firm like the Cinco manufacturers, which cigar has got this market dead to rights if any cigar ever had, should announce that six cents was to be the price until things got better. A whole lot of other manufacturers would dance with glee, but there would be something doing for a while at any rate.

ALAS! THE CHEWER IS DOOMED.

The Continental Tobacco Co., or more properly speaking, the American Tobacco Co., together with the many other manufacturers of plug tobacco in this country, are about to receive a terrible blow. The business, as a business, may survive, but it will be sadly shaken. On the wings of disaster comes the following from Macon, Mo.:

The most sinister bill before the Missouri legislature at present is being promoted by Jean Simmons of the adjoining county of Shelby. During vacations of the legislature Mr. Simmons operates a skunk farm near his home town of Clarence, and though twelve miles away, if the wind is right, the people of Macon are aware of any disturbance among the legistator's fur colony. Mr. Simmon's bill is aimed particularly at the men who gather around the village stores of an evening and discuss the weather of '49 and methods of running the government. It says: "Every user of tobacco is prohibited from evidencing his habit by disfiguring public sidewalks in any city town or village, or upon the floor, stoves, barrels, boxes or any article of merchandise or furniture in any store, public building, railroad or street car, church or school building in the state."

Mr. Simmons measures 6 feet 2 inches toward the sky and weighs 225 pounds. During the season he umpires baseball games for the North Missouri league, and there is no recorded instance of one of his rulings being questioned. His skunk farm is his greatest source of revenue, and he says his stock is attar of roses compared with a man who chews.

—William F. Foley, of Mahanoy City, has been engaged as salesman for the American Tobacco Company in Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

HAVANA MARKET ACTIVE BUT BUYERS CAUTIOUS

Owners of Certain Styles Ask Tip-Top Prices, and Buyers Cut Transactions Close for Fear of Being Caught With Big Stocks by a Large 1905 Crop.

HAVANA, February 6, 1905.

The Havana market has continued active during the past week, the volume of transactions not reaching larger proportions owing to the scarcity of certain styles, for which the owners asked prices way above the ideas of the buyers. Many of the latter have on this account curtailed their purchases for fear of being caught with large stocks on hand if the coming crop should be a good and large one.

From present appearances, however, it does not seem as if the 1905 growth will be larger in the amount of bales; on the contrary, reports still claim a shrinkage more or less in the tobacco growing sections; therefore, as the stocks held here are greatly reduced, a retrograde movement in the prices does not seem probable.

As far as quality is concerned, there will doubtless be good, medium, indifferent and poor tobacco as every year, only the respective percentage of each class is in doubt until the leaf shall have undergone all the various manipulations before it is placed in bales and has successfully passed the last fermentation process.

As far as Remedios tobacco is concerned, one American export house here was blamed for having paid high prices in the beginning of last year's packing season, but it seems now that after all this was only a shrewd business operation in order to protect the interests of their customers, and which at present has placed this particular house in a position to meet the wants of their friends, the high prices paid therefore being justified. Unless something unforeseen happens, the 1905 crop of Remedios will be only a small one, and prices for same may rule as high or higher than last year.

In the receipts of tobacco from the country of last week there appear 3,200 bales as having been brought here from Santiago de Cuba, and which, having been purchased by the buyers for the Spanish Regie, do not increase the stocks. The sale, having been reported previously, is not included in this past week's transactions from the port of Havana.

foot up a total of 7,892 bales, consisting of 6,217 bales of Vuelta Abajo, 575 of Partido and 1,100 of Remedios. The American buyers took 5,585, local manufacturers 1,007, and 1,300 bales were taken for Europe by the French Regie buyers.

Havana Cigar Manufacturers

are fairly busy, and while there is no boom, orders are coming in in satisfactory quantities from all parts of the world. The 1904 crop cigars are more and more appreciated as time passes, and importers and retailers ought not to be afraid to lay in stocks to last them some time, as nobody knows how the 1905 crop cigars may turn out, and it will be a long time before any correct judgment can be formed. Exports per steamship Mexico were 3,986,855 cigars.

H. Upmann & Co. are busy in their H. Upmann factory, and they exported 525,000 cigars last week.

Cifuentes, Fernandez & Co. had nothing to say, as Flor de Tabacos de Partagas are selling as lively as ever.

Por Larranaga is doing a very satisfactory business in the United States, London, Europe, South America and Australia. Don Antonio J. Rivero, the manager, is restless and unceasing in his efforts to constantly increase his sales.

Behrens & Co. are pleased with the business on hand in their Sol factory, as they know they have a choice stock of leaf on hand and that their cigars give satisfaction wherever they are introduced.

Rabell, Costa, Vales & Co. have no fault to find with the existing state of affairs in their Ramon Allones and Cruz Roja factory, as Don Jesus Vales says that orders arrive just as fast as they can possibly turn out their cigars.

El Rico Habano is filling some good orders for the United States, London and Canada, therefore Enrique Dorado & Co. are kept busy.

Crepusculo is working with full forces, and the calls made upon J. F. Rocha & Co. from every direction speak greatly in favor of their cigars.

Remigio Lopez y Hno. are doing a fair trade in the United States in La Mas Fermosa and Magnetica de Cuba.

Buying, Selling and Other Notes of Interest.

Charles E. Crawford, who left today in company with Joseph Hollard, via Miami, for their Philadelphia homes, has purchased very close to 1,000 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Remedios, and it is stated that he secured the very choicest vegas only from the most famous districts. Prices may be high in comparison with former years, but Dohan & Taitt will surely be in a position to furnish their customers with the finest aromatic leaf, and at no higher cost than other houses can sell at, as Charlie Crawford is "persona grata" wherever he is seen looking at tobacco.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez sold 500 bales of Vuelta Abajo last week, and are now getting ready to ship the 3,200 bales purchased by the Spanish Regie. Last year they handled close to 50,000 bales.

E. P. Cordero has started in to purchase for his Mi Hogar factory, and has secured already some 800 bales.

Loeb-Nunez Havana Co. disposed of 693 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Remedios owing to the active propaganda made by Don Milton Herrold, the secretary, Don Henry Nathan, as well as Don Antonio Dominguez.

Gustave A. Mueller has bought 700 bales of Vuelta Abajo for his Chicago factory.

A. Pazos & Co. have been very busy attending to their various customers, and while Don Avelino would not mention any quantity, they must have turned over nearly 600 bales.

L. W. Scott was a buyer of 500 to 600 bales of all kinds of leaf, and he has not finished as yet.

Jose F. Rocha made several transactions amounting to 500 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

Marcelino Perez selected some 550 bales of the best Vuelta Abajo for his New York factory.

Sobrinos de V. Diaz sold 300 bales of Vuelta Abajo during the past week.

Leslie Pantin has had a very busy week again in attending to his customers, and must have purchased at least 1,000 bales for them.

Gonzalez, Benitez & Co. disposed of 300 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido.

I. Spector was a buyer to the extent of 500 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

I. H. Cayro e Hijo made some purchases of 300 bales of Vuelta Abajo, while Don Jose was inspecting the growing crop, and closed out 275 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido from their own previous holdings.

Felix Eckerson made some good purchases while here, amounting to 821 bales.

Antonio Suarez disposed of 100 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

A. Waldman left satisfied with the purchases made by him for his firm of I. Friedman & Co., Chicago.

Manuel Suarez & Co. had a very busy week again looking after their numerous customers.

C. C. Rosenberg was a careful buyer in selecting only choice Vuelta Abajo fillers for his El Provedo factory at Tallahassee, Fla.

Charles Blasco was a busy man in attending to the wants of five customers at the same time.

A. U. Calzada & Co. had a good fortnight, as they shipped 970 bales to their United States customers last week.

Exports to all ports last week were 7,046 bales, of which the United States received 6,998 bales.

OHIO PACKERS DON'T WANT CUT.

Association Elects Officers and Protests Against Curtis Bill.

Dayton, O., Jan. 10, 1905.

The Ohio Leaf Packers' Association met in this city this week and formally protested against the Curtis bill which is now in the hands of the Ways and Means Committee of Congress. Some days before the meeting W. J. Lukawitz, secretary of the Association directed a protest against the bill to the Ohio delegation in Congress as immediate attention had to be given it. The association unanimously endorsed this protest at its meeting and placed itself on record as unalterably opposed to the measure.

Besides the transaction of a quantity of purely routine business the annual election of officers was held with the following results: President, John L. Brenner; vice-president, S. M. Krohn; secretary, W. J. Lukaswitz; treasurer, William Miller; board of directors, W. W. Hales, C. S. Billman, L. A. Wheeler, George Kling and A. B. Landis.

NEW YORK, February 14, 1905.

WEEK'S MOVEMENT IN LEAF.

The activity of the past two weeks continues and considerable quantities of goods are changing hands. A good volume of transactions in Wisconsin is reported and new force sweated Connecticut tobacco is also being readily taken.

New Florida tobacco which was reported last week as having apparently found a permanent market, now confirms its readily marketable qualities, and seems to be fast making new customers, prices remaining unchanged.

Filler goods, both old and new, are fast passing out of first hands: Pennsylvania and Zimmer Spanish are particularly dominant just now.

With the approach of the inscription period the Sumatra market is gradually becoming a little less active, but the increased consumption of this class of wrapper leaf indicates a very healthful condition.

The Havana market is also in a very healthful condition, and there is a strong demand for the various types.

The dates of the spring inscriptions of Sumatra tobacco are as follows:

At Amsterdam: March, 10, 17; April, 7, 14; May, 5, 12; June, 2, 9, 23; July, 7.
Rotterdam: March, 31; May, 26.

Considerable discussion has been caused in local leaf circles by the sale last week of the 943 bales of confiscated Sumatra accompanied by the indictment of B. Hyman, and his salesman, L. Hyman, of 170 Water street, who the Government charge with attempting to defraud the customs by a trick which would have yielded a saving on the duty of $1,744.55.

The sale of the tobacco was conducted several days ago in the Federal Building in Detroit, and the goods brought $2,000. Indictments had been returned against the two Hymans, of New York, charging them with conspiring to smuggle, and against Alonzo Burrows, of Detroit, and George Clark, of Ecorse, who are charged with the actual smuggling.

The goods were imported at New York, by the Hymans, in 1903, but were withdrawn and exported to Montreal. From that city they were sent to Ecorse, from where an attempt was made to send them to Brooklyn, and which ended by their being seized by the authorities. It is charged that the Hymans induced the Montreal customs weightmaster to give a certificate of false weight after which the tobacco was put through to Ecorse.

Plans for the Tobacco Exposition are bowling along well, and it is pretty certain that the event will make important history in the tobacco trade. Sidney J. Freeman, of the committee on arrangements, is a busy man these days and will be lots busier before he gets through with the proposition which is resting on his shoulders, but the many promises of help which he receives daily, are very pleasant and reassuring to him.

The snow will be given considerable discussion at the meeting of the Retail Cigar and Tobacco Dealers' Association in their Third avenue headquarters tomorrow night, when the committee will be able to report eminently satisfying progress. Plenty of time will be taken to arrange the affair carefully and no possible contingency will be overlooked.

The firm of Simon Batt & Co., of this city, has been strengthened by the admission of Mr. Batt's two sons Clarence S. and Jesse R. As a matter of fact this change in the Company was made at the first of the year, but was not made public until a few days ago. Mr. Batt felt that his sons had received sufficiently thorough training at his capable hands to entitle them to official recognition in his business. The business of this house is steadily growing and the new establishment will be the scene of much commercial activity.

The Waldorf Astoria Segar Co., won a case in the Supreme Court on Wednesday which it brought to protect its rights against Acker, Merrall & Condit Co., and Salomon. Some time ago the cigar company leased space in the property at Fifth avenue and Forty-second street from Mr. Salomon, with a contract that the other part of the building should not be used by anyone for selling cigars and tobacco. In spite of this, the place was occupied by Acker, Merrall & Condit Co., a firm of wholesale grocers, who deal rather largely in cigars. The suit was accordingly brought, and after a very long argument, Judge Dowling made permanent the temporary injunction granted by Justice Gildersleeve, restraining the defendants from selling cigars from the premises in question.

The new firm of Symons, Kraussman & Co. has been organized and will manufacture union made cigars. The Company is composed of George and Andrew J. Kraussman, the latter of whom has been with the firm of G. B. Miller Co., of New York. The address of the new concern is 430-2 East Ninety-first street, where it occupies three floors and a basement. Flor de Buffalo, Flor de Baltimore and a number of other brands will be put out.

Pioneer is the name of a new smoke which will shortly appear on the counters of the United Cigars Stores Co., in the orm of an all tobacco cigarette. The new brand will be made by the American Cigar Co., and will sell to the consumer at 12 cents for ten.

A postponement until March 1, has been granted in the case of Adolph Novotny, retailer at 1444 Broadway, who was arrested, charged with refilling cigar boxes and reusing revenue stamps. The case was called last week, and put off. Mr. Novotny believes that he will have no difficulty in explaining that any irregularities which took place were simply the results of blunders rather than any wrong intention.

The Khedivial Co., of this city, is not in a very good humor with the revenue authorities, of Philadelphia, owing to the erratic actions of those worthies week before last in chasing around among the jobbers and subjobbers and seizing large number of Orient cigarettes only to return them a little later. The Company declares that it is perfectly justified in using the 54 cent stamps and that the revenue people acted too hastily and without proper advice. The Orient was practically the first of the five cent cork tipped cigarettes.

J. W. Surbrug and Charles Drucklieb, of the Surbrug Co., are touring through the South. Their trip will include both Florida and Cuba.

J. M. Alvarez, of Y. Pendas & Alvarez, is back in the office from a trip through the middle West.

Charles S. Morris, of Chas. S. Morris & Co., returned last week from his first trip. He says things were pretty satisfactory.

J. M. Batterton, of the Ruy Lopez Ca., has left this city for his Western trip, and by the way business is opening up in that territory, Mr. Batterton expects to do very well.

Judge Holt, of the United States District Court has appointed William Blau receiver in bankruptcy for the assets of Maurice Kaim, individually, and doing buiness as Maurice Kaim & Co.; manufacturers of cigars at 1385 and 1387 Avenue A, and fixed his bond at $5,000.

A report comes from Albany that State Excise Commissioner P. H. Cullinan has under weighty consideration the question of a State tax upon sellers of cigarettes in order to increase the revenues from indirect sources. The Commissioner is reported as thinking that the tax would raise $500,000 a year. No definite step has been taken as yet.

WEATHER STILL KNOCKS TRADE.

Chicago Dealers Hie Themselves to Warmer Climes.

Chicago, Feb. 11.

The condition of the weather here, as well as throughout the country, continues to have a depressing effect on trade. Snowstorms followed by cold weather, and that closely followed by more snow and a number of other varieties of weather, certainly has its effect and influence upon the average run of mortals, and Chicago humanity is by no means exempt.

The inclement weather, however, as well as the present irregularities in the mail and passenger service, appear to have no strongly visible effect on our prosperous tobacco men. Indeed, quite a few of them, by way of variety, choose such odd spells as these to (with bird-like instinct) find for themselves a change of climate and scenery in lands where balmy breezes and sunshine take the place of sleet and storm.

John J. Dolan left Sunday night for a trip to Havana. He will visit New York and Washington, thence going to Palm Beach. After spending a month at Key West and Havana, Mr. Dolan will return by way of New Orleans.

Sig Myers, the well known buyer in the clear Havana department of the Steele-Wedeles Co., will leave early next week for Tampa to be gone several days.

Jacob Benner, of Benner Bros., and Otto Schrader, of Schrader & Co., both prominently known to the trade, will leave to-night for a two weeks' sojourn in Cuba.

Albert Breitung is preparing to make a tour early in March to California points.

W. F. Monroe, who is now with his family enjoying a Southern visit, is expected home next week.

Jake Wertheim, of Jose, Lovera & Co., Tampa and New York, was among the visitors of the past few days.

James Glaccum, of William Glaccum & Sons, well known cigar manufacturers of New York, did business with the trade a few days ago.

A. Waltman, representing Oblinger Bros., Lancaster, Pa., is calling on the trade.

H. B. Steele, president of the Steele-Wedeles Co., is expected to return from New York Monday.

Joe Wertheim, of E. M. Swartz & Co., was a welcome visitor during the week. He departed again yesterday for New York.

Phil Verplank, so well and favorably known as a strong factor in the firm of Menendez Bros. & Verplank, Tampa, is doing business here and increasing the popularity of the El Genio cigar.

Charles Storm, of Lopez & Storm, New York, has been moving in trade circles this week.

F. C. Ingram has closed a deal whereby he becomes the traveler for Cosio & Co., Tampa. He will cover a large territory, comprising Western States.

John G. Spatz, a prominent manufacturer of Reading, Pa., is visiting the trade.

Among well known leaf men who visited here during the week was Jacob Labe, of Benjamin Labe & Sons.

Chapin & Gore's new eight-story building at 16 to 22 Adams street, is nearing completion, and will be ready for the firm's big line of cigars and other stock about April 1. The building has been christened "Nepeenauk."

The Chicago branch, Cigar Dealers' Association of America, have added a financial "wing" or auxiliary to their working machinery, which is another step toward making the organization self supporting. Under this arrangement members can pay $10 a year towards the maintenance of the organization. This, however, is not obligatory, and gives no additional privileges. Heretofore, as is yet the case, there were no membership dues, and the new arrangement is for those who feel a willingness to help in a financial way.

A LITTLE HOMILY ON ADVERTISING.

The year 1905 was ushered in with the most comfortable predictions as to its prosperity. It was believed that there were so many happy circumstances attending its birth that there could not fail to be a splendid business year.

In some respects the first two months of the year have verified these predictions, but in certain cases there is a disappointment. This is the time to advertise. When a house is doing as much business as it can reasonably handle, it very frequently calls in its advertising as a luxury rather than a necessity. When it is doing very little business, it frequently refuses to advertise because of the expense. Yet It is the best possible time to spend money in this way.

An advertisement is a traveling salesman with considerably more power than a traveling salesman. It travels to the people a merchant wishes to reach, and quickly and concisely puts the merchant's goods before them. It stands to reason that if the merchant hasn't been selling many of them, it is either because the people wont have anything to do with him for particular reasons or that they aren't being placed before the people strongly enough.

If you are doing so much business you can't afford to accept any more, you can take a short rest on advertising. If you aren't—and few of us are—it ts because you are not advertising properly. The biggest business concern in the world is not big enough to get along without advertising in one form or another.

A FEW WORDS ABOUT THE CIGARETTE QUESTION.

The enemies of the cigarette appear to be growing greater in number, or at least much more disposed to place themselves on record. From standing on a single plank which opposed the sale of this form of smoking to boys, many of the anti-cigarette associations and agitators, are adopting a blanket platform which in effect would put the cigarette out of existence.

It is an undeniable fact that retail tobacco dealers—perhaps the expression "many retail tobacco dealers" would be more fair—are responsible for this extra and growing agitation.

If every dealer had always been careful to obey the law, which no man in his right mind can consider an unreasonable or oppressive one, there would be no crusades, or bills before State legislatures, except the usual innocuous measures promulgated by women's societies in their efforts to keep themselves warm.

A man has a right to make an effort to prevent his immature son from smoking cigarettes, and if it becomes evident to him that the only certain way of keeping cigarettes from those not fit to have them is by forbidding the traffic entirely, then his only reasonable course is to take steps to accomplish such a result.

Whether it is a function of the State to define what may and what may not be manufactured among things in common use, is a question, the settlement of which is not in order here. As was said, however, the pettily greedy dealer is responsible for all this hullabaloo, and respectable and dependable dealers should lose no time in showing that they are not in sympathy with fellows of that class.

THE following is from a daily paper of last week:

Luke E. Wright, of Tennessee, is the first American citizen to bear the title of Governor General in the Philippines, the Philippine bill signed by the President authorizing the change of the title he now holds, namely Civil Governor of the Philippines. Secretary Taft sent the following cablegram to the new Governor-General: "I salute and congratulate the first American Governor-General of the Philippine Islands and wish for him the same success which has attended his administration as Civil Governor."

It is fervently to be hoped that Governor-General Wright does not become so exhilarated by Secretary Taft's message of congratulation that he proceeds to cook up some more funny relief measures for the Philippines.

THE following was printed in the editorial columns of the Philadelphia Record:

Secretary Taft says: "President Roosevelt has just signed the Philippine Railroad bill, and I feel that a year and a half of my work has not been in vain. Now if we can only get the tariff matter fixed all right we will be just about as happy as we can ever hope to be." The Secretary need not begin jubilating yet. The railroad bill provided for the sale of bonds, the expenditure of money, the awarding of contracts. Very naturally Congress passed that. But the Congress that has given American ship owners a monopoly of the carrying trade, against the protests of Messrs. Root and Taft, is not likely to pass the tariff bill that they urge when it is opposed by great sugar and tobacco interests.

SUMATRA "RED BOOK."

The Red Book of Sumatra Tobacco for 1904 has been issued by Henri Dentz, the well known broker of Amsterdam. The volume is very complete, and gives the names of all the Amsterdam companies doing business during the year, the crops, capitalization, amount of business done, etc.

Philadelphia Tobacco Trade.

October Revenue Returns.

The returns from the Internal Revenue Collector's office for the First District of Pennsylvania, for the month of January, consist of the following figures:

Cigars at $3 per M.	43,985,020
" at 54c. "	70,000
Cigarettes at $3 "	11,500
Cigarettes at $1.08 per M.	4,540,000
Cigarettes at 54c. "	165,000
Manuf'd Tob. at 6c per lb	145,288

A novel premium scheme has been adopted by the United Cigar Stores Co. in connection with the Tabard Inn Library. In exchange for 50 of its certificates, the company gives a subscription to the library. The subscription is valued at $1.50, and it gives to the holder, according to the well known Tabard system, one book, which may be exchanged on payment of 5 cents at any of the library's numerous booths. In this case the books will be exchangeable at a number of the United Stores as well as at the regular booths, and the company hopes thus to attract many desirable customers.

Here and There With the Retailers

Something struck the retail market again last week, as most retailers complained that there was very little doing. Probably the weather was largely responsible for the condition of affairs, but as indicative of the market, one prominent retailer whose store is in the central part of the city, and who manages to keep pretty busy under any circumstances, without hesitation declared last week's business to be very bad indeed. Goods are not moving as they should anywhere, although there does not seem any good reason to expect that the stagnation will continue more than a few days longer.

There was very little news in the retail trade for the week, no changes of any moment and no new stores of size. The salesmen found it just as dull as everybody else, and found very little doing.

R. W. Bock, the Broad street dealer, was considerably amused and a trifle indignant on Thursday of last week when his attention was called to an item in the last column of the editorial page of Tobacco, published in New York. The article read as follows:

R. W. Boch, of the Philadelphia firm of R. W. Boch & Co., chairman of the recently highly successful tobacco show in the Quaker City, says:

"Tobacco is a bright, readable paper, and we find it always entertaining and up to date. It is a trade journal which accomplishes results."

The point is that Mr. Boch does not subscribe to the paper in question and very seldom sees it, and was not interviewed on the qualities of the publication.

"Somebody has been dreaming, that's all," said Mr. Boch, good-naturedly.

I. Lowengrund, the well known Philadelphia retailer, who already has a number of prosperous stands in operation in the city, last week acquired the handsome store on the south side of Chestnut street, owned by Walter Lazar.

Boch & Co., Broad street, below Chestnut, are having a run this week on Otto the Great, which they are selling at $4.50 a hundred, or 5 cents apiece. The cigar sells in three sizes—brevas, puritanos and perfectos.

A serious fire was narrowly averted in the store of S. Goldstine, at Fifth and Locust streets, on Thursday, caused by a defective flue. As it was, the loss was not great.

Mr. Metzger, of Berriman Bros., of Tampa, was in town during the week looking after business.

With Manufacturers and Jobbers.

The week was a rather dull one with jobbers and manufacturers, the weather extending its baneful influence to these branches of the trade. The retailers weren't doing anything in this market, and nearly every other as well, and not many goods were ordered.

Some manufacturers reported a pretty fair business from the West and South, but it was generally admitted that there is very little business coming from the East. There are a good many orders on the files, but money is slow just at this time. There is nothing to alter the impression that a good spring will be experienced.

The Liberman Manufacturing Co., of this city, manufacturers of suction tables, binding machines and various other cigar manufacturing paraphernalia, are enjoying a very busy season, being compelled to work their entire force many hours overtime every week.

McCaffrey's wholesale and retail store at 4007 Market street has a very fine window display of the El Draco Co.'s Hunter, which is a five cent cigar.

Mr. Ashburner is about starting for an extensive Western trip for Duncan & Moorhead.

John F. Scaife, until recently foreman in Bock & Co.'s factory, is now doing business for himself on Eighteenth street, below Market, manufacturing and retailing. Business is starting up well with tha new concern.

Sam Jacobs, of Gumpert Bros., left last Saturday for a ten days' trip through the Pittsburg section.

Over a hundred dollars was spent by the Bell Telephone Company to locate the thief who, on January 22, broke into the wholesale tobacco store of Maurice C. Fisher & Co., 1244 North 11th street, and after packing up 2,000 high grade cigars, broke open a pay telephone station and stole the 55 cents it contained.

After working on the case since the robbery, a detective employed by the telephone company on Monday morning arrested Maurice C. Fisher, the head of the robbed firm. Fisher admitted his guilt, and told of several other robberies he had perpetrated on his unsuspecting partners within the last few weeks, and declared that he was in desperate need of money. Magistrate Kochersperger, in City Hall police court, held Fisher in $500 bail for court.

This is sure to be appreciated by the dealer who realizes the importance of buying good cigars and keeping them good until they reach the consumer.

Local Retailers Go to Harrisburg in Interest of McNichol Bill.

Among the delegations from this city and Pittsburg, which yesterday appeared before the Judiciary General Committee, in Harrisburg, were a goodly number of local dealers, who strongly favored the following McNichol amendment to the Blue Laws :

AN ACT.

Authorizing the sale of certain articles and the performance of certain labor on the first day of the week, commonly called Sunday:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, hereafter it shall be lawful to sell Drugs, Medicines, Soda and Mineral Waters, and other harmless non-intoxicating drinks, Bread, Oysters, Cakes, Pastry, Ice, Ice Cream, Candy, Milk, Fruit, Cigars and Tobacco, to prepare, print and sell Newspapers on the first day of the week, commonly called Sunday: Provided, That nothing herein contained shall be construed to allow the sale of any non-intoxicant, or other drinks, in any saloon, inn or tavern licensed by law for the sale of intoxicating beverages.

A special train left Broad street at 8 A. M. carrying about 300 representatives of the various associations from this city, who were met by a similar delegation from Pittsburg.

Senator Cyrus E. Wood, of Westmoreland, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, called the meeting to order at 2.30, and allowed each side one hour for general discussion, and thirty minutes for argument. Attorney A. F. Daix, Jr., of Philadelphia, stated the case for the Business Men's Protective League, and was followed by C. J. Fried, secretary, Mayer Schwab, Jr., J. A. Borgfeldt, Rev. A. H. Wood, and others, who earnestly plead for either the amendment or the strict enforcing of the law of 1794.

Among the leaders for the opposition were Rev. T. T. Mutchler, Bishop Rudolph Dubbs, Rev. Chas. L. Fry, and others.

Just what action the Senate Committee will take is a question; judging from the arguments for and against the amendment it is only fair to suppose that they will legalize what is now done every first day of the week—called Sunday—and save such dealers who in the large cities are really forced to sell certain necessities, and luxuries—the pain of being unwilling law breakers.

The delegation from the Philadelphia cigar and tobacco retailers was headed by James I. Hassan, president of the local association, and F. B. Robertson.

Leaf Dealers' Jottings.

Some of the leaf houses on Third street declared last week's business to dave been very good, and expressed themselves as quite satisfied. This condition was by no means universal, however, as while probably every house did a little business, things were still coming slow. Stocks are pretty low, and as the demand exceeds by far the manufacturers' willingness to pay existing prices, some firms aren't particularly keen on the proposition.

Those who did good business got good prices, and it simply meant that these customers had reached the sensible conclusion that nothing was to be gained by holding off any longer. Indeed, the majority of leaf dealers believe that if there is any change in prices it will be an upward one, and consider that those manufacturers who are buying from hand to mouth and waiting, are playing a penny wise, pound foolish game.

Some considerable sales were made this week as a result of the fact that the customers suddenly got the idea that they had better get what they need now before prices reach the sky.

L. A. Bornemann, of Mendelsohn, Bornemann & Co., Havana leaf importers of New York, was in Philadelphia this week looking through the market.

BILLIONS OF CIGARETTES.

The Richmond branch of the American Tobacco Co. is manufacturing 50,000,000 cigarettes of an out-of-date and obsolete brand which will be shipped to Shanghai, China. It is also reported that the same factory is working on orders for an additional 600,000,000 cigareites.

UNIFORM TAX FOR WISCONSIN.

Senator Munson Wants Same Assessment in All Counties.

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 13.

The State Legislature has undertaken to straighten out the tobacco assessment in the State, and tobacco men in all walks are greatly interested in the outcome of the measure.

Senator Munson, of Viroqua, Wis., who is known as one of the leading administration men, has introduced the measure, which is designed to afford a law for the uniform taxation of tobacco, which would correct many great evils. Instead of having a heavy tax in one locality and a much lighter one in another, it is determined to have the same rate apply to all sections. This, of course, will apply to the same grades of tobacco in the various localities, the same as grading anything else. The senator's idea was born in the fact that owners and buyers of warehouse tobacco list it where the most favorable rates may be obtained. He cited the example that an Edgerton buyer might buy a crop at Viroqua and list it for taxation in Edgerton, where the assessment may be considerably lower than in the former city.

There have been many complaints in the various sections for many years because of the advantages of some warehousemen in getting out under a small tax. The complaints, however, come from the smaller buyers, or men who have but one warehouse, and can not afford to have them scattered through the leading tobacco districts. Some of the larger concerns are adequately supplied with storage warehouses and packing plants, and are thus put on the ground floor in buying. Such facilities, it is claimed, give them a great advantage in marketing and disposing of their crops at less cost than can the smaller concerns, and in this way prices are sometimes demoralized.

The larger packers, on the other hand, declare that it is a matter of not being well posted in business, as the explanation of the kicks of the small buyers in agitating a law for uniform assessment. They say that any tobacco buyer in the State has the same right to buy tobacco in one county and list it for assessment in another, and that to be smart enough to notice things like these is all that is necessary to get on the ground floor in purchasing and disposing of the plant.

The tobacco people in the State do not care particularly whether the Munson measure becomes a law or not, and it is not thought any action will be taken for or against the bill. There will be vigorous objection, however, from the various counties of the State where the rate of assessment is low. The tobacco tax runs very high from year to year, and some of the counties where the rate is low have been gathering in thousands and thousands of dollars each year from outside counties, and they want this sum to continue to come. The counties where the tax rate is very high, because the population is small, want the uniform rates so that the tax may be paid in the county where the tobacco is grown, and thus keep in the county treasury several thousands of dollars each year which would otherwise go to another and richer county. CINCINNATI SALES VERY LIGHT.

Items of Interest in the Tobacco Trade From the Ohio Market.

Cincinnati, O., Feb. 13.

Offerings were the smallest of the year at last Saturday's public cigar leaf sales. The total break was 54 cases, consisting generally of poor types of Connecticuts, Zimmers Spanish, Little Dutch and Wisconsin stogie stock. Competition was lax and realizations were hardly satisfactory. Zimmers were the best features and brought from 6 to 12¾c.; Connecticuts ran from $6.30 to $8.60 per 100 pounds; Spanish from $5 to $10; Little Dutch from $2.55 to $4, and six cases of Wisconsins $2 to $2.20.

Receipts of the 1904 crop continue extremely light and warehouses have been forced to draw on their stocks the past week. The uncertainty of the Burley Growers attempt to control the market has caused many planters non-members of the association to also hold back their tobacco. The river has been closed by ice for some time and the shipments are being made by railroad entailing greater expense. The market has felt the effects of the uncertain conditions prevailing and last week ruled weak after a strong opening on Tuesday. Rejections were the heaviest for some time.

The local trade has made arrangements to attend the Sixth Annual Tobacco Fair, at Maysville, Ky., on Washington's Birthday, Feb. 22, in a body. The Business Men's Club will also go, headed by a brass band.

The Buckeye Tobacco Co., a newly incorporated concern, has opened a warehouse at 7 East Front street, and will hold public burley leaf sales when affairs are running smoothly. The new concern is independent. Dr. W. A. Bradford is President of the company and A. D. Pryor, of Eminence, Ky., manager. D. A. Collins is to be the auctioneer and T. Quiesenberry, inspector. All are well known in the local trade. At present there are only four other Burley houses here, the Cincinnati-Miami and the Morris being recently demolished to make way for railroad terminal purposes.

A large stock of tobacco belonging to Henry Bremer, stored in a basement at 1422 Main street, was damaged by the bursting of a water main last week. Mr. Bremer's loss is estimated at $150.

E. O. Williams and E. A. Ellis, well known local tobacco brokers, are stocking a mule ranch of 3,000 acres in Oregon county, Missouri. For the present at least they will remain in the tobacco business, the new venture being merely "a side line."

John E. Tooney, formerly of this city, died last Friday at Columbus, O., of kidney trouble. He was the agent in this section of the country for the Continental Co. for many years.

A visitor to this city early last week when the success of the Burley growers' scheme seemed an assured fact was Powhaton Gordon, of New York, representative of the manufacturing department of the Continental Tobacco Co. He said to The Tobacco World correspondent: "Our company seems to be regarding this so called corner complacently. I take it that they have a sufficient supply in stock to keep them running many months yet. I do not understand that the Missouri Burley growers are in this combination. While the Missouri Burley is not up to the grade of the white Burley grown in this section, it is nevertheless a market factor to be reckoned with."

COLLAPSE OF BURLEY SCHEME.

Things Look Like No Hope for Growers' Association.

Cincinnati, O., Feb. 13.

The collapse of the $10,000,000 loan with which the Burley Tobacco Growers' Association expected to corner the 1904 crop, was practically admitted last night in the statement that things looked very blue and that the only hope now held out to the farmers lay in the arrival of Eastern representatives in this city with a new proposition This committee was to have arrived early last week, but from day to day new stories have been handed out that one thing or another had delayed its departure from New York.

Various reasons have been assigned as to the cause of the failure of the deal. It is said that the tobacco trust forced several of the trust companies backing the scheme to withdraw. This was easy of accomplishment, when, as one paper puts it, "it is known that John D. Rockefeller controls the New York money market, just as he does the tobacco combine and the tobacco markets."

It is admitted that but $8,000,000 of the original $10,000,000 still stood ready to stand by the original contract. Efforts were made to have Cincinnati capitalists increase their guarantees so as to make up the $2,000,000 deficit, but without success.

One of the features which would have been of benefit to Cincinnati had the deal been successfully consummated, was the implied condition that practically all of their tobacco was to be sold here, making it thereby the leading market. For this reason, it is said that Louisville commercial interests added their influence to that of the combine in discouraging New York bankers so that they would refuse the loan.

On the other hand local warehousemen feel that the good offices which they exercised in trying to put the deal through will have sufficient sentimental effect upon the farmers to lead them to ship their crops to Cincinnati anyway.

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 13.

President W. B. Hawkins issued the following statement, Sunday night, which is taken as evidence that the Burley Growers' scheme has fallen through:—"Our Finance Committee is still in New York. I called my advisers, the old Board of Directors of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Company—W. C. McChord, of Springfield; W. H. Booker, of Eminence; C. B. Sullivan, of Versailles; W. S. Osborne, of Maysville, and J. W. Hughes, of Harrodsburg—to advise with me as to the best course to pursue to serve, as we have always done, the best interest of the grower. A committee was sent to New York to make final arrangements for procuring the money necessary to finance our organization. It has worked hard and assiduously, and has met with many obstacles unforeseen. It is still at work, with some hope of success. Under the existing circumstances, and, as I have said before, as the grower's interest is uppermost, we think it unwise at this juncture to take any steps until its report is final. We take the stand in this way that the faithful men who are standing to the last will lose nothing by waiting. It is true that those who have grown weary in well doing and decide to sell their tobacco will be profited by our continuance, so that until our committee reports finally, which we have every assurance for thinking will be in the next day or two, we will stand pat and await developments. Our members who have stood so manfully will be notified as soon as a decision is reached."

DON'T WANT WAREHOUSE SOLD.

Baltimore Leaf Trade Protests Against Sale to City.

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 14.

The tobacco interests of this city are considerably agitated just now over the efforts which are being made to save the State tobacco warehouse, for which the city has offered $116,000. The property is located at Long dock and the burnt district commission considered that the amount mentioned was a very fair price for the land.

The board of public works has failed to set a value upon the desired ground, nor are the members averse to selling it to the city; but they made the point that the State should receive the actual value, which they believe to be in excess of the amount offered.

A committee representing the leaf tobacco association made a formal protest against the sale of the warehouse a few days ago at which Joseph A Rawlings presented the memorial of the Tobacco Association, protesting against the transfer to the city until the trade was provided for, and incidentally he declared that the ground was worth at least $250,000.

A letter from State Wharfinger Cutino was also read, in which he said the State could derive a revenue of at least $24,000 a year by holding on.

After the tobacco men and the inspectors had had their say, the board of public works and the burnt district commission proceeded to consider the various propositions made.

Col Sherlock Swann, speaking for the commission, made three propositions:

First—A direct offer of $116,000.

Second—The building of a safer structure over the ground to be used by the tobacco people for inspection and storage, while the lower section could be utilized for dock purposes.

Third—An exchange of the ground desired by the city for a lot at the corner of Lancaster street and East Falls avenue, which offers all the wharf facilities necessary for the tobacco trade.

When the Governor pointed out the fact that the State could derive more revenue by retaining the lot, Colonel Swann replied that this was true, but that the improvements contemplated made this possible.

"If we lay down on this dock proposition," said he, "there would soon be a drop in the value of all the property in this vicinity. If we abandoned the dock scheme altogether, the property would not be worth any more than it was before the fire, which is 50 per cent less than now."

Colonel Swann also stated significantly that if all the ground necessary was not obtained the commission might conclude not to continue with the work.

The board of public works appeared to be favorable to the transfer, the Governor particularly desiring to help the commission, but all the members evidently wanted to do justice to the rest of the State.

The city can not condemn the State's property as it can that of an individual or corporation, hence it will be necessary to reach an amicable agreement.

SLUSH AND SNOW KILL TRADE.

Boston Retailers Aren't Doing Much This Weather.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 13.

There has been no material change in business for the week past; the weather conditions have been about the same, rain, snow and slush predominated and the inability of the street cleaning department to cope with the situation, has continued to be the cause of the falling off in trade with the retailers.

Considering the hard times, the sale of short smokes seems to be improving here and many of the smokers have taken to the little cigarros. Turkish cigarettes sell well here and it is not surprising to see so many new brands continually being placed with the trade without any advertising matter whatever. Ramesis and Shinasi Bros., Naturals remain in public favor with the best element here. Albany brand is being well advertised, and over in Cambridge the Harvard College boys seem to use a quantity of these goods.

Lincoln's Birthday is not celebrated here as it is in many of the other states in the Union.

Mr. Roitman, of Robbins & Roitman, will shortly leave for Havana via Tampa. He proposes to purchase enough Havana for a year's supply for the famous brands R & R, 233, and Boston Comfort, which enjoy a good sale in New England. While in Havana Mr. Roitman will make his headquarters at the Inglaterra Hotel.

Geo. F. Buggs, the popular Newton retailer, spent a few days in town. Mr. Buggs keeps a full line of imported and domestic cigars and tobaccos. He uses as leaders Little Princess and El Cafe cigars also Bock & Co's goods in various shapes.

Leo Bieringer, the Dock Square tobacconist, is spending a few days in New York and is combining business with pleasure.

Rosenthal Bros., of Hanover street, placed a good sized order for Kozy tobacco with L. Miller & Sons. Kozy plug is getting to be one of the best sellers in this class of goods in Boston.

O. Minchew, the New England representative of the Hilson Co., spent a few days in New York last week visiting his firm.

J. N. Finkelstein, the South End jobber, is about to open a new store in the new Post Office Square building. This will make the third store Mr. Finkelstein is operating here.

Turkish Delight cigarettes continue to sell well here and Mr. Shepard is being kept busy making some handsome window displays ably assisted by his wife.

Joe Manning, of Mc Greenery & Manning, has just returned from a brief sojourn in Florida and is looking hale and hearty.

H. Hertz, with the American Tobacco Co., is in town doing missionary work on the new 15 cent Turkish cigarette, Murad.

M. Stewart, of the Strater Bros. Tobacco Co., of Louisburg, Ky., is in town calling on the trade.

M. Barnett & Co., of Fleet street, are now manufacturing Barnett's Guaranteed Havana Smokers, that retail at 5c each.

A. Chertoff, of the Columbia Tobacco Co., spent a few days in New York last week, purchasing a considerable quantity of Turkish tobacco while there.

F. R. Ginn & Co. operate a very fine cigar store at 85 Dover street in conjunction with their wholesale business. This firm job more union and independent tobacco than any other firm here.

Leroy Cubanos seem to duplicate wherever placed and L. Miller & Sons are to be congratulated on account of the success of these goods for a comparatively new brand.

C. Rowley, of the Surbrug Co., spent a few days here this week. The Milo cigarettes are good sellers here and such stores as Lewis & Co., the Commonwealth Cigar Co., Estabrook & Eaton and Dan'l Frank & Co. are always featuring these goods in their window displays.

Rosenthal Bros. have an elegant window display this week of the William the Fourth clear Havana goods, Falk Tobacco Co's various brands of smoking tobaccos, El Cafe cigars and Kozy 2¼ oz. cut plug, Leroy little cigars, etc.

Cy Newcomb, with the Wright Caesar Tobacco Co., of Richmond, is here introducing to the trade a new brand of sliced cut plug, 1¾ oz. package, called Very Good, and another cut plug called Japanese Victory packed in 4, 8 and 16 oz tins.

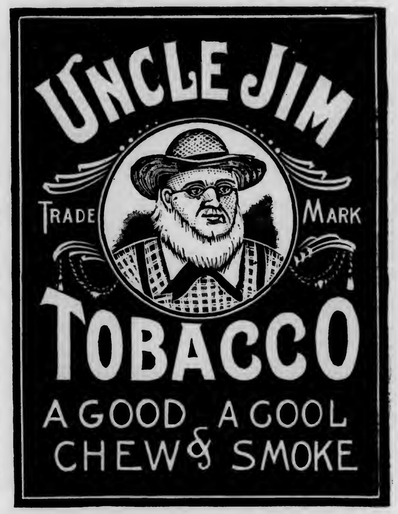
Edgeworth, in 4 ounce tins, is getting very popular with the smokers of that class of tobacco, and the Larus Bros. Co. is making another success here in connection with their sliced cut plug, Sensible.

BEN ALI.

WELL-KNOWN INDIANA RETAILER DIES.

Alfred W. St. John, of Muncie, Ind., one of the best known tobacco men in this section of the country, died last week after suffering ill health for several years. He was 47 years old, and had been in Muncie about fifteen years. He owned the St. John cigar store, on South Walnut street.

GEORGIA PLANTERS PROTEST.



A memorial to the United States House and Senate has been drawn up by the tobacco planters of Decatur county, Georgia, protesting against the passage of the Curtis bill. The paper declares that the reduction in the Philippine tariff would ruin tobacco planting in the South. The protest is signed by 250 leading tobacco planters.

PUT IT UP TO THE CONSUMER.

Correspondent Thinks That Smoker Should Bear Brunt of Short Crop.

The following letter embraces what seems a reasonable proposition, the operation of which would certainly obviate a lot of fretting. "E. J.," however, does not bring out the important point that the consumer would get his six cents worth if he were obliged to pay it, in the difference between the continued good quality of the cigar and what it would become if the low price were maintained. It is a harder thing than our correspondent evidently believes, however, successfully to change the price of an established brand.

Editor Tobacco World:

It would seem as if there should be a possibility of changing the price on cigars to the consumer, when crop conditions make it impossible for the manufacturer to put out the same quality of cigars at the same cost. As it is, it is regarded as an impossibility, for the reason that very few retailers could be induced to raise the price a cent on a favorite brand, unless there was an iron clad agreement in which every dealer concurred.

As it is now, when there are no crops, the grower who sells to independent interests puts his price up to the highest point he can get, and in many cases is barely repaid for his year's work and the use of the soil at that; the packer has to pay the high prices, and consequently has to put up his prices to the manufacturer; the manufacturer grumbles very much, but must have the leaf, and so buys it and pays the price.

What is he to do? Use the same quantity of high grade leaf and do business for a year at no margin? Is he to change the blend till he can figure out the same profit, or is he to put out a cheaper brand altogether and go light on the old one until times get better?

If he could get the same proportion of increase from the retailer or jobber that he has to pay the packer, he could turn out precisely the same cigar just as long as the tobacco held out. If the retailer could put up the price a very little on his customer, he could pay the better price to the jobber or the manufacturer, the latter could pay the leaf man what he asked without kicking, the leaf man could pay the grower's prices without a murmur, and the only man who could be said to be out on the deal would be the consumer, who would be out a very small amount, and wouldn't really be out at all, for he would simply be meeting unavoidable and temporary conditions.

When wheat goes up, the grocer's customer has to pay a few cents more for a bag of flour, when beef is tied up, the man who goes to the butcher shop or to a restaurant pays an extra tariff until things come right again, when there is a short crop of pease and a small pack, the consumer pays for it. So why shouldn't the tobacco consumer be obligated, particularly when it would be a luxury that would be taxed instead of a necessity?

Why must a manufacturer with honest intentions, either have to cheapen his quality, or lose money? It is fairly safe to say that any of the firmly established five cent brands of cigars could be raised to six cents for a time if it were clearly demonstrated to the consumer that there was a good reason for it, without there being a serions falling off in sales.

It would be very interesting to see this thing tried some time but there would have to be concerted action for it to have any chance of being successful. E. J.

HERE AND THERE IN YORK.

Newsy Nubbins Gleaned From the Trade in This County.

York, Pa., Feb. 13.

The sale of cigar and tobacco stamps of this division of the Ninth District is increasing. The total receipts for January were about $91,000, which is $3,000 in excess of January of last year.

There was, however, a decided decrease in the number of licenses issued for opening new cigar factories, the total number being only sixteen, which is only about four per cent of the number taken out in January of last year.

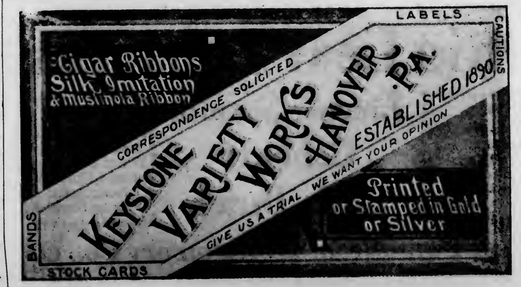
Following is a list of those who took out new licenses: Jeremiah Arnold, Mary Schuhart, S. Holtzinger, Jane Shindler and Chas. J. Hoffman, all of Red Lion; Geo. F. Smith and W. B. Hostetter & Co., York; R. J. Shenberger and Velena Weitkamp, Yoe; Edward B. Stoner, Hellam; Geo. H. Leader, Jacobus; J. F. Sechrist, Holtz; Thos. J. Smith, Hanover; Moses Emenheiser, New Bridgeville; and Lewis H. Seaks, Stewartstown.

Quite a number of cigar manufacturers at Windsor are active in urging the granting of a charter for borough rights, among whom are W. H. Grim, J. E. Shearer, of Shearer Bros.; D. A. Fry, S. E. Arnold and W. H. Snyder.

Tschopp & Kohler, cigar box manufacturers at Windsor, contemplate enlarging their factory about the first of April, which step is made necessary owing to an increase in business.

The final hearing for the discharge in bankruptcy of John E. Olp, formerly a cigar manufacturer at Jacobus, will take place on Thursday, in the District Court of the United States, at Scranton.

C. E. Myers, cigar box manufacturer at East Prospect, informs your correspondent that during the past year business has been much better than during any previous year, and that he feels reasonably confident of an indefinite continuance of good trade.



The cigar trade is becoming more active. On the first of the year G. W. Gable, who is one of the largest cigar manufacturers in Windsor, is said to have had on hand about two million cigars, but the large number of orders which were received during January depleted this stock very materially. In fact, it is said that if Mr. Gable had not had a large surplus of stock on hand at the first of the year, he would have been unable to fill the orders during the past month.

W. C. Jackson, of East Prospect, is continuing to work with a full force, and informs us that he has not noticed any perceptible falling off in trade since the first of the year.

Holtzinger & Seitz, of Red Lion, one of the progressive firms of cigar manufacturers of that lively borough, are making a special drive on their Governor Wright and Regal Duke, five cent cigars, which were prize winners at the St. Louis Exposition. Their product is now being sold throughout a large section of the country and appears to be giving universal satisfaction. Both C. Fred Holtzinger and W. H. Seitz are active young men and are building up a very satisfactory business.

The Gladfelter Snyder Tobacco Co., of Yoe, manufacturers of the Big Bob and Uncle Jim scrap chewing and smoking tobaccos, have received an exceptionally large order from a big St. Louis distributing house for their product. They are now comfortably located, in their new factory building, which contains every convenience for the manufacture of their product, which is meeting with exceptionally good sales everywhere. On January 1st Geo. A. Kohler, of Geo. A. Kohler & Co., of York and Yoe, was admitted to an interest of the Gladfelter-Snyder Tobacco Co.

H. F. Kohler, of Nashville, had an exceptionally satisfactory year during 1905. He is having a larger demand for his product than output owing to the impossibility of securing a sufficient number of hands to meet the requirements of his rapidly growing trade.

Strinestown, about ten miles from here, is making a bid for a cigar factory. It is declared that no town in the county affords a better opportunity than this, as there are eighty cigarmakers here and a large number more within convenient distance.

A. Sonneman & Sons last week received their first lot of the new crop of tobacco, among which was some goods that are regarded as being as fine as was grown last year.

A Few Changes in the Trade to Be Recorded.

Reading, Pa., Feb. 13.

Newcomet & Newcomet are closing out their business. Just what has brought about this action is not generally known, as this firm enjoyed a good trade.

I. J. Goldsmith is running full handed, having large orders for his popular brands, Diploma 5c and Amorelle 10c goods.

Charles R. Albright has remodeled his factory and put six additional men to work.

Otto Eisenlohr & Bros.' modern factory is nearing completion. W. D. Sands, now with Stewart, Newburger & Co., will be the superintendent of the new factory.

who were on the verge of dissolving, have gotten together again and are pushing the business with renewed vigor. Mr. Sassaman is now on a Southern trip, and is getting a number of good orders. In addition to the cigar trade, the firm has built up quite a trade on natural leaf scrap tobacco, which promises to be quite an item, on account of the growing tendency of the scrap business.

During an interview with Fred W. Cranston, Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue of the First District, and in charge of the Reading office, it was learned that there are 216 cigar factories in active operation in Berks county, and twenty-three tobacco factories. During the past year there was made in this division of the First District 131,612,613 cigars, an increase of 6,000,000 over the previous year, and business seemed to be uniformly good during all of 1904.

An interesting tobacco case was decided in the Lancaster County Court a few days ago. It was a suit brought to recover the amount represented by some leaf tobacco bought by I. B. Good, a cigar manufacturer of Ephrata, from J. W. Fehr & Son, of Reading, and I. J. Schoener Co., of New York. Before the goods sold to Good had been paid for they were seized on an execution against I. B. Good by Enos W. Good. Then the sellers of the goods instituted an action in replevin, secured and removed the goods sold by them. Subsequently, suit was brought to recover the amount representing the value of the goods replevined. During the trial it was alleged by Fehr and Schoener that the goods had been bought by Good under misrepresentation, that he had claimed to be a real estate holder. In view of the early execution following the purchase of the goods, the jury seemed to concur with the allegations, and rendered a verdict in favor of Fehr and Schoener, notwithstanding the denial by Good, who swore that he had referred the leaf men to a bank in Ephrata to prove his standing.

MODERATE TRADE IN LANCASTER.

The Bad Weather Held Things Back as Much as Anything.

Lancaster, Pa., Feb. 13.

Local dealers experienced but a moderate trade in leaf tobacco during the week, and the dullness was undoubtedly augmented by the extremely bad weather, which did not, however, deter the activity of visiting leaf salesmen, among whom were L. F. Mueller, with Dohan & Taitt, and L. R. Eisenbrand, with L. Bamberger & Co., both of Philadelphia; Chas. Lederman, with Leonard Friedman & Co., New York; T. A. Wheeler, with A. Cohn & Co., New York, and Barney Livingston, who made his initial trip in the interest of K. Strauss & Co., of Philadelphia.

Nearly all the leaf warehouses are now in full operation receiving new goods and packing as rapidly as possible.

The cigar trade of this county is only moderately busy, with some exceptions, of course. The several factories of the Johns-Brash Cigar Co., are all in full operation. Main offices are, of course, in this city, which is the headquarters of Edward M. Brash, the secretary-treasurer. This Company some months ago took over all the factories of the S. L. Johns Cigar Co., which are located at Lancaster, McSherrystown, Hanover, Gettysburg, Irishtown and Strinestown. Mr. Brash who is well known in the trade throughout the country, was for years prominently identified with the cigar manufacturing trade at Pittsburg, as the head of the old firm of M. Brilles & Co., which business was merged into the United States Cigar Co., and that later into the American Stogie Co., when he took up his residence in New York city, and was appointed manager of the sales department of the American Stogie Co., from which he subsequently resigned and soon after formed the company of which he is now at the head, and which under his experienced and conservative management is making remarkably rapid progress.

ARE FARMERS MANUFACTURERS?

Those Who Sell Leaf of Their Own Growth May Be So Classed.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11.

Senator Daniel, of Virginia, has submitted a resolution in the Senate to the effect that the Secretary of the Treasury be directed to inform the Senate whether or not the proviso of section 69, act of August 28, 1894, to wit: "That farmers and growers of tobacco who sell leaf tobacco of their own growth and raising shall not be regarded as manufacturers of tobacco, and so forth," has been construed by the Treasury Department or any officer thereof to apply only and as a personal privilege to such farmers and growers of tobacco who sell in person and not by an agent or employe "leaf tobacco of their own growth and raising", or to those who deliver the same by their own hand and not by an agent or employe; and also to furnish the Senate with copies of the opinions, if any, that have been rendered by the Department on this subject.

The resolution was ordered to lie over.

The latter then re-elected the officers as follows: Homer McGraw, president; R. Kempf, vice president; Walter R. Hamper, secretary-treasurer and general manager.

Leaf Tobacco Markets.

CONNECTICUT VALLEY

For two miles on the road where the writer lives there is but one crop of tobacco left in the hands of the grower, and that is owned by J. M. Crafts. It is a crop of about 10 acres, and is considered by many to be a very nice crop, but he has maintained that good tobacco was worth a price, and is holding for that price, or as near to the price asked as he can get. An offer was made for it last week of 17½c in the bundle. I, for one, hope he may get the price asked, and I think that he will.

Our correspondents write:

Conway, Mass.: "The tobacco crop is nearly all sold. Some few lots that are sold have not been delivered yet. The crop weighed out extra well this year for such a good yield; I think on an average about 1800 pounds per acre."

Hatfield, Mass: "B. M. Warner has sold his tobacco to Gans, of New York, at a price reported to be better than 25c, after the crop passing through a forced sweat. Thaddeus Graves has sold to the same party at better than 21c. We hear of some farmers refusing 21c."

North Hatfield, Mass.: "George B. McClellan has sold his tobacco to Bock, about 10 acres, at private terms. Francis G. Bardwell has sold at private terms about 8 acres. Charles Bardwell sold 5 or 6 acres; Frank Bardwell, 1½ acres; Fay Bardwell, 8 acres; M. J. Hallorin, 10 acres; Mrs. Flavin & Sons, 10 acres; Conrad Wolfram. 4 or 5 acres, all these at private terms."—American Cultivator.

EDGERTON, WIS.

A week of heavy storms and drifted roads has tended to handicap the tobacco movement in the country, keeping buyers near home. The new crop continues to be sold sparingly and the demand for old leaf has no appreciable decline, dealers generally standing ready to take over everything at a price which will permit of turning. Sales coming to notice showing the trend of recent transactions are:

G T Taylor, 8a at 8 and 2c
Ole Seamonson, 7a at 7½ and 1c
F L Englestad, 10a at 7½, 6 and 1c
George Burthe, 7a at 7 and 1c
E E Lunde, 10a at 6 and 1c
L D Webb, 3a at 7 and 1c
E T Rockney, 6a at 6 and 1c
Fred Hyland, 5a at 7½ and 1c
M Jarlesberg, 12a at 6, 5½ and 1c
John Fladen, 4a at 6 and 1c
A Danielson, 53cs '03 at 7½ and 2½c

So far the deliveries at the warehouses have been ample to keep the packing forces busily employed, though the need of casing weather that will permit the growers in the northern and western sections to prepare their tobacco for market is becoming more pressing every day. The great bulk of the crop in these sections is practically hanging in the sheds, and dealers holding contracts for the same are as anxiously awaiting the coming of soft weather.

Shipments were 1077cs, and 5 cars of bundles to Richmond, Va.—Reporter.

CLARKSVILLE, TENN.

M. H. Clark & Bro.

Our receipts this week were 96 hhds, as of late almost entirely of new tobacco; offerings on the breaks, 2 hhds; public and private sales, 30 hhds.

Quality unchanged; market firm. None of the new crop is yet offered for sale. We still have severe winter weather, preventing handling of the crop in the barns.

Nothing doing in the loose tobacco market, partly from the cold weather, but mainly from the control of the sale by the Planters' Association, which is also making renewed efforts to get Congress to repeal the act of 1894 putting a tax of 6c per pound on sale of raw leaf tobacco to consumers. The repeal would give another outlet for their crops on the sugar and cotton plantations and in the Northwestern States.

Quotations for old tobacco, unchanged.

THE WAY AND THE MEANS

¶ There are more ways than ONE to do everything—but every way isn't the BEST way.

¶ If it is any part of your business to produce GOOD cigars, you need GOOD Cigar Tools.

¶ NATIONAL TOOLS are just a little bit BETTER—and a little bit CHEAPER—than YOUR tools.

¶ Because we have the patents, the skilled labor, unusual manufacturing and selling advantages, and we know our business.

¶ NATIONAL CIGAR BOARDS, hard, strong, heavy and smooth; no knots, streaks or spots; can't warp or split.

¶ NATIONAL CIGAR KNIVES and CUBAN BLADES hold their edge and never botch the job.

¶ Another thing, we don't charge several prices for NATIONAL TOOLS, and we give your money back if they don't suit.

¶ Ask for our Special Proposition, meant particularly for YOU.

¶ The coupon brings it.

Cigar Rolling Machine Was Expected to Revolutionize Trade.

Binghamton, N. Y., Feb. 17.

With the wind up of the Keyes-Baker Cigar Rolling Co. by the sale in this city of its effects a few days ago, there passes into innocuous desuetude another of the many inventions which were to revolutionize trade and make a boundless fortune for its inventor and projectors.

The last operation in the life of the company was the sale by Attorney Rollin W. Meeker, in the action of John A. Rider, a trustee for the bondholders, against the Union Cigarmaking Machine Co., pursuant to a judgment of the Supreme Court, of two parcel lots, the first consisting of letters patent issued to the Union Cigarmaking Machine Co. by the United States, and the second of machinery for the manufacture of machines. The property was sold to the International Cigar Machinery Co. for $4,000 for the first parcel and the second parcel for $525.

The Keyes-Baker Cigar Rolling Co. was organized June, 1898. The original action and upon which judgment was secured was entitled John A. Rider as substituted trustee under a mortgage executed June 1, 1898, by the Keyes-Baker Cigar Rolling Machine Co. to John Anderson and Sigmund J. Hirschmann as trustees for the benefit, security and protection of certain bonds of said corporation, against the Union Cigarmaking Machine Co., American Cigar Co., International Cigar Machinery Co., Sigmund Rosenwald, George P. Butler, Frank Telford, John Anderson and Sigmund J. Hirschmann, defendants.

The original capitalization of the company or total bonded indebtedness was $25,000, and at one time this cigar rolling machine was said to be a machine that would revolutionize the world's cigar industry.

Frank Keyes and Charles Baker were the originals of the machine. The first patent was issued in April, 1893; since then, from time to time, fifteen different patents have been issued which were acquired by the Union Cigarmaking Co., the new name of the former Keyes-Baker Co., being the same corporation. In June, 1898, this company was managed by the late Edward L. Rose, and the company wanted to raise a lot of money to make improvements they believed the machine needed, so they issued bonds to the amount of $20,000, executing a mortgage covering patents and machinery to secure the bonds which matured in three years.

Before the bonds became due Edward L. Rose died, which seemed to take all the interest out of the machine. A group of New York capitalists who were interested in the machine at that time were members of the Tobacco Union Cigarmaking Co. and moved its office to the city of New York. John Anderson and Sigmund J. Hirschmann, who were the original trustees, then resigned, and John A. Rider was appointed trustee in their place. The company made default in payment of the bonds and on the demand of the holders of the bonds Rider began the action to foreclose the mortgage.

The original inventors never made any money out of the invention. Other Binghamton people sank a lot of money in the invention before the bonds were issued. About eight or nine years ago it was reported that Frank Keyes had sold the patent to parties in England for $1,500,000, and all the deal needed was a few preliminaries to be completed in this city. The reputed sale was emblazoned in big black type in the local papers at the time, as it was believed that it meant a big boom for Binghamton, but it proved a veritable pipe dream. The majority of the patents were for a crude machine, and are considered as worth nothing at all. Others have considerable value, but these are later inventions.

The history of the cigar rolling machine covers a period of twelve years, and is now, as then, so far as Binghamton is concerned, a dream of the shadow of smoke.

The machine is all right for rolling cheroots and waste tobacco, but it is claimed that on Sumatra goods the waste more than equals the labor saved by the machine.

NO CIGAR STANDS IN THE CITY HALL.

Considerable effort is being made in Milwaukee, Wis., by a number of dealers to induce the municipal authorities to permit the establishment of a cigar stand in the city hall. John J. Crowley has just petitioned the common council to give him the right, but it is unlikely that the petition will be granted, as the board of public works has always been opposed to any such innovation. Such stands have been coveted in other large cities, as it is certain that they would be profitable, but they are not permitted.

Peter Flandermeyer, a cigar manufacturer of Milwaukee, died a few days ago at his home on Centre street. The dead man was very well known among the local trade.

J. E. TOOMEY DEAD.

J. E. Toomey, the Ohio agent of the Continental Tobacco Co., and widely known as a traveling man, died a few days ago in Columbus, O., of Bright's disease. Mr. Toomey was with the Drummond Tobacco Co. for many years with headquarters at St. Louis, but after this company was taken over by the American Tobacco Co. he was placed in charge of the Ohio Valley. He was 45 years old.

WAREHOUSE ROOF CAVES IN.

The roof of the large Fruitema warehouse in Murray, Ky., was crushed in by the weight of the snow and slush a few mornings ago and did a great deal of damage, the injury, however, being lessened by the fact that considerable of the stock had been prized. The warehouse is a very large one.

GIGANTIC INDEPENDENT COMPANY.

Rumors of Such a Movement in Wisconson are Discredited.

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 20.

Within the past few days there has been considerable said in the local papers regarding the probable formation of a gigantic independent tobacco company, which will take in all the retail interests in this city and nearby towns. The intention, it is stated, is to build and operate a factory to sell its own product, each member of the company agreeing to dispose of a certain amount of tobacco and cigars per day.

Just whether there is any foundation for this report is hard to determine. I have talked to several leading dealers here who should know if anything of the kind was on foot, and they only know what they have seen in the papers.

The independent dealers of this city have never been thoroughly organized, though steps have been taken several times to bring about an organization. As stated before in this correspondence, the leading independent dealers here are not fighting the trust and do not care to enter any warfare. They have declared time and again that the advent of the chain stores has not affected them, and this statement is borne out by the fact that the businesses of the leading stores has grown considerably from year to year.

Leo Abraham, who does perhaps the largest business of any independent or chain store in this city, when asked regarding the rumor, said:

"I know nothing about it, and do not think any benefits would be derived by advertising such a fight. It would only give a great deal of free advertising to cheap cigars, and we would suffer rather than profit."

I dropped in one of the chain stores and said to the manager: "I see in the papers that the independents are going to organize a company on a large scale, and fight you with your own weapons. Do you know anything about it?' He replied that all he had seen or heard was what was published in the papers.

One of the items which appeared in the Milwaukee News, and which has the earmarks of the sort of slush they are dishing up in Chicago, is as follows:

"The Milwaukee project is along the same lines as the gigantic enterprise which is being worked out in Chicago, with the view of fighting the tobacco trust with its own weapons. In that city 15,000 tobacco dealers will combine in an independent association, with a working capital of $500,000, for the manufacture of all kinds of smoking, chewing and plug tobacco, each member of the association agreeing to sell five pounds of tobacco per day. Under this agreement the combine will have an output of 75,000 pounds of tobacco per day, or more than thirty-seven tons."

CURTIS BILL HANGING.

The Advocates are Holding it Until Senate Can Be Won Over.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.

The Curtis bill still hangs fire, and nobody seems to know certainly as to just what is doing. It is generally believed, however, that the Ways and Means Committee, realizing that the bill in its present form stands very little chance of going through the Senate, is holding it back in order to see if a compromise of some kind cannot be effected.

The bill for the reduction on tobacco to 25 per cent of the Dingley rate can be put through the House any time the leaders see fit, or at least it is believed that it can be, but it is not thought for a minute that the reduction could pass the Senate at this session, and a delay is regarded as the best expedient.

The advocates of the bill are doing their best to get the consent of both houses to stand for a 50 per cent compromise, and it is impossible to say whether the attempt will succeed. A former attempt, however, was blocked by Senator Teller, of Colorado, who, it is hoped, may be induced to change his opinion.

If the compromise is agreed to, the bill will be put through at once, but it is thought that if there is a hitch in this plan the Ways and Means Committee will report the bill to the Lower House, which will pass it and put the subsequent delay on the shoulders of the Senate.

Racine Paper Goods Company Official Secures Patent Over Dittgen & Co.

The friends of O. L. Parmenter, of the Racine Paper Goods Co., of Racine, Wis., will all congratulate him on having won the interference suit in the United States Patent Office between himself and Dittgen & Co., of Cincinnati, O., which is evidenced by the issuing to Mr. Parmenter of Patent No. 781,455, of January 31, 1905, which embodies the vital claim contested for, and which gives to Parmenter a patent covering the multiple pocket or pouch put out by Dittgen & Co.

FLECK CO. WILL BUILD.

The Fleck Cigar Co., of Reading, has completed plans for two additional stories to their factory, when they will be able to comfortably seat 125 hands.

D. F. Fleck left Monday for an extended trip through the West, going as far as Omaha, Neb. This firm has placed a new brand on the market, La Porceda, which is selling through the West.

MANUFACTURER HANGS HIMSELF.

James Lorenz, a cigar manufacturer of Reamstown, York county, Pa., became despondent last week, and, going to an outbuilding on his place, hanged himself. He was 35 years old. It is supposed that the dead man was worrying over the recent suit for slander brought against him by Prison Inspector J. V. Hollenberger.

The Old Salesman's Musings.

SPRINGFIELD IS LOSING MONEY.

One of those statistical individuals who are forever compiling figures on every known subject got busy in Springfield, Ill., a little while ago and produced an estimate of the cigars made and smoked in the city each year. The table is given here not because it seems apparent that any one is really suffering to know just how Springfield is making out in the cigar business, but because it is a rather curious form of reasoning and deduction.

A good many of the statements will apply to any city, following out the same ratio, it being remembered, however, that in the largest cities, the proportion of consumers to cigars manufactured will as a rule grow greater.

According to the Springfield statistician there are 12,000 smokers in his city, and it is assumed that each one will average four cigars a day. He then proceeds as follows:

Number of cigars consumed in this city each day, 48,000.

Number of cigars consumed in this city each week, 336,000

Total number of cigars consumed in this city each year, 17,472,000 cigars at $35.00 per M., $611,000.

Total number of cigars manufactured in this city each year, 6,760 000.

Total cost of 6,760,000 cigars at $35.00 per 1,000, $236 000.

Amount of money sent out of city each year for cigars, which should be kept at home, $374,400.

Number of cigarmakers that should be employed at Springfield, 260.

Number that are employed in Springfield, 100.

Number of cigarmakers supported by the smokers of Springfield, who do not live here, 160.

Average wages of each cigarmaker per week, $13.

Amount of money in wages that should circulate in Springfield each week instead of going to other cities, $2,080.

Each year, $108,160.

Add to this seven cigar packers at $20.00 per week, $7,280.

70 strippers, at $3.00 per week, $10,920.

Grand total of wages that should remain in this city instead of going to outside cities, $126,360.

So!

The Springfield man takes the peculiar position that the city ought to be completely independent in its economy and get along without any commerce at all with outside cities, inasmuch as it is reasonable to assume that he would desire the same conditions in every form of business, and it is also only fair to argue that if jobbers aren't to buy any cigars from out of town manufacturers, the Springfield manufacturers should not sell out of town.

So that the city as a business proposition would simply be in the position of the South Sea Island colony, the members of whom were said to have lived by taking in each other's washing.

If a town were to live entirely within itself trade would be paralyzed and the world would become nothing but a series of little colonies gathered about the necessary places of business. And if a law were passed forbidding any manufacturer to sell outside his factory town there would be lots doing for awhile in the offices of Dunn & Bradstreet.

This winter is enough to discourage an evangelist. With every prospect for a good business year in the tobacco trade, this miserable succession of blows, snows, freezes, thaws, hails, sleets, drizzles, pours, fogs and the other temper destroying things that the weather can do, had to arrive with an evidently paralyzing effect on the consumer's desire to consume.

It all hangs on the man who smokes or chews, and anything that puts a damper on his habits puts a damper on every branch of the trade. The man who hesitates a second at the cigar store and then lowers his frozen nose into his necktie, jams his fists into his pockets and strides along without the cigar, doesn't realize how far-reaching his act is, for human nature is the same everywhere, and there are others all over the city and other cities doing the same thing.

Then the business man who remembers that he is about out of cigars at home, and gloomily reflecting on how slow collections are, goes in and buys a half dollar's worth to do him for a while, instead of a box, is one of a large number that are helping to make collections still slower.

High prices for leaf make another important element in the situation, and so the manufacturers are rather getting it on two ends.

If spring, with its balmy breezes, sunshine and happy promise ever arrives, it is fair to hope that business will take a decided brace. It can't come any too soon for your Uncle Jasper, who finds himself able to use very little of the present weather in his own business.

THE REALM OF THE RETAILERS

TIMELY TALKS WITH ENTERPRISING DEALERS.

THE most vital problem of store management is that of organization. It does not matter whether the store is large or small, the necessity for thoroughly organized business methods is the same

Too many storekeepers make the success or failure of their business depend entirely on their own resources. The most successful man today is not the one who tries to do it all himself, but the one who picks out good men and turns over to them certain portions of his work, telling them what results he expects, but leaving the methods of getting these results very largely to the men themselves.

You, as the head of the business, cannot possibly look after all the details. If you try to do so, you will simply use up time that should be devoted to more important things.

Keep up to date in all your methods, and in the class of goods you are handling. There can be no better way to find out the weak points of your store than by a system of suggestion boxes, in which any clerk or employe in your store can drop a suggestion as to anything that he thinks might be improved. The suggestions should be taken from the boxes at certain intervals, and prizes awarded for the best ideas. There is probably no dealer who cannot remember that in his early days when he clerked in a store, he recognized the need for improvements, new ideas, or better methods, but either lacked the opportunity of offering them, or feared that the proprietor would take the suggestions in the wrong way.

Asking for suggestions from your clerks creates among them a feeling of personal interest in your business which is conducive to the best results. One of the things such a system does is to create enthusiasm among the clerks, and without such enthusiasm and interest in his business, no employe can give his employer the proper service.

The plan of offering a series of prizes for the best clerks is an excellent one. Whether the judging of the clerk be based on the amount of business he does, or upon the fact that he makes the fewest mistakes, or upon the general average of work, the result cannot but be a good one. As a prize for the clerk having the highest average, a trip to some large city may be offered.

Let the prizes for clerks be based on several things; The amount of business done, the fewest number of errors made, personal appearance, whether always cleanly shaved and neatly dressed and general attitude towards customers. These things could be noted every day, and the general average determined each week or month, or whatever the time set may be. The clerk making the highest average would be the one to receive the prize.

All these features tend to increase the enthusiasm of employes and their interest in your business.

DO A CASH BUSINESS.

IN these days when the man who does a cash business is so much better off than the man with a fat ledger, it is up to every retailer to try to make as much of his business cash as possible.

The best way to accomplish this result is to offer inducements to his trade that will interest cash buyers. One plan is to offer a rebate or discount on all cash sales.

There are always customers on the books who owe a small balance from week to week, and carry on all their trade through a credit system. By offering a discount for cash, such buyers are easily induced to abandon buying goods on credit.

One of the best methods to accomplish this is to use a cash register which issues a check with every purchase. Upon this check may be printed the amount of the rebate; and it is simply a question of advertising ability to interest your customers in the discount, rebate or presents offered for cash trade.

Another method to obtain cash customers is to set aside, on bargain counters, such goods as the merchant desires to move. There is always more or less of this class of goods in the store that does not seem to take with the trade, but is still a first class article. If these are offered with a liberal discount for cash on certain days, and the subject is properly advertised, it will undoubtedly attract the attention of cash buyers.

WHAT is there about a retail cigar store that makes any man with a little money think it's a gilt edged proposition?

THIS WILL DRAW CUSTOMERS.

A PRETTY fair plan to draw a crowd to the store on the dullest evening of the week is the following. If the dealer uses a newspaper it would be the proper thing to advertise the scheme there, but if he doesn't, an attractive window card might serve:

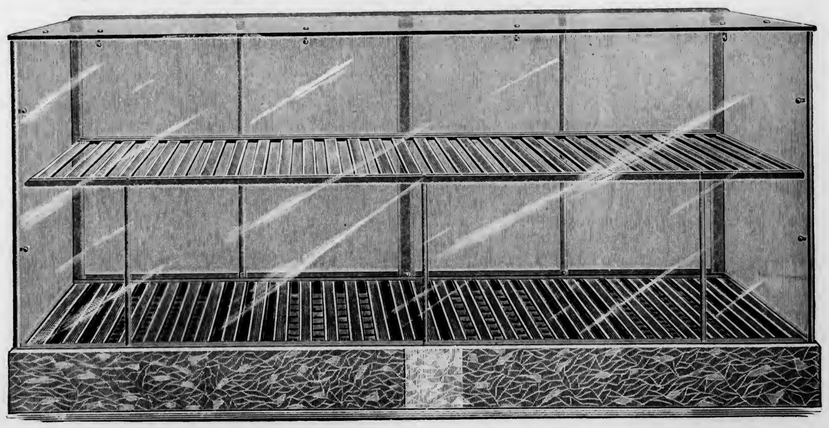
Make the announcement that on a certain evening, beginning at a certain hour, a fifty per cent reduction will be allowed on any article in the store to the first one hundred persons entering. If the dealer does not believe that he could afford to give fifty per cent to get the crowd, let him make it thirty or twenty-five, it being remembered that his individual sales would be much larger than usual as any one attracted by such a scheme would buy as largely as convenient to take advantage of it.

Then again the dealer may choose to give variety and a gambling element to the offer by making it the first hundred alternately—the first, third, fifth, and so on, until the hundred have been made up.

It could be announced that "on such and such a night at exactly 7:30 we will commence issuing tickets to customers as they enter the store. Two hundred of these tickets will be issued to the first two hundred persons to enter and all the tickets bearing odd numbers will entitle the holders to a fifty per cent reduction on the price of any article in the store."

If the dealer proposes to make the offer on alternates, it would increase the interest and better his sales, to distribute the tickets in envelopes, and in that case a sentence like the following might be added to the announcement as outlined above:

"These tickets will be enclosed in envelopes, and the customer must make his purchases before he breaks the envelope and looks at the number on his ticket."



Of course, during the sale, the tickets must be deposited in the store, as an evidence of good faith to the customers who don't win.

AN IMPROVED TOBACCO POUCH.

A CALIFORNIAN has invented a rather novel tobacco pouch, which is provided with a measuring device which will measure out a quantity of tobacco necessary to fill a pipe or make a cigarette. The measuring device consists of a cylinder formed at the upper end of the pouch. This cylinder is covered at the top by a lid, which is kept closed against the pressure of a well actuated hinge by means of a spring latch. A sliding plate is provided within the pouch to close the lower end of the cylinder. This plate may be operated by a thumb piece, projecting through the upper wall of the pouch. In use the plate is moved clear of the cylinder and the pouch inverted to fill with tobacco. Then the plate is moved to closed position and the lid released, causing the measured amount of tobacco to flow out into the pipe. The measured chamber thus prevents waste. The pouch is particularly useful to smokers who make their own cigarettes. When adapted for that purpose the cylinder is made of a size to measure just the quantity of tobacco necessary for a single cigarette.—Ex.

F. POLLARD'S CIGAR CASE FOR THE "400."

THE above cut gives an idea of the complete and handsome showcase for cigars which is put out by F. Pollard, of New York, Cleveland and Pittsburg. The case is made entirely without frame of wood or metal, and thus can not become shabby or tarnished. The only materials exposed to view are plate glass and marble. The cases are fitted with racks and water trays, and are of the following dimensions: Top light, 26 inches wide; front light, 34 inches wide; marble base, 7¾ inches wide and 42 inches high over all. These dimensions, however, can be varied, and the case is made any length from 3 to 14 feet.

DON'T LIKE BURLEY FAILURE.

Ohio Merchants Believe It Will Tie Up Money With Farmers.

Cincinnati, O., Feb. 16.

There is considerable dissatisfaction expressed in this city over the failure of the representatives of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Association to secure the loan of $10,000,000 with which to purchase a control of the present crop, for the reason that it is argued that the farmers will probably not receive so much for their crops, and there will accordingly be that much less money in circulation in the city. It is considered probable now that much of the crop will be marketed in Louisville, which will be another blow to this city.

Had the deal been consummated, this city would have been benefited considerably owing to the fact that there was a condition, implied at least, that practically all the tobacco was to be sold in Cincinnati, making it the leading market.

That very fact is thought to have caused Louisville interests to add their influence to the opposing interests in discouraging New York bankers against making the desired loans.

There is a faint hope among the local warehousemen that their work in the cause will be appreciated by the local farmers to the extent of inducing them to send their crops to Cincinnati anyway, where they can consider that they are among friends. Whether sentiment would dominate a possible higher price in the Louisville market is a dubious question.

A good many independent manufacturers and handlers are not weeping much over the failure of the attempt to corner the burley market, as they consider that it would practically be only a case of another temporary trust, to which they would have had to pay tribute in the way of high prices. The mere fact that the farmers would have benefited does not hit them very strongly.

It is generally conceded by the trade here now that the combine is responsible for the failure, it having played its game among the capitalists and bankers in New York. Under the circumstances, the discouraging of the loan should not have been a hard matter.

NEW RULING ON CIGARETTE LAW.

Indiana Judge Says Section Relating to Minors is Unconstitutional.

Considerable comment is being caused in the Indiana trade by a ruling of Judge Ely, in the Circuit Court of Petersburg four or five days ago, that the section of the statute covering the sale of tobacco to minors is unconstitutional. This was such a new view of the case that there has been general speculation as to whether the decision will be reversed.

The ruling was made as the result of six grand jury indictments which were made against dealers who have acknowledged that they have sold tobacco to minors. These defendants admitted the sale and were perfectly willing to pay fines, but protested against serving jail sentences. The decision was the result of efforts to have the sentences revoked.

It is believed that Prosecutor Taylor will appeal the case to the Supreme Court, and the trade is awaiting such an action with great interest.

FEWER BUYERS IN HAVANA AND LESS TRANSACTIONS

Market is Pretty Well Reduced, and All Eyes are Turned Toward the New Crop. All Guess Work About This So Far, Except That It Will be Shorter Than the 1904.

HAVANA, February 13, 1905.

There is a slight falling off in the number of transactions reported, and as there are less buyers in town it is but reasonable to look for a smaller business hence forth. Owing to the lessened stocks on hand, however, the holders demand high figures for all vegas of merit, while they are willing enough to let go all lots which are less salable under ordinary circumstances.

If but few buyers should make their appearance it is possible that the latter by hard work might find here and there a seller who might wish to liquidate his holdings; otherwise prices are bound to remain firm. The clear Havana cigar manufacturers from Tampa and Key West evidently have not enough tobacco on hand until the new crop can come to market, and from appearances it looks as if they will yet need all the goods which are suitable for their particular wants.

Northern styles for mixing purposes in Vuelta Abajo and Remedios are very limited, and the few holders of such goods show not the least desire to part with them except at very stiff figures.

Everything written or said about the new crop is still more or less guess work, excepting that the majority of the authorities upon the question are unanimous in declaring the 1905 crop shorter in quantity than the last growth, and that there have been enough unfavorable atmospheric conditions to be prepared to find a more or less large proportion of defective leaf, as to colors, texture and possibly burning (?) quality.

That the intelligent buyers of leaf tobacco must put some faith in these reports is proven by the alacrity with which they have secured the desirable vegas of the 1904 crop.

Total exports from Havana were 5,862 bales to all ports during the past week.

Sales

amounted 7,205 bales in all, consisting of 3,827 bales of Vuelta Abajo, 350 of Partido, 1,800 of Remedios and 1,228 bales of Yara tobacco. The destination is given as 4,717 for the United States, 1,415 for Europe and 1,073 for local consumption by the cigar and cigarette manufacturers.

Buyers Come and Go.

Arrivals:—Richard Sichel, of B. Rosenblueth, John Fielding, of Rothschild & Bro., J. W. Surbrug, of the Surbrug Co., New York; Sol Salomon and Harry G. Salomon, of G. Salomon y Hns, New York and Havana; Barron Taylor, representative of the Por Larranaga factory at New York; Facundo Arguelles, of Arguelles, Lopez & Bros., Ignacio Haya, of Sanchez & Haya, Oscar Reinach, of the Fernandez Hs. Co, Tampa; W. W. Stewart, of Stewart, Newburger Co., Philadelphia and Reading; M. J. Dalton, cigar importer, of Philadelphia; Ernest Ellinger, of E. Ellinger & Co., New York and Havana.

Departures:—H. Spingarn, Lewis C. Cantor, B. Wasserman, E. H. Smith, E. P. Cordero, and Jose H. Cayro, for New York; L. W. Scott, for Boston; Harry Nathan and Milton Herold, for Philadelphia; John B. Grommes and Nathan Elson, for Chicago.

when talked to are apt to belittle their business. They claim they have orders enough of smaller quantities, but that the big orders are missing still. Now the facts are that the exports from Havana in January, 1905, amounted to 22,398,922 cigars, while during the same time in 1904 they were only 19,234,988 cigars, which shows an increase in 1905 of 3,163,988 cigars, or almost 16½ per cent.

It seems that the large independent factories are not discharging any cigarmakers, while it is said that the trust and the smaller independent ones are diminishing their forces. J. W. Seidenberg, of the Rosa Espanola factory of the trust in Tampa, has taken charge of the trust factories in Havana, ostensibly, as it is said, to help Don Gustavo Bock and to relieve the latter of some of the heavy burden which he has had to carry alone up to now.

While your correspondent published last month that the percentage of the whole exports was 52¾ per cent for the trust and 47¼ per cent for the independent factories, another creditable source makes the figures 50.70 per cent for the trust and 49.30 per cent for the independents in 1904.

H. Upmann & Co. exported last week 487,000 cigars, and continue as busy as heretofore in producing the world famed H. Upmann brand.

Cifuentes, Fernandez & Co. note no diminution in the receipts of their orders for the celebrated Flor de Tabacos de Partagas & Ca, so everything goes swimmingly with them.

Por Larranaga's representative in the United States, Barron Taylor, arrived here last week from New York and having brought along a long list of special size orders his visit was naturally very welcome. With a team of this kind, Don Antonio J. Rivero, as the zealous manager of the factory in Havana, and Barron Taylor, the pushing selling agent in the United States, the year 1905 ought to be memorable for the Por Larranaga factory.

Behrens & Co., are busy attending to the execution of orders for cigars from everywhere.

Rabell, Costa, Vales & Co. are doing a good steady business in their Ramon Allones and Cruz Roja factory. The Eminencia cigarettes of J. Vales & Co. are beginning to find a market in the United States, as orders are not only repeated, but are for larger quantities.

Crepusculo is also one of the active factories which is seldom without good, substantial orders fr m the United States, London and Germany, therefore J. F. Rocha & Co. do not complain of dull times.

El Rico Habano has also fair orders, considering the times. Enrique Dorado & Co., the owners, are hard workers and turn out a good, mild aromatic smoke for the United States and Canada.

Buying, Selling and Other Notes of Interest.

G. Salomon y Hnos, had a banner week in selling 1,780 bales of Remedios, Vuelta Abajo and Partido.

Leslie Pantin purchased fully 1,000 bales again with his customers and also upon orders received direct.

Sobrinos de Gonzalez sold 400 bales from their stock, but including the 1,228 bales of Yara tobacco purchased by them for the Spanish Regie the week's transactions amounted to 1,628 bales. Instead of close to 50,000 bales having been handled by this house, the exact figures are 53,784 bales for the year 1904.

Max Stern, of the firm of Lewis Sylvester & Son, shipped on Saturday by the steamship Morro Castle 1,640 bales to his New York house. The holdings of Vuelta Abajo and Remedios are large and of a choice character; and having been bought early in the season, prices are reasonable, so Lewis Sylvester & Son ought to find no trouble in easily selling them to their United States customers.

Loeb-Nunez Havana Co. disposed of 600 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Remedios to Northern buyers.

L. W. Scott made some very fine purchases of Vuelta Abajo, and while prices may appear high, it is impossible to obtain the best goods at low figures. The supply is too short and the demand is too keen from connoisseurs all over the world.

J. F. Rocha closed out 500 bales of his Vuelta Abajo holdings.

E. H. Smith made good use of his time while here, and besides his own large Manicaragua holdings selected some of the finest grades of Remedios and Vuelta Abajo styles for his customers.

Jose H. Cayro e Hijo made several transactions amounting to 400 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

Manuel Suarez & Co. did some good business attending to their various customers. Don Jose is a hustler well known and liked here in Havana, as well as in the United Stares.

A. Pazos & Co. sold 300 bales of their Vuelta Abajo holdings,

H. Spingarn left well satisfied with his work in picking out salable goods for E. Spingarn & Co.

Jose Menendez disposed of 250 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

Milton Herold and Harry Nathan did some active work for the Loeb-Nunez Havana Co. while in town.

Gonzalez, Benitez & Co. were sellers to the extent of 257 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

John B. Grommes and Nathan Elson purchased some of the finest lowland Vuelta Abajo vegas which they intend to use solely for their Ben Bey cigars.

Rabell, Costa & Co. turned over 187 bales of their excellent Vuelta Abajo holdings.

Leonard Friend is a very careful and conscientious buyer, as the firm of Friend & Co., in New York, only handle the very best of Vuelta Abajo or Remedios tobacco, therefore Don Leonard has had no easy time in finding such goods, but nevertheless he has already secured some 300 to 400 bales and has not finished yet.

Grau, Planas & Co. disposed of 150 bales of their Partido holdings.

Antonio Suarez made several sales of Vuelta Abajo.

NEW YORK, February 21, 1905.

This weather is certainly taking a mean advantage of the trade in this city, and some retailers are beginning to doubt that there is or will be a season of the year called spring. New York isn't the pleasantest place in the world during the winter months under ordinary circumstances, and with a whole lot of extra weather thrown in, conditions are almost unbearable.

Manufacturers and retailers have been putting a brave face on it so far, but it is useless to disguise the fact that things are not as they should be, and the only consolation lies in hoping that it is the weather alone that is to blame, as that handicap must necessarily be only temporary.

Things are not so dull in the leaf market. Business has kept up pretty well in all grades and branches of the market, and sales are pretty steady and frequent. There is still considerable dealing in 1903 Wisconsin Havana Seed binders. There is not a great deal of Sumatra on hand, and what is to be had is being taken readily. The Havana market was not so active during the week, for the reason that prices are very high, there is not a tremendous amount in stock, and dealers are perfectly willing to wait awhile to see what is doing.

It was finally decided at the meeting of the Retail Cigar and Tobacco Dealers' Association last Tuesday night, to hold the Tobacco Show on October 23 to 29 inclusive, in the Grand Central Palace, which building has been decided upon after much consideration.

This gives the committee eight full months to develop their plans so that when the affair does come off it should be something very swell. The local association has a sufficiently good opinion of itself to believe that it can make the consumers open their eyes, and those who have watched the association from its inception, share that good opinion.

There are a number of reasons why the Grand Central Palace is regarded as a more suitable hall than the other buildings considered, and too, not the least important, are that the main hall is easy of access from the entrance, and that smoking is permitted. A smoker can't see a lot of things to smoke without wanting to light up, and permission to smoke will be generally appreciated. There will be more than seventy exhibits if all the space is used, and a number of other privileges can be let.

It was also decided at this meeting to celebrate the second anniversary of the birth of the Association on February 28, when there will be special doings under the supervision of the following committee: H. G, Silverstone, Fred Aschner, D. Oshinsky, J. W. Geyer, S. J. Freeman, L. Oshinky, W. W. St. John and Mr. Lueshner. There will be speechifying and entertainment of another nature to celebrate the event.

The Waldorf Astoria Segar Co. is developing very rapidly and is now not only a big factor in the New York market but others as well. The Company announces that it has placed its La Magnita and Armas de Oro, clear Havana brands, on the London market in response to a decided demand for them on the part of those who have learned to like them on this side. This will be but the entering wedge, and it is probable that before long the Company will be doing a big business among the Britishers.

The continued activity in domestic leaf circles has been the topic of considerable discussion here lately. Buyers seem to have almost completely changed their front and are now looking at any and all kinds of domestic leaf which seems at all likely to meet requirements even if not just exactly the type of tobacco most desired.

In Sumatra it was expected that the approach of the inscription season would have a desultory effect upon the market, but it has proven erroneous for the market has continued very satisfactory, and in view of the fact that stocks in importers' hands have been so greatly depleted and the further fact that it will still be a number of weeks before any new goods will be available there is reason to believe that these conditions will continue.

Havana tobacco continues strong in demand and in excess of supplies available, which is already proving a serious handicap to many manufacturers.

THE NEWS FROM DAYTON.

Cold Weather Makes it Hard for Buyers in This Field.

Dayton, O., Feb. 18, 1905.

The American Cigar Co. has withdrawn twelve of their buyers from this field. Each of these, it is said, has purchased 800 acres or more of the 1904 Zimmers. Smaller buyers are now riding throughout the country looking for reasonable purchases. It is sufficient, however, to state that the heavy buying the past few weeks makes their task a seemingly hard one. On account of the continued cold spell, with its usual accompaniments of snow and almost impassable roads, tobacco buyers' trials have been greatly augmented. The extremes of low temperature and high prices are tough propositions to be up against.

It is reasonably certain that there will be a considerable increase in the acreage of Seed and Dutch to be planted this year. The prices paid for the above mentioned varieties of the 1904 crop would justify this statement. While Seed is a fairly staple article, the same cannot be said of Dutch, to which fact a number of local packers will bear testimony.

W. W. Hales, the well known tobacco packer and inspector, retains much of his youthful vigor and health. Mr. Hales' connection with the trade extends over a period of forty years. As a judge of Ohio tobacco he has no superior.

Mr. Fleming, representing the "Red Devil," is temporarily located in this city with headquarters at the Algonquin Hotel. He is here in the interest of his well known brand, and has an efficient staff of hustlers in this section who are making "Rome howl" singing the praises of the red demon.

Brewer & White, the local cigar manufacturers, are rapidly forging to the front with their William Dean Howells cigar. The sales of the above brand the past year have justified its being pushed. Frank and "Col. Tom" have reason to expect great things during the present year.

Wm. Winters, of Wm. Winters & Co., is drumming up trade in Northern Ohio and Indiana. If weather reports be true, we have reason to expect that Billy is meeting with a rather cool reception.

The smaller packings of 1903 tobaccos are pretty thoroughly cleaned up. There is still some 1902 in ouside hands, and these are now engaging the buyers attention. If the latter is picked up as rapidly as the former crop has been, the holdings of old tobaccos in the smaller packers' hands will be a matter of ancient history when summer is ushered in.

AN EXPERT TELLS HOW TO CURE.

Talks Interestingly on What Should Happen After Leaf is in Barn.

"Some of those who cure a good deal of tobacco every year have something to learn yet," said an expert who was spending a day in Philadelphia, "and yet it is not a very complicated proposition.

"The expert at curing tobacco is always careful to open the barn doors and slats for ample ventilation during bright, dry days, the first few weeks after the leaf is hung. He is equally careful to close up the barn during muggy nights, or when there is much humidity in the air.

"To keep out the night's dampness and to get rid of accumulated evaporation of moisture in the tobacco barn during bright, dry days, is the first step toward a good cure. Yet how often even this fundamental precaution is neglected. Then the careless farmer wonders at pole sweat. There is no excuse for this neglect in good weather.

"Bad weather—that is, when there is much rain or mugginess, with little sun shine or circulation—while the leaves are still comparatively green in the barn, is a condition that every intelligen tobacco planter dreads. If this condition continues any great length of time there is great danger of pole sweat or fat butts If this danger becomes acute it can be practically guarded against by artificial heat and artificial draft.

"To provide these set up a stove as near the middle of the tobacco shed as convenient, running the smoke pipe to the end of the barn as near the floor as possible, at just enough incline to make a draft.

"Near the end of the barn, of course, the pipe turns upward and comes out at the roof or high enough on the side to insure a draft. Keep a very moderate fire, remove the tobacco that hangs near the stove or near the pipe, and as the leaves closest the source of heat dry out exchange such slats for those hanging in the more distant places, where the moisture is still great.

"Open the cupola or the doors in the peak or make openings in the peak under the eaves, then admit air at the bottom. The heat will form a current that will gradually drive off the air within the barn, which is laden with the evaporated moisture from the leaves.

"Of course, in good, bright, dry weather this precaution is not needed, but for lack of it in prolonged wet weather much leaf is ruined. The amount of heat must be regulated with great care so as not to overdry or bake the leaves. The latter risk can be reduced to a minimum compared to the danger from pole sweat in prolonged muggy weather.

"Hang burlap to protect tobacco in sheds where the door is missing or where the leaves may be wind-whipped or scorched by the afternoon sun. Every little precaution like this should be taken to insure the cure of a good crop."

To Benefit Our Readers.

The Tobacco World wants to receive from week to week all questions relating to the trade which may be puzzling its subscribers, and will be glad to supply any information in its possession or obtainable.

The columns of the paper are also open to readers for the discussion of current trade topics. If you have a decided opinion on a matter, express it, and see if some one else has good reasons for thinking otherwise.

All letters should be addressed to the "Correspondence Editor" and must be accompanied by the name and address of the writer, which may be withheld when desired.

A WASTE OF MONEY?

Two different tobacco merchants who were called upon recently by an advertising representative of The Tobacco World, made the definite statement in the course of a brief conversation that any money spent in advertising was money thrown away.

"We don't believe in advertising," they said. "It's simply a waste of money."

With due respect to the right of these gentlemen to hold an opinion, such an attitude as this excites the same compassion in our breast as would the spectacle of some poor fellow repeatedly butting his head against a stone wall beside an open gate.

There would be an absolute paralysis of trade if all advertising were to cease, and the clearness of that fact is so simple that it seems silly to discuss it.

The history of every successful firm is the history of its advertising. The American Tobacco Co., for instance, would be the first to admit that its present prosperous organization could never have been perfected if it had not been for the intelligent advertising department.

The man who declares that he is wasting his money when he advertises sounds suspiciously as if either he had nothing to advertise or was merely trying to conceal financial weakness. Or a more charitable interpretation may be that he has advertised, has advertised improperly, and in this manner failed to reap the benefit of his appropriation for that purpose.

There was once a firm which got the idea that it could get along without advertising. This frame of mind was the result of some mixup it had experienced in its advertising campaign, and the firm became so wrathful in its opinion of the non-value of advertising that it went to the other extreme and placarded the town with announcements that Jones & Co., First and Blank streets, did not advertise. "We are the people who don't advertise," they told everybody who passed a billboard or a blank wall, or rode in a street car or picked up a circular along the street.

And the firm was so deficient in a sense of humor that it could not perceive the paradox, and noticed with fatuous satisfaction that business did not fall off to any appreciable extent.

There is not a single successful business house in this country—a house which has something to sell in the open market—that is not obliged to advertise, and the sooner these two firms mentioned wake up to that fact the better it will be for them.

SPRING! O SPRING!

Everybody at present seems to be camping out on their haunches waiting wistfully for spring. Business is in more or less of a rut, but a rut that shallows up to grade as it approaches the season of promise.

This winter has been an unusually hard one for the tobacco business. The roads have been tied up a great deal of the time, there have been constant standstills caused by a waiting for better weather which never came, the consumer has been nearly discouraged out of his desire to consume, and a scarcity of tobacco in many sections has resulted in abnormal prices.

The majority of these conditions will be obviated by a pleasant spring, and the crop condition is not so serious that it need be worried over. March is nearly here, but as March in late years has exhibited a kaleidoscopic character entirely feminine, no reasonable prediction can be made as to what the month will serve up in the weather line this year. It seems certain, however, that the first reliable harbinger of springtime will produce a sudden activity in business circles that will be universally gratifying.

ATTENTION is called to an extensive article printed in other columns of this issue which presents an extremely interesting economical and historical study of the tobacco farmer in the South for the past half century.

The article shows that when the planter began the cultivation of tobacco he was more prosperous than he has been at any period since, not because of slave labor, but for the reason that he marketed his own crop. The gradual arrival of the crossroads agent, his building up of a business in loose tobacco to a point where he took the farmers' entire crops and speculated in them, the final assertion of the buyer and his journey past the agent to the farmer himself, and the consequent turning of the tables on the farmer until now the latter is struggling for protective organization, make a highly entertaining essay to those not vitally interested, and a very instructive one to those who are.

Philadelphia Tobacco Trade.

Leaf Dealers' Jottings.

The leaf market was, generally speaking, in better shape this week than it has been for some time, there being a very fair demand and a number of good sales reported. The men who were out on the road had a hard time getting around on account of the closed roads, and those who went up the State found a number of factories working on short time.

In spite of this, however, a number of jobbers and manufacturers were in the local market and found what they wanted, even if it was at considerably higher prices than they liked to pay. The business in Havana was as good as the dealers wanted it to be, as in view of the uncertain 1905 crop, dealers would prefer to wait a little before they reduce their stocks very materially. Pennsylvania filler was very high, at least 25 or 30 per cent higher than it was bought from farmers last year, and there was considerable inquiry.

E. A. Calves, who is in Havana buying whatever he can find to suit him, is not having a very easy time. He writes that the market is pretty well cleaned up of the higher grades, and prices remain very stiff. It is impossible as yet to tell anything definite about the new crop. Mr. Calves, who will return in about two weeks, says that the weather down there has been very fine.

Jake Labe, of B. Labe & Sons, has returned from his Western trip and reports good business, with still better to come.

Bremer Bros. had a very good week, and expect the market to continue active from now on, unless there are some more serious setbacks on account of the weather.

L. P. Kimmig is spending several days in town now looking after a big deal that is on the carpet.

G. W. Newman, of Young & Newman, has just returned from a trip up the State, where he says he encountered snow drifts twenty feet deep. Mr. Newman says that in the sections through which he traveled salesmen found it very difficult to get around at all.

The market is looking up with George Burghard, who reported a better demand during the week for his well assorted stock.

With Manufacturers and Jobbers.

G. W. Bushnell, of the Scotten Dillon Co., tobacco manufacturers of Detroit, was calling on the trade during the week. Mr. Bushnell is looking after the eastern trade.

A. C. Valentine & Son have had some new advertising pictures prepared which fully bear out the reputation which this firm has made for artistic and beautiful advertising matter. One very handsome picture of a woman's head exploits the Betsy Ross cigar. A large humidor has just been constructed on the office floor of the firm on Seventh street and a new electrical Paul Jones' sign, has been put up.

Sam Jacobs, of Gumpert Bros., has returned from his Pittsburg trip and reports fair business. He was considerably hindered, though, on account of the snow.

The temporary difficulties of S. Omicron & Co., which were caused by a dispute between the two partners have been settled by the purchase of his partner's interest by J. G. Teese, who will conduct the business as heretofore. Application was made some days ago by Spyro Cargas, the other partner, for the appointment of a receiver, and Judge Ralston named I. Dietrich, who has a cigar store next to the Omicron place on South Broad street. It was understood that the firm was not in financial difficulty and that it was only a matter of a few days before the matter would be settled. This was accomplished by the sale, as stated, and the affairs of the company will not be disturbed. It is reported that Mr. Cargas will go into the manufacturing business for himself.

The ignorance of a thief, and the prompt action of Max Rappaport, manufacturer at 702 South Fifth street, resulted in the thief's undoing on Saturday. Mr. Rappaport deserves much credit for the shrewd way in which he landed the man behind the bars where he is likely to stay for a time.

The thief, who has given several names and addresses to the police, came into Mr. Rappaport's place last Saturday and offered some tobacco for sale, offering a sample. He said that he would sell a package of it for $2. Mr. Rappaport recognized it as a very high grade of tobacco for cigarettes, which would probably cost the manufacturer $2 a pound.

The package offered by the man would run about 22 pounds.

Naturally the manufacturer was suspicious, but parleyed with the man finally getting him to agree to sell the tobacco for $1.60. He didn't have the package with him but said he'd get it. While he was gone Mr. Rappaport sent for a policeman in plain clothes.

The man returned with the tobacco and the officer arrived just in time to see him sign a receipt. The man said he had five more packages and would bring them one at a time. He was promptly arrested. Mr. Rappaport recognized the tobacco as a grade much used by Stephano Bros., and communicated with them. They examined their warehouse at 256 South Ninth street and found eight packages missing. The thief was given a hearing and held for court. It is believed that he must have secured the tobacco in the daytime as it would be practically impossible for him to get into building without detection at night.

During a conversation with Mr. Z. J. Norris, the Philadelphia manager of I. Lewis & Co., Newark, N. J., attention was called to a statement published in these columns to the effect that Mr. Norris proposed to represent in the future both the houses of I. Lewis & Co., and the Allen Tobacco Co. This was a misconception of facts. Mr. Norris has agreed to serve the Allen Tobacco Co. until such time as they may be able to make other arrangements. He is the regular representative in this territory of I. Lewis & Co., and will retain his connection with that house.

George Frings and wife, of J. Frings' Sons, and Nelson Eberbach, of A. B. Cunningham & Co., have gone to Cuba for a six weeks' trip.

S. S. Newburger, of Stewart, Newburger & Co., is on the road for the firm and if he follows out his usual custom, will soon be sending in batches of orders.

John M. Kolb, of Theobald & Oppenheimer Co., is on a trip to Florida and Cuba where he will look after the firm's interests.

There was a report on the street during the week that Harvey D. Narrigan was about to sell out his business. A number of people went to Mr. Narrigan to find out about it.

"Yes," said Mr. Narrigan, "we are going out of business to every concern that can't pay its bills. As far as they're concerned, we're not in business now, even. I am not running a banking house, and I can't do a credit business. Otherwise, we're still doing business at the same old stand."

Here and There With the Retailers

Business among the retailers was still pretty bad during the week, but there is a hope now that there is an end in sight unless March proves one of the typical old time Marches. A good many salesmen were in town, and all of them reported things to be pretty slow.

"The coal dealers are getting all the money in sight," said a Broad street dealer in explanation of the flatness, "and there's more truth in that than you think. Every householder in the city has had to spend more money for coal this winter than usual, and there's something about a big coal bill that always makes a man grouchy, and gives him the idea that he's got to call in a lot of his other expenses to make up for it. As a consequence, the cigar dealers suffer."

Suprise will be caused in the trade by learning that B. Frank Batten, one of the most popular retailers in the city, has disposed of his store on Ninth street, just above Arch. Mr. Batten sold very suddenly to Nathan Davis, a newcomer in the trade who took immediate possession.

Mr. Batten was standing in his store one day last week when a stranger entered and promptly asked him if he didn't want to sell out.

"I hadn't thought of it," answered Mr. Batten.

"Well, I want a store, and I want it in this neighborhood where I've got a lot of friends, said the man, and if we can agree on a figure I'm ready to do business on the minute."

This was a little sudden for Mr. Batten and he thought it over hastily and then named a figure. This was almost satisfactory, and after a little talk, the man handed over a roll of bills and got a bill of sale. The deal speaks well for Mr. Batten's reputation as a square man.

Mr. Davis is an old showman and well known in his business. He was with Buffalo Bill for many years and also with Barnum. He is a Civil War veteran, and feels now that he wants to settle down in one locality.

The M. J. Dalton Co., at the Thirteenth and Chestnut street store are having a run on Don Marino perfectos, at 5 cents straight, El Tributo, at $6 a hundred or 4 for a quarter, and La Prosperidad, at $12 for puritanas and $10 for conchas.

Among the salesmen who got around among the retail trade this week were J. M. Batterton, of Ruy Lopez y Ca.; Arthur Lincoln, of P. Pohalski & Co., Mr. Del Pino, of Del Pino & Williams; Leo Levy, of the National Cuba Co.; Al Metzger, of Berriman Bros., and Mr. Gleischman, of Leopold, Powell & Co.

Robert E. Lane, the well known New York dealer, paid a quiet visit to Philadelphia, last week, and shook hands all around.

Irwin Dietrich, South Broad street dealer, is having quite a run on his Stratford Bellevue and Floradelphia 5 cent brands and the Dietrich Perfecto and Dietrich Rothschild 10 cent smokes.

BOSTON BUSINESS BETTER.

What Was Doing This Week Among the Trade.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 19.

The weather has been a little milder the past week and business is improving a little. The month of February so far has been one of the worst months experienced in years.

At Henry Traiser & Co.'s factory, which is the largest union cigar factory in the United States, having turned out last year about eighty million cigars, they have the usual number of cigarmakers employed. The firm's famous brand of cigars, Pippins, is being sold now from coast to coast. The people in Boston when they purchase cigars as a rule buy union made cigars, but I am sorry to state when buying tobaccos they are not particular, and invariably buy Mayos or B. L.

The cigarmakers' union here is very strong, and is spending vast sums of money urging people to buy nothing but union made cigars, and the sooner the Tobacco Workers' International Union follow their course the better the conditions will be.

I. Alter, 880 Washington street, enjoys a good retail trade. A good window display of Puritan Little Cigars and Kozy cut plug can be seen this week.

Turkish Delights and Orients, of the Khedivial Co., New York, are getting very popular here with the Turkish cigarette smokers. Victor Sheppard has been working nights as well as days placing these goods, and Sam Harris selected a good man to represent his firm here when he took Sheppard away from the American Tobacco Co.

William the Fourth clear Havana cigars are selling well, and Rosenthal Bros., the distributors, are doing all they can to make them a lasting success.

Baker Bros.' Smokers are also duplicating in grand style. In popularity they come next to the Schuberts in this class of goods.

Resolutions of sympathy and regret were adopted at the meeting of Cigarmakers' Union, No. 97, last night on the death of Fred A. Tilsch, president of the F. X. Oberle Co., makers of the old reliable Bostonia cigar. Mr. Tilsch had been a member of this union a good many years.

The Brooklyn Briar Pipe Works, of Brooklyn, had their representative calling on the trade this week.

M. Schlesinger Co., of Worcester, Mass., was incorporated last week with a capital of $4,000. D. Weiss is president and M. Schlesinger treasurer.

F. H. Donnell, with the A. T. Co., is doing missionary work on Union Leader cut plug, which is selling to the retailers at 35c, less 2 per cent, and five packages of Mayos cut plug gratis with each five pound carton.

The American Tobacco Co. is giving to retailers for free distribution, sample packages in one ounce foils. They are also making many handsome window displays.

D. Benditson, the well known Hanover street jobber, spent two days in New York this week.

F. R. Ginn, who had been on the sick list a few days last week, is now able to attend to business.

The various brands of smoking tobaccos of the Falk Tobacco Co., of Richmond, Va., are being displayed in the windows of many prominent dealers here.

L. Miller & Sons' representative, S. A. Frank, is being kept busy taking orders for their popular brand, Kozy cut plug, 2½-ounce foil, which retails at 5c. Being on the market but a short time, it is surprising to note the good sale which this brand enjoys.

I. Dlegech has opened a retail cigar store at 169 Cambridge street.

Mr. Mulligan, who has been a window dresser for the American Tobacco Co. on Mogul cigarettes for the past two years and a half, has severed his connection with that firm and has accepted a similar position with the Menoshi Cigarette Co., of Boston. He is making some fine window displays in such stores as the Commonwealth Cigar Co., D. Frank &

BURLEY GOING TO THE BREAKS.

Growers' Association Farmers Consider that Pledges No Longer Bind.

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 18.

A number of farmers who had pledged themselves to the Burley Growers' Association have taken it for granted that the Association has failed in its project and are sending their crops to the breaks.

President W. B. Hawkins, of the Burley Growers' Association, who has been working hard for months for the success of his plan, is said to be in Florida. The farmers are placed in a position where they must either sell at once or take small prices later on, and they feel justified in marketing their crops.

A. G. SEEGER A BANKRUPT.

A. G. Seeger, a cigarmaker with the firm of Fred Seeger & Co., cigar manufacturers at 227 Lincoln avenue, Chicago, has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy because he has been unable to meet debts amounting to $23,206. The debts have been incurred within the past fifteen or twenty years, during which time he had been in business for himself.

PHILADELPHIA CIGARMAKER SUES HIS PARTNERS.

Manuel J. Portuondo filed a bill in equity in Common Pleas Court on Monday against his partners, Louis Weinberg and Samuel Spkoloff, asking for the appointment of a receiver for the Manuel J. Portuondo Cigar Company.

According to the bill filed, the copartnership was entered into on October 15, 1904, and Portuondo's name was used alone in promoting the sale of cigars. He claims that Weinberg and Spkoloff refused him access to the books of the firm, and he said that he believes that they made false entries to deceive him. Besides asking for a dissolution of the partnership and an accounting, he requests an order enjoining the firm from using his name in connection with its cigars.

Incorporations, Changes, Etc.

The Maxwell Manufacturing Co., to manufacture tobacco, has been incorporated with $50,000 capital, by P. R. Palethorpe, A. J. Simpson, of Louisville; C. E. Kersey, S. W. Smith and R. H. Stark, of Wilson, N. C.

The Japad Company, of New York, has been incorporated with a capital of $10,000 to manufacture cigar lighting devices, by W. H. Kirkwood, R. O. Hammond and E. L. Haynes, all of Buffalo.

J. Weinberg, of Ridgeland, will erect a cigar factory at Beaufort, S. C.

Youmans & Price, of Waycross, will remove their city factory to Savannah, Ga., and will largely increase its capital.

FAIRLY ACTIVE IN YORK.

Considerable Leaf is Being Shipped to Lancaster Houses.

York, Pa., Feb. 20.

The tobacco business in this section has been somewhat quiet for several weeks, yet cigar manufacturers are keeping fairly active, while in several sections of the county more hands are wanted.

A considerable quantity of leaf is again being shipped from this county, mostly to Lancaster houses.

There have been rumors here for some time of the contemplated opening of a new tobacco jobbing house in this city, but it was not until last week that things began ty shape themselves definitely and it is now an assured fact that York will soon have another wholesale tobacconist's establishment.

The name of the new firm will be Myers Brothers, who are sons of E. Myers, senior member of the well known cigar manufacturing firm of Celestino Costello & Co.

The new firm will occupy a building on North Beaver street at the intersection of the Pennsylvania railroad, known as the Myers & Adams Leaf Tobacco Warehouse. It is proposed by the new firm to handle independent tobacco exclusively. They are beginning business under very favorable circumstances and deserve success.

In the vicinity of Red Lion, where business seemed to be a little quiet during January, there is a considerable improvement this month.

C. A. Rost & Co., leaf dealers at Red Lion, have recently received several carloads of tobacco which is being inspected before it will be offered to the trade.

Augustus Sonneman & Sons, received their first consignment of leaf some days ago at their warehouse in Court alley, near King street. Considerable of the tobacco came from Chanceford. The price paid was about 8 and 2.

Charles A. Rost, leaf dealer, received two carloads of leaf a few days ago.

W. H. Snyder & Co., cigar manufacturers, of Windsorville, are drawing plans for the erection of a big factory during the coming spring. The new plant will be a three story building and will permit the firm to increase its force 100 per cent.

G. W. Gable, cigar manufacturer, has built an iron storehouse in which to store his surplusage of cigars. Mr.

THE SITUATION IN LANCASTER.

Lancaster, Pa., Feb. 20.

The local leaf market continues to be quiet in old goods, but it must be remembered that stocks have been so greatly depleted that no unusual activity could be expected, even if general conditions otherwise were more favorable than they appear to be.

Warehouses are receiving large quantities of the 1904 crop now, and activity among packers is certainly at its height. Some buying is still going on, although crops not yet purchased are becoming more scattered and there appears to have been no material change in price. There is considerable tobacco being received here from York county.

In manufacturing circles there is perhaps a slight improvement owing to the betterment in weather conditions.

H. W. Killian, cigar manufacturer of Ephrata, was spending several days last week in the Philadelphia trade.

S. R. Moss has gone on an extended Western business trip.

THE SLUSH CONTRIBUTION.

Chicago Journal Still Doing Business at the Old Stand.

The custard pie editor of the Chicago Journal is still writing fudge essays for the benefit (?) of the independents. Another mess:

In order to observe the methods of the tobacco trust, three experts, under the direction of the publicity department of the Independent Cigar Dealers' Association of Chicago, have finished an interesting test.

One of these experts disguised himself as a laborer and visited a trust store, purchasing a cigar.

The second expert, dressed as a person of ordinary circumstances, bought a cigar of the same brand.

The third expert, posing as a prosperous merchant, asked for the same kind of cigar the others had bought.

Later the three compared their purchases. The cigars were dissected and it was found that the laborer had been given one of very poor quality; the second purchaser had received a cigar of slightly better grade, while the third purchaser had been given the sort of cigar that ordinarily sells at the rate of six for a quarter.

In tracing the various grades of tobacco used in the manufacture of these cigars, the experts found that Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, and Ohio furnished the raw material used. Not a trace of Havana tobacco was detected in any of the cigars.

"Such is the benevolent spirit of the New York tobacco trust, which claims to have opened cigar stores in Chicago solely for the benefit of consumers," said the head of the publicity department. "Like other trusts, it pretends to benefit the consumers, while in reality it is 'working' the public.

"Imagine the coal trust reducing the price of coal when it gets ready to sell direct to the consumer, or the beef trust reducing the price of meat in the sweet by-and by!"

Leaf Tobacco Markets.

CLARKSVILLE, TENN.

M. H. Clark & Bro.

Our receipts this week were 65 hhds.; offerings on the breaks, 3 hhds.; public and private sales 19 hhds.

The receipts are of the new crop, and the sales except a few hhds. were of old crop. The market was without new feature, the qualities offering being of low grade, and prices firm and unchanged.

Our severely cold weather has continued, preventing the handling of tobacco in the barns.

There is such a small proportion of the crop not controled by the Planters' Association that few sales of loose tobacco are made.

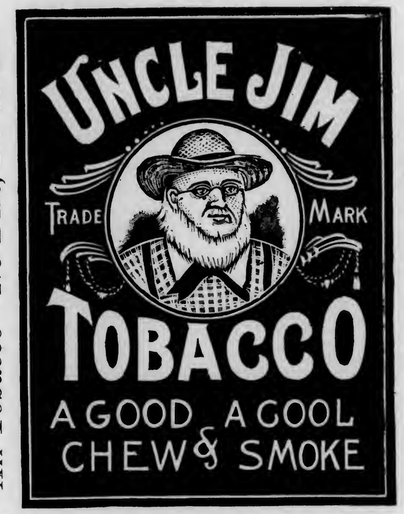
As the factories handling for export to Great Britain have lost some three months of working time, owing to the delay of sale of loose crops from the actions of the Planters' Association, and cold weather delaying the movement of the crop, the quantity to be exported will be greatly less than intended at the beginning of the season.

For old tobacco we continue to quote:

Low Lugs	$3.50	to	$3.75
Common Lugs	3.75	to	4.00
Medium Lugs	4.00	to	4.25
Good Lugs	4.25	to	4.75
Low Leaf	4.75	to	5.50
Common Leaf	5.75	to	6.75
Medium Leaf	7.00	to	8.00

EDGERTON, WIS.

A week of extreme winter weather and several blustering storms have served to reduce the tobacco movement in country districts to very light proportions. The drifted roads and zero temperature have kept dealers near at home as well as precluded much delivery at receiving points. Under less discouraging conditions the buying movement might continue for both old and new leaf, as the disposition to increase the holdings of these goods is evident. Sales of the new crop coming to notice are:



Ole Simonson, 12a at 7½ and 1c
G Halverson, 12a at 7, 6 and 1c
J Jorgenson, 8a at 8 and 1c
R Watson, 5a st 6½ and 1c
C Schluter, 3a at 6 and 1c
J Hogie, 5a at 6 and 1c
Nick Prell, 6a at 6 and 1½c
M Anderson, 4a at 7¼ and 2c
M Campion, 6a at 5¾ and 2c

The rustle for the remnants of old leaf in country hands continues, when weather conditions permit, and considerable quantities are changing hands among local packers. W. T. Pomeroy & Co. report the sale of about 300cs for the week. They have also received several car loads from the growing districts. The deliveries of the new crop are coming in slowly since the storms and some of the packing houses have about consumed their surplus of bundle stocks and may possibly have to close down for a time.

Shipments were 500cs.—Reporter.

THE TOBACCO FARMER AND HIS CHANCES.

With all the present agitation regarding the grower's proper position in the tobacco industry, whether he is becoming merely a slave of the soil to produce a certain commodity for just as much remuneration as the buyer chooses to allow him, a lengthy consideration of the subject is advisable before a conclusion is reached. The movements of the Burley Growers' Association in its effort to create a precedent in the establishment of what would practically be a farmers' trust, have been watched with much interest and the apparent downfall of the project is regarded with mixed sensations.

The following article is an exhaustive study of the farmer's position and prospects from his earliest appearance in the United States to his present numerous and ttentaively aggressive state. The article is by George L. Castner, of Clarksville, Tenn., who writes as follows:

I have divided the subject into three separate periods of time. First, the era before the war of 1861. The distinctive features of handling and selling tobacco during this period were, (1) slave labor was employed; (2) the tobacco was prized on the farm, and, (3) these hogsheads were then shipped to the market and sold there exclusively under competition to the highest bidder, sales being made for account of the grower, through warehouses conducted by experienced salesmen, expert as to grades and posted on values and market conditions. This appears to include every essential feature then employed, and while that period had its ups and downs, as all must, still as a whole it is conceded to have been an era of prosperity to the grower such as he has found in no period since that time.

The second period chosen is that following the war of 1861. On the resumption of farm work then, the same system was adopted. But changed conditions of labor presented a difficulty. Being free, labor was no longer subject to the same control and was correspondingly unreliable. For ordinary farm work there was, however, no substitute for it. But for the more particular work of assorting and prizing, a substitute was not long in appearing. Competent parties seeing the opening for profitable employment, came forward proposing to prize for the neighborhood and establishing themselves for this purpose in some convenient center. The relief assured by this arrangement is best evidenced by its gradual and extensive adoption. Farmers abandoned the screw, which had from time immemorial been regarded as an indispensable implement of the tobacco grower, and turned this work over to the agent at the crossroads. Generally his work appears to have been well done. The tobacco when prized continued to be sent to the market, being sold for account of the grower, and netting profitable and satisfactory returns.

But from this new move there proceeded an effect of such tremendous significance it is impossible to conceive that it was in even the smallest degree anticipated in the beginning. Starting as the merest pebble, it was soon to dam the stream and finally to turn its current exactly backward. It was destined to sever the lines connecting the farmer with his market and to give him not a single benefit in compensation for this loss.

It is easiest for me to describe it by a homely illustration: "Mr. Jones," when his prizing is completed, finds a remnant left over, 500 pounds, for example. What is he to do with it? "Mr. Smith" has tobacco like it waiting to be prized. He will see him, sell his remnant or buy enough from him to fill out his hogshead, or arrange to fill a hogshead jointly with him. But it takes time and riding to find Smith. He may not be at home or may not agree to a trade and joint shipments are not always satisfactory anyway. And so under the drift of such circumstances it soon comes about that Jones, Smith and others are still selling their remnants to the prizing agent himself. He is always on the spot, sees these interested parties without leaving his place, and buying their odds and ends at bargain prices, prizes and ships and sells for his own account. Bought low, the venture results in an easy profit and the taste of blood but whets the edge of appetite. He begins to "pick up" small crops, afterwards larger crops and finally the entire product of the community. Starting only as a prizing agent, he has become a fullfledged dealer—and the stream is dammed. He is in the market. The farmer is out of it.

I have thus described in a general way the causes leading up to and developing the period of the country dealer. Of course in different cases or districts there was doubtless some variety of detail, but this is not material to the subject, for the ground plan was substantially the same in all cases.

The dealer continued to prize and sell under competition, just as the farmer had done before him. His business prospered and it grew.

What the farmer ever gained by the complete and unnecessary surrender of his entire position I have never been able to find out. Perhaps some who read will be able to inform us. And why he ever yielded his position of equal importance on the market or came to regard that as one branch of his business not worth his personal attention and concern, and why he ever consented to change from the payment of a reasonable fee for prizing to that of allowing the dealer instead a profit on his tobacco, and placing that dealer in a position whence he might eventually, if so inclined, dictate his own terms, are two questions I am totally unable to answer. But this is exactly what he did do.

Let us make some notations right here:

First—The general practice of sales of tobacco loose from first hands dates from this period, being a result of the course then followed as shown.

Second—This era settles the fact that the prosperity of the first was not due to slave labor, for, all considered, there were in the second period, when labor was free, equally profitable results to the man who prized and sold in the open market

Third—That the tobacco was prized affords evidence only that this was the form of package then in demand by the trade. The work was done by or at the expense of the seller, and to this extent his net results were certainly lessened. The placing of a wooden hogshead around a bulk of tobacco could in reason add no more to the value of the tobacco itself than the paper and string around a bundle of calico could add to the value of the calico. So that the very best consideration the seller could expect his prized hogshead to receive would be price enough to compensate for its cost and the expense of prizing.

Fourth—If these things are so, then unquestionably it was the principle of the open market which yielded shippers every benefit they received during both these periods.

Our third era dates from the period when the dealer had reached the height of his prosperity. As the years rolled along the buyer in the market began to realize that he was buying less and less of the farmer's tobacco and more and more of the dealer's tobacco; began to question the necessity of the dealer as a middleman; began to figure that if the dealer could buy from the farmer at home and send the tobacco then to him and earn a good profit, that by going himself past the dealer and direct to the farm and trading there with the owner himself, he could save this profit. The only difference to the farmer would be that of miles—the greater distance to the point of delivery—a difference which could be easily adjusted in the price.

With the buyer appearing in the field as a competitor, the dealer clearly had to pay less or do business without a profit. But more than that, the buyer began to allege, and perhaps in all truth, that the dealer's prized hogshead was no longer an acceptable package to his patrons, and that on account of uncertain and defective packing he was compelled hereafter to discount his prices on prized tobacco. Thus hit on both sides, the days of the dealer as an independent class were clearly numbered. He was destined gradually but surely to disappear until today he is all but gone. But the effect of his work is still to be seen. He had already damned the stream which flowed from the farm to the market. Now its current was turned exactly backward. It was flowing from the market to the farm. When he had set his first screw he found the farmer selling his tobacco under competition in the open market and making no complaint about results. When for lack of material to work upon, his screw became idle, he found that the farmer, unqualified by experience, unskilled in grades and at best but crudely posted on values and market conditions, endeavoring to run a private market of his own and engaged in a titanic struggle to make both ends meet.

This brings us down to the present time. But not at all do present conditions mean that we have reached the final result possible under present methods. For these methods are as destructive an agency to competition as we can find. Nothing, for instance, will do more than barn selling to drive out the small buyer, a blunder than which none could be more fatal. Five such buyers starting in to do, say, only a quarter of a million pounds each, are worth more to the market than one buyer who is prepared to handle alone 10,000,000 pounds They may not have prepared to take altogether one fourth as much tobacco as the big fellow, but they will do five times the good in sustaining prices. In proportion as the big buyer may plan and scheme for more profits, will the little one plan and scheme for more business. Take away the little buyers and the big ones will take away a little of the price. Take away the big one and the five little ones will find a way all right to move all the tobacco that offers. Little buyers are a long sight better thing than little prices.

The farmer cannot afford to lose the little buyer, and the whole tendency of barn selling is to drive him out, since none but the large dealer can afford the heavy expense and risk it involves.

Should barn selling ever become the one established custom, it is inevitable therefore that the buying will be confined to the larger class of buyers. And then we will find ourselves at the beginning of a period well calculated to end in a permanent division of territory between these great powers, or in shifting all competition from the buyers to the farmers, they competing among themselves to obtain contracts for the cultivation of so many acres of tobacco under given conditions for certain buyers. Persistent barn selling has no logical conclusion.

In fact, a man has to see but once the tremendous and widespread loss following in all directions from indiscriminate selling, whether at the barn or elsewhere, to appreciate the fact that any real reformation of present conditions must start at this point, or, that if started elsewhere, it must end nowhere A long line broken in ten thousand places is no match against a shorter one representing concentrated strength.

The tobacco grower today has no single line of defense except the open market, and never did have any other. And he can blame no man more than himself if he has chosen to join issue outside of this line and has failed in the attempt. Such results have been known before. For, from the beginning of recorded trade, markets have been recognized as a necessity to—the seller. And in no page of history will he find any record showing deviation from this sound principle that loss has not resulted to—the seller.

It is my conclusion, flatfooted, that the farmer must in any event stand by his open markets, and that under present conditions he has got to go to it with a proposition to sell loose. Sales loose upon the warehouse floor have, I am told, become the established system in Virginia and the two Carolinas years ago. It has also been introduced in two markets of this district where it appears to have met decided favor among a large number. Its advocates claim (in line with the argument I am making) that it opens the door to the widest competition now on the market; that it also affords the best display of tobacco offered by any method; permits the sale of each grade strictly upon its own merits; affords equal chances for all sellers as well as for all buyers, and also avoids all possible risk of later reclamation or dockage. While, like every new idea, it has been subject to close scrutiny as well as occasional criticism on minor details, I have yet to hear an intelligent man deny the correctness of its claims, or affirm that they are equalled by any other system. And it should also be mentioned as a notable fact that, though we have now seen it in operation for three years in this district, no public expression unfavorable to it has been uttered either in print or speech. The strongest argument, however, in its favor is perhaps the fact that in Virginia and the two Carolinas it appears even years ago to have superseded all other methods of selling. This unmistakably indicates great merit. And that corresponding tobacco is bringing in that section considerably better prices than are current here, is plainly evidenced by the fact that there are firms who make it a business to buy here and, packing loose in cars, ship to Virginia for resale, or to substitute for higher cost goods there. We have no competition which is more aggressive, which pays more liberal prices, or has been more helpful. The business involves considerable expense for labor and freight, not to mention rents, office maintenance, salaries, license and traveling back and forth to Virginia, etc. And these figured out will give us but an approximate idea (for profits must be added to get it all) how far the line of values in Virginia, established on the basis of solidly competitive loose floor sales, runs ahead of ours, established on the basis of "every owner a salesman." And many carloads, possibly hundreds, go from here thus to Virginia, but rarely, perhaps never, does one come back.

It is the commonly accepted idea that tobacco values have been depressed through a systematic decrease in competition on the part of buyers. But a careful study of the subject will sustain but a very small part of this theory. The need of competition is plain—is always plain. But competition which is not concentrated on its object does not compete. And for our failure to get this concentration we are indebted solely to the iniquitous system of sales at the barn. In total disregard of all sound rules, it distributes its buying power over the widest area, and practically, if not actually, prohibits the appearance of any two buyers at the same place at the same time. When competition is "spread so thin," what wonder is it that men should feel the need for more?

But not content with its peculiar theories regarding competition, it goes further and stands squarely for the principle of "every owner a salesman." What ground has it for complaint, if its own "chickens come home to roost?" What ground when, following its teachings, inexperienced men carry their crops to the market and, undertaking to make their own sales, accept prices ranging in a great number of cases from $1 to $4 below market values, as has been notoriously done? The losses thus sustained and the wholesale price cutting which results indicate nothing as to competition except its disregard. The thing that was lacking was the experienced sulesman and his knowledge of market values and conditions. Spasmodic periods of high prices may occur to renew incentive, but fair values will never be sustained under any system which neither upholds the division of competition, or which advocates this dangerous principle.

People must die. Doctors are not necessary because they do. They are necessary only because people have a great variety of ills. When the afflictions of the human family are reduced to a single disease, doctors will disappear. They will not then be needed. Warehouses do not exist because tobacco is produced, but because it is a crop of a very great variety of grades. When every farmer plants the same variety of seed, every man gives his crop the same care, and all soils produce the same grade of tobacco, one man's crop will be worth exactly the same as another's, and once knowing the market price, the farmer can do as well without the warehouse in selling his tobacco as he can now do in selling his corn.

MIDDLETOWN WILL HAVE PLANT.

All Help Available will be Employed in New Factory.

Middletown, Pa., Feb. 17.

Thirty or forty of the subscribers to the proposed factory in this city met the other day and listened to information concerning the projected industry given by General Manager Lichtenstein of the United Cigar Manufacturers, of Harrisburg.

Mr. Lichtenstein stated that his company was attracted to Middletown because it was believed it would be easy to get women and girls for the factory, of whom the company employs many. A brick building 40 x 100 feet is needed, three stories high for which a good rental would be paid on a five year lease. All the help that could be procured would be hired. Mr. Lichtenstein stated that his company would subscribe $500 toward the factory, and a committee was appointed which accompanied the general manager over the town to look at a number of sites. It is regarded as certain that the deal will go through.

WITH THE TRADE IN CHICAGO

Trade is Better and Retailers are More Cheerful.

Chicago, Feb. 18.

The better weather in the past few days has had the effect of stimulating trade somewhat, especially among retailers, which, in numerous instances, is reported livelier than last week.

President Breitung, of the Chicago Branch, Cigar Dealers' Association of America, reports a favorable increase in association stamps being used by the local manufacturers, a fact which is of great encouragement to all friends of the independent movement.

John R. Thompson, the popular owner of numerous Chicago restaurants, has leased and reopened the large store on Randolph street, formerly owned by Charles H. Slack. In addition to the large stock of groceries, Mr. Thompson will carry a large line of cigars and tobaccos.

W. F. Monroe has returned from his trip to Tampa and vicinity, and reports a very pleasant visit.

The American Tobacco Co. is said to be inaugurating quite a lively campaign in this market for the Murad cigarette.

S. B. Steele, of the Steele-Wedeles Co., is in Atlantic City.

Ralph Simmons, the energetic young representative at this place for Morris Jacoby & Co., New York, has returned from a several weeks' trip to Western points, where he got a good touch of zero weather and saw the "beautiful" in goodly quantities. Mr. Simmons thinks Chicago's a fairly good climate, after all.

Leopold & Mergentheim, sole distributors of the celebrated La Tremona cigars, are exhibiting their usual up-to-dateness by a very attractive window display this week.

R. L. Berlizheimer, who has been struggling several weeks with a severe attack of pneumonia, is on the mend sufficiently to be able to sit up part of the time, but is not yet strong enough to meet his many friends.

Leo Tuska, the well known leaf broker in the Northern office building, is extending his Milwaukee patronage by several days' visit in that popular city.

The well established firm of Charles D. Altschul & Co. continue to add laurels to their reputation as makers of clear Havana cigars, as is evidenced from the growth of their business locally and elsewhere. A visit to their factory gives one at least a faint suspicion that "there's somethin' doin'."

Adolph Seckbach, of A. Santaella & Co., has left for a ten days' trip to Eastern points.

E. R. L.

—The death is reported of Adam P. Hill, a man well known on the Louisville breaks as an auctioneer, who died at his residence, 1032 Hepburn avenue, Louisville, Ky., last week. Pneumonia, contracted while following his vocation, was the cause of Mr. Hill's death.

OFFICIAL OF INDEPENDENT CO. CHARGES STRONG THREATS.

F. D. Ware, of Ware-Kramer Tobacco Co., of Wilson, N. C., Swears that President of Wells-Whitehead Co. Threatened, as Part of Trust, to "Crush Hell Out of Mr. Ware's Company."

A very dramatic controversy is being conducted in some of the Southern newspapers, which has for its cause the claim made by the Ware-Kramer Tobacco Co., of Wilson, N. C., that reports have been circulated by enemies of the company to the effect that the Ware-Kramer Co. was organized by Boykin & Co., wholesale grocers of Wilson, at the instigation of the American Tobacco Co. for the purpose of killing the Wells-Whitehead Co., which concern the American Tobacco Co. had been making futile efforts to kill or buy.

The officials of the Ware-Kramer Co. say they have heard such reports as these a number of times, and they are decidedly sore about them for the reason that they are calculated to do an independent factory much harm.

The company says the boot is on the other leg, and as a result, the following affidavit was prepared and made public which is, to say the least, sensational:

F. D. Ware, being duly sworn, deposes and says:

That he was from the organization of the Wells-Whitehead Tobacco Co. in January, 1900, until the 8th day of September, 1904, the manager of said company.

That affiant learned on or about the 18th day of July, 1904, that a controlling interest in the stock of the Wells-Whitehead Tobacco Co. had been sold to parties whose names the president of the Wells-Whitehead Tobacco Co. (who negotiated and consummated the sale) refused to disclose. On that date, affiant tendered his resignation as manager of said company, which was not accepted, however, until the 8th day of September, 1904. That in the meantime the president of the Wells Whitehead Tobacco Co., who was retained under the new regime as president, used his best efforts to induce affiant to remain manager of the company.

That, after affiant tendered his resignation as manager, but before it was accepted, the president of the Wells-Whitehead Tobacco Co. stated to affiant that he "had tried hard to make success as an independent manufacturer, but it was impossible for an independent concern to succeed and buck the government" (meaning thereby the American Tobacco Co.). "That finding it impossible for an independent factory to live, he had made terms" (or an agreement) "with the trust whereby the Wells-Whitehead Tobacco Co. could live and make money."

Affiant proceeded to take steps to effect the organization of the Ware-Kramer Tobacco Co. for the purpose of conducting an independent cigarette business because he was convinced that The American Tobacco Co. had secured control of the Wells Whitehead Tobacco Co., as it seemed to be their policy to buy the controlling interest in certain factories which were injuring them, and afterwards allowing them to run as independent factories.

At the first meeting of the stockholders of the Ware-Kramer Tobacco Co., Mr. D. S. Boykin, of the wholesale grocery firm of Boykin & Co., was unanimously elected president because of his superior business ability and recognized financial standing.

On about the 8th day of September, 1904, after the organization of The Ware-Kramer Tobacco Co., the president of the Wells-Whitehead Tobacco Co., in a conversation with affiant relative to the acceptance of affiant's resignation as manager of the Wells-Whitehead Tobacco Co and the organization of the Ware Kramer Tobacco Co., said to affiant:

"Do you know what the Standard Oil Co. is?

"Do you know what the American Tobacco Co. is?

"Do you know what the Morton Trust Co. is?

"And you surely do know what the Wells-Whitehead Tobacco Co. is.

"Now these four are one, and will crush hell out of you and your new company. If you go to China, Japan or anywhere in the world we will follow you even to the gates of hell and crush the life out of your company. We will do this by fair means or foul."

F. D. WARE.

This doubtless made interesting reading for the Wells Whitehead Co., which has always been considered a staunch independent company. It is an important concern, and disclaims any connection whatever with the American Tobacco Co.

COMBINE RAISES BURLEY PRICES.

Firmness in Cincinnati Market May be Move Against Growers' Association.

Cincinnati, O., Feb. 24.

The tobacco combine raised the price on white burley in this market and is buying freely. It is thought that the move is made as the driving of another nail in the coffin of the Burley Growers' Association, which is generally admitted to have failed because of the refusal of New York capitalists to finance its operations.

Others think, however, that there is a more simple reason—that the combine was running short and desired to secure an ample supply quickly even at considerable expense.

Those who aver that it is another move against the Burley Association argue that the raising of the prices will cause the farmers to unload in a very short time, so that there will not be even the slightest chance of cornering the market by the association.

It is said that buyers for the combine have been securing large lots of tobacco direct from the farmers, which means a considerable loss in warehouse receipts.

Anticipating a tremendous inflow of tobacco when the farmers, generally, do begin to market their crops, circulars have been sent to them calling attention to the advantages of this market over the Louisville market, and it is hoped and believed that the major portion of the crop will be marketed here.

WANT TO KNOW WHERE THEY ARE.

Chicago Journal's Scheme to Prevent Indiscriminate Sandbagging.

There is always something of fresh interest in these little extracts from the Chicago Journal, and it is to be hoped that the writer of them is getting his meals regularly. Any break in their succession would be a calamity.

For those men who have not the time to give to a thorough memorizing of the list of proscribed stores, it is suggested that the Journal issue a neatly printed and illustrated text book that a man might consult when he wants to smoke and finds himself in front of a store. In that way any danger of being sandbagged by getting in the wrong store, would be minimized. The extract:

Alarmed by the continuous agitation waged by the independent tobacco dealers against the tobacco trust and its cigar stores, the promoters of the trust have become alarmed at the decrease in their business and are seeking means to controvert the campaign of the small dealers.

Warnings of these secret means have been received from the small dealers themselves at the headquarters of the Independent Tobacco Dealers' association, and in these letters the stand taken by the Chicago dealers in their fight against the New York trust is applauded.

Letters have been received from consumers asking to be posted on the location of trust stores.

"I want to know where these store are located so that I can avoid them," writes one West side man, "I won't patronize them knowingly, and think it would be a good plan for all men who smoke and want to see fair play to communicate with the headquarters of the independent dealers and find out the standing of the man from whom they buy their tobacco and cigars.

"I don't want to be imposed upon, and I won't be any longer. I am ready to go out of my way to fight this trust."

NEW WAREHOUSE IN CINCINNATI.

It is Thought to be Part of Burley Growers' Association Prosposition.

Cincinnati, O., Feb. 25.

A new independent warehouse was opened in this city this week in the old Collins house, 7 to 17 East Water street, which is known at the Buckeye Tobacco Warehouse. A number of Kentucky people are said to be interested in the deal, but it does business under the name of A. Bradford & Co.

Though nothing definite has been given out as to the identity of those who are financing the project it is believed that it is one of the ramifications of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Association, and that the capital is money that was intended to be used in that deal. If the deal had gone through it is thought that much of the crop would have come to this warehouse to be marketed.

As it is, the managers of the new warehouse expect to get considerable of the Kentucky business, and there was a very fair showing on the first sales. Tandy Quisenberry, an old Louisville inspector, will do the inspecting, D. C. Collins, the auctioneering, while Abner Pryor, of Eminence, Ky., is the county agent.

On that date, affiant tendered his resignation as manager of said company, which was not accepted, however, until the 8th day of September, 1904. That in the meantime the president of the Wells Whitehead Tobacco Co., who was retained under the new regime as president, used his best efforts to induce affiant to remain manager of the company.

That, after affiant tendered his resignation as manager, but before it was accepted, the president of the Wells-Whitehead Tobacco Co. stated to affiant that he "had tried hard to make success as an independent manufacturer, but it was impossible for an independent concern to succeed and buck the government" (meaning thereby the American Tobacco Co.). "That finding it impossible for an independent factory to live, he had made terms" (or an agreement) "with the trust whereby the Wells-Whitehead Tobacco Co. could live and make money."

Affiant proceeded to take steps to effect the organization of the Ware-Kramer Tobacco Co. for the purpose of conducting an independent cigarette business because he was convinced that The American Tobacco Co. had secured control of the Wells Whitehead Tobacco Co., as it seemed to be their policy to buy the controlling interest in certain factories which were injuring them, and afterwards allowing them to run as independent factories.

At the first meeting of the stockholders of the Ware-Kramer Tobacco Co., Mr. D. S. Boykin, of the wholesale grocery firm of Boykin & Co., was unanimously elected president because of his superior business ability and recognized financial standing.

On about the 8th day of September, 1904, after the organization of The Ware-Kramer Tobacco Co., the president of the Wells-Whitehead Tobacco Co., in a conversation with affiant relative to the acceptance of affiant's resignation as manager of the Wells-Whitehead Tobacco Co and the organization of the Ware Kramer Tobacco Co., said to affiant:

"Do you know what the Standard Oil Co. is?

"Do you know what the American Tobacco Co. is?

"Do you know what the Morton Trust Co. is?

"And you surely do know what the Wells-Whitehead Tobacco Co. is.

"Now these four are one, and will crush hell out of you and your new company. If you go to China, Japan or anywhere in the world we will follow you even to the gates of hell and crush the life out of your company. We will do this by fair means or foul."

F. D. WARE.

This doubtless made interesting reading for the Wells Whitehead Co., which has always been considered a staunch independent company. It is an important concern, and disclaims any connection whatever with the American Tobacco Co.

COMBINE RAISES BURLEY PRICES.

Firmness in Cincinnati Market May be Move Against Growers' Association.

Cincinnati, O., Feb. 24.

The tobacco combine raised the price on white burley in this market and is buying freely. It is thought that the move is made as the driving of another nail in the coffin of the Burley Growers' Association, which is generally admitted to have failed because of the refusal of New York capitalists to finance its operations.

Others think, however, that there is a more simple reason—that the combine was running short and desired to secure an ample supply quickly even at considerable expense.

Those who aver that it is another move against the Burley Association argue that the raising of the prices will cause the farmers to unload in a very short time, so that there will not be even the slightest chance of cornering the market by the association.

It is said that buyers for the combine have been securing large lots of tobacco direct from the farmers, which means a considerable loss in warehouse receipts.

Anticipating a tremendous inflow of tobacco when the farmers, generally, do begin to market their crops, circulars have been sent to them calling attention to the advantages of this market over the Louisville market, and it is hoped and believed that the major portion of the crop will be marketed here.

WANT TO KNOW WHERE THEY ARE.

Chicago Journal's Scheme to Prevent Indiscriminate Sandbagging.

There is always something of fresh interest in these little extracts from the Chicago Journal, and it is to be hoped that the writer of them is getting his meals regularly. Any break in their succession would be a calamity.

For those men who have not the time to give to a thorough memorizing of the list of proscribed stores, it is suggested that the Journal issue a neatly printed and illustrated text book that a man might consult when he wants to smoke and finds himself in front of a store. In that way any danger of being sandbagged by getting in the wrong store, would be minimized. The extract:

Alarmed by the continuous agitation waged by the independent tobacco dealers against the tobacco trust and its cigar stores, the promoters of the trust have become alarmed at the decrease in their business and are seeking means to controvert the campaign of the small dealers.

Warnings of these secret means have been received from the small dealers themselves at the headquarters of the Independent Tobacco Dealers' association, and in these letters the stand taken by the Chicago dealers in their fight against the New York trust is applauded.

Letters have been received from consumers asking to be posted on the location of trust stores.

"I want to know where these store are located so that I can avoid them," writes one West side man, "I won't patronize them knowingly, and think it would be a good plan for all men who smoke and want to see fair play to communicate with the headquarters of the independent dealers and find out the standing of the man from whom they buy their tobacco and cigars.

"I don't want to be imposed upon, and I won't be any longer. I am ready to go out of my way to fight this trust."

NEW WAREHOUSE IN CINCINNATI.

It is Thought to be Part of Burley Growers' Association Proposition.

Cincinnati, O., Feb. 25.

A new independent warehouse was opened in this city this week in the old Collins house, 7 to 17 East Water street, which is known at the Buckeye Tobacco Warehouse. A number of Kentucky people are said to be interested in the deal, but it does business under the name of A. Bradford & Co.

Though nothing definite has been given out as to the identity of those who are financing the project it is believed that it is one of the ramifications of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Association, and that the capital is money that was intended to be used in that deal. If the deal had gone through it is thought that much of the crop would have come to this warehouse to be marketed.

As it is, the managers of the new warehouse expect to get considerable of the Kentucky business, and there was a very fair showing on the first sales. Tandy Quisenberry, an old Louisville inspector, will do the inspecting, D. C. Collins, the auctioneering, while Abner Pryor, of Eminence, Ky., is the county agent.

The Old Salesman's Musings.

A LITTLE WISDOM THAT IS EVIDENTLY NEEDED.

In the editorial columns of last week's Tobacco World, I noticed an artitcle which took for its motive the declaration of a couple of tobacco manufacturers that they were throwing money away when they spent it for advertising. The editor made a few remarks on the foolishness of such an attitude.

I want to second those remarks, boys, and to make the assertion that a man who has a contempt for advertising is an imbecile, to whom I wouldn't lend a two-spot if I thought I would need it again.

I'm a pretty old bird, I've seen the world quite some since I've been around, and it causes me a whole lot of surprise that any man level-headed enough to be at the head of a business, would make use of hot air in that careless way.

Why, I thought every one knew of the numberless fortunes that have been made from the sale of some commonplace article, and that have been made solely as a result of the tremendous investments in advertising.

I thought everybody knew that a merchant experiences a demand for what has been and is being advertised and has no call for what the consumer has no chance to know anything about.

I thought everybody knew that the jobber would rather deal in something that he knows is being well advertised and consequently will move more readily than experimental goods.

I thought everybody knew that the jobber would rather buy what he has seen advertised in an ad meant to appeal to him, than the goods that a salesman tries to shoot in on his own personality or popularity.

In short, I thought everybody knew that advertising has come to control the market, and that the consumer is guided by it, instinctively regarding the house that can't afford to advertise, as very tiny potatoes.

I've been taught that such ideas as that constitute the first principles of business and I've never had any reason to change my opinion. I know that no matter how good a salesman I was, I wouldn't be the poor son-of-a-gun to start out for a house that was never in the habit of advertising. I'd feel so hopelessly handicapped at the start, that the moral effect would prevent me from getting any results.

I honestly believe if, in the present day, a man were to start in businessgiving 101 cents for a dollar, there would be few transactions if he didn't do any advertising. That may sound silly, but I've seen so many first class propositions go to the wall because there wasn't sufficient capital to advertise properly, and I've seen so many much poorer schemes succeed, when there was, that I've got a right to be prejudiced.

I don't mean to say that a man with a bad penny can sell it for a dollar if he advertises in the right way, but I will say that he stands a pretty good chance of selling seventy-five cents for a dollar by that method, provided he doesn't lie too much about it.

I'll tell you an incident that recently came to my notice, which has nothing to do with business proper, but which shows the value of advertising:

In a town of six or seven thousand, not a great many miles from Philadelphia, is a Methodist church, which as is usual with its class, has a "revival" every winter. To those who are not familiar with the philosophy of this sect let it be explained that the church is supposed to have reached a rather low spiritual point by mid-winter and so a quickening is advisable. This is brought about by extra meetings, and the presence of special evangelists who make a business of conducting such affairs. The meetings are supposed to attract a number of outsiders into the fold.

In this church the revival has taken place according to schedule every year but of late years they have seemed more a matter of form than anything else, and few converts have been secured. The church is now in the hands of a new and young minister, who is more of a business man than a minister. In fact he announced at the start that he considered that he was in busines to save souls, and he worked along those lines.

He planned an advertising campaign just as complete and thorough as a New York business house would conceive and began operations. He had special meetings, or rather extra meetings, sometimes

THE REALM OF THE RETAILERS

TIMELY TALKS WITH ENTERPRISING DEALERS.

EVERY effort should be made to keep the store clean, light and full of pure air. Nothing is more attractive to customers than these points. Too often, windows are not only dirty, but are piled high with merchandise, which keeps out the light and air. Spotless walls, clean, well dusted shelves and counters, pure air and sunshine, are better advertisements than six months' insertion in the newspapers.

Too many dealers fail to see the value of the advertisement which is presented by the general appearance of everything connected with the store. Windows should be kept well dressed and clean. While there may be no means of having moving or automatic displays, a simple, well kept, clean window is sufficient to attract attention.

Push new ideas. Make your store the headquarters for them. Do not be afraid to ask advice of clerks as to the adoption of new ideas or the purchase of new merchandise. They have an intimate acquaintance with many customers which you may not have, and in many cases can give advice that is worth hundreds of dollars.

The subject of advertising plays a large part in the management of a store. The principal point in advertising is to place before the public attractive, new, and if possible, original ideas. If your store is divided into departments, or if you have made certain clerks responsible for certain classes of goods, it will be well to consult with them as to whether they have anything special which they wish advertised for sale. Old goods can be brought forward in this way and turned into money.

When goods are mentioned in an advertisement, prices should be mentioned with them. Some one has said that an advertisement without prices is like a man without a soul. The most important thing about the advertisement should be the prices.

Never let the public read the same thing twice in your advertisements. What they look for is something new, and if they do not find it they will soon pass over your advertisement as unworthy of notice.

One maxim might be made, which will hold throughout every branch of store management, and that is, that only unusual methods accomplish results. Careful study of the business; constant consultation with everyone interested; the attention of the management to the suggestions of every employe, however humble; the constant effort to keep up to date, and adopt new and good methods—these make up the sum and substance of good store management.

You can't accomplish special results without special effort.

CIGARS AT $5 PER.

HOW many dealers keep $5 cigars in stock? Not $5 a hundred, but $5 apiece for every one that you buy—$5,000 for one thousand of them, and nothing off for cash?

There's a certain dealer who claims to do some business on these high priced smokes. He says that every once in a while sporty-looking men will come in and demand the best in the store, whereupon they are shown the $5 article.

"The cigars are all Havana," says the dealer, "including the wrapper. They are five times as large as the ordinary londres or perfecto, and as it is rather hard to get a Havana leaf large enough to wrap cigars of this size, they naturally cost. I should say that in a thousand hands of Havana we wouldn't find more than one leaf of the proper size and quality.

"The men who get them like them, though, and I think that it is often the case where a broker or big business man who has put through a juicy deal successfully, if he doesn't feel like going out and drinking a bottle of wine, will send over and get a cigar for a five spot.

"The other day an errand boy came in and sauntered up to the counter. 'Give me a cigar,' said he, in a languid tone. 'Aw—something for about $5.'

"I said, 'Sneak out of here, kid,' but he threw down a $5 and named the right brand, so I knew he'd been sent to get it. We don't keep more than a million of them in stock, though."

DIDN'T HAVE 'EM THEN.

WILLIAM PINKERTON, the famous detective, was praising the various cash register devices which nearly every retailer now has in his store.

"These machines," he said, "have undoubtedly diminished crime. They have saved many weak persons from a daily, an hourly temptation hard to withstand. They have also saved employers a great deal of money, for they have driven the dishonest out of a field of work wherein they loved to labor in the past.

"I heard of a clerk the other day who was getting $8 a week. He had to be on duty at 7 in the morning, and he was not through till 7, and sometimes 8, at night. The poor fellow had no time for anything but work and sleep.

"He found time, though, to get married, and the week after the ceremony he asked his employer for a raise.

" 'Why, Horace,' the employer said, 'you are getting $8 a week. What ails you? When I was your age I kept a wife and two children on $8 a week and saved money besides.'

" 'They didn't have cash registers in those days,' said Horace bitterly."

THE SHOW WINDOW.

THE show window is created solely that samples of the stock may be shown to the very best advantage and act as a business getter, and if the arrangement is not always carefully studied for the best results, or if the display is thrown up hastily, it becomes a complete waste of space which cannot be used for any other purpose.

A show window is in a position where it must be looked into, and if it be properly dressed, it presents the cheapest and most effective means of advertising the goods in the store, because it costs nothing but the expense of the actual dressing, the material used in decoration being regular stock.

The decoration should be made with an abundance of light, which should not be allowed in any case to glare in the faces of the passersby or the lookers on. The lighting should be arranged like a stage, with footlights, sidelights and toplights. A row of lights at the bottom of the window, properly screened from the outside and placed close to the glass, acts as footlights and keeps the frost from collecting on the window pane.

The incandescent electric light is by far the best for window purposes and justifies the expense. The light is clear and strong, and can be placed in any position among inflammable material without danger.

The best results have been obtained from frequently changed displays, each display exploiting one article instead of a number. It is unwise to mix too much, as the effect becomes less striking in proportion to the increase of detail.

THE STORE INTERIOR.

ALWAYS remember that a well dressed window must be properly backed up by a well arranged store interior, or a large percentage of the benefit is lost.

Nothing more quickly casts a feeling of gloom and causes more depression among customers than to enter a dark store with the stock carelessly arranged. Appearance is not everything, but it has a great deal to do with the consummation of trade.

No matter how good a brand may be, its selling value depends on your or its manufacturer's ability to make people accept its value.

It is just as essential that goods be well handled and arranged in the store as well as in the window; remember the old saying that one man may lead a horse to water but six can not make him drink. You can get people to enter your store by an effective window, but if they are chilled on entering, they will make a small purchase, if any, and never come back.

You haven't got anything in your store that is so cheap or so unhandsome that it cannot he made to appear to advantage. But always be careful not to show poor goods in close contrast to better goods in the same class, as the only result will be to show up the defects of the cheaper stock. A good line of quarter pipes can be made to look very attractive to to a slender purse, but never by shoving them alongside $2 and $3 pipes.

In planning a general arrangement of the stock bear in mind that there should be three ways of arranging the goods: first, for exhibition purposes; second, for the same as the first, with the additional advantage of being close enough for examination; third, a respectable arrangement of the stock from which sales are to be made. And always remember that you must please the buyer's eye.

It is a much better plan to show a small stock and show it well and pack the rest of the stock in the storage rooms, than to attempt to crowd everything in where it can be seen and accomplish nothing but a confusing jumble of miscellany.

If a clerk shows a disposition or an aptness for harmony of arrangement, the dealer should encourage it and allow him to develop it. Practice and ambition will soon make the clerk invaluable and will be sure to bring out the right ideas if he has them in him.

THEY WILL ATTRACT THE CROWD.

HERE are a few simple window displays that will attract attention even if they do not serve specifically to advertise the goods:

A fountain playing in the centre of the window, with gold fish swimming in a bowl below. The stock can be displayed in the scenery effect surrounding the fountain.

Automatic window features are novel, and can be made very attractive. A little steam engine costs but a few dollars, can be run with alcohol or gas, and may be made to keep comical toys, or things of more serious character, in motion.

Frequently a crayon portrait or photograph of some prominent man or woman placed in a window and properly decorated attracts attention, and the attention is likely to be carried from the picture to the goods around it.

Have a cigarmaker or a cigarettemaker in the window, particularly if she is a pretty girl. The working feature will attract a large crowd and hold it. People are interested in seeing common things are made.

Keep changing working displays and have just as many of them as possible.

Action is everything, and action in window display to attract people is worth a dozen times as much as inaction.

If the dealer will encourage one of his clerks, by financial appreciation, to study window dressing carefully, and will give him full scope, insisting on simplicity and one thing at a time, the generally wasted space of the show windows in the country will yield a good return.

THE first shipment of leaf tobacco from this country to England was made in the year 1616, when 20,000 pounds were exported.

THE OLD SALESMAN'S MUSINGS.

held in the little theatre of the town, and he preached a series of sermons on catchy subjects.

The public was told of all these by cards in the newspapers, and circulars, folders, cards, etc., attractively printed and presenting its matter in an entertaining form. The people began to take notice and to attend the services.

When he judged the time was ripe, the minister began his regular nightly revival meetings, continuing his advertising. He saw to it that everybody in town had a chance to read his literature, and old sinners who hadn't seen the inside of a church for years, began to rally round the organ.

The meetings lasted four weeks, and at the end of that time the church had an added membership of about 125, which was at least a 35 per cent increase. Nothing like it has been seen in the church for a long time, and no matter how long these new comers stick, they are there now, and it is safe to assume that a fair percentage of them will remain.

As as a matter of fact, beyond a little extra music, the meetings consisted of nothing that had not been tried before, and the advertising cost considerably less than the traveling evangelists have been in the habit of carrying away in their pockets, no matter what their success.

It was a case of advertising, pure and simple, and it is only one of a billion or more proofs. It's a rather new scheme, this exploiting of heaven by the modern ad-writer, but it worked all right.

Now, I don't want to hear any more about money being wasted on advertising, for I'm apt to get disgusted and if the worst comes to the worst I may have to lower my opinion of somebody.

THE OLD SALESMAN.

WHY THE BURLEY DEAL FELL.

Man Who Claims to Know Tells How it Happened.

A Kentucky paper prints the following which is interesting, if correct, concerning the failure of the plan for the farmers to corner the burley market, which was engineered by President Hawkins, who blamed the Standard Oil Co. and the American Tobacco Co. for having brought about the failure:

"Edwards Ritchie, who was in New York during the efforts of certain capitalists to obtain control of the burley tobacco market in the interest of the growers as against the tobacco combine, has arrived home. Mr. Ritchie is a close friend of Archibald Stuart, the Cincinnati broker, who tried to swing the deal. Hence Mr. Ritchie had an opportunity to become acquainted with the facts of the matter which had the attention of the entire tobacco interests of the United States. 'The Standard Oil Co. had nothing to do with the matter,' said Mr. Ritchie. 'The tobacco combine is second in power only to the Standard Oil Co. It has an influence in the banks of New York, which caused man after man to withdraw from the plan to take up the burley crop. Everything went all right until the financial power of the tobacco combine was encountered. To use a figure of speech, when the sun of the tobacco combine arose above the horizon it melted the opposition as easily as Old Sol does the snow."

HAVANA MARKET IS GROWING QUIETER.

Stocks Have Been Well Picked Over, and Although There are a Few Good Vegas Left, Prices Asked are Above Buyer's Views. Economical Buyers Will be Disappointed.

[Special Correspondence of The Tobacco World.]

HAVANA, February 20, 1905.

Very little change has taken place in the market situation, sales show a further retrograde movement, and it almost looks as if the active season is going to give place to the coming quieter spring period, when the number of buyers is less, and the stocks having been picked over, offer less incentive to prospective purchasers.

Nevertheless, there are some good vegas still to be had, only the holders are asking figures above the views of the buyers in town, and this prevents a larger business from being done.

People who come here to find good tobacco will be sorely disappointed if they expect to get it at low prices. In fact, if it should prove true later on that the reports of the 1905 crop are not exaggerated in producing a shorter yield than 1904 of Vuelta Abajo, Partido and Remedios, then it will be impossible to count upon lower prices, and the present figures paid for last year's growth may still be considered low.

There may be a difference of opinion held, whether for a producing country it is preferable to have a short crop which sells at elevated prices, or to have an abundant growth which can only be marketed at figures which barely cover the cost of production. The buyers naturally prefer the latter state of affairs, but as they cannot always have their own way they usually try to make the best of existing conditions, at the same time trying to find cheaper substitutes.

Supply and demand rule all commercial relations, and prices are regulated accordingly; therefore, if the former is too short and the figures asked are out of proportion, the demand becomes less, causing the desired reaction by the employment of an inferior, cheaper article. Tobacco undoubtedly may be termed nowadays a necessity, as the majority of the adult male sex cannot do without it in some form or other, but Havana tobacco is more of a luxury which only the well-to-do classes can afford to enjoy.

Prosperity in the United States has undoubtedly stimulated the clear Havana industry wonderfully, and also helped to increase the importation of Havana cigars from this island; therefore, surely the farmers and dealers here will be only too anxious not to kill the goose which is laying the golden egg. On the other hand, the farmers here are also entitled to a fair compensation for their arduous labors, which often enough in years when there was a large crop they have failed to receive; therefore, an equivalent rise in prices for a small crop ought not to work any injury to the northern buyers.

amounted 5,630 bales in all, or divided into 4,045 bales of Vuelta Abajo, 475 of Partido and 1,100 of Remedios. The United States buyers took 3,989 bales, the local cigar and cigarette manufacturers, 1,526, and for Europe, 115 bales were purchased.

Total exports during the past week were 6,724 bales, of which 6,107 went to the United States, 597 to Europe (France, London and Germany), and 20 bales to Buenos Ayres.

Buyers Come and Go.

Havana Cigar Manufacturers

in general are less busy, and while new orders are coming in, they are in smaller quantities. As an explanation of this lessened demand, the extreme cold winter in the north, as well as in Europe, is cited, which undoubtedly affects business unfavorably. Several factories are said to have reduced the number of cigarmakers, although there are exceptions.

France is a good customer now, ordering at least 1,000,000 cigars to be shipped per month, which is however distributed among a limited number of factories only. Manufacturers look confidently for an increased movement next month. Exports per steamship Mexico were 3,697,740 cigars.

H. Upmann & Co. are doing as well as they expected, and they shipped 400,000 cigars last week.

Cifuentes, Fernandez & Co. have enough old orders on hand to keep them as busy as last month, and the call for Partagas cigars is as great as ever.

Por Larranaga notes no diminution in the receipts of orders from the United States and abroad. The New York representative, Barron Taylor, was pleased with his visit to Havana, and promised Don Antonio J. Rivero, the manager, that Por Larranga will be pushed with vigor in the United States. The calls from Europe, South America and Australia are quite satisfactory.

Behrens & Co. report a steady call for Sol cigars from all directions. The German man-of-war Bremen selected a large quantity of Sol cigars in preference to other brands.

Rabell, Costa, Vales & Co. cannot complain about dull times, as Ramon Allones, Marques de Rabell and their other annexed brands are favorites with a large clientele in the United States and Europe.

Crepusculo is doing a very fair business indeed, as J. F. Rocha & Co. are making 50,000 cigars per day and have no lack of orders, particularly from Europe.

High Life, owned by Don Rafael G. Marques, has large orders for Spain, and the Churruca brand is gaining more friends in the United States daily.

El Rico Habanero is progressing satisfactorily under the ownership of Enrique Dorado & Co., as the cigars sell well in the United States, Great Britain, Canada and Germany.

La Mas Fermosa and Magnetica de Cuba, made by Remigio Lopez & Co., have constant orders from the United States.

Buying, Selling and Other Notes of Interest.

Max Stern was again a heavy shipper this week, as he dispatched 2,399 bales of leaf tobacco to his house of Lewis Sylvester & Sons by the steamship Havana and Mexico, besides having made some additional purchases of fine Vuelta Abajo leaf.

G. Salomon & Hnos. sold 780 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Remedios during the past week.

Leonard Friend, who left on Saturday by the steamship Mexico, had purchased a few hundred more bales of the finest Vuelta Abajo, and only regretted that the stocks of the really choice growth were so reduced. Price was no object with him, as Friend & Co. only handle goods of prime quality of Vuelta Abajo, tierra llana district. This has been the third visit of Don Leonard to Havana during the past six months, a proof that good tobaccos are easily recognized and are readily salable in the north.

Loeb-Nunez Havana Co. disposed of 605 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Remedios.

Ignacio Haya must have secured fully 1,000 bales of Vuelta Abajo for his Tampa factory.

Jorge y P. Castaneda turned over 525 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido.

Facundo Arguelles did not leave empty handed this time, either, and his purchases have closely reached 800 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

Rodriguez Baustita & Co. made some sales amounting to 400 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Remedios.

Oscar Reinach made some good purchases of Vuelta Abajo for the Fernandez Hnos. Co., of Tampa.

Jose F. Rocha sold 300 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

John Fielding secured some choice vegas of Vuelta Abajo for Rothschild & Bro., New York.

Bruno Diaz & Co. disposed of 300 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido of their select holdings.

Francisco Fonseca left satisfied with the purchases made by him during his stay in town.

Jose E Cayro e Hijo were sellers of 300 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido.

Gonzalez, Benitez & Co. turned over 200 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez had a quiet week, the first one for a long time, as they only made one transaction of 200 bales of Vuelta Abajo. They have, however, some fine vegas left over for prospective buyers.

Manuel Suarez & Co. are busy people; it seems they never lack customers.

Manuel Garcia Pulido sold 170 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

Leslie Pantin was a buyer for his customers to the tune of 600 bales last week.

Muniz Hns. & Co. disposed of 150 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

Charles Blasco had a fair month so far, as his purchases for his customers already exceed 1,000 bales.

A. Pazos & Co. were kept busy by the sales of 131 bales of Vuelta Abajo to northern buyers.

TOBACCO NEWS OF GREATER NEW YORK

NEW YORK, February 28, 1905.

The Executive Committee of the Independent Tobacco Manufacturers' Association held a meeting at the Hotel Victoria, in this city, last week, at the call of President John Landstreet, and discussed a number of important matters. The meeting adjourned on Thursday.

The members of the Board of Directors are: S. S. Block, of Wheeling, W. Va.; C. Drucklieb, New York; A. Miller, of L. Miller & Sons, Brooklyn; R. F. Whalen, Rochester, N. Y., and J. D. Spencer, Danville, Va.

The meeting was executive but there was said to have been much discussion over the point which is very vital to the association, as to just how the association may be certainly assured of the non-connection with the combine of its members.

This question was on the carpet during the meeting, in Philadelphia, which resulted in the amalgamation of the Independent Manufacturers' League with the present association, and as a result, affidavits were recently sent to all members, which must be signed and sworn to by the directors and officers of the various companies, the affidavits being to the effect that to the best knowledge and belief of the affiant, "neither the American Tobacco Company nor any of its allied companies, commonly known as the Tobacco Trust, no officer of the trust, or any bank or banker or person for the trust, or any offier of the trust, or any person connected with the trust, holds or controls any of its stock, or has any interest in its business whatever."

Each director and officer is also required to give the name and address of every other officer and director in the concern, and each company be requested to sign an agreement that a fine of $100 a day will be paid to the Association for every day that the firm or company is connected with the American Tobacco Co. withot the knowledge of the association.

Much of the discussion was caused by the fact that certain members considered that this and the other information required makes it necessary that too many business secrets be revealed and objections were made on that score.

The executive committee also discussed President Landstreet's anti coupon bill to prevent the redemption of coupons in connection with premium-giving schemes and unanimously endorsed it. The bill, which has been referred to a number of times before and which is probably fairly familiar to certain branches of the trade, is entitled "A bill to levy a tax upon the issuance of coupons, prizes, tickets and other devices, and the redemption, payment, purchase, or exchange of coupons, prize tickets, tags, bands or other articles, things, or parts of articles or things that shall have been attached to, packed in or with, or formed a part of, or encircling, any manufatured tobacco, cigar or cigars, little cigar or little cigars, cigarette or cigarettes or snuff, or any stamped package or receptacle thereof," and is as follows:

"Be it enacted, etc., That there shall be levied, collected and paid, by adhesive stamps, a tax of two cents for and upon every coupon, prize ticket, or other device attached to, packed in or with, or forming a part of, or encircling, any manfactured tobacco, cigar or cigars, little cigar or little cigars, cigarette or cigarettes or snuff, or any stamped package or receptacle thereof, if any such coupon, prize ticket, or other device contains any direct or indirect promise or proposition to make redemption, payment or exchange is made or is to be made by a manufacturer of such tobacco, cigars, cigarettes or snuff, or any other person, firm or corporation.

"Sec. 2 That on or after the first day of April, nineteen hundred and five, there shall be levied, collected and paid, by adhesive stamps, a tax of two cents for and upon redemption, payment, purchase or exchange of any coupon, prize ticket, tag, band, or any other article, thing, or part of article or thing, which before being offered for such redemption or purchase shall have been attached to, packed in, or with, or formed a part of, or encircled, any manufactured tobacco, cigar or cigars, little cigar or little cigars, cigarette or cigarettes or snuff, or any stamped package or receptacle thereof.

"Sec. 3. Coupons, prize tickets, and other things mentioned in the first section of this act, stamped in accordance with the provisions thereof, notwithstanding anything contained in the second section hereof, upon being offered for redemption or sale, shall not be required to pay said tax, but all coupons, prize tickets, and other things mentioned in said first and second sections hereof, not stamped when issued by the manufacturer, or other person, firm or corporation issuing the same, shall, if presented for redemption on and after said first day of April, nineteen hundred and five, be stamped as provided in said section hereof by the person, firm or corporation presenting the same for redemption or exchange.

There has been considerable talk here during the week regarding the rumor that Henry W. Taft, a New York attorney, and a brother of the Secretary of War, had been employed by the government to look into the affairs of the American Tobacco Co., but there is very little that will go toward making a definite confirmation.

It was said that Mr. Taft has been in conference with a number of independents, and it was also reported that he would confer with the Executive Committee of the Independent Manufacturers' Association. This he did not do, however, according to President Landstreet, who said that he (Mr. Landstreet) knew nothing at all about the matter. If Mr. Taft is doing anything, he is certainly not working in the open.

To Benefit Our Readers.

The Tobacco World wants to receive from week to week all questions relating to the trade which may be puzzling its subscribers, and will be glad to supply any information in its possession or obtainable.

The columns of the paper are also open to readers for the discussion of current trade topics. If you have a decided opinion on a matter, express it, and see if some one else has good reasons for thinking otherwise.

All letters should be addressed to the "Correspondence Editor" and must be accompanied by the name and address of the writer, which may be withheld when desired.

THE CIGARETTE IS GETTING NEWSY.

If business keeps up, this paper will have to institute a special department for exploitation of the weekly news of the cigarette. Whether there is a psychological connection with the religious revival which is said to be sweeping the country, of whether it is mere and customary contagion, is not clear, but the cigarette haters are certainly beating all records.

As everybody has been told by the newspapers, the anti-cigarette people have succeeded in having a law passed in Indiana which practically legislates the "coffin-nail" out of existence, and if the law ever gets into actual operation, it will be extremely interesting to watch its effect. One could always get a drink of whiskey in Maine, and it is safe to predict that it will always be possible to obtain and smoke a cigarette in Indiana, or any other State in the Union.

Assemblyman Sullivan, of New York State, is promulgating a bill which is similar in purpose to the Western one, and there are reports of a number of other bills more or less prohibitory, in process of formation or promulgation in a number of other States.

Hardly a day passes without bringing some crusade news of interest, and it is a matter for entertaining speculation as to how long the agitation will last this time. The cigarette has been around a considerable while, and there has always been a pretty equal division of authorities as to its effect on the human system.

We read of crazed acts committed by supposed cigarette "fiends," but we also read of many more such acts on the part of liquor-demented creatures, and we also read of a considerable proportion of abnormal actions which cannot apparently be traced to any particular agent.

It is a reasonable assumption that a "fiend" is born and not made, and that the agent which he may select to exercise his proclivities is simply the one that he may have hit upon and which would be a perfectly innocuous agent in the hands of a normal person.

With the numerous eminent and authoritative medical opinions in favor of the cigarette, or rather in favor of the theory that it can be smoked harmlessly, than which there is no more important one than the London Lancet, it is difficult to see how such a law as the one before the public in Indiana can be constitutional.

It is not going very far out of the way to say that more harm is done a boy by the mental process through which he has to pass before he dares to smoke a cigarette in the face of his parents' and his Sunday school teacher's forbid, than by the cigarette itself.

Some men who have a billiard table at home, would not play a game in a public place if they had to go through a barroom to get to it. It is the association that is made more dangerous than the thing itself.

In Spain, Cuba, Mexico, Turkey and other countries where everyone smokes cigarettes, there are no hysterics, there are no nerve-crazed "fiends," and the boy's desire to smoke is not given a keen edge by the knowledge that in the commission of the act he will become a "regular devil."

THE tobacco trade is receiving blows from all sides, and the opinion seems to be held by non voters generally, that it is a nasty, wicked trade. Just at present, the city council of Mexico, Mo., which town is reported on good authority to be on some maps, is up against a hard proposition. A number of club women have protested against the painted signs advertising the merits of a certain well known brand of smoking tobacco, and a similar movement is being made in Chillicothe. The Mexico women claim that the ads. are degrading and a menace to public morals and decency.

IN AN ISSUE of the Philadelphia North American of last week, the following appeared, printed as a dispatch from York, dated February 22:

> Capitalists of Yoe, this county, have organized a company to build and operate a large cigar factory. The company, which will be known as the Merchants Cigar Company, is capitalized at $10,000. It has purchased thirty four acres of ground for a factory site.

It is unfortunate that no more details are given. If the factory is to be the ordinary size it would be interesting to know whether spy-glasses will be fastened to the gates so that the visitor will be able to determine the direction in which to walk in order to reach the building. If, on the contrary, it is to occupy the usual proportion of the land constituting its site, it should be stated whether trolley cars will be run from one department to another.

Thirty-four acres of ground!

The cigar is getting to be a fairly important commodity, but as a building operation, such a factory as this would make Solomon's temple look like a hut. And all for $10,000.

STATISTICS show that the number of domestic cigars smoked in one year is 7,000,000,000, and in comparison, the number imported is relatively insignificant. Now of this number of the domestic cigars it is said that Key West produces 200,000,000. In other words, one twenty-eighth of the cigars smoked in the United States are Key West, or Florida-made cigars. Pennsylvania manufactures 2,000,000,000, New York, 1,500,000,000, Ohio 750,000,000, Virginia 500,000,000.

INTERNAL REVENUE RETURNS FOR JANUARY.

The Internal Revenue returns from the United States for the month of January show an increase during that month in all commodities except little cigars, as compared with January of the previous year. The figures from the official reports are as follows:

	Jan. 1904	Jan. 1905
Cigars,	$1,404,827.14	$1,535,733.25	Increase,	$130,906.11
Little Cigars,	33,972.89	31,372.38	Decrease,	2,600.51
Cigarettes,	254,582.50	261,862.48	Increase,	7,279.98
Snuff,	95,829.90	101,586.95	Increase,	5,757.05
Tobacco,	1,192,704.10	1,573,739.56	Increase,	81,035.46
Totals,	$2,981,916.53	$3,504,294.62	Increase,	$522,378.09

In figures, the output comparatively was as follows:

		Jan. 1904	Jan. 1905
Cigars,	No.	468,275,715	517,075,061	Increase,	48,799,346

Philadelphia Tobacco Trade.

Here and There With the Retailers

The spell of good weather arrived most opportunely for the retailers, inasmuch as some of them were beginning almost to consider closing their doors. The week's business was quite a little better, owing to the let-up of the unpleasant weather, and the dealers are now hoping that spring is near enough at hand to be able to count on good trade from now on. Not only the small stores, but the Chestnut street establishments were seriously affected by the apparently universal stagnation, and business had gotten so bad that the slump was reaching the manufacturers. Things were quite a little better this week, however, and it is fair to presume that they will stay so.

Moore & Son purchased the store on Fifth street, above Chestnut, which was recently operated by a man named Simpson. They are doing very well in their new stand, and handle all the principal brands for their customers.

Joseph E. Tuck, former president of the Retail Cigar and Tobacco Dealers' Association, who is spending the winter in Los Angeles, Cal., has recovered from a rather severe affection of the eyes, which rendered him nearly blind. Mr. Tuck is nearly himself again, and able to enjoy the salubrious advantages of the city in which he is spending the season.

The Cigar and Tobacco Dealers' Association of Philadelphia is in a way to become a much more popular and important organization than is now the case by virtue of a movement which is in preparation to make the organization a beneficial one.

The regular monthly meeting of the organization was held on last Thursday evening at the headquarters, Thirteenth and Arch streets, and there was quite a satisfactory attendance. James I. Hassan, the new president was in the chair. Jas. A. Halfpenny, the secretary, is still ill and a committee was appointed to look after Mr. Halfpenny during his sickness,

We'll be pleased to send you a sample box of one or both sizes, and to tell you about our Special Introductory Offer.

You may return the samples at our expense if not satisfactory, or we allow you their cost from your first order for a thousand "Quo Vadis"—thus you'll not risk anything either way. Write us today—we want your trade.

The movement in question arose from the discussion as to the greatly increased benefit which would accrue to the association from such a change in its policy.

A general committee consisting of every member who was present at the meeting was appointed to prepare definite plans. This committee will report at the next meeting.

It is proposed to make each member who pays his initiation fees and dues eligible for sick and death benefits as is the case with all secret societies. This will, of course, affect all the present members of the association as well as the new ones and it goes without saying that a large number of responsible dealers will be attracted by such a clause in the by laws.

It is believed that such a thing as this is precisely the thing needed to infuse life into the association and the membership list will be rapidly added to as soon as the new law goes into effect.

M. J. Dalton, who has two stores on Chestnut street, is having his Fifth street store fixed up. The decorators finished with the interior a few days ago, and now the painters are at work on the outside.

George T. O'Keefe has a new smoke in stock which seems to be making a hit. It is one of the numerous cigarros. The brand is named the Glorifier, and is manufactured by J. Whitelaw & Co., of New York. The cigarros sell ten for 15 cents, and are put up in an attractive box.

After a two weeks' absence, E. E. Shaw has again entered the employ of the Pennsylvania Cigar Stores Co.

Julius Hirschberg, of the El Provedo Cigar Co., was in town for a short time during the week from Tallahassee. Mr. Hirschberg thinks that things look good for the spring. C. C. Rosenberg, of the same firm, is back from his Cuban trip.

F. V. Eshleman, of Sixteenth and Arch streets, reports a gratifying increase of business since F. A. Fowler has taken charge of the store. Mr. Fowler is popular and a hustler.

MORE CRUSADERS.

Covington, Ky., Feb. 27.

A crusade against the sale of cigarettes to minors has been inaugurated and the Grand Jury has so far indicted more than twenty five dealers. The matter is receiving the special attention of the Commonwealth attorney and the Superintendent of the public schools. Signed statements from more than 100 school children, who admitted that they had bought cigarettes from various dealers, have been collected.

EXPORT STAMP ISSUED BY CUBAN CIGAR MANUFACTURERS

Authorized by the Government of the Republic of Cuba

Either the name of the Manufacturer or that of his Brand will appear printed in the blank space of this precinta or stamp.

. . . IMPORTANT NOTICE . . .

The preceding cut is a fac-simile, in its actual size, of the new PRECINTA or warranty stamp which, as authorized by the Government of the Republic of Cuba is now used by the members of the Cigar and Cigarette Manufacturers' Union of the Island of Cuba as a guarantee that cigars, cigarettes and cut tobacco packages which bear these stamps were manufactured in Cuba.

The consumers of these goods, who wish to acquire the genuine article made in CUBA from pure CUBAN LEAF, should buy no other cigars, cigarettes, or cut leaf packages but those which have this PRECINTA or stamp of the Cigar and Cigarette Manufacturers' Union of the Island of Cuba, who, jointly with the Government of the Republic of Cuba, or separately, will prosecute before the courts, anyone who may attempt to counterfeit, imitate, or in any way render useless the guarantee covered by this stamp. Colors of the PRECINTA fac-simile: black with pale blue ground; fac-simile of the seal of the Presidency of the Republic: dark blue.

THE POPULAR "LA MAGNITA."

This cut is a reproduction of the label of La Magnita, the Waldorf Astoria Segar Co.'s popular brand, or rather one of its popular brands, and while the reproduction gives an idea of the beauty of the picture, it conveys nothing of the artistic color work brought out in the lithograph.

La Magnita is made in thirty-one shapes, so that every smoker can get what he wants, and the quality of the smoke has endeared it to a very large number of consumers on this and other markets where it has been offered.

The cigar sells to the trade, according to shape, at from $33 to $150, retailing at from five to 25 cents. Again every class of smoker can be fitted out to his satisfaction, and so far there have been no kicks.

There was a great run on the brand during the holidays, and the company has had constant batches of orders ever since. As there grows a demand for new sizes, they are turned out and it is the company's intention to make the cigar the most popular smoke on the market. The greatest attention is given in the factory to see that the quality is not only kept up but improved, as the company has demonstrated that uniform high quality is the best seller in the world.

Louis P. Sutter, of Louis P. Sutter & Bros., sailed last Saturday on the Campania, to be in attendance at the inscriptions at Amsterdam.

George W. Bremer, Jr., of Philadelphia, was looking through the market this week, and shaking hands with his host of friends.

The trade sympathizes with Joseph Hirsch, of Joseph Hirsch & Son, whose wife died a few days ago at their home, 140 West 118th street. The death was quite sudden.

H. Duys, of H. Duys & Co., leaves today for Amsterdam to attend the Sumatra inscriptions.

Cifuentes & Co., manufacturers of clear Havana cigars, have secured a lease of the building at 726 Fulton street, to which the firm will remove on May 1. The present address is 271 Pearl street.

This change is made necessary by the expanding business of the company which has literally crowded it out of its present quarters, and as the new building will give the occupants a space of nearly 50,000 square feet the plant will be a roomy one.

Among the visitors in town last week was Harry B. Allen, who is manager of the National Cigar Store, incoporated, of Chicago, who was in this city to acquire new lines of stock, and attend to other business necessary to a change of address which is soon to be effected by the Chicago concern.

Some little talk has been created by Assemblyman Sullivan's anti-cigarette bill which he has introduced in the assembly at Albany, but consumers are not commencing to stock up yet, and it is not considered precisely probable that the entire cigarette industry in this State will be put out of business.

The bill, which seems to be of a piece with the Indiana measure, wants to prohibit the sale and manufacture of cigarettes by the establishment of a penalty of not less that $50 or more than $1,000. The principal share of the interest excited, seems to be divided among a number of High School girls who are not particularly pleased with Mr. Sullivan's statement that the smoking of cigarettes is a popular habit among High School girls in general.

"Do you know that any number of our High School girls, as well as boys, smoke cigarettes, and do you know that many foolish women are beginning to believe that it is real smart to learn to smoke cigarettes?" asked the Assemblyman.

This seemed to be more in nature of a statement than a question as the speaker continued thus:

"I can back up what I say with facts. My bill ought to became a law if only for the sake of saving our girls and boys and some of the lightheaded women who think they are society matrons because their husbands get a salary of $2,000 or $3,000 a year. Women in society have taken to smoking cigarettes, and persons who are on the ragged edge of society think that they have as much right. All roads to ruin are open when they begin to smoke."

A goodly number of rosy cheeked school girls contented themselves by merely turning up their dainty noses, but others are remarking in more eloquent rhetorical form that Assemblyman Sullivan would do well to go back up.

Cigarettes are still being sold in New York city and it seems likely that they will continue to be sold for some time.

NEW YORK LEAF MARKET.

There has been little or no noticeable change in the leaf market of this city during the past week, there being more activity than usual during February, but not a little of the activity consists of seeking the desired goods, the stocks of which are being rapidly depleted. The 1903, which are about the only available Pennsylvania filler goods, are in strong demand, as is also Wisconsin, and prices are firmly maintained.

Several transactions of some importance were consummated last week in Florida Sumatra, the use of which seems to be growing steadily, and particularly through Pennsylvania.

Sumatra is moving in moderate quantities, and no particular increase in activity of this class of goods is now looked for until more detailed information of the new goods is obtainable. There was considerable of an exodus for Amsterdam this week to attend the first inscription.

The Havana market is also steady, with a moderately good demand for old goods. Stocks in the hands of manufacturers generally are believed to be running low, and that present purchases are for early use.

THE TRUTH ABOUT THE BURLEY

Just Why the Association Was Forced to Come to Nothing.

Cincinnati, O., Feb. 27.

Simultaneously with the official announcement last Friday that the deal to corner the white burley tobacco market by the Burley Growers' Association had been declared off, and the farmers' tobacco released, it become known that J. Edward Addicks, of Delaware, known throughout the financial world as "Gas" Addicks, was the one man Archibald Stuart, representing the growers, could find in the East "with enough money," as one of the directors of the defunct association put it "and the nerve to buck Standard Oil by backing the corner." Stuart brought home from New York a written proposition from Addicks not only to put up the money for the fight but to take a hand in it himself. His offer was turned down, though, because the warehouse men here backing the corner would not agree to share in the risk by putting up an additional $250,000. Addicks' proposition was along these lines: He offered to put into the corner at once, providing he found Stuart's representations correct, $1,000,000, and after this was spent, to guarantee the raising of an additional $5,000,000. He gave his name as a guarantee that this money would be forthcoming at the proper time, intending to raise it on the warehouse receipts for the tobacco as it was bought from the farmers. He had made arrangements so that he could get the $5,000,000 without delay, he declared.

But he required that after the first $1,000,000 was spent, the company put up an additional $250,000. This money, considering the delays that already threatened the corner, would have to come from the warehouse men. They would have been making a big profit all the while on handling the tobacco, but they decided that the proposition was too risky and thus the deal fell through.

When Stuart went to Addicks, after one hope and another had failed, Addicks was not only affable, but anxious to put his money into the deal that would oppose Standard Oil. Addicks told him that he wanted to give the Standard Oil crowd a dose of the same medicine he had been forced to swallow, and after looking into the proposition enough to convince himself that it was a good investment he made the written proposition.

Before seeking Addicks Stuart had negotiated with the National City Bank, of New York, J. P. Morgan & Co., and several individual financiers, including J. B. Haggin and Senator Clark, of Montana. It is said that when those who were interested in Stuart's proposition, learned that the American Tobacco Co. consumed from 60 to 70 per cent of the tobacco they refused to go into the deal. It is said that Thos. F. Ryan, vice president of the American Co., discouraged J. P. Morgan & Co., when there was a likelihood that they would loan the association $8,000,000.

The formal declaration declaring the deal off and releasing the growers from their contracts was issued Friday:

Burley Tobacco Growers's Company, Lexington, Ky.

Branch Office: 227 West Pearl St., Cincinnati, O., Feb. 24, 1905.

To the Burley Tobacco Growers of Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky:

At a meeting the Board of Directors of the Burley Tobacco Growers' company this day, held at the office of the company, the following resolution was adopted:

"In view of the fact that this company has been unsuccessful in securing the necessary funds with which to pay for the 1904 crop of burley tobacco, and in view of the fact that on account of the lateness of the season, we deem it inadvisable to further delay the matter or make further efforts in that direction; therefore,

Be it resolved, By the Board of Directors of the Burley Tobacco Growers' company, that all contracts giving options on tobacco to this company be, and the same, together with all of said options, are released in full and surrendered to the respective signers.

"(A copy). Attest: E. E. BARTON, Secy.

NEWS OF CINCINNATI.

Things of Interest That Happened During the Week.

Cincinnati, O., Feb. 27.

Offerings at last Saturday's cigar leaf sales were the smallest of the year, the total being but 49 cases, all of which were sold at one warehouse. The quality was generally poor, especially in Wisconsin and seed leaf tobaccos. Old Zimmers ranged from 3@8c, and the new 8¾@10c. One case of Little Dutch sold at $3.30 per 100 pounds; 10 cases of Wisconsins from $1.90@3.00; 4 cases of seed leaf from $2.85@4.70, and 10 Connecticuts from $3 05@8.25.

The offerings of new white burley at the auction warehouses last week amounted to 555 hhds, against 573 for the corresponding week last year. Only 96 hhds of old were up, compared to 1,042 for the same week in 1904. The market was strong and active throughout, and on the whole prices scored a general advance of from 1@2c per pound. Warehouse men look for heavy receipts, now that the Burley Growers' Association has collapsed, as soon as navigation on the Ohio river, which is frozen tight, is resumed.

William Eddy, general manager of the leaf department of the Continental Co., was here last week superintending the work of the company's buyers on the burley breaks. The Continental absorbed the greater portion of offerings at the three sales.

The Buckeye warehouse, at 7 East Water street, held its first public sale last Tuesday with 28 hhds of 1904 tobacco. The trade gave the new company a glorious send off. They expect to hold daily sales on regular days, starting within ten days.

Clement McIntyre, who formerly made this city his headquarters, but is now located at Louisville, was here last week. At the burley sales he was a liberal purchaser, representing a number of big independent Eastern manufacturers.

E. O. Eshelby, head of the E. O. Eshelby Co., is in New York on business.

Nicholas Manderer, the well known manufacturer, has gone to Havana. He will combine business with pleasure while there.

A new swindle was attempted last Saturday on the clerk at J. S. Hill's store, Fifth and Vine streets. A well dressed young man entered, and after purchasing a cigar asked and was granted the privilege of using the telephone. Later, a party called up, representing himself as one of the store's customers, and asked that the fellow who had previously used the phone be given $5, which would be returned as soon as the second party could get to the store. The scheme looked raw to the clerk, and he advised the fellow still in the store to decamp, or he would call a policeman.

The Voige & Winter Co. gave a banquet to their traveling salesmen at the Business Men's Club last Saturday evening. President George A. Winter and John H. Dickerson, secretary and treasurer of the company, delivered short speeches.

Slot machines have been ordered removed from all candy stores in this city. It is said that like orders will be issued to cigarists and saloonists as soon as the mayor, who is in California, returns.

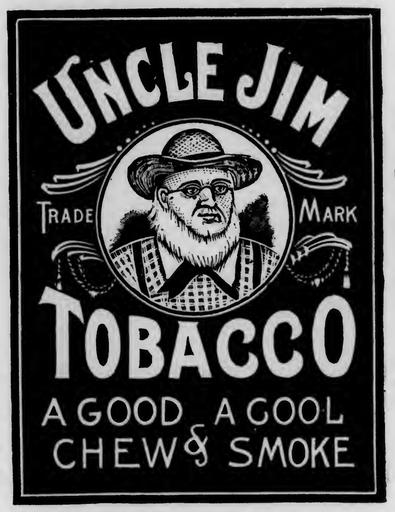
THE MAYSVILLE FAIR.

It Was a Success, and Brought Out the Finest Tobacco.

Maysville, Ky., Feb. 22.

The sixth annual tobacco fair was held today, with the largest crowd in its history in attendance. The day's exercises consisted of the invocation by Burris A. Jenkins, President of the Kentucky University; address of welcome by N. C. Curran, secretary of the Board of Trade; response by H. N. Hennessey, of Augusta, and an address on tobacco by Judge Mat Walton, of Lexington. The samples of tobacco were pronounced by the judges the finest they ever saw. Louisville tobacco men were here in full force. The Cincinnati tobacco and business men arrived at noon. Many Ohio growers were unable to attend on account of the condition of the river. Cincinnati and Louisville tobacco men acted as judges and awarded the following premiums:

Cigarette—First, Galbreth Bros., Maylick, Ky.; second, Teager Bros., South Ripley; third, William Brooks, Mason county, Ky.; fourth, Patsy Devire, Minerva, Ky.



Lugs—First, Clay & Edwards, Clark county, Ky.; second, William Kreble, Mason county, Ky.; third, Jesse Thomas, Dawes, Ky.; fourth, King & Calvin, Bracken county, Ky.

Bright Leaf—First, J. A. Lewis, Mason county, Ky.; second, William Brooks, Mason county, Ky.; third, Mike Brannon, Mason county, Ky.; fourth, Joseph Easybuck, Mason county, Ky.

Red Leaf—First, William Drianage, Bracken county, Ky.; second, Frank List, Bracken county, Ky.; third, P. H. Kimbrough, Bourbon county, Ky.; fourth, V. L. Jordan, Bracken county, Ky.

WEATHER GIVES TRADE A CHANCE.

Boston Jobbers and Retailers Find Things Much Better.

Boston, Feb. 26.

Trade is improving here daily, and the improvement is, of course, greatly welcomed. The weather has been very favorable during the past week, which is the main cause of the better condition.

Business with the retailers was very good on Washington's Birthday; most of the business houses were closed, which gave the employes a chance to go out and spend their money.

The American Tobacco Co. is operating ten or twelve stores here, and it is said that the best paying store they have in Boston is the one located in the Boston Journal building, Washington street, on what is called Newspaper Row.

Boston boys and girls who smoke cigarettes will be asked next week to sign the anti cigarette pledge. The New England Anti-Cigarette League, with a girls' auxiliary, will be formed Tuesday night in Dorchester. Miss Lucy Page Gaston, of Chicago, representing the National Anti-Cigarette League, is now in Boston to start the work. She recently had an audience with Governor Douglass, and will try to secure the passage of an anti-cigarette bill. Miss Gaston says that her league has a women's auxiliary, as girls and women in every large city in the country, she declares, are fast becoming cigarette smokers.

Rockwood & Reidt, manufacturers of the Sam Kay 10c and Rox V. 5c cigars, report a very satisfactory business. The Sam Kay can be found in almost every prominent cigar store here.

Lee Hammond, of Boyleston street, has a window display this week of Kara clear Havanas, five for 10c, made by Landsfield Bros. Co., of New York.

L. Bieringer, the Dock Square tobacconist, has added to his establishment some of the finest cigar show cases ever seen in Boston.

J. W. Higgins, tobacconist, 214 Hanover street, has been confined to his house by illness for the past three weeks.

H. Kurkjan, of Kurkjan Bros., makers of the Fair Harvard Turkish cigarettes, contemplates spending a few weeks in New York during the month of March.

Thieves attempted to break into the store of D. Bendiston last Friday night, but were scared off, the only damage done being a window broken.

A. Belanger, a small tobacco jobber of North Cambridge, made an assignment last week for the benefit of his creditors.

The R. A. Patterson Co. has been giving away during the past week thousands of handsome calendars advertising their Patterson's Seal cut plug.

John McGreenery, of McGreenery & Manning, is spending his five weeks' vacation at Hot Springs, Va.

Invitations to the marriage of Joseph Gordon, of Gordon Bros., 999 Washington street, to Miss Annie Ostrowsky, to take place March 12, at Minot Hall, have been sent out.

The American Tobacco Co. is placing with the trade their new brand of cigarros called Flexo Giants, that retail at ten for 15c, a much larger cigar than the Telonette. The jobbing price of the Flexo is $12, less 10 and 2 per thousand.

Smith's cigar store, on Bedford street, has changed hands. W. Epstein is the new proprietor.

H. M. Rose, retailer and jobber, of Irvington street, is about to enter the field of matrimony. The lady is at present a bookkeeper for one of our most popular jobbers.

Kozy cut plug, 2½-ounce foil, is becoming very popular here and is being featured in many of the retailers' windows.

W. B. Markle, the Chelsea pharmacist, has already established a good sale for the popular William the Fourth clear Havana cigars, of which Rosenthal Bros. here are the distributors.

The Goodwin Sisters have put in two new brands—Goodwin Sisters' Little Perfectos and Goodwin Sisters' Invincibles—manufactured expressly for them by L. Miller & Sons, New York, who make the well known Leroy short smoker.

The Commonwealth Cigar Co., who operate a very fine cigar store on Scollay Square, has placed a sign in the show window stating that they have no connection whatever with the trust stores. As many people had been under this impression this was the wisest thing they could do.

NEWS IN THE LANCASTER MARKET.

What Has Happened in the Trade During the Week.

Lancaster, Pa., Feb. 27.

The local leaf market has been again rather quiet except with the packers who are now at their busiest. In old goods there was but a moderate business, not that there was no demand, but owing largely to the growing scarcity of goods, and particularly of the cheaper grades.

Indications point to a fair volume of business with cigar manufacturers, although one hears some complaints in some sections of the county, while in other sections there seems to be a steady improvement.

With John Slater & Co., Lancaster's principal but not only stogie factory, business during the month was more than usually good for February, which is generally somewhat dull. Some heavy shipments were made. Mr. John Slater is expected on from Washington, Pa., some time soon to spend a week or more at the factory headquarters.

Jos. Gottselig, Jr., of H. Gottselig & Bro., was last week on a business trip through the State and captured some very satisfactory orders. This firm contemplate some important changes very soon, which will be duly announced in these columns, but at present details are not yet perfected.

J. B. Milleysack has been for some months past enjoying a good steady trade on several of the more popular brands of his manufacture.

A tobacco shed on the farm of J. Hay Brown, located near Buck, this county, was destroyed by fire last week with its contents of the 1904 crop, entailing a loss of about $3,000.

A. D. Killheffer, proprietor of the Eureka Cigar Factory, returned to factory headquarters several days ago, after a several weeks business trip, during which time he exploited much new territory and brought in a good lot of orders for his products.

Among recent visitors to this city were Benj. and Jos. Perlman, of Perlman Bros. & Co., Baltimore; Chas. Cohen, representing B. Labe & Sons, Philadelphia; Fred. Bauer, with L. E. Neuman & Co., lithographers, New York, and Chas. Michener with Bremer Bros., Philadelphia.

The members of Cigar Makers' Union, 288, of Lincoln, Pa., have been suspended and the officers of the union expelled for allowing the blue label to be fraudulently used by a manufacturer.

The Globe Cigar Co., of Ephrata, has secured a much larger factory building, which was needed to meet the rapidly growing demand for its product.

YORK NEWS OF INTEREST.

What is Doing in the Trade in this County.

York, Pa., Feb. 2.

Considerable tobacco is still being shipped from here to Lancaster warehouses, and leaf dealers all report a quiet but steady trade, as the cigar manufacturers seem to be meeting with some improvement in business.

There is considerable talk of a new cigar factory being erected at Yoe, in which several prominent local manufacturers are said to be already interested. Included in this list is George A. Kohler, Isaac Kohler, A. W. Kohler, Samuel and T. A. Carman. A company is to be formed with a capital of $10,000, and it is intended to erect a large new factory just outside the Yoe borough limits. The company is to be known as the Merchants' Cigar Co., and thirty-four acres of ground is said to have been secured, on which, in addition to a factory building, a number of dwelling houses are also to be erected for the benefit of employes, and building lots are also to be sold off of the plot.

A. F. Fix, a cigar manufacturer of Dallastown, has recently invented an automatic cigar machine which his friends believe will revolutionize the industry, as it is said to turn out sixty cigars a minute when run at full speed. The machine is operated with electric power. Little detail of the machine has so far been made public, and will not be until it shall have been even more thoroughly tested.

The Porto Rico Cigar Co., of Red Lion, has been dissolved by mutual consent of the former partners, which was composed of T. B. Brooks, S. S. Sechrist and D. A. Horn. S. S. Sechrist and his son James B. will continue the business, Messrs. Brooks and Horn retiring from the firm.

Peter McGuigan, of Red Lion, is erecting an addition to his cigar factory.

The Glatfelter-Snyder Tobacco Co., of Yoe, is now crowded with orders for new brands of pouch goods, and in fact orders are being accepted only for later shipments.

Several factories for the manufacture of scrap for cigar manufacturers' use have been regularly bonded for that purpose. Among them are T. D. Shertzer, S. J. Herman and the American Cigar Manufacturing Co., all at Red Lion.

BILLIONS OF CIGARETTES SMOKED IN MEXICO.

The Mexicans smoked so many cigarettes last year that it is not easy too see how they found time to do anything else. The consumption of the little white rolls reached the enormous total of 3,456,000,000.

This was more than one hundred millions more than were consumed in the entire United States during the same year, and there are five times as many people in the United States as in Mexico.

Three of the largest cigarette factories in the world are located in the City of Mexico, and in the largest of these, cigarettes are manufactured at the rate of 12,000 a minute. Last year the sales of this factory amounted to $3,770,000. Ten years ago the sales amounted to but $1,059,337, showing a big increase in consumption.

BUNCHES OF CORN COB PIPES.

New Factory to be Erected in Marion, Indiana.

Marion, Ind., Feb. 27.

This town is gently excited over the fact that it is going to have a corn cob pipe factory. There is also to be a starch factory erected which will use five hundred bushels of corn daily. The pipe factory will use the cobs that are left.

A stock company is being formed and the plant will be in operation soon after the new starch factory begins making starch.

The pipe to be made in Marion will not be an ordinary one. There will be a new device used which will be sure to meet with the approval of every smoker. A new process will manufacture a high class article cheaply. There is but little doubt that the industry will materialize.

Leaf Tobacco Markets.

EDGERTON, WIS.

With the advent of better weather conditions great activity has developed in the growing sections. Buyers are riding quite plentifully and both old and new leaf is moving in considerable quantities again. Now that the cheaper grades are being taken over the general trend is towards lower prices than have heretofore been quoted. Contracts have been closed for a good deal of the leaf of late at around 6c or below that will permit of an export basis. The following are samples:

E A Lewis, 17a at 6¼ and 2c
A Onsrude, 32a at 7, 6½, 6 and 2c
John Iverson, 12a at 5½ and 3c
Ole Wethel, 20a at 7 and 1c
S N Reppen, 7a at 6¼ and 2c
Henry Oscar, 14a at 6 and 2c
Julius Iverson, 13a at 5¼ and 2c
O M Olson, 6a at 7½ and 2c
J L Green, 3¼a at 6 and 2c
J Furand, 4¼a at 6 and 2c
H Hawkinson, 49cs '01 at 8c

E. C. Hopkins has purchased about 50,000 pounds of new leaf in the western portion of the State during the week.

There are some indications that the soft weather of the week may bring about the much desired casing weather, but at this writing that condition has not been reached. The amount of bundle goods on hand at the warehouses is becoming low and assorting must close soon unless the balance of the hanging crop can be removed and prepared for delivery.

Shipments were 1,280cs.—Reporter.

CLARKSVILLE, TENN.

M. H. Clark & Bro.

Our receipts this week were 71 hhds., almost entirely of the new crop; offerings on the breaks, 32 hhds., which included a few hhds of new tobacco, which sold relatively high; public and private sales, 110 hhds., consisting mostly of low grade Leaf Lugs of the 1903 crop, for which the market was generally firm and unchanged.

The severe winter weather has been broken by a milder damp spell, and tobacco can again be handled in the barns. The percentage of Lugs in the new crop appears to be unusually small. Some small sales are being made in loose tobacco houses, but little or nothing is being done in loose tobacco in the country, and the factories are virtually idle.

For old tobacco we continue to quote:

Low Lugs	$3.50	to	$3.75
Common Lugs	3.75	to	4.00
Medium Lugs	4.00	to	4.25
Good Lugs	4.25	to	4.75
Low Leaf	4.75	to	5.50
Common Leaf	5.75	to	6.75

LEGISLATOR WAS BRIBED?

Undue Influence Charged in Case of Indiana Anti-Cigarette Law.

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 24.

An affadavit has been made for the arrest of former State Senator O. A. Baker, of Marion, as the result of a highly sensational charge made by Representative Ananias Baker, of the Lower House, that the former Senator made an attempt to bribe him to vote against the anti-cigarette bill which was up before the legislature Representative Baker is from Fulton and Cass counties.

When the bill came up on Tuesday, Mr. Baker arose and very dramatically waved an evelope above his head exclaiming that it has been sent to him with a request to vote against the measure. He said he hadn't opened it yet, but at once proceeded to do so very spectacularly, the operation disclosing a $100 bill.

Speaker Cantwell ordered an investigation and appointed a committee to conduct it. This committee questioned Representative Baker who finally gave them the name of the former Senator of the same surname, as his tempter. The House voted in favor of the bill 74 to 17.

The bill prohibits the manufacture or sale of cigarettes in the State and makes it unlawful for anyone to have them in his possession.

Governor Hanly had already signed Senator Millburn's bill which makes it a jaill offence for tobacco dealers to sell to minors, only if the trial judge so decrees. In other words the bill makes this punishment optional with the trial judge and was introduced to save certain dealers at Petersburg, from being sent to jail for selling tobacco to minors. It will take effect immediately and it is thought probable that an effort will be made to have the Petersburg offenders tried under the new law.

IMPERIAL TOBACCO CO. SHOWS GAIN

The Imperial Tobacco Co., (Ltd.), of London, with which the American Tobacco Co. is pretty closely affiliated, has issued a report ending in October, 1904, which shows an increase in net trading profit and interest of about $965,000.

After the payment of dividends, the placing of $1,000,000 to the general reserve fund and the allowance for six months' bonus to customers, there is a balance in rough figures of $482,000, an increase over 1903 of about $323,000.

BURLEY FLOODING THE MARKET.

Tobacco that Farmers were Holding Now Reaching the Breaks.

Cincinnati, O., Feb. 27.

The tobacco which was held by the farmers pending the success of the Burley Growers' Association is rapidly beginning to come in on this market and it is expected that a large portion of the millions of pounds which were being held, will reach the breaks this week.

On one morning last week there were more than 400,000 pounds on the floor when the sale began and more than twice that amount on wagons in and around the building waiting to be unloaded. The American Tobacco Co. was a heavy buyer.

Archibald Stuart, who has been in New York for three weeks, in an effort to negotiate a loan of sufficient size to launch the growers' association deal, is on his way home, and there is some talk that he brings with him a tentative proposition or agreement for a new deal, but little faith is put in the report, as the growers in the Burley section have already let go of millions of pounds of their tobacco, and the association could not supply the desired three-fourths of the entire crop now, even if it had the necessary money.

The story that Thomas Lawson, the Boston millionaire, was considering the matter of extending the helping hand to the growers, by securing for them the desired loan, is scouted. Lawson is being kept busy in other directions, and, while he may lend his moral support to the growers combine, tobacco men here believe the deal has collapsed.

ARE FARMERS BEING BOYCOTTED?

Representative Kehoe, of Kentucky, Wants to Know if There is a Tobacco Trust.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24.

A resolution was introduced in the House yesterday looking toward an investigation by the Department of Commerce and Labor as to the causes of the difference between the price of leaf tobacco and the manufactured article, especially in Kentucky, Ohio and Tennessee, and whether such difference is due to a "trust" or combination which could be said to be operated in the form of a conspiracy to create an illegal monopoly which would restrain trade.

The resolution was introduced by Representative Kehoe, of Kentucky, who desires to know what determines the price of leaf tobacco, and whether any corporation or company is enforcing a boycott or black list in its purchases, or has taken any improper measures to prevent competition.

COMBINE GETS BIG FIRMS.

Consolidation of Milwaukee Concerns, and A. T. Co. Takes Control.

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 25.

The American Tobacco Co. has secured control of two more large concerns in this city. The Leidersdorf and Adams tobacco companies have been consolidated and will be under the control of the combine.

The purchases are said to have involved more than $500,000. Bernard Leidersdorf, who founded the business nearly fifty years ago, and who worked it up from a very small beginning, is to retire from active business, and his son Carl will be superintendent of the factory.

THE AMERICAN SMOKE STORY.

The American Cigar Company is distributing through the Ben B. Hampton Co., advertising agents, New York City, a beautifully printed brochure called "The American Smoke Story," which is a detailed history of the company and its career.

The book contains cuts of the company's factories, warehouses, etc., and interior photographs showing the details of the manufacture of the company's product. The pages are margined Indian designs, and the cover bears beautiful drawings of the same nature, the whole being printed in brown, yellow and red. The book is altogether a work of art.

THE WAY AND THE MEANS

¶ There are more ways than ONE to do everything—but every way isn't the BEST way.

¶ If it is any part of your business to produce GOOD cigars, you need GOOD Cigar Tools.

¶ NATIONAL TOOLS are just a little bit BETTER—and a little bit CHEAPER—than YOUR tools.

¶ Because we have the patents, the skilled labor, unusual manufacturing and selling advantages, and we know our business.

¶ NATIONAL CIGAR CUTTERS, gauged correctly, riveted handle, self-sharpening knife, tempered tool steel, and pure brass spring.

¶ NATIONAL CIGAR BOARDS, hard, strong, heavy and smooth; no knots, streaks or spots; can't warp or split.

¶ NATIONAL CIGAR KNIVES and CUBAN BLADES hold their edge and never botch the job.

¶ Another thing, we don't charge several prices for NATIONAL TOOLS, and we give your money back if they don't suit.

¶ Ask for our Special Proposition, meant particularly for YOU.

INDIANA DEALERS DON'T WORRY.

They Aren't Taking the New Anti-Cigarette Law Very Seriously.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 6.

There hasn't been a great deal of excitement in this city yet over Governor Hanly's signing of the Park anti cigarette law, and it is safe to say that the dealers haven't lost any sleep over it.

As a matter of fact, they are probably paying less attention to the bill than those outside the State who read about it in the newspapers. Moreover, there are a lot of cigarette smokers in this city who haven't stopped yet, and evidently don't intend to. They take the attitude that it would be ridiculous to suppose that the authorities will engage a corps of Sherlock Holmeses to trace the origin of every lighted cigarette they see in the street.

It is also considered doubtful if the police department would raid private dwellings where they suspected the man of the house to be enjoying a cigarette behind locked doors, although they admit if it was the Philadelphia police they had to contend with there would be no telling.

A number of dealers say that they wont care much if they are obliged to throw out the cigarette, inasmuch as there is not a great deal of money in handling it. The difference would be noticed far more on the sale of tobacco for cigarettes to be rolled by the consumers, as there is a large business done in certain of such brands of tobacco.

There is understood to be nothing in the law to prohibit the sale of this tobacco to the consumer, although the dealer is not permitted to sell the packages of paper in which the tobacco is to be rolled, and the consumer in rolling a cigarette would virtually be breaking the law against the manufacture of this form of smoking.

There is really as much laughing over the new law as any other sentiment, and it is said if an attempt were actually made to enforce the law in its letter cigarette smokers would do like Kansas people did when the law took their liquor away—simply get it.

It is said that Ohio dealers who live near their side of the State line expect to reap a harvest from the law, as they count on getting the patronage of Indianians for miles the other side of the line.

ASSETS OF SHADE-GROWN TOBACCO COMPANY AT PUBLIC SALE.

The Connecticut court has been asked by Hugh M. Alcorn, one of the receivers for the United States Sumatra Tobacco Co., to order a public sale of the assets of the company for next Monday, March 6. This request was made because it is believed that a more satisfactory settlement can be secured than at private sale, as already ordered by the court. The company was one of the best known of those that conducted shade-grown tobacco properties.

CAN'T BE GROWERS IN A MINUTE.

Texas Farmers thinks Tobacco Raising too Simple an Operation.

Houston, Tex., March 2.

The tobacco raising idea has become so popular in this State that there is evidence that wildcat tobacco raising will be engaged in extensively throughout the State, and the Government experts are not by any means pleased.

Expert Shelfers, at Nacogdoches, regards the outlook as unfavorable on this account and has said so publicly. He thinks it is a great mistake for farmers to rush into the work before they get any kind of a proper idea of how to do it, and it has been stated by some that the shade grown industry in Connecticut failed for just these reasons, and not by any fault of the Government experts.

Mr. Shelfers, says the farmers who intend to go into the matter properly should do nothing until they are first instructed in the proper method of cultivation, secure the right seed and then go to work on scientific lines. He says that if there is no worse result, the promiscuous raising will result in greatly lowering the general average of Texas tobacco which so far has been of a high grade.

Farmers are advised to have their soil tested before they plant, and to study up on the matter and be sure they are right before they go ahead. The idea that they simply have to plant seed in any soil in the State is likely to result very disastrously for the growth of the industry in the State.

Arranging to Enter New York Town for Retail Campaign.

Binghamton, N. Y., March 3.

The United Cigar Stores Co. is to enter this city, and it is now believed that they will have at least two stores in operation within a few days. It is not known whether they intend to invade the field very extensively, but the local dealers are not overjoyed at the prospect.

Efforts have been made this week by agents of the United Co. to locate places in certain choice localities and it was said that a big bonus was recently offered for the lease of the store now occupied by J. J. Burns at Court and Water streets. Another store near State street is also desired by the company.

The persistence with which specific locations have been tried for, has given rise to the rumor that the United people are after certain dealers but there is nothing more definite upon which to found this report.

It is certain that while not much is said by local independent dealers, the United Company will by no means be given the glad hand by the other cigarists in the city, as there is a fear that the company may be intending to cut prices for awhile in order to get the trade.

A traveling salesman cannot have a better introduction to a buyer's store than the introduction of printer's ink.

RIVAL BUYERS ON BURLEY BREAKS

Prices in Cincinnati are Jumped by Combine and Independents.

Cincinnati, O., March 4.

Things are still very lively on the local breaks owing to the intense competition between the combine buyers and those of the independent manufacturers.

As a result of this, prices on all grades have advanced and the breaks are crowded with growers from Ohio and Kentucky who are here to find out just what is doing in the burley deal and to take advantage of the best opportunities afforded them.

When river transportation is fully opened, which will be very soon, it is considered practically certain that burley growers will ship their entire crop to market and this will cause prices to retrograde again. Very little attention is being paid by the farmers to the various schemes which are said to be on foot from day to day to revive the burley association bubble. It is now a case of every man doing the best he can with his crop.

ANOTHER ANTI-TRUST BILL.

Connecticut Jobbers Ask Assembly to Present "Restrictive Methods."

New Haven, Conn., March 2.

Tobacco jobbers of this city have sent a petition to the general assembly asking for the passing of a bill which is pending before that body entitled "an act to prevent monopoly and for the protection of trades." The bill is in line with the Massachusetts bill passed a few months ago, and it is understood by the trade to be aimed at the American Tobacco Co.

Some of the jobbers who signed the petition assert that the combine agrees to give every dealer who buys exclusively the American Tobacco Co.'s goods, a discount of eight per cent, while the man who has a trade on other goods and refuses to be bound by such an agreement, gets no discount. The petition was also signed by wholesale grocers who handle tobacco.

NO TRUST PROBE.

Government Will Not Act on Kehoe Resolution for Some Time.

Washington, D. C., March 3.

It is extremely improbable that any action will be taken for some time on the resolution offered by Representative Kehoe asking for an investigation of some of the movements of the American Tobacco Co.

Representative Smith, of Kentucky, who was delegated by the Judiciary Committee to consult the Attorney General on the subject, has found it impossible to arrange a satisfactory interview, and as a result expressed the opinion that with steel, beef, oil and the various other commodities, the monopoly of which is being looked into now, the Department of Labor and Commerce will have its entire attention occupied for some time to come.

GROW TOBACCO IN CANADA.

Government Will Establish Experimental Stations in Northwest.

Ottawa, March 1.

During a discussion in the House on tobacco, it was suggested that the Government should try the growing of tobacco in the Northwest.

Mr. Brodeur stated that whatever feeling there was against Canadian tobacco was one of prejudice. He was satisfied that the Government was determined to do everything possible to encourage its growth in Canada, and with that end in view, they had men watching the seeding and curing operations. He said that agents were now in Wisconsin in connection with this, and the Governor of the State had placed a large farm at their disposal, where experiments were being carried on. There were suggestions that the Government should establish experimental stations. Experiments were now carried on at the experimental farm at Ottawa.

GOOD LEAF IN IDAHO.

Belated Returns From World's Fair Award Prize to Orifino Firm.

For several years the experiment of raising tobacco was tried in Idaho, in a small way, and while the plant grew well no particular attention was paid to developing the industry.

Last fall Dunlap & Buckley, of Orofino, sent samples of their tobacco to the St. Louis exposition, and a few days ago they received notice that a diploma for merit had been awarded to them. The samples sent by them to the exposition are said to have been some of the largest leaves of tobacco ever seen, and they were without blemish of any kind. Several persons will plant tobacco there this season.

HAVANA-AMERICAN CO. WILL HAVE NEW FACTORY.

The Mankin Co., 812 East Main street, Richmond, Va., has the contract to erect proposed hollow cement block factory building for the Havana American Co., of Key West; to be four stories, 52x152 feet, have tile roof, copper gutter and downspout, electric lights, two-story fireproof vault and electric elevator, and to cost $35,000.

A 15,000 gallon tank in the tower, extended 30 feet above roof, and a 90,000 gallon cistern, from which water will be conveyed to tank by an electrically driven pump, will also be installed.

NEW FACTORY IN ONEIDA, N. Y.

A new factory has been put in operation in Oneida, N. Y., by Andrew S. Hummell and Charles A. Smith, under the firm name of Smith & Hummell. Both men are experienced in the trade, and the product of their factory will doubtless be a popular addition to the market.

INDIANA DEALERS DON'T WORRY.

They Aren't Taking the New Anti-Cigarette Law Very Seriously.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 6.

There hasn't been a great deal of excitement in this city yet over Governor Hanly's signing of the Park anti cigarette law, and it is safe to say that the dealers haven't lost any sleep over it.

As a matter of fact, they are probably paying less attention to the bill than those outside the State who read about it in the newspapers. Moreover, there are a lot of cigarette smokers in this city who haven't stopped yet, and evidently don't intend to. They take the attitude that it would be ridiculous to suppose that the authorities will engage a corps of Sherlock Holmeses to trace the origin of every lighted cigarette they see in the street.

It is also considered doubtful if the police department would raid private dwellings where they suspected the man of the house to be enjoying a cigarette behind locked doors, although they admit if it was the Philadelphia police they had to contend with there would be no telling.

A number of dealers say that they wont care much if they are obliged to throw out the cigarette, inasmuch as there is not a great deal of money in handling it. The difference would be noticed far more on the sale of tobacco for cigarettes to be rolled by the consumers, as there is a large business done in certain of such brands of tobacco.

There is understood to be nothing in the law to prohibit the sale of this tobacco to the consumer, although the dealer is not permitted to sell the packages of paper in which the tobacco is to be rolled, and the consumer in rolling a cigarette would virtually be breaking the law against the manufacture of this form of smoking.

There is really as much laughing over the new law as any other sentiment, and it is said if an attempt were actually made to enforce the law in its letter cigarette smokers would do like Kansas people did when the law took their liquor away—simply get it.

It is said that Ohio dealers who live near their side of the State line expect to reap a harvest from the law, as they count on getting the patronage of Indianans for miles the other side of the line.

ASSETS OF SHADE-GROWN TOBACCO COMPANY AT PUBLIC SALE.

The Connecticut court has been asked by Hugh M. Alcorn, one of the receivers for the United States Sumatra Tobacco Co., to order a public sale of the assets of the company for next Monday, March 6. This request was made because it is believed that a more satisfactory settlement can be secured than at private sale, as already ordered by the court. The company was one of the best known of those that conducted shade-grown tobacco properties.

CAN'T BE GROWERS IN A MINUTE.

Texas Farmers thinks Tobacco Raising too Simple an Operation.

Houston, Tex., March 2.

The tobacco raising idea has become so popular in this State that there is evidence that wildcat tobacco raising will be engaged in extensively throughout the State, and the Government experts are not by any means pleased.

Expert Shelfers, at Nacogdoches, regards the outlook as unfavorable on this account and has said so publicly. He thinks it is a great mistake for farmers to rush into the work before they get any kind of a proper idea of how to do it, and it has been stated by some that the shade grown industry in Connecticut failed for just these reasons, and not by any fault of the Government experts.

Mr. Shelfers, says the farmers who intend to go into the matter properly should do nothing until they are first instructed in the proper method of cultivation, secure the right seed and then go to work on scientific lines. He says that if there is no worse result, the promiscuous raising will result in greatly lowering the general average of Texas tobacco which so far has been of a high grade.

Farmers are advised to have their soil tested before they plant, and to study up on the matter and be sure they are right before they go ahead. The idea that they simply have to plant seed in any soil in the State is likely to result very disastrously for the growth of the industry in the State.

The Old Salesman's Musings.

A WORD ON THE CIGARETTE AGITATION.

It beats the mischief how everybody is beginning to jump on the poor little cigarette. One might think that it was as awkward a proposition for humanity to solve as is the social evil.

The Hoosiers are carrying the banner in the van just now, but there are a whole lot of other zealots trying to catch up, and there is no telling what fool bills will be introduced in the legislatures before all the agitators get through calling attention to themselves.

The most sensational incident of the doings in Indiana was the dramatic display of a $100 bill by one of the Representatives, who declared that he had received it as an inducement for him to vote against the bill prohibiting the manufacture or sale of cigarettes in the State, and who asserted that the money had come from a lobbyist in the employ of the American Tobacco Co.

Whatever may be said about the American Tobacco Co. by its friends or its enemies, there is never any dispute as to the fact that the organization is conducted by men who have cut their eyeteeth, and who, granting for the sake of argument that they might consider it necessary to apply a little financial grease, would hardly be likely to shoot hundred-dollar bills around promiscuously without having gained a fair idea of what would become of them.

On the other hand, I don't suppose that any one seriously supposes that cigarettes will never again be sold in Indiana, or that travelling men who smoke them will throw their supply out of the car window as they speed over the State line.

The moment you tell a man who has been in the habit of smoking fifteen cigarettes a day that he must not buy or smoke any at all because he is not capable of determining what is good for him, that man immediately finds it necessary to smoke thirty a day, and will cheerfully go to any amount of trouble to get them.

It is presumable that the most part of all this talk and monkey business has been brought about primarily because a lot of people want to stop kids from smoking or being tempted to smoke. That's all right and perfectly laudable; but there has got to be some better way hit upon, if it is to be successful. Such a rigid law as this is so manifestly unfair, not only to a man's moral freedom, but to a great business interest, that it can not possibly be entirely successful as a law.

Assume that every State passed such a measure—and if the cigarette is objectionable as a common evil in one State, it must be in another—and consider the effect. There were 265,292,098 cigarettes produced in the United States in January, which showed some gain, but which is a fair average. A very large majority of these are consumed in this country, and if the industry were wiped out at one sweep, what would become of the capital tied up in the business, of the men who represent the capital, and last, but by no means least, the tremendous army of workers in the factories, in the offices and on the road? What would become of the bright leaf farmers, who supply the material for the domestic cigarette? The tobacco made up in any other form would still contain the presumably harmful ingredients of a cigarette.

All this because a number of kids around the country aren't properly spanked when they need it. Of course, if it can be proven that the cigarette industry is a great and growing menace to the health of the next generation, it should not be permitted to stand, merely in order to prevent throwing a multitude of people out of work.

But this has not yet been proved, and a strong infusion of common sense will be necessary before these crusaders accomplish much in this direction.

A "fiend" cannot be cured by putting the cigarette out of business, for if by a miracle of effort he were prevented from securing "the makings," he would simply turn to something worse. Drug "fiends" in every city or town in the Union have little trouble in gratifying their needs, and it is going a little far to class the cigarette with the opium layout.

So much for the "fiend," (bless him, for the crusader could'nt do without him.) The average cigarette smoker certainly would not stop because somebody told

THE REALM OF THE RETAILERS

TIMELY TALKS WITH ENTERPRISING DEALERS.

THE only way to do more business now a days than is being done by the man across the street is by advertising more effectively than he does. The public is like a coy fish that hangs off for the most attractive bait, and the dealer who doesn't give customers some particular reason for coming to his place is like the fisherman who expects fish to rise to an empty hook.

By advertising, the taking of space in a newspaper or other publication, is not necessarily meant, but anything which serves to exploit the business. The clothier who commences to give a pair of suspenders free with every pair of trousers purchased is advertising, and if he keeps his books properly, will charge the cost of the suspenders up to his advertising account. In fact there are so many methods and ideas of advertising that it would be foolish to attempt to say certainly which is the best method.

One good scheme consists of the issuing of rebate checks which can easily be done by the dealer who uses a cash register. Upon the check issued by these machines can be printed any new idea that will be attractive from an advertising standpoint.

You might say: "Return $10 worth of these checks and receive 50c value in merchandise." Then upon this check you could print a mixed lot of letters. These letters properly arranged, would spell a certain word or motto. Advertise that any person who rearranges these letters so they will properly spell the word or motto, will receive an extra rebate, or a double rebate.

It might be advertised that on every hundredth purchase the money will be refunded. This hundredth check can be ascertained by the consecutive number of the check issued by the register.

When a rebate is given for cash sales, it is sometimes an excellent point to advertise that double rebate will be given. This could be done on dull days, when it is a well known fact that trade is not so brisk.

It is a good idea to post in the window a weather bulletin, printed in large letters. This weather bulletin can be secured from the postmaster each day. If printed in letters large enough, it will attract the attention of the public, which is always interested in the weather, and thus call attention to the goods displayed in the window.

A new plan suggested is to secure the names of a number of customers, say 500 or 1,000, outside the immediate vicinity of your store, and outside of your regular trade. To them, send once every so often, a rebate check, or sight draft for, for instance, $1. State in the letter accompanying this, that if the person will present this check at your store, he will receive a credit of $1 on sales made up to a certain amount, say $5 or $10 While this seems a large rebate, it must be remembered that this is done to people outside of your immediate vicinity, who are not regular customers at your store. It will enable you to interest new customers, who will thereafter be attracted to your store by your up to date methods and by the class of goods sold them.

A store often has an accumulation of odds and ends. These may be got together in boxes, neatly wrapped and tied.

They could be displayed in the window, with an advertisement on cards or in the newspapers, that on a certain day these boxes, containing valuable articles will be sold, say at $5 or 50 cents apiece. The purchaser buys "sight unseen." The package is sure to contain something of value, probably of considerably greater value than the price asked. The curiosity of the public will be aroused, and the stock of odds and ends. or slow selling merchandise, which has bothered the merchant, will be disposed of to the satisfaction of the public and the proprietor; and at the same time attract a number of customers to your store.

A GOOD SUGGESTION.

SMOKERS are always glad to have dealers give them hints during sales, for whether he is or is not, every dealer appears to his customers as an expert on tobacco. Here is a suggestion which comes from a medical authority and which many smokers will be glad to know.

Those who use a mouth piece while smoking. or are careful not to permit the end of the cigar to get saturated with saliva are much less liable to suffer from the absorption of the various products of the burning tobacco. "Dry smokers" run much less risk of harming themselves than those who chew the ends of their cigars. A little piece of absorbent cotton saturated with chloride of iron and placed in the holder will render innocuous most of the harmless products of combustion.

TEST CIGARETTES IN THE MORNING.

"THE time to test a cigarette is before breakfast," said a dealer who makes a specialty of these articles. "The cigarette connoisseurs are on to that. Whenever I get anything new in the way of a high class cigarette, I write to my best customers and they drop in along in the forenoon, before they've eaten or smoked, to try it.

"The most expensive cigarettes I carry, considering the size, are specially made for ladies. They cost only 4 cents a piece, but there's only a pinch of tobacco in each one—hardly one pull for a man. My best woman customer buys a hundred boxes at a time, and she's back with a new order pretty frequently. I don't suppose she smokes them all herself. She entertains a great deal."

The man who can't use advertising in his business, has no business to be in business, and usually isn't.

PERSONAL APPEARANCE IS A WHOLE LOT.

EVERY man who has entered the average well kept saloon has probably noticed at some time or other, the fact that one of the attractions was the air of cleanliness and neatness about the bartenders. The majority of them wear freshly laundered linen coats, are usually careful about being shaved, have clean collars and the electric light shining on them gives them a very agreeable, hospitable look. Their trousers and shoes may be off color, but you don't see them.

The bartender may copy after the old time hotel clerk with the expanse of gleaming shirt front set off by a paste headlight, but he has interest enough in his business to take the trouble to keep himself in trim, and that is the point that is being brought out.

It is probable, too, that no matter how sloppy the bartender allowed himself to get, he would still be kept pretty busy. But with a cigar store it is different The average cigar smoker is more fastidious than the average frequenter of barrooms, and he will select the best kept store every time. That being the case it is surprising, the carelessness and indifference which is displayed in a great many stores whose proprietors ought to know better.

Not long ago the writer visited a number of the stores with the express intention of noticing such things, and was considerably astounded to behold the large proportion of clerks that needed a shave, and needed it badly. There is no law which compels a man to keep himself shaved but when, to a certain extent, he is in the position of a servant to the public, ordinary ambition ought to induce him to try to make a good impression.

In some of the places the clerks had dirty collars, their hair was not even brushed neatly, and their hands were anything but pleasant to look upon. A man's hands will get dirty in spite of him, but he has a right to wash them occasionally, and the proprietor who knows his business will take the trouble to afford the facilities and insist upon it.

No one expects a man who gets the salary given the usual clerk to appear as a Beau Brummel, but if he is in a position where he is always on view and comes into cantact with customers, he should be compelled properly to attend to the care of his person. There should be nothing about the clerk to repel the casual customer, and the man who enters a strange store to get his cigars, is much more likely to notice such things than he would in the store he usually patronizes. As a consequence he wont come again.

As was said at first, the better class of stores are referred to, not the hang-up joints where the customers don't care anything about their own appearance, and would certainly not be likely to criticise the clerk's. The average business man now-a-days, is well dressed and is careful to have a good appearance. If his personal inclinations would not naturally induce such a condition, he is forced to look after such details because it is expected by others.

And if he is one of the kind that obeys such a reason, he will be all the quicker to notice defects in others and resent them.

It may seem a ridiculously small thing to make a fuss about, the passing over the counter of a cigar box, by a clerk who needs a shave, or whose linen is soiled, but a good many permanent customers have been lost in just such a way. It is close attention to little details and the bettering of small things that makes the successful dealer.

If he were not able to accomplish it in any other way, the wise dealer would make his clerks an extra allowance every week sufficient to insure clean face and linen. He will find it to be the best investment he ever made.

It is not the purpose of this article to designate the cigar store clerk as a miserably shiftless, untidy individual. It is only stated that a good many clerks are too careless in this respect for their own good. They may count up their weekly wage, and figure out that it doesn't pay to spend money in such a way. They may simply be ordinarily careless, or think it doesn't particularly matter how they look while at work.

It's the greatest mistake in the world, though. The man whose appearance is irreproachable is bound to attract favorable attention and the more favorable attention he attracts, the more his value increases; if his employer does not recognize that fact some other will. He will also find that the difference it makes in his own self resspect will be worth the price.

FOR ADVERTISING CARDS.

THE DEALER who wants to keep his friends reminded that he is still in business, and who wishes to acquaint others of that fact, would be likely to get good results if he had neat cards printed bearing his name and address and a little cut of his store, if it has a good front, which he might call "At the Sign of the Good Cigar."

On the back of the card it would be well to print a humorous little conceit of some sort, for it is an ancient fact that a joke travels faster and further than anything else. Something like this would be appropriate:

Johnny's Composition on Tobacco.

Tobacco grows something like a cabbage, but I never saw none cooked. I have heard men say that cigars that was given them on election day for nothing was mostly cabbage leaves. Tobacco stores are mostly kept by wooden Injuns, who stand at the door and offer them a bunch of cigars, which is glued into the Injun's hand, and is made of wood also. I tried to smoke a cigar once, and I felt like Epson salts. Tobacco was invented by a man named Walter Raleigh.

NEW BUYERS IN HAVANA MARKET.

No One is Buying Largely, But There is Some Hope to the Trade. Should Be About 44,000 Bales in First Hands. Most Demand for Remedios and Heavy Vuelta Abajo.

[Special Correspondence of The Tobacco World.]

HAVANA, February 27, 1905.

Quite a number of new buyers made their appearance in the Havana market last week, and while the majority of them have not operated largely, the aggregate of their purchases has helped to give life to the trade.

Receipts from the country have fallen off to a minimum of a few hundred bales last week, indicating that the stocks in farmers' hands cannot amount to any quantity worth taking into consideration. According to the number of bales received from the interior of the island and the sales reported, there should be a trifle over 44,000 bales in first hands, but as some receipts from the country were shipped direct instead of coming into the market, the actual stocks may be less.

On the other hand, the American exporters have looked out for their customers, so the latter if they come here will be able to fill their wants. A curious fact, however, is that it has been demonstrated through the stamps sold by the government on cigars and cigarettes consumed in the island, that the latter is far larger than had been imagined by most people, and that fully 500,000 bales of leaf tobacco are required to be produced each year to meet the home consumption and exports of leaf, cigars, cigarettes and cut tobacco.

As the 1904 crop only produced 450,000 bales, surplus stocks from previous years have been reduced 50,000 bales. As the majority of authorities claim that the 1905 crop may yield only 400,000 bales, it would require 100,000 bales to make up the shortage to cover the demand, and as the stocks were only 90,000 bales on January 1, 1905, the actual shortage would be 10,000 bales.

The statistical position is, therefore, undoubtedly very strong, and in view of such figures high prices appear inevitable in order to prevent a further expansion of the consumption. Strange as it may appear, the greatest demand is still for Remedios and heavy Vuelta Abajo styles, while the lighter fillers of Vuelta Abajo and Partido particularly are almost neglected at the moment. However, if true that the coming crop will consist principally of medio tiempo and tardio leaf (or of a heavier body), then the tables may be turned and all lighter styles may be sought after again. One bale of "libre de pie" (ground leaf new crop) from Remates arrived here last week and was sold to a local factory at a comparatively high figure.

It is stated that a few farmers have again begun to throw some of their new tobacco upon piles, which method ought to be severely condemned. Force sweated Connecticut wrappers may have given good results in the United States, but forcing Havana tobacco with the present appliances so far has always resulted in losses to the manufacturers at least. The farmer may possibly reap some benefit, if prices rule high and he finds a dealer ready to take chances in trying to palm off such imperfectly cured tobacco upon a manufacturer.

In order to make the dried new tobacco pliable, continuous humidity or heavy rains are needed, so that the bundled tobacco when thrown upon piles will at once begin fermentation. This process is of the utmost importance, and formerly used to require forty days, while of late, in order to retain the light colored wrappers, less time is given to it by the farmers.

Some of the latter in the same manner in order to satisfy the craze for light colors, cut their tobacco plants before the leaves are properly matured. A false humidity may set in for a day, or only for a few hours, and if the greedy or unthinking "veguero" uses this opportunity to bundle his tobacco and throw it into piles, no fermentation will take place if the weather turns dry again, and the tobacco will become hard and resent the violence done to it. Such tobacco will always show the false treatment, and no after-fermentation can improve it.

Even the best crop grown under the most favorable circumstances can be turned into poor looking (and tasting) stuff. The rainy season varies according to the years. Sometimes it sets in as early as the middle of April: then again not until the latter part of May, and there have been exceptional years when the rains only became general in June.

At the moment there is a complaint of drought all over the country, and that the plants still in the field are stunted in growth, therefore fillers will be heavy in body and not plentiful, as many plants after the first cutting have dried up and will give no chance for a second or third cutting, as in favorable years. Some sections, of course, are favored in times by rains, and the estimate of 400,000 bales is based upon the good yield in these districts.

Havana Cigar Manufacturers

had only four working days the past week, as by the interference of the national holiday, "El Grito de Baire," on Friday last. Hardly any of the independent factories worked on Saturday either. The large independent factories, such as H. Upmann & Co., Cifuentes, Fernandez & Co., of the Partagas; Antonio J. Rivero, manager of the Por Larranaga; Behrens & Co., of Sol; Rabell, Costa, Vales & Co., of Ramon Allones; J. F. Rocha, of Crepusculo; Rafael G Marques, of High Life, are however fully occupied, and receive steady orders from the United States, Europe and South America. Exports per steamship Morro Castle were 3 143,792 cigars.

Buying, Selling and Other Notes of Interest.

John N. Kolb made one purchase of 700 bales of fine Vuelta Abajo vegas, lowland section.

Fernando Fernandez & Bro. sold 737 bales of Vuelta Abajo, 400 of which were to the French regie.

H. Upmann & Co. shipped 420,000 cigars of their own and other independent brands last week.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez disposed of 700 bales of Vuelta Abajo and shipped 3,496 bales of leaf per steamship Regina Maria Cristina to the Spanish regie.

Manuel Suarez & Co. have had a very busy week looking after four customers of theirs.

Don Jose Mendelsohn thinks he can take a short respite in seeing his family, and left by the steamship Morro Castle on Saturday. However, as he is a hustler, it is to be assumed he will not rest long upon his oars.

G. Salomon y Hns. turned over 600 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Remedios

A. M. Calzada & Co. have purchased 500 bales of Remedios in the country, and had no trouble in finding ready buyers of 300 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Remedios.

Alfred Rossin is said to have made some good sized operations in Remedios and Vuelta Abajo.

Rabell, Costa, Vales & Co. sold 430 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

W. W. Stewart bought between 200 and 300 bales of fine Vuelta Abajo leaf for Stewart, Newberger & Co.

A. Pazos & Co. were very busy selling over 300 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

Rodriguez Baustita & Co. disposed of 267 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

Jose F. Rocha closed out 200 bales of their stock of Vuelta Abajo.

Bruno Diaz & Co. were sellers to the extent of 200 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido.

Loeb Nunez Havana Co turned over 200 bales of Remedios.

Suarez Hno found buyers early for 150 bales of their fine holdings of Vuelta Abajo.

Muniz Hns y Cia made one transaction of 150 bales of Vuelta Abajo last week.

Jose Menendez sold 135 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido.

Grau, Planas & Co. disposed of 110 bales of Remedios without any trouble.

Cifuentes, Fernandez & Co. purchased the famous vegas of Santiago Plasencia & Bro., called "El Retiro," of San Luis, Vuelta Abajo, and some other choice vegas of the cuchillas of San Juan y Martinez, making in all some 2,000 or 3,000 bales of the new crop. In starting early to buy of the new crop it shows from which side the wind is blowing. Naturally, this tobacco will only be packed when the proper time for handling the same arrives, and there will be no precipitation, as the Partagas factory would even have enough stocks on hand to run their business if there was a crop failure.

TOBACCO NEWS OF GREATER NEW YORK

NEW YORK, February 27, 1905.

While there were one or two days last week when the retailers could have done more without being rushed, the general trend of things was much better and business was of a steadier character. If the milder weather continues dealers figure on being busy now right on through the spring. The Broadway stores did better during the week than had been the case for some time and altogether things are brighter.

Orders for the spring trade are reaching the manufacturers, who were beginning to be affected by the general slowness in the retail trade over the country, and there is a sigh of relief that February is out of the way. It is probable that an authenic report from the large majority of manufacturers would show the last month to have been the worst February for years, and any lessening of the conditions which were responsible is of course eagerly welcomed.

The leaf market was steady and fairly active during the week and there might be said to be more demand than there really is supply. There is very little domestic leaf in stock and the outlook for the new crop seems so dubious that dealers are not particularly anxious to let go what they have got on hand. The most part of the week's business was done in Havana, and this market is really busy. There is little doing in Sumatra just now, every one awaiting the result of the inscriptions.

Much discussion has been created among manufacturers by the clause in the Court of Appeals decision in re S. Falk's Sons, of Key West, against the American West Indies Trading Co., which reads thus: a trade mark is not a piece of property that passes from hand to hand by assignment separate from the business of the owner of the trade mark or the article which it may serve to distinguish.

This seems to indicate to the trade that the very common practice of transferring a brand by one manufacturer to another as a sale or by some other form of value received is illegal. The court further says in this respect:

The mere sale of a trade mark apart from the article to which it is affixed confers no right to sell his goods manufactured by another.

A manufacturer has registered a name for a brand and after using it for a time, has allowed it to run down. Another manufacturer applies to have the same name registered but is told that it is already taken. In a great many cases heretofore the second manufacturer has simply gone to the first and bought the brand. This, as this decision is understood, he can no longer do, and on the same score hundreds of brands now on the market are being put out by manufacturers who have no lawful right to them, they having been obtained in this way.

The suit was in the much mooted case in which the Falk firm sued the American West Indies Co. for damages for alleged infringement of its brand El Falcon by use of the name El Falco, and secured five consecutive judgments. On appeal by the defendant company the case finally reached the Court of Appeals which reversed the lower courts on the sole point that the plaintiff company had no right to the name of El Falcon, inasmuch as it had acquired it by transfer from another firm unaccompaied by any other part of the business. The firm originally using El Falcon as a brand was Lichtenstein Bros., who first used it for cigars more than thirty years ago. In 1898, the corporation which comprised the original firm of Lichtenstein Bros., went out of business and assigned the brand in question to S. Falks' Sons.

The West Indies Trading Co., got its brand from the manager of the company, Gregorio Lopez y Falco, and as soon as the label was put on the market the Falk people brought suit. On one decision they received a judgement for nearly $10,000 and it was only on the present decision that their right to the brand was questioned. This adds one more complication to the laws governing the use of trademarks, labels, etc.

Things are smoking up in the Tobacco Show line and the committee which has the affair in charge is already getting a taste of the bunch of work which will be its increasing portion during the coming months. If present indications are anything there will be no trouble in letting the spaces. This will be done by the committee at a fixed rental of so much the square foot, so that the rentor can have as large or as small an exhibit as he wishes. Offers have been made even at this early date for the bar and restaurant privilege but nothing has been decided yet. As certain sections of the hall will probably be regarded as most desirable, it is understood that these will be awarded on premium bids, the remainder of the hall being apportioned in the order in which application is made. The booths will be arranged so that the hall can accommodate an expected daily attendance of from fifty to seventy-five thousand.

The Retail Cigar and Tobacco Dealers' Association had another highly enjoyable anniversary celebration last Tuesday night which brought out a good proportion of the members and and an impressive showing of guests, among whom were quite a number of the fair sex. There was no business transacted, the routine of the usual meeting giving way to many speeches of interest. Robert E. Lane

PHILADELPHIA, MARCH 8, 1905.

THE CURTIS BILL.

Congress has taken a recess, and the fate of the Curtis bill is still in doubt. A majority of the Ways and Means Committee reported the bill favorably, which action surprised no one, and there will probably be no difficulty in getting the measure through the Lower House when the matter comes up.

The determined, concerted opposition which was evidently more or less unexpected and unprepared for by Secretary Taft, produced a natural hesitation on the part of some of those who had intended to railroad the bill through, and it was finally decided that the safest thing was to halt it at the Lower House.

Let the trade continue hammering away on the proposition, and they will carry their point yet.

Among the noticeable features of the campaign so far has been the air of affected surprise on the part of the stand-patters that the tobacco trade could possibly have anything like a serious objection to an arrangement whereby it was coolly to be deprived of a goodly share of its bread and butter.

"Always thinking of yourself" seems to be the attitude of the Ways and Means Committee toward the trade. John Sharp Williams said to Mr. Bijur: "You seem to think that the duty you pay is in the nature of a charity."

R. Bourke Cochran said on the floor of the House while speaking of the Philippines.

"We have said if we admit their tobacco it will hurt the tobacco growers of Connecticut and Pennsylvania; if we admit their sugar, we will hurt the sugar trust; if we admit any of their commodities, the richness of their soil, the productiveness of their climate and the cheapness of their labor will enable them to overwhelm our markets with commodities the production of which constitutes their chief industry. Not one word has been said about promoting the expansion of their trade. Much has been said about expanding our own. Who has spoken for the Philippine Islanders?"

Well and good. By all means let us look after the prosperity of the Philippines if they are a part of us. But sometimes we seem to own them and sometimes we don't. The actions of the stand-patters might be said to be speaking loudly thus to the tobacco and sugar industries:

"Pay attention! We've got to do something for those fellows because they are part of our glorious country, you know; and beside that, we took away their hemp income. Now you're a patriotic set of men. These people have special facilities for raising sugar and tobacco. If you'll just kindly consent to be the goat, we'll let them shoot their stuff into this market while we wave the flag and cheer, and everybody's satisfied. See? I tell you it's a great opportunity for you!"

It's a great opportunity, indeed—for the Philippine cigar factories. But a law destined to benefit one class solely at the expense of another, for which benefit no sort of return is given, is not a law which carries out the spirit of the constitution.

THE Department of Commerce and Labor has evidently gagged a little at the load of detective work which is being piled on its shoulders. There has been more or less talk of a look in on the American Tobacco Co. for some time and a special agent named Garner was supposed to have started out for the tobacco fields.

Nothing has apparently come from this, but it did look a little like business when Representative Kehoe introduced his resolutions before the House the other day asking that information be obtained as to how greatly the tobacco combine is able to regulate the prices which growers receive.

The Judiciary Committee appointed Representative Smith to consult the Attorney General, but so far nothing encouraging is reported. Mr. Smith merely refers to all the investigations that are on foot already and intimates that the department will not be very likely to get around to tobacco for a considerable while.

It is perhaps just as well that all the trusts aren't to be put out of business at once. There would be too awkward a vacuum.

Advertising seldom sells goods directly. The burden upon advertising is to draw attention to the articles for sale, teaching the first lesson in prospective purchasing.

THE excitement and interest attending the inauguration, the war in the East, the Department of Commerce and Labor's investigations, etc., etc., is likely to be transferred to Mayfield, Ky., until a frightful error which was committed has been corrected and the peace of mind of the State as nearly restored as is possible under the circumstances.

In the vicinity of Mayfield is a farmer named W. B. Usher. Somehow the hateful rumor has gained body that Farmer Usher was in the habit of GROWING TOBACCO. Try to grasp the awful significance of this gratuitous canard and then, after reading the ringing, manly defense which Mr. Usher wrote for publication dismiss, if possible, the subject from mind. He wrote:

I wish to correct an error as regards my actions in regard to tobacco growing. I have not grown nor had grown any tobacco since the year 1868. It is true I have permitted some children to grow some little crops in which I had no interest. I have said since the year 1869 I believed it sinful to grow it If that proposition should be denied I think I am fully able to sustain the affirmative. Now, brother farmers, I am sure you will not agree with me in all I have said, but you will please think about it; and while you are thinking about it, let me offer you another suggestion and that is, to reduce your acreage to about half and then you can raise more corn, more wheat, more hogs, etc., and that would not be sinful.

W. B. USHER.

Not even Socrates could have so aptly condensed the proposition into one predicate. Reduce your acreage to about half and that would not be sinful.

New Revenue Decision.

A decision of considerable importance has just been received from Washington by Collector McCoach, of this district, which in some cases will make considerable difference in the amount of revenue tax which must be paid.

Certain manufacturers have held that the wholesale price, or that which denotes the denomination of the stamp to be affixed, is the price which the jobbers pay to the manufacturer, and from this understanding it is probable that a recent complication regarding the stamping of a certain cigarette arose.

Under the present decision the determining price is that paid by retailers to jobbers, and collectors must act accordingly. The present cigarette tax amounts to 54 cents a thousand on brands which wholesale at $2 or less a thousand and $1 08 on those which cost more.

It is thus seen that if a cigarette goes to a jobber at $1 90 or $2, and the price the jobber pays is the price which determines the stamp, the collector is able to collect only at the 54 cent rate; whereas, if the cigarette for which the jobber pays $2 sells to the retailer at $3 or more, the Government by deciding this to be the wholesale price, can collect on the $1.08 stamps.

In the matter of the Khedivial Co.'s Orient, which the revenue department for a while thought might be wrongly stamped, it was said that the company gave as an excuse for using the 54 cent stamp the fact that the cigarettes were made for the company and paid for at he rate of about $1.90. The company was thus in the position of the jobber, and claimed the smaller stamp.

Under the present decision, the company will have to abide by the price which they make to the retailer or sub-jobber, which is more than $2.

The revenue department was of the opinion that jobbers were being employed in some cases so that the use of the $1.c8 stamp might be avoided, and consequently made the present decision, under which retailers will be held responsible for the proper stamping of the goods they offer for sale, in accordance with the price they pay for them.

New Cigar Brokerage House.

Norbert Popper and Alfred F. Goldsmith have formed a new brokerage firm known as Alfred F. Orera y Ca, with offices and salesrooms in the Heed building.

Both members of the firm are practical cigar men, having an experience covering twenty years, and they are already doing a very promising business, controlling the entire output of a large factory at Thomasville, Pa.

This firm will also control a number of their own brands, the leading ones of which are Excello, Franklin Inn and Mardonius.

Here and There With the Retailers

March has started off pretty fair for the retailers, and if there are not many more days like yesterday, trade will remain good. February was generally a month to be forgotten, and when the demand increased noticeably with the coming in of the windy month, the retailers began to cheer up. It was not solely a matter of weather, either, as there have been some unpleasant days already this month, but it is taken that the feeling of spring in the air is having the effect it always does. Unless March proves to be one of the old time winter months, the dealers figure that they will have every reason to be satified.

B. Frank Batten is back in the business again. Two or three weeks ago, Mr. Batten sprung a surprise on the trade by suddenly disposing of his store at Ninth and Arch streets, at a good figure. As soon as he was out, however, Mr. Batten felt like a fish on land, and securing a good opportunity to acquire the Powell stand under the Ridgway house at the foot of Market street, immediately closed the deal. He is now in possession, and will at once add substantially to the stock of the store.

E. Y. Sterner & Sons, the well known retailers at 20 North Twelfth street, report a very satisfactory business, one of the secrets of which is a good, clean stock and courteous treatment.

Sam Welsh, formerly of Tenth and Chestnut streets, who later conducted a retail store at Buffalo, where he was burned out, is again among his old friends here looking for a good central location for a store.

With Manufacturers and Jobbers.

February was more or less of a Jonah for the manufacturers as well as other branches of the trade, and the books for this month in the majority of cases don t make much of a showing against the January volume of business. There were so many causes for this, however, that it is not taken to have any significance on the coming year, and as March has already commenced better, there is no great dissatisfaction. The stagnation in the retail trade was of course bound to be sharply felt by the manufacturers, who now believe that the worst is over. Collections are annoyingly slow, but this is the case everywhere and will be remedied with the other causes of complaint.

Death of Edward Batchelor.

With the death of Edward Batchelor at his residence, 886 North Sixth street, there passes the oldest cigar manufacturer in Philadelphia, the founder of cigar factory No. 1, who though he has not been actively engaged in the manufacture of cigars for some years, was known to all the older members of the trade in this section.

Mr. Batchelor was born on September 22, sixty-eight years ago in Philadelphia. His mother was the descendant of an old Colonial family, while his father was English. The boy was given a grammer school education and then entered business, being contented as a starter with the munificent wage of $1 a week.

This did not last long, though, as the boy, full of ambition, worked himself up in his employer's esteem. He became very familiar with the tobacco business, and about a half century ago founded a factory on Market street above Eighth. He developed this plant until he had by far the largest factory in Philadelphia. Batchelor's "Bumblebee" a five cent cigar, captured the market as completely, in proportion, as the Cinco now has it, and the business grew to great dimensions.

Of recent years this business has been carried on by Mr. Batchelor's son, the factory now being situated at 459 North Orianna street. For some years Mr. Batchelor also engaged in the leaf business in Water street, but retired from that when he became interested in real estate which formed the site of what is now known as Avon by the-Sea, and which was founded as a resort, by Mr. Batchelor, who named it Key East after one of his successful brands. The name was changed later, but its founder continued to devote his time and ability to it, and at the time of his death was president of the Avon-by-the Sea Land and Improvement Co.

The funeral services took place Friday afternoon from the residence, interment being made in Central Laurel Hill. A widow, a son, Edward C., and a daughter, Mrs Charles G. Willis, survive.

Change in El Provedo Firm.

In recognition of practically eighteen years of faithful attention to his employers' interests, Harry N. Goldsmith, who is extremely well known in the Philadelphia trade, has been appointed the senior member of a firm which will constitute the Eastern distributors of the El Provedo Cigar Manufacturing Co. The other member is Max S. Arndt, who has been connected with Julius Hirschberg & Bro., leaf dealers, of North Third street.

The new firm affects the status of the El Provedo Co. in the business world only as an enlargement, which has really been necessary for some time as the result of increasing Western business. The company's business will be transacted from the same address on Fourth street, and as Mr. Goldsmith has been the right hand man in the establishment for years, the change will not be greatly noticeable except for the fact that he will have a freer hand to develop his end of the business. The entire East will be covered from this point.

Mr. Goldsmith has been connected with the El Provedo Co. since its inception 12 years ago, and was with C. C. Rosenberg, one of the members of the Company, for six years before that.

Colors of the PRECINTA fac-simile: black with pale blue ground; fac-simile of the seal of the Presidency of the Republic: dark blue.

Sig. C. Mayer, of Sig. C. Mayer & Co., has just returned from a very successful Southern trip. Mr. Mayer had to cut his trip a little short on account of a double abscess on the drum of his right ear, causing him great pain and seriously threatening his hearing. This new firm has so far met with gratifying success, and are already receiving duplicate orders by mail.

John Boltz, of Boltz, Clymer & Co., who recently returned from Cuba, has started on a Western trip to be gone five weeks.

"44 Cigar Co., Inc."

B. Lipschutz, manufacturer of the popular "44" 5 cent cigar, has incorporated his business under the laws of this State. The new firm is known as the "44 Cigar Co., Inc.," and has the following officers: B. Lipschutz, president and treasurer; I. Saeger, secretary; M. Funck, Sol Lipschutz and Sarah Lipschutz, directors.

E. M. Schwarz & Co., cigar manufacturers of Seventy third street and Second avenue, New York, are being kept busy at the Philadelphia offices which the firm has recently opened at 60 North Fourth street.

Finley Acker Co. is making arrangements to occupy the old Bailey, Banks & Biddle building at Twelfth and Chestnut street, into which they will move as soon as the interior is properly prepared. Mr. Acker pays an annual rental of $24,000 for his new address, and promises that he will have the finest store of its kind in Philadelphia. Arrangements are being made to have a particularly complete cigar department, and strong bids will be made for this end of the trade. It is expected that considerable of a box trade will soon be developed. There will also be an elaborate cafe.

The question is not whether to advertise, but how to advertise most successfully. Advertising not only brings trade—it directs trade; it creates trade.

Leaf Dealers' Jottings.

There is still an average fair demand in the leaf market, especially in Havana and 1903 Connecticut, but the trouble some question of price is holding up many deals. Stocks are low in many instances, and the men on the road have hard work getting to their customers when there is any driving to be done. It is reasonable to hope that the reasonable to hope that the roads will be open in a short time now, and there will be an immediate improvement. With Havana, it is not so much a question of how much to sell as how little. There is by no means a great abundance for everybody, and the dealers are doing the best they can to suit all their regular customers under the circumstances.

Dotts & Keeley Again Robbed.

For the second time within six weeks, the establishment of Dotts & Keeley, leaf dealers on Second street, was entered by burglars, and for the second time the intruders retired without getting enough to repay them for their risk. When Mr. Keeley reached his office this morning he found the place in great disarray and discovered that the thieves had entered by a rear window of the second floor, had hastily gone through the desk, and finally taken a suit case full of leaf samples which were ready to be expressed to Mr. Dotts, who is on the road in the South. They then went down stairs and rifled the cash drawer in the office of an oil merchant, securing something like $5. Mr. Keeley thinks they are the same men who broke in before.

The Philadelphia Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade will hold its annual meeting on March 14, in the Harris club. The meeting will be called to order at 3 o'clock, when officers will be elected for the ensuing year.

Harry Dolinsky, of H. Dolinsky & Son, leaf dealers, left for Connecticut on Monday to be gone about a week.

A. Pareira, of D. Pareira & Co., leaf dealers, fell down a flight of steps, at his home last week, and sustained severe and very painful injuries. Mr. Pareira is a heavy man and may perhaps consider himself fortunate that his accident did not result even more disastrously. He is still confined to his home.

M. H. Myers, well known on Third street, is now on the road for Kohlberg Bros. & Ruthenberg, of 131 Water street, New York. He will have as his territory Pennsylvania and part of New York State, where he is thoroughly at home.

With L. P. Kimmig & Co. there may be said to be more demand than the firm has goods. Mr. Kimmig has inquiry everyday which he is really unable to meet owing to low stocks in certain grades, although in others he has enough to keep him busy.

B. Labe, of B. Labe & Sons, is in Amsterdam to attend the Sumatra inscriptions and will tell his sons how things look to him, by cable, the last of this week. This firm always manages to get its share of the best Sumatra there is to be bought.

W. K. GRESH SONS' "RECORD."

The well known cigar manufacturers of Norristown have placed a new brand of cigars on the market, which is as unique as it is good, and which embodies the experience of a life time devoted to the study of the trade.

This firm can say of this package what probably no other can—that every part is made by them under one roof with the single exception of the U. S. revenue stamp. This guarantees patrons all that experience can put into a cigar for the money, three for a quarter.

G. W. Hall, of Scranton, who proudly holds the record of selling more Pathfinder cigars last year than any other man in the United States is very successfully representing this firm through the coal fields, through C. P. Wentz Co.

The package is gotten out in green, gilt and red, and is very artistic. The paper flap over the cigars is green, stamped with a red monogram seal and bears the embossed signature "W. K. G. & Sons." The label consists of a white scroll on a green back ground, the scroll bearing the brand name, "Record" in red, under which is the line, in black, "the result of a life time experience." The whole has a very pleasing effect.

LANCASTER MARKET THE SAME.

Crop is Nearly all Bought Up and Buying Season Practically Over.

Lancaster, Pa., March 6.

The local leaf market has undergone little or no change during the past week; there is ample inquiry for old goods but the stocks are so vastly depleted that business has naturally been effected.

The cigar industry for the month of February shows an expected falling off in output. Of course it was not only a short month but there were a number of holidays all of which had its effect.

The total output for the month was 54,922,000, which was about 2,785,000 less than during January and 2,765,000 less than during February of 1904, but the output for the two months of the present year is still nicely ahead of the corresponding period of last year.

The buying season seems to be drawing to a close as the crops are pretty closely bought up.

Terree S. Bitzer, a well known local tobacco buyer, who for several years past had been in the employ of Morris Levy, the Lancaster representative of the United Cigar Manufacturers, was asphyxiated by escaping gas some time during Saturday night. For some years past he had boarded at the Sorrel Horse Hotel. He retired to his room shortly before twelve o'clock on Saturday night, and was not seen again until the escaping gas was first noticed by an employe of the Hotel who discovered the lifeless body. Coroner Witmer decided the case to be one of accidental death.

One of the important transactions in the local leaf market last week was a sale of 385 cases mostly of 1903 Pennsylvania seed, made by W. R. Cooper & Co.

Raymond Heiland, a son of John F. Heiland, of Meiskey & Heiland, recently entered his father's employ, and is now representing Meiskey & Heiland and John F. Heiland & Co. on the road.

I. H. Weaver leaves tonight for Elmira, New York, where he will receive in the next day or two about 100,000 pounds of tobacco which will be brought to Lancaster for packing and T. J. Donigan were unable to be present and so missed a treat, but the chair was gracefully occupied by Vice-President Fred B. Aschner, who welcomed everybody. There was a good entertainment provided by talent right in the trade, punctuated with speeches by S. J. Freeman, H G. Silverstone, W. J. Joyce, a former president of the Boston local; I. W. Jacobson, B. F Kurtz, C. Blayney, and a number of others. Of course there were refreshments.

Speaking of the local association it is well to make mention of the appointment of A. D. Scholz, as manager of the sales department, vice John C Rue, who resigned. Mr. Scholz has been working under Mr. Rue's direction for some weeks preparatory to the latter's departure, and his acquaintance with the local trade will help him greatly in his work.

On May 1, the A. Schulte successors will add another store to their chain by opening the stand at Broadway and Cortland street, which was one of the United Cigar Co.'s original stores It was the first Broadway store opened by that concern and has generally been regarded as a profitable stand. The Schulte people now have an establishment at Broadway and Liberty street, which is near by.

The United Cigar Stores Co. cannot be considered as cutting down, however, as they are acquiring new locations constantly and expect to open the place at Broadway and Wall street on May 1. A branch was opened on East Forty-second street about a week ago, another one on Fourteenth street is in hand, and it is understood that the company has quite a number of others immediately in prospect.

J. Edward Cowles, well known as manager of the cigar department of Austin, Nichols & Co., has recovered from his troublesome illness and is back at work looking after the good prospects of the year.

At the annual meeting of the board of directors and stockholders of the Galiano Havana Co., Fred Wilcox was reelected president of the company.

John H. Goetze, of John H. Goetze & Co., will sail on March 21 for Amsterdam, to attend the inscriptions. The offices and salesrooms of the firm have just been removed from 190 Pearl street to 140 Maiden Lane.

The Montauk Cigar Co., which manufactures Association Seal Cigarros, will on May 1, move its factory to 72-76 Fulton street where there will be much more room.

CHICAGO TRADE SATISFACTORY.

Association Stamps Are Now Being Used Extensively.

Chicago, Ill., March 4, 1905.

There is little to indicate any decided change in trade conditions, which, at this writing, seem very satisfactory with the majority during the past week.

The officers of the Cigar Dealers' Association of America report a very pleasing progress in the use of Association stamps among manufacturers. Twenty-five of the leading firms of the country have agreed to put the stamps on their entire product, and the good habit is on the increase. The Association also has in prospect a steady income of sufficient proportions to enable it to pursue its work vigorously and on larger lines than ever before.

LITITZ LITHOGRAPHIC COMPANY.

Lancaster Lithographing Co. is Embodied in New Concern.

The Lancaster Lithographing Co., of which J. E. Hertgen, is proprietor, will go out of existence in the course of the next few months. Mr. Hertgen has just completed the formation of the Lititz Lithographic Co., with a capital stock of $50,000, which will take over his business. An organization was effected as follows last week: President, Dr. J. C. Brobst; vice-president, P. B. Bucher; secretary, J. E. Kisling; treasurer, H. Reist, Lancaster. J. E Hertgen is general manager. The plant has been in existence for fourteen years at Lancaster, and did a business of $60,000 annually, but the limitations of space and special inducements offered by Lititz capitalists convinced Mr. Hertgen that he could double the capacity of the plant by moving it to Lititz.

IN RESPECT TO MOSES KROHN.

Ohio Leaf Association Adopts Memorial Resolutions.

The Ohio Leaf Tobacco Packers' Association has adopted memorial resolutions in recognition of the recent death of Moses Krohn, president of the Miami Valley Leaf Tobacco Co., and who was one of the most prominent members of the cigar leaf trade of this section. He was also well known throughout the country. The resolutions are as follows:

Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God in His infinite wisdom to call from our midst our beloved and respected member to take the long journey from which no traveler returns, and

Whereas, His exemplary life and character were such as to be forever held in our memories with the greatest respect and esteem, and

Whereas, It is our duty to express our admiration of those sterling qualities shown in his long, active and successful life, therefore, be it

Resolved, That this association through the death of its beloved member, Moses Krohn, has met with an irreparable loss, and desires to express to those held dear to him by family ties our deep regard for him, and to extend to them our most sincere sympathy, and

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be spread on the minutes of this association, a copy be sent to the trade journals, and a copy be presented to his family.

THE OHIO LEAF TOBACCO PACKERS' ASSOCIATION
John L. Brenner, President.
W. J. Lukaswitz, Secretary.

MR. MOSES KROHN.

Mr. Krohn died in Cincinnati on February 26, at his son-in-law's residence. He was 65 years old, and was one of the best known manufacturers in the country. Lately he had given considerable time to the clothing business. His death was the result of a complication of diseases, which ended in pneumonia.

Mr. Krohn was for years head of the Cincinnati firm of Krohn, Feist & Co., which has not been in existence for nearly ten years. He organized the Miami Valley Leaf Tobacco Co., with headquarters at Dayton. He was president of this company at the time of his death, and was recently elected vice president of the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade, later declining the presidency.

Mr. Krohn was prominent in various movements instituted to benefit the trade, and in this way gained a wide circle of friends and acquaintances. His brother, Lewis Krohn, is a prominent Cincinnati retailer. Large delegations from various organizations with which Mr. Krohn was connected were present at the funeral.

BRITISH MATCH PRICES UP.

An Increase of 30 Per cent Made in Paraffins.

With the hope that it will prevent indiscriminate cutting, the largest manufacturers of matches in Great Britain have given notice to jobbers and retailers that they must stand for an advance of 30 per cent in prices on domestic matches.

There was an increase about a year ago in the price of wax vestas, the excuse given at the time being the high price of cotton which is used in the manufacture, and of this increase the consumer stood very little. The dealers were able to make less profit and accordingly pushed the sale of what are known as pine lights.

The present increase, concerns paraffin matches which strike anywhere, the safety match remaining the same price.

Heretofore the consumer has obtained a dozen boxes of English made paraffin matches for three half-pence. Each box contains sixty matches, so that the cost amounted to 240 lights for a half-penny. The price on paraffin matches to the consumer will after this be two-pence for a dozen boxes instead of three half pence.

The Irish Tobacco Trade Journal says: "The reasons for the advance, as stated by the director of a firm of London importers, are that the manufacturers have determined to put an end to the "cutting" which has been playing havoc with the trade, and the increase in the prices of raw materials, such as chlorate of potash and wood.

"The Rosebank Match Co., of Capetown, which is controlled by Messrs. Bryant and May, who in turn have been absorbed by the Diamond Match Co., of the United States, has concluded arrangements for the purchase or, as the directors prefer to call it, the consolidation of the principal match manufactories throughout South Africa. The two or three principal firms in the country have been absorbed lock, stock and barrel, and several smaller match-making businesses have been acquired for the purpose of closing them down.

The man who puts ten dollars in an advertisement and expects to get it back before the ink is dry on the paper which holds it, is as badly deceived as the farmer who depends upon getting his money for the season's crops before the tops are an inch out of the ground.

TAX ON TOBACCO SHIPPED FROM CITY WOULD BE HARDSHIP.

Henderson, Ky., March 4.

Tobacco dealers of this city consider the tax of fifty cents a hogshead on all tobacco shipped from the city a hardship and have petitioned councils to rescind its recent action inserting the tax item in the special license ordinance.

The protest was submitted at the last meeting of council and signed by a majority of the dealers who pleaded that a continuation of the tax would work a great injury. After considerable discussion the matter was referred to the finance and ordinance committees who will report at another meeting. It is considered probable that the tax will be lessened if not abolished.

OLD SALESMEN'S MUSINGS.

him he would have to, and, anyway, the anti cigarette people don't lay much stress on the mature average smoker.

Now for the boy, the graceless cause of all the trouble. When I was an angel child I smoked cornsilk, cinnamon, cubeb and occasionally a cube of rolled up paper. When I was in a mood of such dark daring that I simply couldn't put up with anything less than the real article I went out in the woods and hurried through a tobacco cigarette and held my breath at the dinner table, "so's they couldn't smell it on me," for three days afterward.

I think the same is true of the average boy and I have never exactly thought that I suffered seriously and permanently from the lack of beneficent legislation.

There is also the tough boy class, made up of news and messenger boys, street gamins and the like, but if these boys were not smoking cigarettes once in a while they would probably be doing something worse, and it hardly seems worth while to overturn a long established and prosperous industry in order to do missionary work among a few newsboys.

Chemists whose word is beyond dispute have told me that the average brands of cigarettes offered in the open market contain no poison that cannot be found in any form of tobacco, and that they could not understand why this form of the commodity should be selected to bear all the odium unless it was because of the common practice among cigarette smokers of inhaling the smoke. As a matter of fact, it is the very mildness of the cigarette that induces the smoker to inhale.

Time and time again, enemies of this form of enjoyment have dissected the cigarette, bent upon discovering some potent argument against it, and every-time with most disappointing results. They have simply had to work to foster the prejudice which already exists in some quarters.

If it should become evident to the cigarette trade, however, that it was in any real danger of being legally forced out of business there would be hubbub sufficient to last the crusaders for the remainder of their natural lifetime.

THE OLD SALESMAN.

THE MARKET IN RICHMOND.

Richmond, Va., March 2.

As indicative of the market at the warehouses in this city last month is the following report made by L. B. Vaughan & Co., proprietors of Crenshaw Planters' warehouse:

"Sales for February, 965,445 pounds, and for the season 5,823,246 pounds, which is an increase of 1,287,052 pounds over last year's sales. The market closed very strong on wrappers which have continued to show up in small quantities."

A large proportion of these sales was suncured tobacco, which is steadily growing more popular.

—W. S. Buckles, of Carlisle, Ky., will organize the Maysville Tobacco plant for the purpose of manufacturing all tobacco grown and delivered to it by Kentucky, Virginia, North and South Carolina and Tennessee.

Leaf Tobacco Markets.

CONNECTICUT VALLEY

Very little is said now about tobacco, except what is in prospect of being raised next season. If all the signs are correct there will be quite a large acreage. But farmers will have a hard struggle to raise as heavy a crop with as much good tobacco in it as was raised the past season. When you meet a man who works in an assorting shop and ask him, "How did A's or B's tobacco sort out?' and the answer is invariably, "First rate; lots of good wrappers in his crop, and in fact, the crops that have come to our shop are all good.'' Well, that makes it very pleasant; much more so than to have the packer send word to have him come and see what can be done with his crop of tobacco.

Our correspondents write:

Conway, Mass : "The tobacco business is rather dull here now. Nearly all of the tobacco has been delivered assorted or to be assorted. I hear of one new barn to be built this season by B. S. Graves & Sons ''

Hatfield, Mass.: "B. M. Warner has sold the tobacco of the corporation at West Farms, Northampton, for 33 cents per pound, a very fine crop of 40 per cent light wrappers. This was first covered with tent cloth, but the tent was blown off by a storm, and the tobacco was afterward grown in the open air and cured in the usual way. Very little tobacco remains in this part of the town. George A. Billings made the last sale."

Bradstreet, Mass.: "Charles W. Marsh finished sorting his tobacco Saturday last. W. H. Belden also finished sorting during the past week. Reuben Belden has sold his crop of 15 acres at private terms. W. H. Belden sold his crop of tobacco of 20 acres, sorted and cased. E. W. Field sold the remainder of his crop, about 5,500 pounds."

North Hatfield, Mass.: "R. Mosher Swift sold two cases of old 1903 crop, a remnant, at private terms."—American Cultivator.

EDGERTON, WIS.

A good deal of activity has again developed in the buying movement in all sections and the aggregate sales of the week have been among the largest of the year, though prices will average lower than any previously paid for the crop. The season has arrived when growers desire to dispose of their tobacco and apparently stand ready to accept prices that heretofore were considered too low. Buyers who are riding extensively assert that not more than 20 per cent of the crop remains unsold. Here are a few samples of prevailing figures:

John Kramer, 10a at 7 and 1c
And Danielson, 12a at 7½ and 2c
S. Johnson, 66a at 7 and 1c
P. Ullius, 13a at 5½ and 2c

Old leaf is also receiving considerable attention in all quarters. There is a good demand for serviceable binders as well as the cheaper grades. C. R. Bentley has recently disposed of something like 500 cases to New York and local parties.

A few days of casing weather extending over the entire State has permitted growers to remove the balance of the hanging tobacco, and the warehouse handling, which has been delayed, can now go forward without interruption.

Buyers' stock, 305 hhds; unsold stocks, 963 hhds.

Our receipts for two months have been almost entirely of new crop, of which but little has been offered for sale, though bringing higher prices than old tobacco.

Our receipts this week were 164 hhds.; offerings on the breaks, 27 hhds; sales, 23 hhds., nearly all low grades of old crop; market steady and unchanged.

Sound old tobacco is selling much cheaper than new crop, and just now seems not to attract the attention it deserves. Owners look for a better market later on and offer but little.

The Planters' Association has secured offices and sample rooms, crops are being hauled to their prizing houses, and say they will soon be ready for business.

Planters can obtain advances as fast as their crops are prized. We have now Spring-like weather.

For old tobacco we quote:

Low Lugs	$3.50 to $3.75
Common Lugs	3.75 to 4.00
Medium Lugs	4.00 to 4.25
Good Lugs	4.25 to 4.75
Low Leaf	4.75 to 5.50
Common Leaf	5.75 to 6.75
Medium Leaf	7.00 to 8.00

HOPKINSVILLE, KY.

M. D. Boales.

The past month was very quiet, with small movement on account of the cold, harsh weather up to a week ago. Since then deliveries of loose tobacco have been made in limited quantity of sales made last fall and December. Very few sales now on account of organization tying up the crops and arrangements being made for prizing and selling by the organization; hence the new crop will move slower than formerly. The movement also curtails planting to limited amount. Sales made on loose floor: Lugs, 3 to 4c; leaf, 5 to 8c. Planters' sales, 5½ to 6c.

THE WAY AND THE MEANS

¶ There are more ways than ONE to do everything—but every way isn't the BEST way.

¶ If it is any part of your business to produce GOOD cigars, you need GOOD Cigar Tools.

¶ NATIONAL TOOLS are just a little bit BETTER—and a little bit CHEAPER—than YOUR tools.

¶ Because we have the patents, the skilled labor, unusual manufacturing and selling advantages, and we know our business.

¶ NATIONAL CIGAR CUTTERS, gauged correctly, riveted handle, self-sharpening knife, tempered tool steel, and pure brass spring.

¶ NATIONAL CIGAR BOARDS, hard, strong, heavy and smooth; no knots, streaks or spots; can't warp or split.

¶ NATIONAL CIGAR KNIVES and CUBAN BLADES hold their edge and never botch the job.

¶ Another thing, we don't charge several prices for NATIONAL TOOLS, and we give your money back if they don't suit.

¶ Ask for our Special Proposition, meant particularly for YOU.

KENTUCKY LEAF COMING IN.

Delivery was Commenced at Henderson Last Wednesday.

Henderson, Ky., March 9.

Delivery was begun at the Barret tobacco factory on Wednesday with a good showing. A meeting of the farmers had been held a short time before and everything was in readiness.

The contract for prizing, which was ratified with J. Ewing Rankin, Jr., provides that he handle, redry, prize in good cooperage and insure until November 1, 1905, and deliver at the depot in Henderson as prized in one hundred hogshead lots at the following rates:

If number of pounds received dry weight amount to from one million and one and a half million pounds at $1.20 per 100 pounds dry weight; from one and a half million pounds to two million pounds or over at $1.05 per hundred. If the tobacco is to be retied he is to receive 20 cents additional per hundred pounds.

The scale of prices and the classes into which the tobacco is to be graded was adopted by a unanimous vote at the meeting. The committee determined upon the following scale: Tobacco worth from 7 to 8 cents for leaf shall be classed as A tobacco; tobacco worth from 6 to 7 cents for leaf shall be classed as B tobacco; tobacco worth from 5 to 6 cents for leaf shall be classed as C tobacco; tobacco worth from 4 to 5 cents for leaf shall be classed as D tobacco; hail beaten, damaged, etc., tobacco shall be classed as nondescript, marked X. All clean, sound trash worth 2 cents or more shall be classed as A trash; trash worth less than 2 cents, that is dirty or damaged, will be classed as B trash. All tobacco must be received in crop order and any moisture in excess of crop order must be deducted.

Owensboro, Ky., March 9.

The whole crop is about ready for market, owing to the fact that the moist air and the fog have caused the tobacco to come in "case" and large quantities of it had already been stripped and prepared for market some days ago. The thaw made the roads very muddy to a considerable depth owing to the deep freeze.

For a time the Equity people were indifferent about stripping their tobacco, but now that the warehouse plan is about perfected all are getting ready to deliver their crops and they are bending every energy to strip and bulk their holdings. It is very probable that the very bad condition of the roads will delay for a while yet the delivery of large amounts of the "weed" even if other reasons for delay have disappeared.

Advertising is not an experiment, nor is it a business side issue; it is a part of the paraphernalia of business necessity, to be studied and experimented upon as one studies and experiments upon the other departments of the business house.

SENSATIONAL TALE OF CERTAIN PHASES OF BURLEY DEAL.

Conduct on the Part of Some of the Promoters of the Burley Growers' Association Anything but Straightforward. Secret Contracts and the Like Lost the Farmers Their Chance.

Cincinnati, O., March 10.

A new chapter in the failure of the burley growers' deal to control the 1904 crop came to light last week. Hanging over the association since last December, was a secret contract signed in New York it is alleged between President W. B. Hawkins and Joseph Huffaker, a promoter of Louisville, Ky., which at several periods of Archibald Stuart's negotiations with eastern capitalists threatened to wreck the association. The story as told by a local paper is as follows:

"When Stuart first went into the deal he and Hawkins went to New York to see if the plan of getting money there was feasible. They found conditions rather favorable, but affairs were in such shape that Stuart considered it necessary to return to Cincinnati and get the capital stock of the company in bank and the contracts with the farmers listed.

"He left Hawkins in New York to keep in touch with the financial men, but a short time after he reached Cincinnati he found that Hawkins had left the hotel where they had been stopping, and that these financial men had been unable to locate him in New York. Next came a telegram from Hawkins, saying that he had made an agreement to finance the corner and that he would at once come to Cincinnati.

"When he arrived Stuart and other backers of the organization, with an attorney, were in session at the Grand Hotel. Hawkins said that he had the money for the deal. Stuart got Hawkins into another room with Huffaker and the attorney. At first Hawkins and Huffaker both denied they had a copy of the contract, but finally Hawkins produced one.

"This contract, according to a copy now in Stuart's hands, bound the association, first of all, to give Huffaker 60 per cent of the profits on the corner. In consideration of this Haffaker was to float the association's paper, backed by warehouse receipts for the tobacco it would buy, in New York.

"The paper was to be discounted at 20 per cent. Since the association had only $500,000 capital stock, Stuart figured that even putting all of the capital stock into an arrangement of this sort the association would only be able to raise about $2,5000,000. Hawkins and Huffaker admitted that as a part of their agreement Huffaker had agreed to give Hawkins indvidually 5 per cent of the profits of the corner.

"Huffaker was to keep 30 per cent and giver 25 per cent to F. F. McIvor, a New Yorker, who had made a trip to Louisville to investigate the ability of the Louisville warehouses to handle the tobacco.

"But there was no provision in the contract for the money that was to start buying the tobacco and provide warehouse receipts for the notes Huffaker proposed to float in New York.

"Ives has since shown, Stuart charges, that he is a part of the Standard Oil financial underground system in New York.

"The session in the hotel room became heated, and at one point Hawkins, it is declared, fell on his knees before Huffaker and begged him to release the association from the contract, but Huffaker refused. Some of the farmers from Kentucky, who had been in session with Stuart when Hawkins arrived, were so incensed when they heard of the affair that they made threats and Huffaker left at midnight for Louisville.

"For a time it looked as if the entire deal would have to be declared off, but when the negotiations were reopened in New York Stuart got Huffaker and McIvor to enter an agreement with him that was to overcome the Hawkins contract, although in this agreement the Hawkins contract was referred to as a "paper writing" and not as a contract.

In it Stuart merely agreed to try to get, through the Directors of the Burley Association, an agreement that if Huffaker and he, working together, should succeed in getting anyone to finance the corner, Huffaker was to let the association off by taking a 10 per cent share of the profits. McIvor and the financial people putting up the money were to get 25 per cent and the association 65 per cent.

"One express proviso in this supplemental contract was that Hawkins should release Huffaker from any previous agreement, entered into between them individually, to cover the 5 per cent of the profits Hawkins was to have received on the quiet, Stuart charges.

"No effort was made as that time to oust Hawkins from the presidency, as to have shown up the condition of affairs, it was feared, would have wrecked the association

"But in the New York negotiations the Huffaker supplemental agreement, giving him 10 per cent of the profits, bobbed up every time the details of the project were laid before financiers. This, it is charged, was responsible for some of them losing interest in the deal."

Mr. Hawkins was interviewed regarding this account of the affair and said:

"The story is correct in many respects, but in many others it is full of inaccuracies. The contract with Huffaker was not for an individual commission, but what was called in the transaction 'the Hawkins crowd' was to have this commission. Our Finance committee had full knowledge of everything done. Huffaker's financiers balked, and then we went to Archibald Stuart, of Cincinnati, who opened up negotiations which looked to be promising of success.

"I did try to get Huffaker to release us from the contract we had with him, but saying that I did it on my knees is putting it rather strong. I am satisfied that Mr. Ives was acting in good faith, but there was an underground work of the trust against us, and when we put up the pins they began knocking them down.' Huffaker was called into the deal a second time, and we tried to float the warehouse receipts, but got no agreement as to the detail. There was nothing wrong with Huffaker. We sought him because he succeeded in financing the building of the new bridge over the Ohio river at Louisville. He is a good man and would have succeeded under ordinary circumstances."

Archibald Stuart styles the story as an outrage, and declares that it does Col. Hawkins much injustice. He says:

"He has worked assiduously in forming and building up the association during the past two years, and is lining up the growers to resist the methods and tactics of the tobacco combine."

There is much criticism going the rounds because Mr. Stuart, whom the association sent East to secure the financial backing to swing back the deal went to the parties he did for assistance. It is claimed that he tried to secure aid from high financial "guns," whose interests are very closly allied with those of the American Tobacco Co.

NEW AMERICAN MANAGER FOR IMPERIAL COMPANY.

Richmond, Va., March 13.

James Macdonald, who has been situated here about two years as resident director in America of the Imperial Tobacco Co., of Great Britain, will retire from his position by the first of May and will be succeeded by F. H. Thorpe, who has heretofore managed the company's European trade.

M. Thorpe is expected soon to arrive from Bristol, the main offices of the company, and will take over the Richmond office on his arrival. There will be no other changes in the personnel of this branch except in the transfer of Mr. Macdonald's two sons to Bristol. The resident manager is very much liked socially, as well as among the trade, and his voluntary retirement is regarded with great regret by his many friends. He will live hereafter at his home in Glasgow.

OHIO RIVER AGAIN OPEN.

Cincinnati, O., March 10.

The Ohio river is open again to navigation after having been closed, owing to heavy ice, since the early part of December. White Burley warehousemen are in high feather in consequence, as their country agents report that the farmers are ready to send their crops here with a rush. The burley market has been rather unsatisfactory from the shippers' point of view, buyers being more cautious in their bidding, and prices were not run up to the high figures that existed at the time when growers had the centre of the stage with their corner scheme. Offerings were liberal, largely drawn from warehouse stocks.

THE CALLING IN OF CREDIT.

Since the first of the year it has been just one fourth less easy for a Philadelphia cigar and tobacco retailer to get credit from his jobber, providing he had been doing a credit business. This represents the beginning of what the jobbers of this city believe will result in a great betterment of the conditions between the retailer and jobber and manufacturer, and which I believe are unique in the business world.

The peculiarity of the situation when you get down to it struck me the other day during a conversation with a certain Philadelphia jobber who was bemoaning the fact that so many retail dealers seem to think that the credit system was invented for their especial benefit by philanthropic wholesalers.

The funny part of it is that, in a way, it was. And the unfortunate part of it is that the sins of the father jobbers, or rather the preceding generation, are visited upon their sons, the present. If the old firms, say Lewis Bremer's Sons, when it dealt in manufactured tobacco, had known what would finally come of it, when they began to extend credit to their customers, who represented neighbors and friends, they would probably have thought awhile before they did it.

It is a common saying that a great many more men push their way into the retail branch of the cigar and tobacco business who have failed at four or five other things, than is the case in any other business. They bring nothing with them but a hope that they will succeed this time, and they find no difficulty in getting credit, after they have paid for their first bill. In some cases they do find it necessary to pay for that even, if they look like a good proposition.

They get a bill of goods from this jobber and that, on seven days. If they choose to sell these goods over the counter, and devote the money received to store expenses, paying the jobber nothing, and perhaps dropping out of business as quickly as they entered, the jobber can do absolutely nothing but refuse to sell the man another bill until he has paid the last one.

"But man alive," said I to the jobber, "why don't you occasionally look these people up before you ship them?"

"It wont work," said the jobber. "It wont work for a cent. Not long ago when I had a special deal on, I tried it in a hundred cases on a test. On seventy-five of 'em, Dunn said 'don't deliver.' I used my own judgment after all and as they looked pretty good to me, I delivered in every case. I collected 100 per cent."

"Well, then, I don't see what your kick is," I said.

"Because that was only one instance, and money happened to be pretty easy at that time. It wouldn't happen again, and I just cited it to show the waste of time and money this getting reports on people is, in a situation like this."

The retailer isn't so much to blame. He was originally eagerly offered credit and accepted it. He was offered it and he accepted it so many times that it finally came to be considered a sort of vested right. And in spite of all the credit, which I should think would be very tempting to a small thief, there are less than ten per cent of the dealers who are being carried by their jobbers who are at all dishonest in their intent.

A lot of customers will pay $10 on old accounts and want $25 worth of goods on time right away, and because this was allowed for a long time, is the reason why the jobbers' ledgers are so fat. Now it is not permitted so much.

The winter just ending has been a bad one in the retail end of the trade, and a lot of dealers can't pay anything on their old accounts. The jobber has the alternative of cutting them off, and knowing that a "for rent" sign will soon go up on the store, or he can carry them along on a one bill credit.

By this latter process, if he can figure out a ten per cent margin, it only takes nine $10 bills of goods actually paid for to pay his cost on ten bills, or to even him up exactly, if the retailer fails to pay for the tenth bill. He gives him a bill on seven days which must be paid for before the customer gets another.

This is a hand to mouth sort of game, but it is the best that can be done under a good many circumstances, and it has its penalties for the jobber. Not a great while ago a jobbing house was bought out by a certain firm who inher-

THE REALM OF THE RETAILERS

TIMELY TALKS WITH ENTERPRISING DEALERS.

STUDY your store carefully. A lawyer will study his case and will argue his point, backed by reasons and authorities. The physician will diagnose his case, and treat his patient in accordance with what he finds to be the trouble. The minister and the priest study their moral points and apply the sermon as they find the needs of the flock they represent; but the dealer whacks away promiscuously, here and there, believing that his business depends very largely upon chance for its success.

Why should not the merchant study his business as closely as the lawyer, doctor and priest? Reduce chance in your business to a minimum, and follow out the laws of reason.

Have a heart to heart talk with your clerks or clerk at regular periods, say every two weeks, at which time suggestions can be offered and freely discussed. Don't feel too proud to talk things over with your clerk, or don't get the idea that he couldn't possibly know or think of anything that would be of advantage. It is a good general rule that two heads are better than one.

The proprietor in this way becomes thoroughly acquainted with his assistants and gets a good line on their possibilities. Instead of laying himself open to the danger of undue familiarity on their part, he gives them a sense of responsibility and causes them to take an interest in the business to an extent which, probably, would otherwise, never have been the case.

It has usually been found a good plan to give commissions to clerks on their sales in addition to their salary. A prominent company which operates a long chain of stores has adopted this idea in a certain form, the commission being alowed on box business, and it has proved quite satisfactory.

Attention is again called to the plan for moving stubborn stock by making attractive propositions to your customers.

Wrap up in packages, goods that are not selling properly, and put on each package a number, say 1763 Advertise to your customers to watch the number on the check. The person receiving register check 1763 will receive the package of that number on the gift counter, free.

The point of all rebate advertising is that it is not only attractive to the public, but that it concentrates the attention of the customer on the check issued by the register, upon which is printed the amount of the purchase. This indication of the purchase, handed to the customer, renders mistakes in registering cash sales impossible, it matters not where the register is placed.

The setting aside of a certain day for bargain day, and the thorough advertisement of the same, is also a good idea. Certain counters or tables should be arranged for bargains, and merchandise that is slow of sale, but perhaps good in quality, can be exhibited there.

GET WISE TO YOUR OWN BUSINESS.

ONE significant reason why there is not a greater percentage of successful retailers in the tobacco business, is because there is such a large percentage of dealers who are practically destitute of any important knowledge of the business, and are apparently content to remain so.

If a retailer in any other line attempted to conduct his store with the same minimum of preparation, knowledge and attention, he would fail just as surely as a lot of tobacco dealers are failing, and a whole lot more would, if credit did not save them.

The reckless way in which some men butt into the business without any training has been dwelt upon before in these columns, but it will bear repetition. The other day a certain man bought out a cigar store not more than a million miles from the Philadelphia public buildings. His qualifications consisted of a sufficient amount of money to buy the store, the fact that he smoked himself, and the possession of a few friends who smoked, and who were presumably supposed henceforth to get their smoking at his store.

In the course of a conversation with a man who was trying to sell the new dealer something, the latter remarked: "Oh, I haven't any use for anything like that; I don't know anything about the tobacco business and don't expect to."

Poor fool! As long as a man comes in and asks for a certain brand of cigar or smoking tobacco, and perhaps points out the spot where it has usually been kept in the stock, this man will be able to meet the requirements of his store. That's just as long as people in the neighborhood do come in, and as long as the present stock lasts. The real part of the running of the store he is just as ignorant of, as his most casual customer, and it is only a question of how much money he's got before he gets out, as he doesn't seem to appreciate the fact that there is anything that he might possibly learn.

There are a whole lot of dealers, who are just like this man, perhaps not so bad, but at least content to remain in ignorance of their own business, the most important thing in the world to them. What is there about a cigar store that gives the impression to so many that it is automatic and successfully runs itself. It takes a grocer to run a grocery store, and sometimes even a grocer can't do it. It takes a man who knows the leather business to run a shoe store, and a man would not open a candy store even, until he had made some study of the business.

But a cigar store. A chap has a little money, he wants to put it into business. He looks around, and solely because he smokes and has on that account been in cigar stores quite a little of his time, he goes out and buys some nice, attractive gold brick, thus helping the good work along. In the majority of cases, such a man makes little effort to get down to the bottom of his business and study the conditions of the trade, to learn why certain things are so, to find out what is going on and to gain inside information on the stocking of his store with a view to obtaining the best results.

He is either ignorantly obstinate in the hands of the traveling salesman, or the easiest sort of a mark, or else simply buys on credit, taking it for granted that his business will be such that he will never have any trouble in meeting his paper.

All this concerns a certain proportion of the dealers in every town and city. Those who have earned their experience in the business, will welcome this article in the hope that it may do some good. Those who get mad will be those who, unconsciously, perhaps, feel that the shoe fits, and realize the fact that they are asleep at the switch.

Try to gain some additional information relating to the business you are in every day, and you will soon wonder how you ever got along weltering in the ignorance you once did.

FIRST MEERSCHAUM.

HOW many dealers have any idea of the origin of the first meerschaum pipe and how it was discovered that the material was suitable? Here is one account that is pretty well authenticated:

There lived in Pesth, the capital of Hungary, in 1723, Karlo Kowatee, a shoemaker, whose ingenuity in cutting and carving on wood brought him into contact with Count Andrassy, with whom he became a great favorite. The count brought with him a piece of whitish clay which had been presented to him as a curiosity on account of its extraordinary light specific gravity.

It struck the shoemaker that, being porous, it would be well adapted for pipes, as it would absorb the nicotine. The experiment was tried, and Karlo cut a pipe for the count and one for himself. He noticed that the wax from his hands gave the pipes a beautiful polish, and also that they smoked more sweetly.

The natural scarcity of this new clay and the great cost of importation in those days of limited facilities for transportation rendered its use exclusively confined to the richest noblemen of Europe up to 1830, when it became a more general article of trade. The first meerschaum pipe made by Karlo Kowatee has been preserved, and is the museum at Pesth.

DON'T HUDDLE, BUT SPREAD OUT.

"ONE of the best things for a city is to have its retail business spread out instead of being centered within a few squares" said Alvin S. Cahn, the Union Trust Building cigarist, of Cincinnati, in a trade discussion last week. "I notice this tendency for the retail trade in this city to spread, which is a healthy indication. The centering of a retail district means high rents, while the spreading out of the stores means fair rents and increased business."

IMPROVING THE APPEARANCE OF YOUR STORE ECONOMICALLY

THE percentage of retail cigar dealers who can afford to sumptuously outfit their stores in the style of the best stands in the large cities, is small. And as a matter of fact, the only reason the money is spent in these cases is because the amount and quality of the business warrants it. It has been discovered that money spent in this way is a paying investment, and, accordingly, the money is spent.

In the great majority of cigar stores, the proprietor is not making much more than a living, and would resent as foolish, any suggestion that he put in more expensive furnishings.

In many such cases it would be foolish, but considerable of the same effect may be arrived at by other and more economical means. A dingy cigar store is one of the dingiest places on earth and certainly the least inviting. This being an indisputable fact, it is astonishing the number of dealers who are satisfied with such a store, apparently believing that as long as it is a cigar store, it doesn't matter how it looks.

Bring your wife, or your mother, or your sister, or your best girl, or whoever of your women folks is nearest to you down to the store some off day, and after she has looked around, address her somewhat thus:

"This place is distinctly on the punk. It looks a whole lot dirtier than it really is, just because it is so dingy. I want to brighten it up but I can't afford to spend much money on it. I want you to take another good look around and then tell me what you think would be the best way to go about it."

She'll be able to fix you up every time, because that's her stunt. A man accepts "all the comforts of home" as a matter of course, very seldom remembering that they are all arranged by the women who long ago accepted that part of life as their duty.

Moreover, they'll be pleased that you've thought enough of their judgment to consult it, when as a matter of fact, in such a case as this it's likely to be twenty times better than your own. Then again most housewives have a strong streak of economy in them, and what they propose will doubtless cost considerably less than anything you would frame up yourself.

Try it just once. Give them a free hand, and then call some other man in to look at the result. You'll be tickled to death.

A HINT TO RETAILERS.

A man who sees from day to day
A window dressed in the self-same way,
Becomes so tired, he'd like to break
The panes, for mere resentment's sake.
A window's like a pretty maid,
And should be often new-arrayed,
So as to catch the loving eye
Of every man who passes by.

ited many of the customers along with the rest of the encumbrances. Some of these had owed money for years and had been carried along by the original jobber. They expected it from the new firm, and in some cases their expectations were realized and in some they were not.

Those that were not dropped, the firm found itself unable to dig anything out of and simply stalled them along. Those that were dropped simply went to another jobber and got credit for a bill of goods. As long as business is good they will pay for these bills. When it fails they will be forced to ease up a little and it then depends on the jobber how much these accounts accumulate.

A certain formerly very well known jobbing house in this city sold out and formed a new company. At least the deal had all the earmarks of a sale, but was merely a reorganization in order to close the books. That was the only way the firm could think of to get in any appreciable amount of its money, and as times were pretty easy just then it is understood that the move was fairly successful.

But it isn't business, or at least it isn't good business, and the credit game has got to a point where a good many jobbers don't like to do business with retailers that might be called disgustingly prosperous because the fact that their payments are sure entitles them to claim concessions that wipe out the jobber's margin.

I asked a number of jobbers to tell me approximately the proportion of retailers they believed would have to suspend if every jobber called them to time, and I am afraid to print the proportion that was mentioned because I feel that it must be exaggerated.

As I said at the commencement of this article, credit is gradually being called in, and it is safe to say that it is 25 per cent harder to get credit in this city now that it was in December. If an improvement can be brought about gradually in this line, it will be quite as much of a blessing for the retail trade as for the jobbers. The market will gain an intrinsic healthiness which it certainly does not possess at this time.

THE OLD SALESMAN.

AMERICAN TOBACCO AND CIGARS IN HUNGARY.

In reply to Virginia tobacco houses desiring to export their products to Hungary, United States Consul-General Frank Dyer Chester, of Budapest, reports that he has been informed by the Royal Hungarian Tobacco Regie that its American purchasing agents are L. Borchers & Co., 4 Columbia Block, Richmond, Va., to whom all applications for the sale of American tobacco for Hungary should be addressed. Consul-General Chester further reports that the "Virginia" cigars sold in Hungary by the Government of Hungary are of poor quality.

To take your advertisement out of the paper during the so called dull times, is about as bad as to stop feeding the horse because the present weather is unsuitable for using him. The total profits on the balance sheet at the end of the year depend largely on the sales of the so called dull season.

The Havana Market Was a Rather Dull One.

The Northern Buyers Bought Little Because of Difficulty in Obtaining Suitable Goods. Bulk of the Warehouses Are More Depleted than Since 1900. New Crop Likely to be High in Price.

[Special Correspondence of The Tobacco World.]

HAVANA, March 6, 1905.

The past week in the Havana market must be designated as a dull one, the few Northern buyers here only operating to a small degree, partly owing to the high pretensions of the holders for choice parcels and partly to the difficulty of finding the styles of goods they were principally in want of.

While there is no absolute scarcity of tobacco, the majority of the stocks consists of undesirable, nondescript leaf, which nobody seems anxious to take hold of even at reasonably low figures. Since the year 1900 there has been no time when the bulk of the warehouses were as depleted as they are at present.

Although a member of the staff of a New York contemporary has published an account of his trip to the Vuelta Abajo and claims that (from his observation) the coming 1905 crop is going to be abundant and of exceptionally fine quality, being particularly fine in its large proportion of wrappers, it is wiser to suspend all judgment until the season is further advanced, and the crop can be judged with more accuracy.

"El Tabaco de Cuba" in its edition of February 28, states that while the 1904 crop produced 280,000 bales, the 1905 crop will probably not exceed 200,000 bales, a reduction of more than 28 per cent., and also that the quality would be heavier as a rule. As more than three-quarters of the Vuelta Abajo crop is used by the clear Havana industry, which only wants light fillers, it is a disadvantage to have heavy fillers.

The Partido crop of this year also seems of a heavier body, and from all reports there will be hardly any fillers this year. As it has not rained at all during the month of February, and so far March shows no signs of rain, the Remedios crop, even though it may yield more first and second capaduras, may be considerably shorter in quantity than even the exceptionally short one of 1904.

That under these circumstances prices are bound to rule high appears to be a foregone conclusion, and people who imagine that they can buy at lower prices later on will be sorely disappointed. The shade-grown wrappers this year are judged rather adversely by most of the independent manufacturers, as well as dealers, and it is claimed that the colors are "manchados" (not clean).

Undoubtedly it will require more time and experience before this new mode of raising wrappers can be considered a success. On the other hand the tearing off of the leaves singly, when ripe, and stringing them on a thread is an improvement upon the old way of cutting part of the plant, two leaves with the stem attached thereto, and letting them dry. The former process is quicker and more uniform, although a trifle more expensive, while by the old process the leaves had to hang a longer time, owing to the sap in the stems, and some leaves were ripe while others were not quite matured. Sales during the week amounted to 3506 bales in all, or 2426 of Vuelta Abajo, 480 of Partido and 600 bales of Remedios. The American buyers have taken 2183 bales, while the local cigar and cigarette manufacturers have bought 1323 bales.

Exports last week were: 4273 bales all to the United States, except 40 to Mexico and 30 bales to Chile.

Departures:—Isidore Weinbaum, J. W. Merriam, Joe Cullman, S. Ashner, George Kober, E. Ellinger, Francisco Garcia, M. Cane and M. Schwartz for New York; John L. Kolb and Ramon Fernandez, for Tampa; John Wardlow for Key West, E. J. Davenport for Boston, John T. Dolan for Chicago.

Havana Cigar Manufacturers

as a rule, are complaining that orders are not coming in freely enough, still the large independent factories are working satisfactorily, more or less, and have not discharged any cigarmakers to speak of. The busiest months in the year are usually the five months from August 1 to December 31, but after a dull spell of two months there is a reaction as a rule in March and April, when May, June and July are again very quiet; although this year may perhaps form an exception in case the new crop should not be ready to be worked as early as in ordinary years.

H. Upmann & Co. are doing quite a steady business and have no lack of orders, their cigar shipments during the past week amounting to 450,000 cigars.

Cifuentes, Fernandez & Co. have no reason to complain as they are favored with enough orders from the United States, London and South America to keep them busy to the tune of 40,000 cigars a day.

Por Larranaga is doing very well, thanks to the push exercised by Don Antonio J. Rivero, the manager, and the efficient missionary work of Barron Taylor in the United States.

Ramon Allones is selling very largely in the North, owing to its representative, the National Cuba Co.

Behrens & Co., of Sol fame, are working steadily upon good orders from all directions.

J. F. Rocha & Co., of the Crepusculo factory, say that business is a trifle quieter, but they are nevertheless turning out 40,000 cigars daily for shipments to the United States, Europe and other points.

Rafael G. Marques, of the well known High Life factory, has splendid orders for Spain. His brand, Churruca, is selling in ever increasing quantities in the United States.

La Mas Fermosa, of Remigio Lopez & Bro., is being culled for quite extensively by the American importers.

Exports per steamer Mexico were 3,280,745 cigars.

Buying, Selling and other Notes of Interest.

S. Ashner, in conjunction with George Kober, selected some 800 bales of fine Vuelta Abajo and Remedios.

Miguel Perez was a heavy seller last week, closing out 1000 bales of Remedios and Vuelta Abajo.

E. J. Davenport was a buyer of 500 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Remedios.

G. Salomon & Bro. had no trouble in selling 400 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido, mostly wrappers, to a local manufacturing concern.

John Wardlow, president of the Ruy Lopez Company, secured some 500 bales of the finest Vuelta leaf, lowland section, which is a strong showing that he is perfectly content with stocking up with the 1904 crop.

J. F. Rocha disposed of 400 bales of his excellent Vuelta Abajo holdings.

J. W. Merriam, of the Roycroft Shop, known by its sign of the bulldog, also believed that in order to keep his growing business going it was a wise policy to have increased his stock by 400 bales of last year's Vuelta Abajo crop.

Jose Menendez turned over 183 bales of Vuelta Abajo to local and Northern buyers.

Don Antero Prieto y Gonzalez, of the well-known firm of Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez, has gone to San Diego de los Banos in order to have a well-earned vacation. As this firm has only a very light stock on hand his temporary absence ot this season will cause no interruption, as Don Antonio Quesada remains at the helm.

Joaquin Hedesa sold 180 bales of Partido and is now located at his new warehouse and residence, 83 Amistad street, where he will be glad to see his friends. Amistad street is fast filling up with tobacco warehouses, so much so that some Americans have called it the Water street of Havana.

Leslie Pantin purchased over 1000 bales for his customers last week.

Bruno Diaz & Co. disposed of 140 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido. Don Ricardo Rodriguez, the New York partner, has come here for a short visit.

Garcia & Co. were busy people, and while Don Manuel Garcia remains averse to giving publicity to his transactions, it is known they shipped 410 bales of leaf to the United States (Tampa and New York) last week.

Mark A. Pollock had his hands full with three of his customers buying for their accounts.

M. Garcia Pulido turned over 123 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

Loeb-Nunez Havana Company had a quiet week, but nevertheless did some fair business.

Grau, Planas & Co. closed out their last receipts of Remedios, 100 bales, last week.

Avelino Pazos went to the Vuelta Abajo to inspect some vegas which he has always been handling in the lowland district and to prepare for his coming cosecjida.

A. M. Calzada & Co. report no sales, but Don Antonio is always on the lookout for good tobacco whenever he can find it.

Voneiff and Vidal Cruz are hard at work stripping for their customers, having received some good large orders for booked fillers. Don Francisco Vidal Cruz is in Tampa, visiting the customers of his firm.

Dave Goldberg, with his bride, is here looking over the market situation.

John N. Kolb and Ramon Fernandez, who left here for Tampa last Tuesday, purchased about 300 bales additional for the Theobald & Oppenheimer Company.

THE JOURNAL AGAIN.

Another Blow for the Independent Fight in the West.

Here are a few more words from the dear old Chicago Journal, taken from its sledge-hammer style of argument. Read and be wise;

"The independent cigar dealers of Chicago have taken up the move recently made by a number of South side women in organizing a woman's anti-trust tobacco club.

"Such clubs will be formed throughout the city, fathered by the Independent Cigar Dealers' Association. Secrecy is to be observed for a time, but the head of the publicity deparment of the association says much will be accomplished by the wives, mothers and sweethearts of the city.

"It is argued that women's influence upon male members of their families and their friends, in boycotting the trust cigar stores, will prove an effective ally in the independent dealers' fight against trust stores and the tobacco trust's products.

"The fact that female child labor being employed extensively in the trust factories, at starvation wages, is to be brought before the women of Chicago, and is to be used as an incentive for mothers to join anti trust tobacco clubs

"The organization of the women's anti-trust tobacco clubs had its incentive at a cinch party, as published in The Journal last week."

TOBACCO NEWS OF GREATER NEW YORK

NEW YORK, March 13, 1905.

The trade, generally, was in better spirits all of last week, owing to the reasonably good weather which gave promise of better to come. Business was quite a little better with the retailers who are preparing for a spring rush. Manufacturers are booking good orders from the West and South and a very cheerful spirit pervades the trade.

The leaf trade has experienced a comparatively quiet week, and had it not been for the interest incident to the year's first inscription of Sumatra tobacco, at Amsterdam, it would be even more dull. Business, however, never stops entirely and there was much inquiry for goods, but all were not fortunate enough to have the stock on hand to meet the demand, particularly in the case of old Pennsylvania Broad leaf and Wisconsin.

The Sumatra market has naturally been somewhat quiet, owing to the advent of the new goods, and the waiting of buyers to see the samples of new offerings, which will be on exhibition in about three weeks. Havana alone remained fairly active.

H. Duys & Co., Sumatra importers, at 178 Water street were the first purchaser of the new crop, having secured out of hand 81 bales of the L. P. Deli just two days before the regular inscription. The goods will be promptly forwarded, and should reach here in about two weeks from the time of purchase.

According to report at the first inscription of this season, more than the usual interest was aroused. The offerings, however, showed only a comparatively small portion suitable for the American market and purchases by American buyers were correspondingly small—possibly 1,600 bales, out of a total offering of over 15,000 bales. These purchases are said to have been the smallest made for many years by American buyers at the first inscription. Among the successful bidders were: H. Duys & Co., of about 375 bales for transhipment; A. Cohn & Co., who secured about 600 bales; S. Rossin & Sons, 288 bales; Pretzfeld & Co., 200 bales, L. P. Sutter & Bros., 75 bales.

Wm. Steiner, Sons & Co., lithographers, of 116 122 East Fourteenth street, New York, have issued an artistic circular, printed in colors, illustrating the company's latest designs in band strips, on which the firm has quite a reputation.

The Waldorf-Astoria Segar Co. will open a new store on or about April 1, at 50 East Fourteenth street, which they announce will be sumptuous in its appointments. The location of this store which has just been secured is in proximity to one of the United Cigar Stores Co.'s stands, and it is likely that rivalry will be rather keen.

On May 1, the A. H. Hillman Co. will remove to 437 Pearl street, from its present location on Park Row. A portion of the building will be sufficient for the needs of the company at present, although the lease includes the entire structure, and it is fairly probable that with its growing business the firm will soon need all the space available.

Among the New Yorkers who made recent departures for the Sumatra inscriptions, are Joseph Hirsch, of Joseph Hirsch & Son, and Max Meyer and Ben G. Meyer, of Meyer & Mendelsohn.

George Alces, of the R. Steinecke Co., manufacturers of this city, who was hurt by a fall at the Barclay street ferry, a few days ago, is doing very nicely.

A case that will be of interest to tobacco importers has come before the Board of General Appraisers for a ruling as to the reappraisement on an importation of cigars from Cuba. The importation in question was made through the Philadelphia port, and had been assessed by the Collector of that port according to its market value. Owing to the internal revenue tax that obtains in Cuba of $2 per thousand on cigars the Collector decided that the market value of the cigars was increased by that amount, and assessed the duty accordingly. The importers protested against the decision of the Collector, contending that the tax did not in any way affect the market value of the cigars. The Government, on the other hand, insisted that as the tax necessarily increased the selling price of the article their market value was consequently raised.

The case is being watched closely by tobacco merchants, and a ruling by the Appraiser is expected shortly.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the American Tobacco Co., which was held in Jersey City last week, brought forth a treasurer's report which must have caused a glow of righteous satisfaction to pervade the breasts of those present.

The report shows total net earnings for the year ended Dec. 31, 1904, of $22,304 696. This compares with $22,228,182 in the previous year, or an increase of $76,514. The amount of such earnings applicable to surplus account is $12,296,666, making the total surplus $39,531,796. Less the difference between the par value of the preferred stocks of the American and Continental companies and par value of the American Tobacco 6 per cent gold bonds, into which they were converted, leaves the surplus on Dec. 31, 1904, at $29,518,880.

The report of the treasurer, in detail, showing the earnings and balance sheet, will be interesting to a great many readers. It is as follows:

The net earnings of the merging companies from Jan. 1, 1904, to the time of merger (not counting dividends received by one merging company from another merging company), together with net earnings of this company from the time of merger to end of the year, after deducting all charges and expenses for management, etc., were	$22,304,696

H. DUYS & CO. MAKE EXTENSIVE PURCHASES OF SUMATRA.

H. Duys & Co of New York, members of whom are attending the Sumatra inscriptions, are losing no time in acquiring some valuable lots of Sumatra. They write as follows:

"At to day's inscription, March 10, we purchased two running lots of tobacco, which include 500 bales Deli Tangkat Tab. My | St. Cyr | Deli, 366 bales S P | Deli, out of which, 375 bales are for the American Market A lot of about 90 bales S P | Deli will be shipped via S S. 'Statendam,' leaving Holland on the 11th inst., due to arrive here on the 21st inst., and this will be the first lot of new tobacco arriving in this country. The lot of St. Cyr. Deli was considered to be by many brokers the finest lot of the entire inscription."

This again bespeaks the well known enterprise of this house.

CINCINNATI LEAF BOARD OF TRADE MOURNS MOSES KROHN.

The Cincinnati Seed Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade has issued the following circular letter:

IN MEMORIAM.

"The Seed Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade is again called upon to mourn the loss of one of its members, Mr. Moses Krohn, who was called to the great beyond on February 25th, 1905.

"The deceased, through his long experience as an extensive manufacturer of cigars, and as the head of one of the largest tobacco packing concerns of the Miami Valley, did much to advance both interests to a high standard; his knowledge of affairs, his keen insight into matters that affected the welfare of the tobacco and cigar trade, especially when legislation in Congress adverse to our interests was imminent, were well known all over the country; and the trade has many times called upon him, and has received the benefit of his counsel and of his ripe judgment.

"At a meeting of the Board held February 27th, 1905, the members resolved to attend the funeral in a body, and as a slight testimonial of respect, and as an expression of our sorrow, it was also resolved to send a suitable floral emblem to the bereaved family, and also to transmit to them and to the trade journals a copy of this memorial, and to have the same spread on the minutes of the Board."

THE BURLEY DEAL.

After the wearisome series of explanations, excuses, hitches, halts, false starts, and other purposeless maneuvers, which have characterized the career of the Burley Growers' Association, it is somewhat of a relief to believe that the association has really and positively retired from the field.

There is not the slightest doubt that a great many of the tobacco farmers of the country, slave year in and year out for no adequate reward: and any movement which truly tends to put the grower on a better footing, and not only make him more independent but place him where he can exact a fair return for his labor, has our sincere sympathy.

But it is not easy to understand how this result could have been attained by such a method as this, except by the forming of precisely the same sort of trust as is the chief object of the farmers' denunciation. The affair was to have been conducted by promoters whose idea was to acquire a corner in tobacco and then squeeze, and it was to have been backed by capitalists, who before they even considered the proposition let it be understood that they must be assured "theirs" in pretty plentiful measure before they signed a check.

Somebody would have had to pay extra for these considerations, and the farmers were in the attitude of not caring who paid so long as they were not forced to.

Another feature of the deal, and one which does not leave such a good taste in the mouth, were the wheels within wheels which seem to have existed, and which have given rise to considerable internal bickering in the last two weeks. Secret conferences garnished by the framing of secret contracts, and a continual working at cross purposes did not tend to simplify matters or add to the farmers' chances of success; and when the entire scheme blew up in a burst of charges, counter charges, refutations, etc., the farmers had nothing left to do but mournfully shake their heads and once more get ready their tobacco for the open market.

As the situation now stands, the grower seems farther away from his salvation than ever.

IT IS announced that about the first of July, Secretary of War Taft will visit the Philippines with a number of Congressmen and Government officials in his tow.

The Secretary has not stated publicly just what the object of his trip will be, but it is reasonable to presume that what comes off during the jaunt will not exactly conspire to render the Congressional end of the party what might be described as bitterly antagonistic to the Curtis bill.

Secretary Taft takes a great interest in the problem of the Philippines, as is natural he should, but this carting of a crowd of legislators half-way across the world where the wind will blow but one way, is considerably like a hearing before a magistrate with the right of appeal taken away.

IT MUST be gratifying to the followers of Miss Lucy Page Gaston to know that the principal foe of the cigarette needs no press agent in her campaign. Armed with her own earnest imagination and credulity, Miss Gaston should be a match for those few thousands who desire to continue making a living from the manufacture of cigarettes. In an interview with a reporter the other day the reformer spun this heart breaking little tale.

"It seems strange, doesn't it," remarked Miss Gaston, "that women should smoke those death-bringing things? Why, I know of a grandmother who cares for a 3 year old child, and both smoke cigarettes. One day the grandmother had been put to sleep by a cigarette, and while asleep the baby set fire to the bed clothing with the cigarette it had been smoking. Yes, sir, only 3 years old. I know it sounds like an invention, but I have good authority for its truth."

Due credit should be given Miss Gaston for her voluntary admission that this "sounds like an invention," but unless the lady actually witnessed the tragedy "with her own eyes," it must likewise be admitted that the story also smells like an invention and doubtless is.

CIGARETTE LAW WON'T GO FAR.

Dealers in cigarettes in Western cities are not particularly agitated over the cigarette movement, owing to the fact that dealers have been advised by the American Tobacco Company that the company is prepared to test all laws which seem obnoxious, and principal among which is the new Indiana law.

Here and There With the Retailers

Dan McNeill, one of the local salesmen for A. B. Cunningham & Co., is laid up with a severe attack of grip, and will probably be confined to his home for some days yet.

I. Lowengrund, at his Third and Market street store, is making a special deal this week in Dominguez Chicos, which he is offering at $2 50 a hundred or 8 for a quarter.

The store on Chestnut street, below Tenth, recently bought by Mr. Lowengrund from Walter Lazar will soon be in shape for Chestnut street promenaders to admire. Improvements and repairs have held things back so far. The stand is under the able management of W. J. Ferree, who has been at the Sixth and Market street store.

Barron Taylor, the American representative of the Por Larranaga factory, of Havana, was visiting the local trade last week.

On days this month when the weather has let up a bit, business has been pretty good at the Fifth street store of M. J. Dalton. The only trouble is that these days have been so few and far between.

Retailers will be glad to learn that Frank Welsh, a popular salseman for Otto Eisenlohr & Bros. is out again and ready to do business. Mr. Welsh has been laid up for several weeks.

Victor Lopez, the capable representative of Trujillo & Co., who is very well known in the local market, spent a couple of days in town last week. He says the house is doing a great business in the West and South, but things are a little slow around this section.

Barney Greenburg, manager of the United Cigar Stores in this city, says that he has pretty nearly as much business as he can handle in the present list of stores. The company will take possession of its new stand at Second and Market streets on the first of April and at once commence alterations, so that the store will be opened to the public about the 15th. At present the company's stores are having a great run on their "Wednesday's Special," which sells on Wednesday for 5c. straight and every other day at 3 for a quarter.

Mr. Mendel, Jr., of M. W. Mendel & Bro., of New York, was in the retail market during the week pushing a new tobacco cheroot and a 5 cent cigar.

Mr. Van Bahler, a prominent retailer of Youngstown, who is best known in this territory on account of his former connection with J. W. Merriam & Co. and other houses, was in Philadelphia last week picking up a few pointers for his business.

Among the salesmen who visited local retailers during the past week were Wm. Taylor, of the Romeo & Juliet and Punch factories; Tom Bowen, of Guerra, Diaz & Co.; Joseph Wertheim, of Jose Lovera & Co.; Charles Wasserman, of B. Wasserman and Co.; B. R. Strauss, of Bustillo Bros. and Diaz, and A. Metzger, of Berriman Bros. All reported business rather slow, but expected great things when the weather clears up for good.

With Manufacturers and Jobbers.

The manufacturers felt considerably better this week, owing to an influx of orders which resulted from the spring weather. The majority of the manufacturers would not admit that things were very dull before, but the fact was patent, and the difference between the former attitude and the one which the present condition of the market causes, is very noticeable. Many orders, which have been held off for some time have been sent in this week, and the manufacturers take that fact as an indication that the season has fairly started.

W. D. Hicks, well known in the trade, is the Eastern representative of the Michigan Tobacco Co., of Detroit, Mich., with headquarters in this city. Mr. Hicks' territory embraces Eastern Pennsylvania and Delaware.

The engagement is announced of J. M. Frechie, with M. S. Frechie, 508 Arch street, to Miss Bessie F. Blum. Mr.

A charter will soon be applied for by Henry Heymann's Sons for manufacturing and dealing in cigars. The capital has not yet been decided upon. The incorporators will include James C. and Roy A. Heymann, sons of the late Henry Heymann, for many years proprietor of the United States Cigar Factory of T. J. Dunn & Co., and one of the best known cigar men of this city. Jas. C. Heymann will be president of the new company, and E. L. Nissley, an extensive leaf packer of Florin, Pa., will be treasurer. The new company will have office headquarters in the Betz building and the factory will be either at Marietta or Columbia, Pa.

M. Goldberg, of Seventh and Arch streets, has secured an additional floor of the building in which he has been located for some time, and will enlarge his factory facilities to meet the requirements of his growing trade.

J. N. Kolb, superintendent of the several Theobald & Oppenheimer Co. factories, has just returned from a visit to their Tampa factory, where he found things progressing most satisfactorily. He will sail on Saturday for Holland to attend the Sumatra inscriptions at Amsterdam.

A neat display is being made this week in the Eleventh street display window of the Sulzberger-Oppenheimer Co., Ltd., of Campanella 5c. cigars.

Leaf Dealers' Jottings.

The very fair demand continued during the week, but as was said last week, the dealers scarcely had the tobacco to meet it, although a few customers paid the prices that were asked, willingly. There was more doing in Havana than any other grade, owing to the fact that domestic stocks were pretty well cleaned out, and those who wanted Sumatra were waiting for the returns from the inscriptions.

There are twenty-six States of the Union reporting fractions of the country's commercial tobacco crop, and as these reports cover portions of New England and northerly portions of the middle West—notably Wisconsin—it cannot be said that climate sets arbitrary limits to the growing of the plant, such is the variation in its character and habitat. However, the South is preeminent in tobacco production, and when this is said it may be added that Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee and Kentucky produce an average of 75 per cent. of the commercial crop, the percentage holding good as to the number of acres devoted to the plant, the number of pounds of farm product and the farm value of that product.

In 1903 Virginia produced 120,913,500 pounds on 162,300 acres; North Carolina, 134,728,506 pounds on 214,878 acres; South Carolina, 24,490,890 pounds on 40,149 acres; Georgia, 1,299,200 pounds on 2,030 acres; Alabama, 254,745 pounds on 629 acres; Mississippi, 84,336 pounds on 168 acres; Tennessee, 49,838,600 pounds on 71,198 acres; and Kentucky, 267,260,160 pounds on 338,304 acres, making a total of 829,656 acres cultivated and 589,869,937 pounds produced, which product was valued at $37,339,913.

This was the farm value, which should not be confounded with export or other values. The various handlings, gradings and other manipulations to which the crop is subjected add greatly to the value of leaf tobacco in its journey from producer to consumer, more noticeably, perhaps, than is the case with any other important farm crop.

LANCASTER AGITATED

But United Cigar Stores Co. will not Invade that Section.

Lancaster, Pa., March 13.

Not for many a day has the retail trade of this city experienced so much excitement as it did during the past two weeks as the result of a rumor that the United Cigar Stores Co. had secured one of the choice locations of this city, and proposed forthwith to open a fine cigar store here, and that if the venture proved profitable others would be opened. The report had gained considerable credence, and it was beginning to be believed that the north east corner of Queen and King streets had been secured for the purpose. As a result, there was considerable agitation among a half score of dealers near that vicinity. The location was admitted by all as next to ideal and everything looked favorable.

It remained, however, for a Tobacco World representative to make a careful investigation to ascertain the fact that the present occupant of the premises still held a long time lease, and not only had not offered it for sale, but on the contrary had not been approached nor even thought of such a move. When pressed still further he declared most emphatically that he would not even consider a proposition of that kind at this time.

Subsequent interviews with dealers who would likely have been most affected by such an event, revealed the fact that the reports had caused considerable dismay.

CINCINNATI BREAKS LIVELY.

Lots of Action While the Combine Needs Tobacco.

Cincinnati, March 15.

With the American Tobacco Company—the trust—snapping up tobacco at the rate of $500,000 worth in one week, prices on Cincinnati breaks for white burley released by the collapse of the growers' corner, still remain firm.

When last week's market closed the average for all the different grades of the tobacco was better than at any time since the few days when it seemed assured the corner would be financed.

One of the factors responsible for this is that the farmers are continuing their "bull" movement on the market by holding all the tobacco possible back, and letting the crop they must sell go to the market as gradually as possible.

Another element is that speculators are buying up large quantities, on the theory that they can hold it up till the trust and other manufacturers have to pay even better figures than they are giving now.

T. H. Kirk and others are bidding high for all kinds of burley. Kirk has bought so much he is having trouble getting warehouses for all of it. Others are dealing on the same scale, it is said.

Still one of the warehouse men said he did not believe the speculators had quite so much on their hands this year as last, because of the tobacco coming in so slowly.

LANCASTER GROWERS' MEETING.

Discuss the Injustice of the Philippine Bill to Reduce Tariff.

Lancaster, Pa., March 13, 1905.

The Lancaster County Tobacco Growers' Association held a meeting this afternoon in Grand Army Hall. There was a very small attendance of members. President B. Ezra Herr was in the chair.

The report of the committee on the hearing before the Ways and Means Committee of Congress on the tax on Philippine tobacco was presented by Mr. Herr. He said that previous to going to Washington he had written out a few remarks to make before that committee. They met the committee on a Wednesday through the courtesy of Congressman Cassel and indorsed the position taken by the New England Association. The tax on Philippine tobacco would hurt Pennsylvania and Ohio more than any other State in the country.

The cooley laborers of the Philippines can work so very cheap that those of this country cannot begin to compete with them. This country is one of the biggest raisers of tobacco, and it would be a big loss to the farmers if this bill should be passed. The local delegation pointed out to the committee how unjust the bill was to the Lancaster County raisers. Philippine tobacco sells at $9.50 per hundred pounds. The secretary of the committee asked if 46 cents per hundred would not be acceptable to the committee, but they replied in the negative.

Other gentlemen from all over the county were present at this meeting and voiced their sentiments. The final outcome was that the bill has not as yet been passed.

It was brought out that the foreign growers did not benefit by any such bills, but that it was beneficial to the packers.

"What Seeds to Plant and What to Grow" was then taken up by the society. Mr. Greider, of Mt. Joy, said there is a demand for a little filler tobacco. A few years ago the Government experimented here with the Cuban tobacco, but it was condemned. The speaker was convinced that the time is coming when a better leaf will need to be grown. Ohio is far ahead of other States on this question, and realized better prices.

The question was further discussed by the president and several other members. It was brought out that the conditions of the weather and the soil had a great deal to do with the thickness of the leaf.

President Herr cited a case of where Zimmer Spanish was mistaken for Havana by an Ohioan. In that State and with their soil the leaf would have been very thick, but in this county it was thin.

Mr. Bricker, of Lititz, said that tobacco growing in Ohio is mainly confined to the Miami Valley, where the alluvial soil is very rich and does not require much manure.

The subject of tobacco planters was then taken up by Mr. Bricker, who asked concerning it. Several members volunteered that they can plant 2 feet 8 inches apart. Dry weather is a necessity to their use.

CROP FIGURES FOR 1900 AND 1901.

The following from the "Crop Reporter," published monthly by the Department of Commerce and Labor, will be interesting to a great many who pay attention to statistics of past years. The report is as follows:

In presenting herewith figures showing the acreage, production and value of the tobacco crop of the United States for the years 1900 and 1901, not heretofore published by this department, a word should be said in explanation.

The great difficulty of accurately estimating the tobacco crop from year to year has long been appreciated. In the crop report for March, 1896, the statistician made the following statement:

"Reporting the product of tobacco, as of fruits, sweet potatoes, beans and other crops generally grown in small patches, is exceptionally difficult, because of the uncertain basis of acreage on which it must rest. Between 1888 and 1893 no returns of tobacco were published by the department for the reason named."

Reports for the years 1893 to 1896 inclusive were published by the department, but in 1897 no estimate was made and the following statement of the statistician was published in his final report on the crops of that year:

"It is exceedingly doubtful whether the tobacco production of the country by States can be ascertained even approximately without the employment of supplementary agencies at considerable expense, and in view of the reduction of the appropriation made by Congress for the statistical work of the department, and considering also the near approach of the Federal census, it is scarcely likely that any further attempt will be made to gather statistics concerning this branch of the agricultural industry until the next census shall have furnished a new basis as to the amount produced and the distribution of the productive area." In accordince with this statement no further estimate was made by the Bureau of Statistics until 1902, as the report of the twelfth census was not available prior to that time. As soon as the figures reported by the twelfth census for the crop produced in 1899 were available a thorough investigation was undertaken in order to supply the figures for the years 1900 and 1901.

There is just as much danger of not advertising enough as there is of advertising too much. In one case you decrease your sales, in the other you waste your money.

One advertisement well written and well displayed is worth a dozen carelessly made up ones. Well written advertisements are more than 50 per cent. news.

INQUIRY GOOD IN LANCASTER.

But Old Goods Are Scarce and Prices Very High.

Lancaster, Pa., March 13.

Inquiries in this market are plentiful, but tobacco—in old goods—is not, and transactions are consequently restricted, both in number and volume. There would be plenty of ready sale for goods at anything like reasonable prices, and some little of the new goods have already been sold. This was, of course, cured by the bulk sweating process, but not yet in sufficient quantities to make it a criterion.

Considerable quantities of new goods are being brought to the local warehouses, most of which now have a sufficient stock on hand to keep their present forces busy for several weeks to come. Following the favorable stripping weather of the past week, deliveries are likely to increase.

On Thursday next a meeting of the Lancaster Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade will be held when it is expected to complete the preliminaries of organizing the Lancaster Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade Inspection Co., which is to be incorporated, with a capital of $10,000, consisting of 1,000 shares, at $10 each. It is required that each member of this association shall hold at least one share in the corporation, but that none can hold more than twenty shares ($200). It will also be provided that members of the Board of Trade can be stockholders in the inspection company. Two inspectors are to be provided for, a chief inspector and assistant, each of whom is to be bonded in the sum of $1,000, and these inspectors will not be permitted to be dealers either as buyers or sellers. A uniform charge of 35 cents per case is to be maintained for sampling, which receipts are to be paid into the treasury of the company. The samplers are to be chosen by the board. Any member of the corporation to be eligible to election as a director must hold at least five shares of stock, and no member of the organization will buy any cased goods unless inspected by the official Inspection Co. of the Association.

The Lancaster Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade is officered by the following men, all well known in the trade: President, J. Gust Zook, an extensive leaf packer; vice-president, J. Goldberg, of Kramer & Goldberg, packers and dealers; Secretary, Charles E. Long, of M. M. Fry & Cor, packers and dealers; Treasurer, M. Rosenthal, of M. Rosenthal & Co., packers and dealers. The directorate is composed of the following: Wm. DeHaven, J. H. Weaver, J. W. Brenneman, S. Siesel, and W. R. Cooper.

As will be observed, the local board is composed of some of the most prominent men in the trade, and the newly proposed inspection company will, of course, be closely allied with this board, although a separate and distinct body.

H. G. Sachs has completed preparations to launch a new brand of nickel cigars under the name "Lew Morris." He has so far been highly successful in placing his goods with the local trade, and is now having some specially designed labels lithographed.

Simon Shisler has taken the local distributing agency of the La Verdad, brand of clear Havana cigars from the La Verdad factory of S. Batt & Co, New York, Henry G. Alces, representing the factory, recently visited this city and closed the arrangements.

H. H. Miller, leaf dealer on North Queen street, is on a pleasure trip to New Orleans for the benefit of his health. He took the ocean route from New York.

Edw. F. Law, of West End avenue, has been away on a week's trip among his jobbers.

John F. Schnupp, representing L. G. Haeussermann & Sons, of Philadelphia, was visiting the manufacturing trade in this vicinity last week.

Frank Pulver, a leaf tobacco broker of New York, was also a visitor; he was accompanied by George Johnson.

H. S. Hartman, a cigar manufacturer at 46 North Market street, has launched his Marine and Bucknell 5 cent. and Citizens' Club 10 cent cigars on the market.

J. K. Leaman, leaf dealer, was confined to his home several days last week, owing to a severe cold.

There is constant buying and selling among jobbers who are depending largely upon a more or less local territory. With the packers however, there is no lack of activity with several receiving days each week and larger forces at work in handling the leaf.

An advance by the Cigarmakers' Union of from 25 to 40 cents per thousand for packing has caused considerable agitation and at least a partial suspension at several factories.

I. H. Weaver, a well known leaf packer of this city, accompanied by a half dozen or more friends, has been spending several weeks in the South on a pleasure trip, and contemplates a visit to Havana.

J. J. Levy, of the Ashland Cigar and Tobacco Co., of Ashland, Wis., extensive jobbers of cigars and tobaccos, has been here on one of his periodical visits to the trade. He made many new contracts for supplies of goods during the present year.

BURLEY LEAF IN SWITZERLAND.

Cincinnati, O., March 13.

Henry Burrus, a big manufacturer at Boucart, Switzerland, was a recent visitor at the tobacco sales at the Front street auction warehouses. "The superiority of the Kentucky burley is well known in Switzerland," he said, "and we use a great deal of it—so much that it has been profitable for me to come to this country annually and canvass the situation. Heretofore our purchases have been made exclusively in Louisville, but it is probable that a local representative, to buy in the open market here, will be selected."

NEW MILWAUKEE HOUSE.

Sherburn M. Becker, and his uncle, Volney D. Becker, have purchased the stock of C. E. Hansen, in the Hansen-Schmitt Tobacco Co., of Milwaukee, Wis., and the capital stock has been increased to $100,000. The company has now the following officers: President and manager, M. F. Schmitt; vice president, S. M. Becker; secretary and treasurer, V. D. Becker.

To get good out of advertising, one must adapt the quality and quantity of the advertising to the goods he has to sell, and to the people who may buy them.

—The cigarette trade in India has increased 90 per cent in four years. The amount of cigarette tobacco imported last year was 2,240,200 pounds.

The stopping of an advertisement, even for awhile, brings a liability of counteracting the success already acquired during the time the advertisement has been running.

SPRING HAS STRUCK BOSTON.

Retailers and Jobbers are Quick to Feel the Benefit.

Boston, March 3, 1905.

Owing to the springlike weather which reached here during the past week trade with the retailers and jobbers alike showed signs of improvement, and one and all look eagerly for a good spring trade. Some of the large cigar manufacturers have already started in to advertise their various brands. Waitt & Bond are placing about town handsome enameled signs of the Totem 5-cent cigar, Jos. F. McGreenery is distributing gratis some very handy cigar case moisteners advertising the Poet 10-cent cigar, while Henry Traiser & Co. are also offering deals on their Harvard 10-cent cigar in connection with their Pippin brand of 5-cent cigars, which is the leading brand in New England, and is also selling well in the West and Middle West. Even so far as San Francisco the Pippin cigar can be found in many of the prominent retail stores.

The Cigarmakers' Union has decided to push the union label. At a meeting of Cigarmakers' Union, No. 97, held Friday evening, James Blythe was elected vice president to take the place of Chas. W. Lamb, who succeeded to the presidency on the resignation of James A. De Bell. Mr. Blythe has been a member of the Cigarmakers' International Union for 24 years. The most important action of the meeting was the adoption of the label committee's recommendation that each member be assessed $5 to be paid in installments of 25 cents a week for the purpose of more extensively advertising the blue label. As the union has a membership of 2200 the assessment will amount to more than $11,000.

Postals have been received announcing that Albert Falk, of the Falk Tobacco Company, New York, intends calling on the trade during the coming week. The Falk Tobacco Company enjoys a good sale in Boston and vicinity. A. Benari & Co., of Tremont street, have a nice window display this week of the various Falk brands.

Advance cards have been received announcing that Ralph M. Gans, of Gans Bros., manufacturers of the William the Fourth clear Havana cigars, will reach Boston about the 22d. Rosenthal Bros., the distributors for these goods, are well satisfied with the way the cigars are duplicating wherever placed.

M. Barnett, a Fleet street leaf dealer, has just returned from a brief trip to New York. While there Mr. Barnett secured a nice lot of Wisconsin from Cullman Bros., of their 1903 packing.

Harry Stern, inside salesman with D. Benditson, Hanover street tobacconist, has entered the field of matrimony. The event took place Tuesday evening.

L. D. Zugsmith, with the American Stogie Company, is here looking after the sale of Old Sport, a three for five-cent piece of goods.

H. Berger, representing the Manhattan Briar Wood Pipe Company, is again in our midst looking after his many customers.

L. Hahn, jobber of 7 Lowell street, spent the past week in New York city. Every time Mr. Hahn goes to New York there's "something doing."

W. Bacon, New England representative of Weyman & Bros., Copenhagen snuff, intends leaving on a trip taking in all the principal cities of New England. Copenhagen snuff is the best selling snuff in all New England and is sold only in bulk.

Murad cigarettes are selling fairly well, but the Bizark's seem to have fallen by the wayside.

The American Tobacco Company is offering a deal in conjunction with U. S. Marine 2½ ounce cut plug. It seems as if Kozy 2½ ounce package will soon be one of the leading sellers in this market.

A new cigar manufacturer here is N. M. Levenson, 28 Newland street. Mr. Levenson was formerly associated with the Boston Courier Cigar Factory.

Turkish Delights, the Khedival Company's popular 10-cent cigarette, are selling well for the brief time they have been palced here. Many handsome window displays are in evidence.

J. Cooper, a popular Cambridge street tobacconist, reports a fairly good trade for the past week. The Negroe's Delight and Blue Buds are enjoying a good sale, and Mr. Cooper contemplates enlarging his store in the near future and putting in new show cases.

TRADE IMPROVING IN CHICAGO.

Business Livelier In All Branches and Goods Are Moving Well.

Chicago, March 11, 1905.

There apepars to be a very good feeling among retailers over the present condition of trade, which, in many instances, is reported to be on the increase.

Leaf men are looking forward to the expected shipments of new Sumatra goods some weeks hence.

Association men are feeling good over the continued increase by manufacturers in the use of Association stamps, and, on the whole, feel encouraged with the progress of the work in general.

The Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade held its annual election of officers last Tuesday, making a few changes in its official staff for the ensuing year. Following is a list of those elected: Ernst Hecht, of E. Hecht & Co., president; Fred Meyer, of John H. Meyer & Sons, first vice president; William Taussig, second vice president; Jonas A. Brown, leaf broker, secretary; Samuel Sternfeld, treasurer; delegate to the national convention at Lancaster, Pa., in May, William Taussig and Leo Tuska.

Victor Ettlinger, of E. Hoffman & Sons' New York leaf house, is among late trade visitors.

The Turban Company, whose advent in business has been previously mentioned under this head, will open headquarters at 6 and 8 Sherman street on Monday. The young men comprising the firm are all well known in local business circles, Messrs. Kennett Cowan and R. Ross being connected respectively with stationery and fire insurance houses, while H. E. Havemeyer is connected with the widely-known house of W. A. Havemeyer & Co., agents for the American Sugar Refining Company, having continued the business so firmly founded by his father, since the latter's death. The new firm will make a specialty of putting out a high-grade cigarette.

J. & B. Moos will this week put on the market a new 10-cent cigar to be known as the "Erlington." The first shipment has just arrived.

S. J. Brown, the well-known manufacturer of Sedan-Havana cigars, has been a late visitor from New York.

busy week overseeing the work of installing new fixtures in his location at 72 East Madison street, where the new 16-story structure just completed enables him to reopen his choice location at that point. The new place will be among the very finest downtown stores, and will in all probability be ready for business about one week hence.

I. M. Lederer and wife are expected home to-day after a pleasant honeymoon of several days enjoyed on the Pacific Coast.

Ben Rothchild, of the well-known local leaf house of Ben Rothchild Sons & Co., is away on a business trip to Cuba.

A. T. Berlizheimer, of the popular firm of Fromherz & Berlizheimer Company, manufacturers of Havana cigars, has been on a busines trip to Springfield and neighboring points during the week.

The Royal Tobacco Company, headed by W. F. Monroe as president, and C. W. Browne secretary and treasurer, have secured a charter and will shortly open a place for manufacturing and dealing in tobaccos and merchandise relative thereto. The company is capitalized at $25,000, and will soon be in full working order. The making of a high-class cigarette will be among its specialities at the outset.

R. M. Berlizheimer is handing out removal notices these days to his many patrons, who will, after April 1, be asked to call on him, four doors north of his present location, in more commodious quarters, at 118 La Salle street, in the Stock Exchange Building. Mr. Berlizheimer is steadily improving, but still feels the ill effects of his long struggle with pneumonia, from which he was so fortunately rescued.

The Steele-Wedeles Company are booming their new brand of "Liko" cigars with very gratifying results.

Albert Breitung wires home that he is enjoying the sights and climate of Pasadena, Cal., to the fullest extent.

George Anderson, head salesman of the cigar department of Reid, Murdock & Co., has been a visitor to Milwaukee and other points during the week.

LARGE SHIPMENTS FROM YORK CO.

Most of the Tobacco is Going to Lancaster Houses.

York, Pa., March 13, 1905.

The York county cigar factories experienced a slight falling off in output during February, as compared with January, but it must be remembered that it was a particularly short month, considering the holidays that occurred during the period of only 28 days.

Large shipments of leaf tobacco continue to be made from various points in York county, and a very large proportion of it is going to Lancaster for packing. From 7 to 9 cents per pound are prevailing prices for wrapper leaf.

The Hoffman Leaf Tobacco Co. has been a large buyer and some big shipments were made to this company during the week. The goods were sent to Marietta for packing.

Local leaf dealers report a somewhat improved condition in trade, as cigar manufacturers appear to be getting in larger orders for goods, although quite a number have been stocking up for several weeks, in order to keep their hands employed. At one factory it is said that at least 160 cases are now on hand, but the writer remembers a time last year when this same factory had on hand 200 cases, but it was not long until the entire amount had been shipped, and the manufacturer was wishing he had more on hand. It is to be hoped he will have an equally good experience this year.

Myers Bros., the new jobbing house, are now about ready for business and have laid in a considerable stock of cigars, tobacco, etc. Ellis Myers, of the firm, was recently visiting other sections in search for certain goods.

Samuel Rider, cigar box manufacturer, at Tilden, this county, will close down the factory, it is said, and retire from the business. A public sale of the business and equipment is to be held on March 20.

G. W. Gable, of Windsor, is reported to have made a statement to a local daily paper, to the effect that during the year 1904 he has sold 9,812,300 cigars, and that he had paid out for revenue $29,436.90. He is further reported to have said that he used 176,621 pounds of tobacco, which cost him $29,436.90, and that the making and packing represented a cost of $30,418.13 and the boxes $13,637.22, a total of $102,929.15. This statement has been made the subject of some comment. The total as per the figures given does not correspond with the total given, as it amounts to only $97,929.15 or $5,000 less than the published figures, which would in itself represent quite an item of additional profit, if the published figures showed any profit at all.

The figures show an average cost per pound for the tobacco of about 16⅔ cents. The average cost for making and packing is $3 10 per thousand, and boxes about $1 30 per thousand.

The average total cost of production would appear to have been a trifle less than $10 per thousand. From the average price of the tobacco, viz. 16⅔ cents per pound, it is evident that no Sumatra wrapper was used.

Allen Kauffman, of the cigar box manufacturing firm of A. Kauffman & Bro., of this city, will erect a four story building at the corner of Queen and York streets, which will have a frontage of 80 feet on York street and 90 feet on Queen street. The building will be commenced in a few weeks. It is to be used for storage purposes.

THE TOBACCO PLANT BEDS.

A New and Effective Method for Their Preparation.

Certain Tennessee farmers have come forward with a new method of preparing tobacco plant beds, which they claim is a great success when properly employed. It is probable that many planters will be late this year in sowing tobacco beds and this advice is worthy of attention if it will tend to produce early plants.

The new process of making beds is that of steaming the ground, instead of burning it. The object in burning is to destroy weeds, all wild growth and insects in the ground, and it has been demonstrated by several farmers that steaming is more effectual for this than burning. Moreover, steaming opens the pores of the earth, permitting the circulation of air and the electric current, which helps the soil to retain the rising moisture and forces a rapid, healthy growth of plants. There is no controverting this scientific fact, if the earth can be steamed sufficiently deep and hot to effect the purposes.

One farmer, in order to test the depth and force of the heating by steam, buried a half dozen eggs six inches under ground, and a large sweet potato fourteen inches deep. The steam box was held over this place just twenty minutes. The eggs were cooked hard as if boiled an hour and the potato was as soft as mush.

The method of steaming is as follows: Provide a strong box, made of 1½ or 2 inch plank—oak, or timber that will not warp and leak steam. This box can be made any size desired, but 6x10 feet would be about right. The plank should be six inches wide—this for the frame, 4 sides, 10 feet long and 6 feet wide, several narrow braces level with the top side, which is covered over with tongued and grooved flooring plank. This in turn should be covered tightly with sheet iron to keep in the steam. The open side, of course, goes next to the ground, and dirt should be packed around the edges to keep the steam from escaping. An auger hole should be bored either in one side or end as may suit best, for the accommodation of a hose pipe, which is attached to the steam chest. The steam apparatus of a threshing machine or anything else may be used. Any one can very easily improvise a boiler and steam chest by the use of a large kettle or make a cheap one for the purpose out of sheet iron. After steaming one spot ten or fifteen minutes the box is moved over another spot and so on. This leaves the bed wet. It must be allowed to dry, however, before sowing. It is best to pulverize and prepare the ground well before steaming. Preparing seed, however, can be done afterward.

Old stock in growers' hands is being hunted and quite a little traffic is still maintained in the export lines of these goods. Local packers report an excellent demand for binder stock, though sales are mostly for moderate sized lots.

A good deal of receiving is being done in the Vernon county district this week and warehouse handling is resumed at the packing points with a prospect that packing will not again be interrupted until the close of the season.

Shipments were 1,886cs, and 3 cars of bundle goods.—Reporter.

CLARKSVILLE, TENN.
M. H. Clark & Bro.

Our receipts this week were 216 hhds, offerings on the breaks 51 hhds, public and private sales 84 hhds.

The receipts are all new crop, and the sales almost entirely old crop, composed of a few Lugs, and the lower grades of Leaf. Market unchanged.

The mild weather has permitted the handling of the crop in the barns, and the strippers report the smallest per centage of Lugs of any crop for five years. The crop has hung long in the barns and the stems thoroughly dried out, and the crop will probably sweat out as sweet as that of 1903. The crop of 1902 sweated unusually badly.

The dry weather of last week gave opportunity for a general burning and sowing of plant beds, and perhaps most of this work has been completed for the intended planting of this year.

LOUISVILLE TO GET DARK CROP.

Probable That More Than 4,000,000 Pounds Will be Handled Here.

Louisville, Ky., March 19.

For several weeks negotiations have been pending looking toward the handling of a large proportion of the 1904 crop of dark tobacco. So far this market has handled very little of the crop, but by the arrangements now in progress, the crop of the Owensboro district will be handled here.

While there is no contract between the farmers and the Louisville Tobacco Warehouse Company to that end, a deal has been made with the Owensboro rehandlers which means that the tobacco rehandled, dried and prized in Owensboro will be ultimately shipped to this market for sale The rehandlers agree to take the tobacco from the farmers, making certain advances per pound, according to quality, handle it for them, put it on sale here when market conditions are favorable, and after the payment of all expenses, to pay the farmer his pro rata over and above the original advances made. It is easily possible that between four and five million pounds of tobacco will be handled in this district.

Officials of the Louisville Tobacco Warehouse Company, while reticent on the subject, admit that negotiations are pending to handle the crops of several other counties in the dark tobacco district in the same way.

The year 1905 promises to be a very prosperous one for Louisville warehouses Sales of Burley tobacco are now heavy, and are surpassing all previous records. The rush of business has been on for several weeks and receipts are large.

FOUR MARKETS WILL BE USED.

Dark Tobacco Planters' Association of Kentucky Adopts Resolutions.

Hopkinsville, Ky., March 17

At a recent meeting of the executive committee of the Dark Tobacco Planters' Association of Kentucky and Tennessee resolutions were adopted declaring it to be the purpose of the Association to give equal recognition to the four regularly established markets of the district which comprises Clarksville, Hopkinsville, Mayfield and Paducah.

All types of tobacco taken from hogsheads in storage are to be sold at the market where stored, which is a change from the plan requiring all samples to be sent to Clarksville to be sold. This action was taken to prevent any feeling of rivalry between different markets from interfering with the success of the tobacco growers' plans to better the prices offered by the combine.

TOBACCO FOR JAP SOLDIERS.

Baptist & Gooch, leaf dealers of Boydton, Va., have sold a large quantity of leaf tobacco in hogsheads, which has been shipped to Kobe, Japan, where it will be used by the soldiers in the field.

SECRETARY TAFT WILL CONTINUE WORKING TILL HE SUCCEEDS.

Will Take Senators and Representatives Around the World to the Philippines so They May See Value of Curtis Bill. Writes that Filipinos Should Taste Prosperity by Tariff.

Washington, D. C., March 17.

Secretary Taft's plan for a jaunt to the Philippines is developing rapidly into what is likely to be a trip around the world in company with a goodly party of Senators, Representatives and other official people. It is now considered probable that the party will take in China, Japan, Italy, France, England, and possibly Germany, and it is a significant fact that the entire ocean trip will be paid for by the Philippine Government, although the members of the party are expected to pay their own traveling expenses while in the Philippines.

It is safe to say that the Philippines consider the outlay as a good investment and one from which an early return can be expected and as this can be done by the aid of the Curtis bill it is easy enough to see that Secretary Taft is still prepared to carry his point.

In connection with this is a letter written by Mr. Taft to a correspondent who had inquired about the reluctance which according to the Bureau of Insular Affairs, exists on the part of American capitalists to invest in Philippine enterprises owing to the uncertain future of the Islands. The Secretary writes stating his position to be one in which he would favor waiting a while before the Filipinos are given independence, but by the aid of the tariff, wants to give them a taste of our prosperity." The body of the letter is as follows:

"I have your letter of March 7th, in which you say that a common reported interpretation of my remarks before the House Committee on Ways and Means is that it is the purpose of the Administration to give independence to the Filipinos within the next four years, and that this produces great timidity about investments in the Philippines, growing in great part out of the undercurrent of doubt as to what the future of those islands is to be.

"In reply, I beg to say that I cannot prevent misconstruction of my remarks except by repeating to you what I actually think in regard to the matter. The policy of the Administration is the indefinite retention of the Philippine Islands for the purpose of developing the prosperity and the self governing capacity of the Filipino people. The policy rests on the conviction that the people are not now capable of self-government, and will not be for a long period of time; certainly not for a generation, and probably not for a longer time than that, and that until they are ready for self government it would be a violation of trust for the United States to abandon the islands. The question as to the future, however, is one wholly of conjecture. The important fact is the present policy, which is that of indefinite retention of the islands.

"What shall be done in the future, when the people have reached a condition where they can be safely trusted with their own government, is a question which will doubtless have to be settled by another generation than the present, both of the American and of the Philippine people, to whose wisdom and generosity we may safely trust the solution of the problem. Should the Philippine people, when fit for self government, demand independence, I should be strongly in favor of giving it to them, and I have no doubt that the American people of the next generation would be of the same opinion.

"I think it much more likely, however, that after the Filipino people shall have been associated with the American people for a generation or more, and shall have tasted the prosperity they will find behind the national tariff wall, they will prefer a relation to America like that of Canada or Australia to England to one of absolute independence. Very respectfully yours,

"WM. H. TAFT."

NEW REVENUE BUSINESS.

Caution Notice Labels Must Not be Separated in Printing.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has ruled that "caution notice labels" on small packages of manufactured tobacco must be printed solid.

Manufacturers' labels with advertising matter in the center, showing the name and address of the manufacturer, and brand of tobacco, one half of the caution notice being printed on one end of the label and the other half on the opposite end, so that when the label is wrapped around the package on the tobacco the separate parts of the caution notice will be brought together and united, one part, however, being inverted, are contrary to law and their use must be discontinued.

JANESVILLE FOLKS ARE GREAT SMOKERS.

A salesman who writes from Janesville, Wis., says that for the size of the town it is a wonder for smokers. He got hold of some statistics which show that one hundred and five thousand cigars are consumed in the town every week and 5,460,000 each year. Of the weekly stint Janesville supplies itself with only 14,000, manufacturing 7,000 more but sending them out of town.

SUMATRA GROWING CO. SOLD.

Receivers of Connecticut Shade-Growing Concern Sell Effects at Auction.

Hartford, Conn., March 18.

Another chapter in the demise of the United States Sumatra Growing Tobacco Company, at Windsor Locks, took place by the sale at auction, two or three days ago, of the real estate and buildings of the Company, to Albert N. Graves, of Springfield, Mass., for $9,500.

The purchases included 150 acres of land, six tobacco barns, a horse and carriage barn, house, cottage and out buildings and several thousand feet of lumber which form the frames supporting the cloth which furnishes the shade over the tobacco.

The receivers of the company who have been trying to dispose of some of the tobacco which had been raised, held the auction by order of the Superior Court. These are: Hugh M. Alison, of Suffield, and George C. Tennant, of Jersey City, N. J.

The company was one of the largest of those organized to take advantage of the government's experiments in shade-grown Sumatra and much of the stock was provided by growers for whom the failure of the concern was a serious blow.

It was formed in 1901 with a capital of $500,000, about a fifth of which was subscribed by Hartford people. At least $45 000 was used in fitting up the plantation which was in operation two years before it was forced to give up. There was some question made as to what became of the remainder of the money.

The purchaser, Graves, is considered one of the largest, if not the largest tobacco land owners in this section. His holdings include 100 acres, under cultivation, bounding the north and east of his new acquisition, the two divided by a road. A week or so ago he also bought fifty acres, all of which land is supplied with the necessary buildings.

BROWNTOWN, PA., MANUFACTURER HAS SUCCESSFUL TRIP.

C. S. Cooper, of Browntown, Pa., has just returned from a very successful business trip in the eastern part of New Jersey and Delaware where he captured a nice bunch of orders for his new brands, the Red Hook and Red Fox cigars. The Red Fox is Mr. Cooper's leading 5 cent cigar, and it is making a hit. Mr. Cooper made several heavy shipments West the past week and he anticipates that the coming spring trade will be the largest since he has been in business.

JUSTIN SEUBERT FIRM, OF SYRACUSE, N. Y., TO BE REORGANIZED.

A bill of sale of the stock and good will of the Justin Seubert cigar factory, of Syracuse, N. Y., to the Justin Seubert Company, Inc., has been filed in the office of the County Clerk. The total value of the leaf tobacco, cigars and merchandise, book accounts and good will is placed at $99,800. The good will is figured at $15,500.

The Old Salesman's Musings.

THE SNUFF TRADE IS GROWING.

I was walking along Arch street, Philadelphia, one day last week and saw a man remove a little black box from his pocket and deftly take a pinch of snuff in the most matter of fact way possible. Come to think of it, I hadn't seen that operation on the street for a good many years, and sometime later I asked a jobber of my acquaintance how the market is now.

Within the last two years the demand for black snuff has bettered at least ten per cent. and there seems fair evidence that the market will grow even better, as the habit is apparently regaining some of its old time popularity. This refers to black snuff, taken in the nose and not to Scotch snuff, users of which frequently rub on their gums. Whatever increase there is in this grade would be in the South where its use is very common.

I became interested in the matter and looked it up, and I doubt very much if many people, even in the trade, know that the country consumes between sixteen and seventeen million pounds every year on which the taxes will amount to nearly $7,000,000.

Moreover, practically every year shows higher revenue returns, an increase more than commensurate with the increase of population and showing that the habit is gaining new followers. One man who has made snuff for a good many years says that by far the great majority of snuff takers are native born Americans and not, as popularly supposed, foreigners.

Most of the movement in the snuff market is in the South, of course, but, as I said, there is now getting to be more activity elsewhere. The product is made principally from leaf grown in the South and, naturally, the majority of factories are in the same section. Chicago boasts one considerable plant and has two or three other smaller ones, the first mentioned turning out an article that equals the imported commodity.

The snuff made in this country is manufactured principally from Virginia, Tennessee or Kentucky leaf tobacco. The best is made from the product of the Tennessee or Kentucky tobacco fields. The quality of the tobacco used compares favorably with that put into the best plug tobaccos. The leaf used is particularly ripe, as unripe leaf will spoil after making.

Aside from the actual tobacco used, the other ingredients used in the composition of snuff are of a much higher grade than those used to help make plug tobacco. The prices of the two are nearly the same.

"Rose oil, oil of rose geranium, claret and honey are used to give flavor and aroma to the product," said an expert with whom snuff is a particular hobby, "and generally tamarinds and St. John's bread are ground in, if there is to be a fruit flavor.

"One of the most characteristic things about the manufacture is the scrupulous cleanliness which is observed, from the arrival of the leaf to the placing of the finished product in jars This is the case not because the manufacturers are so anxious to benefit consumers in this direction as because the presence of any foreign substance greatly decreases the keeping qualities of snuff.

"The first process in snuff manufacture is the grinding or pulverizing Occasionally a manufacturer ferments his leaf before grinding, but the accepted method is to first grind, then ferment. The grinding is done mostly in what are termed snuff mulls. These mulls are apothecary mortars on a large scale, with power run mill stones for pestles. The capacity of a mull is about 150 pounds of leaf tobacco. The tobacco is ground into three grades—fine, medium, and coarse. The finest is used for the manufacture of the higher grades of snuff, the Scotch and Maccaboy brands.

"From the grinding room the leaf goes to the fermenting rooms, where the leaf is subjected to fermentation at from 90 to 140 degrees of temperature, according to the degree of fermentation desired. The fermentation takes from twenty days to three months. In this process the common ground tobacco is transformed, through the process of fermentation, to a compact, cohesive mass more akin to lampblack than tobacco in any form. When it is ready for the mixer the stuff is taken from the fermenting room, and the other ingredients, the flavors and perfumery properties, are kneaded in.

"Occasionally a little salt is added to give the snuff more zest and taste. Then it is packed in jars, tins, or packages, and is ready for shipment. Snuff is still packed, for the most part, in stone jars,

THE REALM OF THE RETAILERS

TIMELY TALKS WITH ENTERPRISING DEALERS.

Every enterprising dealer whose store or stores are situated in a residential section and who can thus count only on a more or less small percentage of transient trade, realizes that he must devise extra schemes to win trade if he expects to come out very much ahead of the game.

Nowadays it is necessary in most cases to appear to be giving something for nothing. Forty-five out of fifty human beings are keen for bargains and will time after time buy what they don't need or wouldn't have thought of buying otherwise, simply because of the "bargain" attraction.

A dealer as a rule expects to make a profit of about 33⅓ per cent. In drumming up trade, he can afford to give away a considerable part of this, inasmuch as he is paying for advertising and can expect to get additional and future returns from it. That being the case, such a plan as the following is feasible:

A special day can be set aside during the dull season and advertised. On this day the clerk near the door, can give to every tenth person entering the door a red check. Upon this can be stated "This card entitles you to 25 cents rebate on any purchase of a dollar made today." This will attract attention; and while the cards may not always be properly distributed, the plan will attract attention by its novelty.

Again, advertise that for a certain month you will donate to any society or organization in your neighborhood a certain sum of money, say $25, for the one returning the largest number of rebate checks during that month. This will create a rivalry that will undoubtedly increase trade.

In this connection, your advertising matter in the newspapers, or elsewhere, might read something like the following:

"During our benefit sale a donation of $25 (or a rebate of, say, 50c for every $10 worth of checks returned) will be paid in cash to the society or club of your choice, in Blankville, or immediate vicinity. Sale commences (date) and ends (date). Your society headquarters need cleaning up, repainting, re carpeting, or some other changes. You can materially assist in this work, and it won't cost you a cent. Call your friends' attention to this sale."

Again, put a glass globe by the door, or near the register, and, on a placard, state that if the purchaser doesn't care for the rebate check he can deposit it in the globe, and the amount of the rebate will be given to a certain charitable society.

Again, an announcement can be made that a double rebate will be given on certain goods, during a certain day, week or period.

Appreciate the fact that in order to increase your business you must interest people and appeal to their human nature. The average man likes to spend money and when he once gets the idea that he is being given the best of it, he falls over himself getting his money down. Very few stop to try to figure out how the store keeper can afford to do it, if the proposition is only made to look good enough to them.

A NOVELTY CIGARETTE CASE.

ONE of the largest jewelry concerns in Boston is manufacturing a novelty for feminine wear that proves the assertion that Boston women are becoming addicted to the cigarette habit.

It is a neat little gold box measuring about two by three inches, and one half an inch thick, which could never be taken for anything but a cigarette case.

Attached to the box are two little gold chains about five inches long, meeting at a solid gold ring, which is worn on the finger.

A "vanity box," the jeweler calls it. It opens like a book, disclosing on what might have compared with the middle leaf of a book a flat surface on which a mirror is set on one side, and a celluloid memorandum on the other.

On either side of this leaf, with its gold edges, is a shallow compartment, in one of which milady stores her cigarettes. The other cover is divided into two compartments, one of which contains a tiny little powder puff, the other being used as a receptacle for bon bons.

On the back of the little affair, extending the entire depth of it, is a tiny little gold pencil in which tiny leads are placed.

The compartment for cigarettes will hold enough to last for an evening, unless milady has developed the habit to the extent of being a cigarette fiend.

Altogether, it is one of the most delicate little novelties which has been produced in a number of years. More than that, it fills a long felt want, and is durable as well.

And it costs only $160. Perhaps that is why so few of them are being worn.

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE CLERK.

A good suggestion is made in the retail department of the Cannadian Cigar and Tobacco Journal, which says that every customer who enters the store should be promptly asked what can be done for him, and no person should be allowed to remain standing at a counter without being given the early attention of one of the attendants.

Every dealer, and every clerk, should take it upon himself to speak to the customer as soon as he can, as it puts the man at ease and assures him that some one is going to attend to his wants as soon as it is possible. This impression so easily created must not be abused and destroyed through subsequent negligence.

No customer whom the dealer or clerk may be waiting on has any right to be offended if the clerk turns for an instant to the newcomer and after asking him what he wants, requests him to wait a minute.

When a customer comes in a store, it is presumably for the purpose of transacting some sort of business which is of importance to himself, and it should at once be made of importance to the man behind the counter.

PAY YOUR CLERKS SALARY AND COMMISSION.

Every man who has ever bought anything in a cigar store has at some time or other noticed the difference between the clerk who is there to sell goods, and sell all he can make people buy and the one who believes he is there simply to wait on customers.

The value of the clerk who quickly learns the individual wants of customers and caters to them, is too frequently underestimated, as there is nothing which tickles the average man more than for his identity and tastes to be remembered.

For this reason a clerk has a right to expect to be paid not only for special work, but for the possession of brains. If he devises means of bringing in extra trade solely by the judicious exercise of his own personality, he ought to be paid for it This can best be done by a salary and commission plan, which has proven most successful in the cases of numerous up-to-date stores in the country.

It has been demonstrated beyond question that the plan reduces the cost of selling, the clerk makes better earnings, and the amount of goods which are put out is largely increased. The principle is one of the soundest because it is based on the old saying that the laborer is worthy of his hire, and it makes a man hustle to keep up to the procession, which is what the proprietor most wants.

In short, it eliminates the "dead ones," and if the proprietor arranges his salary and commission scale so that he is keeping well within his profits, which is easily possible, he is largely increasing the volume of his business at no expense to himself as it stands to reason that an $8 clerk who isn't worth $8 is a more expensive adjunct than a $15 clerk who is worth $15 or more. Even if a man has but one clerk, he is in a position to try the experiment which really isn't an experiment at all, because any store attendant is in a position to attract trade or drive it away, whichever he sets out to do. Always remember that the consumer makes it a point to go where he is well treated.

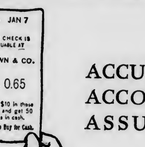
SELF MEASURING TOBACCO POUCH.

The old time powder pouch, by which the charge to be placed in a gun was measured as it passed from the interior of the pouch into the barrel, is more or less familiar to the older generation to whom the use of the muzzle loading weapon was somewhat familiar. These guns are so scarce they are encountered only semi occasionally, and, consequently, the device by which they were loaded is something in the nature of a curiosity. This pouch had a long neck and a valve which permitted only a certain amount of powder to pass from its interior at one time.

This idea has been untilized by a recent inventor in the construction of a tobacco pouch which is more particularly meant for the man who rolls his own cigarette. This is quite the common practice at present, and the device is arranged so that the smoker receives just enough to roll a cigarette.



DISPLAY OF EL DRACO CO.'S HUNTER BRAND

The above picture is a reproduction of a very attractive display of the El Draco Cigar Manufacturing Company's popular Hunter brand which is being made at McCaffrey's, 4007 Market street. This cigar, an excellent five cent brand, is well known in this market, and has also justly earned a favorable reputation elsewhere. The neat label lends to the effectiveness of the display.

THE OLD SALESMAN'S MUSINGS.

as it has been from time immemorial. No modern method has been found for packing it that will allow it to retain its coolness and moisture as well as does the old fashioned stone jar. Tins are used for small packages, and some paraffin cardboard cartons and glass bottles are also utilized. Neither of these forms of packing answers the purpose with entire satisfaction. The stone jars hold from one to twenty pounds. Snuff packed in this manner and hermetically sealed will retain its flavor and aroma indefinitely.

"The work of making the snuff is nearly wholly in the hands of men. Girls are employed to do the packing. The men who stick at the work for any length of time invariably become addicted to the use of the article they manufacture. It is seldom that a girl is found who does not abhor it; although among the people who are addicted to snuff as a national habit, the women are not far behind the men as users.

"Seventy-five per cent of the snuff manufactured in this country is made for what is termed 'dipping,' or snuff chewing. The 'snuff dipper' carries his snuff in a receptacle with a small brush, or stick with the end smashed so as to hold tiny particles of the stimulant. The brush or stick is touched lightly to the nostrils, the user 'snuffing' in the meanwhile. The snuff chewer uses snuff much as plug tobacco is used. A small wad is rolled and placed between the gum and the upper lip. It is allowed to lie there much as a piece of tobacco is tucked into the cheek."

There are quite a number of men in the trade who believe that the habit is due for quite a revival and that a snuff box may soon become as common a sight as a cigar case.

GET IN YOUR BIDS.

The bureau of supplies and accounts, Navy Department, at Washington, will open bids on April 12 for 150,000 pounds of tobacco to be delivered in May or June. Hereafter bids for the supply of tobacco will be received in the fall.

SUN-CURED BEING MARKETED IN RICHMOND.

Richmond, Va., March 18.

All of the sun-cured leaf left from last year's crop in the hands of the farmers is in good handling order as a result of the rainy season, and it is probable that the bulk of it will be marketed within the next two weeks. The agents of warehousemen who have been out in the country report that there is very little more to come.

Offerings now are mostly common to medium stocks, and buyers are of the opinion that there are few fine goods left. The breaks were heavy this week.

CHANGE IN A LOUISVILLE WAREHOUSE COMPANY.

The Tobacco Warehousing and Trading Company, of Louisville, Ky., which occupies three and a half acres of space at Eleventh and Magnolia streets, will discontinue its present line of business April 1, and will undertake a general manufacturing and merchandise business.

Not Much Movement in the Havana Market.

Vuelta Abajo Slow, and Partido Fillers are Almost Entirely Neglected. Some Buyers are Visiting the Tobacco Fields to Try to Get a Line on the New Crop. Two Days' Rain Needed.

[Special Correspondence of The Tobacco World.]

HAVANA, March 13, 1905.

While quite a number of new buyers from the United States have made their appearance, the number of transactions reported do not reflect the whole movement, as some sales were made from second hands and these are not mentioned.

There is still a strong demand for first and second capaduras, as well as heavy Vuelta Abajo styles for mixing purposes, and these classes are either woefully missing or are held at figures way above the views of buyers, and for this reason the market has not been as active as it might have been had the prevailing conditions been different.

Medium qualities in Vuelta Abajo are moving off slowly, and Partido fillers are almost entirely neglected. The attention of some of the Northern buyers has also been directed to the coming crop, and several of them have gone to the Vuelta Abajo and Partido districts to form their own opinions, although owing to the continuous drought very little can be seen, and it is still too early to form any absolutely correct judgment.

While light rains have fallen in the city of Havana, they were only from passing clouds, and did not even extend all over the town, so the same conditions have prevailed in the country. It is a pity that some farmers for the sake of trying to bring their crops to market are tilizing the little moisture that may be in the air to take down their oujes (poles), and commence bundling and piling their their tobacco.

Men of experience are averse to this practice and contend that the latter process ought not to begin until it has rained steadily for a couple of days at least, so the ground is soaked, and that then only the true and lasting "blandura" commences, which will produce the correct fermentation process in the piles. By following these rules the experienced veguero will obtain thoroughly cured tobacco, which will always keep, be free from worms and command the best prices.

On the other hand, the tobacco which is taken down too early and piled up when the air is yet more or less dry, will never ferment thoroughly and will remain raw and uncured even in the bales all the time, and thus fetch only low prices. When there is an excess of moisture the piling process ought not to be undertaken, as then the fermentation will be too strong and the tobacco likely to burn and become almost worthless.

One dealer and packer of tobacco, who also exports directly to the United States, gives as his opinion that the Vuelta Abajo and Partido crops will be fully 25 per cent. shorter this year, while as far as Remedios is concerned he prefers to wait one month before committing himself as to the possible quantity, as everything will depend upon the weather this month.

last week are reported as 2,625 bales in all, or 1,972 bales of Vuelta Abajo, 95 of Partido and 558 of Remedios. The American buyers are credited with 2,275 bales, and the local factories with 350.

Exports last week were 3,823 bales, all to the United States, excepting 5 bales, which were shipped to London, England.

Havana Cigar Manufacturers

are, collectively speaking, doing a fair business according to the time of the year, although the larger factories are getting a proportionately larger share than the smaller ones, and particularly the so-called Partido factories are suffering most. The market for the latter is principally Great Britain and Germany, and as the United States demand mostly Vuelta Abajo cigarros, the tendency is undoubtedly to use Vuelta Abajo leaf in substitution of Partido fillers.

As far as wrappers are concerned the so called Vuelta Abajo factories, with very few exceptions, are compelled to use Partido wrappers on account of the demand for light colors. If the smokers would only stop asking for light colors they would get a better cigar, that would tast mild and sweet, and be of a higher aroma.

H. Upmann & Co. are working all right, and shipped 400,000 cigars last week.

Cifuentes, Fernandez & Co. received orders for 150,000 cigars from London, mostly all high priced goods of the famous Partagas brand. Their United States trade is steady. Australia s call is constantly increasing.

Por Larranaga is getting out a new box made from "majagua" wood in the shape of a minature bale of tobacco, which is a work of art, fitting the excellent quality of the cigars contained therein. Don Antonio J. Rivero is certainly one of the up to date manufacturers, who exercises his brain to please the customers of Por Larranaga.

Rabell, Costa, Vales & Co. are busy in their Ramon Allones and Cruz Roja factory.

Behrens & Co. received another order for Sol cigars packed in glass tubes from His Holiness, Pope Pius X. Behrens & Co. were the originators of this style of packing, and have held letters patent since the year 1891. Owing to the exclusion of air, the cigars retain their freshness for years, and never become wormeaten, even if kept in hot climate like Cuba. Don Carlos Behrens is said to have cigars packed in these tubes since the year 1891, which he gives away to intimate friends to prove his assertion

J. F. Rocha & Co. are continuing to receive orders to keep them as busy as heretofore in their Crepusculo factory.

Rafael G. Marques is doing as well as any independent manufacturer, in his High Life factory. The National Cuba Co. is selling his Churruca brand with remarkable success.

La Mas Fermosa, of Remigio Lopez y Hno, is getting ahead in the United States and elsewhere.

Exports per steamer Morro Castle were 3,393,230 cigars.

Buying, Selling and Other Notes of Interest.

Barney Krausman has already purchased 700 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Remedios, and does not seem to have filled the wants of Havemeyer & Vigelius.

Gonzalez, Benitez & Co. disposed of 350 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

G Salomon y Hnos sold 475 bales of Vuelta Abajo, Partido and Remedios last week.

B. Lichtenstein was a careful buyer of 500 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Remedios during his 10 days' stay.

The death of Don Federico Neuman in Germany was announced here last week, and caused much sorrow, as he was universally liked and was a comparatively young man, having reached only 50 years of age. The firm of Federico Neuman & Co. will be continued as heretofore until the end of the original contract by the surviving partners.

A. Pazos & Co. did a fair business last week upon the return of Don Avelino from the country, by turning over 350 bales of their fine Vuelta Abajo holdings.

Edgar J. Stachelberg secured 200 bales of Vuelta Abajo for his Tampa factory, La Fama Universal.

The Loeb Nunez Havana Co. sold 328 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Remedios.

Garcìa & Co. reported no sales, but they have already purchased some 500 bales of Vuelta Abajo, tierra llana section, of the coming 1905 crop, and as Don Manuel is a connoisseur, and only buys of the choicest growths, it is to be presumed that in starting in so early, he has not made any mistake.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez disposed of 250 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Remedios last week.

Antonio Suarez has also made some purchases of the new leaf in the country, and will open his packing when the proper time arrives.

Rodriguez, Bautista & Co. closed out some 272 bales of Vuelta Abajo from their fine stocks.

A. M. Calzada & Co. were busy, although no number of bales sold could be learned this time.

Muniz Hnos & Co. turned over 200 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

Jose Menendez has gone to the country to prepare for his escojidas in various parts of the country this year.

Jose F. Rocha sold 100 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

TOBACCO NEWS OF GREATER NEW YORK

NEW YORK, March 20, 1905.

Goods were moving pretty lively over the retail counters last week owing to the continued good weather, and unless there is another spell of winter or unpleasant atmospheric conditions, good business will continue. The trade is considerably heartened up by this fact and the better business is naturally reacting on jobbers and manufacturers who are booking lots of orders. There was plenty of business along the Broadway stores, and down in the financial district money was easier and the dealers were accordingly benefited.

It looks now as if there might be another definite struggle between The United Cigar Co's stores and the other firms which have small chains of stands, particularly the A. Schulte Co. The United Co. is continually opening up new stores and in nearly every case they have been in a position to take some business away from long established stores. On the other hand, new stands have been opened by rivals of the United people in similarly near locations. This movement was apparently begun by the United Cigar Stores Co., and was really a force put owing to the fact that they had invaded all what might be called new territory there was for them and any further development was necessary in already occupied sections.

So far there seems to be enough business for all, when business is good, but if the campaign continues at its present rate there can be but one ending. New York is densely populated but there is a limit to the aggregate amount of the cigar and tobacco business and after a certain point, competition will be cut throat in the purest sense. Meanwhile the manufacturers and jobbers are benefiting by the increased call for goods and they, of course, are willing for the retail dealers to go as far as they like.

Goods are moving well for the manufacturers both in the West and South and there is a very steady demand for both Havana and seed Havana goods. The month is coming up well and is very far ahead of February.

The leaf market for the week was rather dull, not because there was any particular reaction but for the reason that there were not many old goods on hand. There was some business done in Havana but not in any large lots. Dealers are not anxious to move their Havana unless they get the prices which they had set upon it, and there is still considerable reluctance on the part of buyers to pay this. Very little was done in other goods with the exception of Sumatra towards which all eyes are now turned. Some of the Sumatra has arrived in this market and samples are ready. There seems to have been the annual scramble at the Inscriptions and prices ruled higher than for some years. The American buyers have secured some splendid tobacco comparatively speaking but the grade of the crop seems lower than last year while the prices are higher. This fact will doubtless better the chances of the domestic crop, particularly the Florida tobacco which is making a good reputation on this market, and the new crop of which will be eagerly awaited.

Among those who bought Sumatra was M. F. Schneider, who secured 73 bales at the first inscription and about 300 afterward.

At the regular meeting of the Retail Cigar and Tobacco Dealers' Association, held at their headquarters last Tuesday evening, very little of trade interest was transacted except the reading of the report of Sidney J. Freeman, chairman of the Exposition Committee. He reported that there would be room in the Exposition hall for 147 exhibits, allowing 100 square feet to each exhibit. It had been decided to make a charge to the exhibitor of $1 per square foot, and from letters which had been received, the committee believed that they would have no difficulty in disposing of the entire space at this rate. President Robert E. Lane was back from Cuba and said that while on the Island he had looked into the Havana customs records and had learned that the independent factories were now shipping more than fifty per cent. of the cigars exported instead of twenty per cent. which they controlled when the Havana Tobacco Co. was formed.

The trade is still talking a great deal about the decision in the Falco-Falcon brands, the details of which were given in this letter two weeks ago. The exact status of the matter seems to be anything but clear and many of the manufacturers appear to be considerably bewildered as to "just where they are at." It is not probable that the decision will have anything like the effect which many fear and it seems unlikely that the matter will go much farther. Some manufacturers have gotten the idea that anybody can manufacture any brand which at one time had passed from hand to hand not accompanied by the original owner's business. While there has been no definite decision given on this particular point it is not considered likely that any trouble will be caused owing to the fact that the law is simply to prevent fraud. The man who rightfully owns a brand can have it manufactured by whoever he wishes so long as it is manufactured under his direction. The trade mark is part of his business and he can have his business transacted where he chooses; on the same score he cannot sell his trade mark unless he sells his business with it.

Announcement is made that the United Cigar Stores Co. has purchased the interests of the M. Goldberg Co., which conducted stores at 217 and 260 Greenwich street, 98 Liberty street, 2 West Broadway in Manhattan and another one on Fulton street, Brooklyn. These stores are said not to be exclusive of the leases which the United Co. is said to have gotten for prospective operation on May 1st.

I. Lewis & Co., of Newark, are doing much missionary work in Greater New York on their Golden Eagle little cigars. They have a strong corps of salesmen in the field in charge of their well known representative Wm. Turk, who has arranged a number of handsome window displays of the cigars scattered throughout the five boroughs.

Wm. Catlin, who is in New England pushing the Victor Thorsch's Buster Brown brand, writes that he finds everything to his liking and is sending good batches of orders continually. The cigar is proving quite a seller.

Geo. H. M. Wyatt, well known manager for E. A. Kline & Co., is in Havana, where he will remain for some time looking over the market.

Nelson Wasserman, of B. Wasserman Co., announces his engagement to Miss Dorothy L. Cohen, daughter of Albert Cohen, of Brooklyn.

Simon Batt, of Simon Batt & Co., is out West where he will remain for a number of weeks. He will probably stay near the Pacific Coast during a considerable part of his trip.

Guy S. Kellogg starts through New England to sell his clay pipes. Everybody knows Mr. Kellogg and he always has something new in the clay pipe line in his sample case.

F. R. Hoissington, of the Cayey Caguas Tobacco Co., is at his desk after a very pleasant trip to the Porto Rican end of the business. Mr. Hoissington says the company has a new factory at San Lorenzo near Caguas, where they will take care of the orders with which their other factories have been unable to cope. Mr. Hoissington made a thoroughly complete visit to every branch of the business in Porto Rico and expresses himself as greatly gratified at the way he found things.

Partial schedules in bankruptcy of Morris Futterman, dealer in tobacco and cigars at 522 Willis Avenue, were filed last week by Nelson A. Miller, one of his creditors. The liabilities as far as known are $5,738, and assets $500 cash in hands of the receiver.

E. Regensburg & Sons, of New York, have received a decision from the Treasury Department, at Washington, which directs that on the exportation of the firm's America and La Melville brands of cigars, which are made from Havana in various sizes, an allowance for drawbacks may be made equal to the duty paid on the tobacco imported, less the legal deduction of 1 per cent.

MARIAHUANA THE WORST EVER.

This Substitute for Tobacco Causes Madness and Murder.

Professor Starr, of the University of Chicago, in his innocent search for a substitute for tobacco evidently hit on a loaded shell which is guaranteed to explode at any moment, according to an American correspondent from Mexico, who heard of the Professor's discovery of mariahuana, and who writes that the trade can await with deep interest any popularity which the substitute may acquire, especially among the co eds of the University.

The writer states that mariahuana grows wild in many of the southern sections of Mexico, and is one of the most dangerous drugs found in the country. So dangerous, in fact, that in the city of Mexico, and other municipalities, the Government keeps special inspectors constantly employed to see that the weed is not sold in the markets.

Its potency as an intoxicant has long been known among the natives who go on wild orgies with it. A few years ago it was found that many of the prisoners in the Belem prison in the city of Mexico were losing their minds. An investigation was started and the discovery was made that they were all addicted to the use of mariahuana which was smuggled in to them by the guards, who had been bribed for the purpose. Since then strict orders prohibiting the use of mariahuana by prisoners have been enforced.

The poisonous weed also finds favor among the soldiers, who mix it with tobacco and smoke it. The sale of the weed to the soldiers is strictly prohibited, and severe punishment is provided for any one guilty of the offence.

The habitual user of mariahuana finally loses his mind and becomes a raving maniac. There are scores and scores of such instances in Mexico. It is said that those who smoke mariahuana frequently die suddenly.

Leaf tobacco bears a close resemblance to the leaves of this weed which is usually smoked in cigarette form or in a pipe.

A few Americans in Mexico have experimented with mariahuana. A few years ago Henry Hommert, a former well known citizen of San Antonio, purchased a large coffee plantation in southern Mexico. He was induced to try smoking mariahuana. He became addicted to the habit, which rendered him insane and finally resulted in his death.

In another instance the superintendent of a mine in Mexico, who was an American, became the object of hatred of one of the men in his employ. The Mexican mixed mariahuana with the American's tobacco. The latter was made wildly insane from smoking the mixture and made a vicious attack upon a party of miners. He was shot and killed in the affray.

So much for Professor Starr's great and tonic substitute for tobacco.

—The Joplin Tobacco Co., of Joplin, Mo., has been incorporated with $5,000 capital, by James W. Rosborough, Thos. D. Williams, of Joplin, and John Davis, of St. Louis, to manufacture and deal in cigars, cigarettes and tobacco.

The columns of the paper are also open to readers for the discussion of current trade topics. If you have a decided opinion on a matter, express it, and see if some one else has good reasons for thinking otherwise.

IT'S UP TO THE COFFEE INDUSTRY NOW.

It is now proposed—by some—to tax coffee in order to make up the awkward deficit which must be gotten out of the way before the next Congressional election.

Those in favor of this plan of raising the wind argue, with quite as much fairness as has characterized any of the arguments bearing on the tariff situation, that instead of encouraging the Philippines to compete with American sugar and tobacco interests to the decided detriment of the domestic industries, they should be induced to grow subtropical products which could never be raised in the United States and which are now imported in large quantities from countries that take little from us in return.

The proposition also includes rubber, spices and fibres—all of which could be produced in the Philippines—but coffee is, of course, the main product considered owing to the tremendous quantity of it brought into the United States.

The scheme is to place a duty on all coffee grown outside of our possessions. Thus the Filipino planter is given an inducement to get busy, and while he is developing his new industry, the duty on foreign coffee is making up the deficit.

It sounds all right, but, of course, there will be a howl from the coffee importers. As a matter of fact, the scheme is declared by some to be a propaganda of the beet sugar Republicans to lift the burden from their own shoulders, and incidentally those of the tobacco trade.

Suppose it is. The coffee people may cry "selfish!" but it is certainly fairer for importers alone to suffer a little financially, which loss they would probably offset by adjusting the market to suit the new conditions, than for every branch of two industries to be injured irremediably.

An increase of 4 or 5 cents a pound in the price of the better grades of coffee would cause very little decrease in its consumption and would yield quite enough to make up the shortage. And in a comparatively short time coffee from the Philippines would commence to come in. Coffee is taxed far and wide outside this country, and since the repeal of the duty on the commodity in 1871 as the result of an agitation of the matter the country has lost a tremendous amount of money — nearly $305,000,000 on Brazilian coffee alone, which country followed our repeal action by imposing an export duty which has since brought into its own coffers a sum amounting to a billion and a quarter. In short the United States drinks more coffee than any other nation and derives no income from it.

Let Secretary Taft and his party study the possibilities of coffee growing in the Philippine Islands when they reach there, and then let them consider how easy it is to avoid further disagreeable conflict with the tobacco and sugar industries. The proposed plan is about as equal a distribution of responsibility and expense as could well be arranged.

PROF. STARR'S TOBACCOLESS TOBACCO.

Every once in a while some scientist comes to the front with a substitute for what a number of persons regard as the evils of life, such as strong drink, tobacco, drugs, etc. About the latest is one more substitute for tobacco which is offered by Professor Starr, of the University of Chicago.

According to one comment made on the discovery or invention, whichever it is classed as, Prof. Starr offers to the consumer "a smoke sweeter than cigar, cigarette or pipe tobacco, an originator of dreamland castles and green vales with daisies growing in them, a tonic, not a stimulant."

This sounds like something one might legitimately expect to procure in Chinatown and scarcely a commodity which a business man would carry around for ready and frequent use. Indeed, it is hardly probable that the trade is much alarmed over the prospect of its wares being supplanted, as it long ago got used to these periodical alleged discoveries which have never amounted to anything more than a little notoriety for their progenitors.

The substitutes have run all the way from poisonless tobacco or cigars, in which everything was supposed to be present but the poison, to preparations which so far from being injurious were supposed to confer actual benefit on the user. Years ago some cigars were made from the catalpa tree bean which weren't such a bad smoke at that, and so on down the line to substitutes that represented merely a makeshift.

None of them has been practical for trade purposes, and it is highly improbable that Professor Starr's "mariahuana" will be. A scientist has to keep busy though.

GOV. PENNYPACKER, of Pennsylvania, has signed the Ware bill and hereafter it will be unlawful in this State not only to sell cigarettes to boys under 21 years of age, but to give to them free of cost either cigarettes or cigarette papers. To be guilty of this act is to commit a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $300.

This is considerably more reasonable than Indiana's or Wisconsin's law, but at the same time, unless the anti-cigarette societies maintain a constant staff of vigilant inspectors, not for a month or two months, but continually, the law won't amount to shucks. To do that would cost much more money than these societies, as a rule, have to spend in this direction.

Certainly there is no fear that the American Tobacco Co. will consider it advisable to interfere in this case as it is doing in the two Western States mentioned, if for no other reason than the above mentioned fact that the effect of the new law will not be worthy of consideration.

AN ERROR.

In an article which appeared in our issue of March 8, dated from Houston, Texas, and embodying a statement made by a government expert that the Texas farmers did not want to take the time necessary to properly learn to cultivate tobacco, the name of the expert was given as Shelfer. This was an error of our correspondent as the name should have been Walter M. Hinson. Mr. Shelfer has not been connected with the department since 1903.

Philadelphia Tobacco Trade.

Here and There With the Retailers

Two or three days last week made the retailers smile on account of the way goods moved over the counter. Friday and Saturday were so much like real spring that there was an immediate increase in business that was extremely welcome. It was not to last, however, and Monday's receipts were decidedly smaller. Bad weather always affects the box trade somehow, as well as the smaller line of purchasing, and the only thing for dealers to do is to wait for the sunny skies to become permanent.

I. Lewis & Co.'s new brand of little cigars Golden Eagle is being well distributed on this market, and if early indications are reliable, is destined to make a hit with Philadelphia smokers. The firm brand has the advantage of being backed by the firm's reputation for smokes of that character, and is of a quality that amply fulfills that reputation.

One of the cigar store windows that always attracts attention for artistic neatness is that of Hancock & Adams, at Seventh and Chestnut streets. The window is changed frequently, and the result is always something which makes the smoker stop and not only admire but desire.

B. Frank Batten, has got things pretty well in shape at his new store at the foot of Market street on the north side, and expects to do a handsome spring and summer business.

Jos. G. Tuck, who has spent the winter in Los Angeles, Cal., has left that city, and is making a slow journey home. He is expected at his Market street store about the fifth of April, and according to his letters, feels like a fighting cock.

Leaf Dealers' Jottings.

The leaf market could by no means be called active during the past week, although there was a fair demand, particularly for Havana. No big sales were reported in this market, and indeed the buyers were few in number. Orders were sent in from men on the road on Pennsylvania goods as well as Havana, and there was considerable inquiry for the new Connecticut crop, on which prices are very stiff. Prices remain firm on every grade, and will undoubtedly stay so.

The Philadelphia Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade, which met last week and re-elected the old staff of officers, will in a short time give a planked shad supper at the Orchard, in Essington, on which occasion delegates to the coming convention at Lancaster will be named. The date for the affair has not yet been decided upon.

F. Eckerson is up the State this week, on a business trip, and finds things in as good shape as might be expected, considering the recent weather.

writes that he has bought no Sumatra, owing to the extremely high prices, which are out of all proportion to the value of the tobacco for this market.
